REVIEW OF FEBRUARY.

The event of transcendent importance during February was, of course, the breaking off by our Government of diplomatic relations with Germany. It did not take President Wilson very long to make up his mind as to his duty in the premises after having received the sudden and unexpected announcement on Jan. 31 from the German Government that it purposed abandoning the rules of cruiser warfare in the use of submarines—these rules requiring that merchant ships shall not be sunk without warning and without assuring safety for the lives of passengers and crew—and would now enter upon an unrestricted course of warfare. On Feb. 3 he appeared before Congress, which had been assembled in joint session at his request, and announced that he had directed Secretary of State Lansing to make known to the German Ambassador, in view of Germany's declaration, that diplomatic relations between the two countries would be immediately terminated—and that in accordance with this determination, the German Ambassador, Count von Bernstorff, would be handed his passports and the American Ambassador at Berlin, James W. Gerard, would be recalled.

Public sentiment heartily endorsed the action of the President. Indeed, there appeared to be no dissent from the conclusion that, in view of the previous warning given the German Government as to the consequences that would follow its resort to submarine warfare imperiling the lives of Americans on merchant ships, no other course was open to our Government than to break off official relations with that Government, now that it had deliberately chosen to enter on the proscribed warfare. The President decided over night on Friday, Feb. 2, as to the plan which he considered it his duty to take, and the following morning (Saturday) apprised Congress that he would address it in joint session at 2 o'clock that afternoon.

The President, however, still hoped that Germany would not go to the lengths threatened, but would reconsider her action. This hope was expressed in the closing paragraphs of his address, which were couched in the following impressive language:

"Notwithstanding this unexpected action of the German Government, this sudden and deeply deplorable renunciation of its assurances, given this Government at one of the most critical moments of tension in the relations of the two governments, I refuse to believe that it is the intention of the German authorities to do in fact what they have warned us they will feel at liberty to do. I cannot bring myself to believe that they will indeed pay no regard to the ancient friendship between their people and our own, or to the solemn obligations which have been exchanged between them, and destroy American ships and take the lives of American citizens in the willful prosecution of the ruthless naval program they have announced their intention to adopt. Only actual overt acts on their part can make me believe it even now.

"If this inveterate confidence on my part in the sobriety and prudent foresight of their purpose should unhappily prove unfounded; if American ships and American lives should in fact be sacrificed by their naval commanders in heedless contravention of the just and reasonable understandings of international law and the obvious dictates of humanity, I shall take the liberty of coming again before Congress, to ask that authority be given me to use any means that may be necessary for the protection of our seamen and our people in the prosecution of their peaceful and legitimate errands on the high seas. I can do nothing less. I take it for granted that all neutral governments will take the same course.

"We do not desire any hostile conflict with the Imperial German Government. We are the sincere friends of the German people and earnestly desire to remain at peace with the Government which speaks for them. We shall not believe that they are hostile to us unless and until we are obliged to believe it; and we purpose nothing more than the reasonable defense of the undoubted rights of our people. We wish to serve no selfish ends. We seek merely to stand true alike in thought and in action to the immemorial principles of our people which I sought to express in my address to the Senate only two weeks ago—seek merely to vindicate our right to liberty and justice and an unmolested life. These are the bases of peace, not war. God grant that we may not be challenged to defend them by acts of willful injustice on the part of the Government of Germany."

The hope expressed by the President that other neutral governments would take the same course as that of the United States was not realized. They all agreed in protesting against the new German policy, but none of them would go to the lengths of our own Government and break off diplomatic intercourse. The period immediately following the President's address was naturally anxious and trying. With the rupture of diplomatic intercourse all means of direct communication between the two Governments was, of course, severed, and apparently all sorts of unfounded reports gained currency in Germany as to the action which our Government intended to take with reference to German ships interned in the United States, and also with reference to the members and staff of the German Embassy and of German consular representatives. Owing to these reports, the German Government temporarily impeded the passage of Ambassador Gerard out of Germany. In fact, it was claimed that Mr. Gerard was held hostage for the safe return of Count von Bernstorff.

When it appeared that there was no intention on the part of our Government to hinder Count von Bernstorff's passage from the United States—that, indeed, our Government was treating him with the utmost courtesy and consideration and had even secured for him safe conduct from Great Britain for his homeward passage—Germany relaxed its restrictions against Mr. Gerard and other Americans who wanted to return to the United States. Mr. Gerard left Berlin Feb. 10 for Zurich, Switzerland, and in passing through Switzerland and France was the recipient of many honors and courtesies. Count von Bernstorff, in turn, sailed for Copenhagen on Feb. 14 on board the Scandinavian-American liner Frederik VIII. With him was the Countess and over 150 German diplomatic and consular representatives of the German Empire to this country with their families. The Frederik VIII. reached Halifax on Feb. 16, where she was subjected to long detention. It had been arranged that she should be examined by the British authorities at that point instead of at Kirkwall in the Orkneys, the usual point where British examinations of boats crossing the Atlantic are held. It was stated that Count von Bernstorff was not averse to this, but rather was in favor of it, inasmuch as should the vessel be examined at Kirkwall she would have to traverse the German submarine zone, thereby exposing the Bernstorff party to the dangers of that zone.

The reports regarding unfavorable treatment of German crews and German ships in this country seemed to have originated in part out of instructions issued on Feb. 3 by Secretary of the Navy Daniels, to naval officers in charge of the various navy yards, to take such measures for the safety of interned German warships as should be found necessary. Attempts were made on the part of their own crews to damage some of these interned ships, particularly in the case of the Kronprinzessin Cecile, where much damage was inflicted on the machinery, this having, as it subsequently appeared, been done at the instance of some high German officials who advised those in charge of the ship to disable the vessel in case of trouble with the United States. It was this that induced our Naval Department to initiate measures to insure the safety of the interned ships. It was pointed out that the United States is responsible to the German Government for the safety and protection of these vessels so long as they are interned. Owing to the attempts to disable these interned ships through damage to their machinery, the Washington authorities on Feb. 6 issued an explanation on behalf of the U. S. Government, saying that no use was intended to be made of these ships, even in the event of war. Secretary of War Baker, on Feb. 7, also issued a statement denying reports of the seizure on Feb. 5 of seventeen German merchant vessels anchored in Manila Bay.

On Feb. 8 the State Department at Washington also deemed it advisable to issue a statement to the effect that our Government had no intention of seizing bank deposits or other property belonging to any foreign subject, even in the event of war. This statement was called forth by the fact that some withdrawals from savings banks by persons of German origin—Germans, Austrians and Poles—had been noticed.

The severing of diplomatic intercourse did not alter the purpose of the German Government to carry out its policy of unrestricted submarine warfare, and the German submarines manifested great activity. Many different German officials were quoted as saying that Germany considered the new submarine warfare an effective means of shortening the war and there could be, and would be, no turning backward. A communication from the Swiss Minister at Washington encouraged the idea momentarily that the German Government was inclined to take steps for resuming relations with the United States, but it subsequently appeared that these did not originate with the German Government—rather that Dr. Paul Ritter acted on his own initiative and without instructions even from the Swiss Government when he submitted to the Washington authorities a suggestion that the German Government was open to negotiate with the United States provided the commercial blockade against England should not be interfered with. The suggestion did not meet with a very flattering reception on the part of our own Government.

The U. S. Senate on Feb. 5 (the Monday following the President's address the previous Saturday) passed a resolution, by a vote of 78 to 5, introduced by Chairman Stone of the Committee on Foreign Relations, endorsing President Wilson's action in severing relations with Germany. The rest of the month, as Germany carried on ceaseless war against merchant ships and one vessel after another was sunk, the question anxiously considered was whether any of these constituted such an overt act as would make it necessary for the President to again appear before Congress. Records compiled from British Admiralty figures, and from reports received from other sources, showed that the tonnage sunk by German submarines from Feb. 1 to Feb. 28, inclusive, aggregated about 470,000 tons. In view of the fact that the life of the present Congress expires on March 4, various measures were introduced in one House or the other for conferring on the President adequate powers for dealing with the situation should the necessity for more stringent action on the part of our Government become necessary. There were reports from day to day that Mr. Wilson had it in mind again to come before Congress. Finally, on Feb. 26, he did again address Congress, this time asking it for authority to use the forces of the United States to protect American ships and lives against attack by German submarines.

The President, in this new address, pointed out that the German policy to conduct submarine operations without regard to the established restrictions of international practice, "without regard to any consideration of humanity even which might interfere with their object," had now been in active execution for nearly four weeks. Two American vessels had been sunk, namely the Housatonic and the Lyman M. Law. The case of the Housatonic, which was carrying foodstuffs consigned to a London firm, he stated, was essentially like the case of the Frye, in which the German Government admitted its liability for damages, and the lives of the crew, as in the case of the Frye, were safeguarded with reasonable care. The case of the Law, which was carrying lemon-box staves to Palermo, "disclosed a ruthlessness of method which deserves great condemnation, but was accompanied by no circumstances which might not have been expected at any time in connection with the use of the submarine against merchantmen as the German Government has used it." It could, therefore, be asserted that the overt act which he had ventured to hope the German Government would, in fact, avoid, had not occurred. He then went on to say:

"But while this is happily true, it must be admitted that there have been certain additional indications and expressions of purpose on the part of the German press and the German authorities, which have increased, rather than lessened, the impression that, if our ships and our people are spared, it will be because of fortunate circumstances or because the commanders of the German submarines which they may happen to encounter exercise an unexpected discretion and restraint, rather than because of the instructions under which those commanders are acting. It would be foolish to deny that the situation is fraught with the gravest possibilities and dangers. No thoughtful man can fail to see that the necessity for definite action may come at any time, if we are, in fact and not in word merely, to defend our elementary rights as a neutral nation. It would be most imprudent to be unprepared."

In these circumstances, he stated, he could not be unmindful of the fact that the expiration of the term of the present Congress is immediately at hand by constitutional limitation and that it would in all likelihood require an unusual length of time to assemble and organize the Congress which is to succeed it. In view of that fact, he wanted to obtain from Congress full and immediate assurance of the authority which he might need at any moment to exercise. We must defend our commerce and the lives of our people in the midst of the present trying circumstances with discretion but with clear and steadfast purpose, he declared. Only the method and the extent remain to be chosen, upon the occasion, if occasion should indeed arise. Since it had unhappily proved impossible to safeguard our neutral rights by diplomatic means against the unwarranted infringements they are suffering at the hands of Germany, there might be no recourse but to "armed neutrality, which we shall know how to maintain and for which there is abundant American precedent." Continuing, he said, "It is devoutly to be hoped that it will not be necessary to put armed forces anywhere into action. The American people do not desire it, and our desire is not different from theirs. I am sure that they will understand the spirit in which I am now acting, the purpose I hold nearest my heart and would wish to exhibit in everything I do.

"I am not now proposing or contemplating war, or any steps that need lead to it. I merely request that you will accord me by your own vote and definite bestowal the means and the authority to safeguard in practice the right of a great people, who are at peace and who are desirous of exercising none but the rights of peace, to follow the pursuit of peace in quietness and good-will—rights recognized time out of mind by all the civilized nations of the world.

"No course of my choosing, or of theirs, will lead to war. War can come only by the willful acts and aggressions of others.

"I request that you will authorize me to supply our merchant ships with defensive arms should that become necessary, and with the means of using them, and to employ any other instrumentalities or methods that may be necessary and adequate to protect our ships and our people in their legitimate and peaceful pursuits on the seas. I request also that you will grant me at the same time, along with the powers I ask, a sufficient credit to enable me to provide adequate means of protection where they are lacking, including adequate insurance against the present war risks."

While the President was on his way to deliver his second address, he received word of another submarine attack and sinking more serious and more flagrant than any preceding one, namely the torpedoing and sinking, without warning, on Sunday night, Feb. 25, of the Cunard liner Laconia. Some 270 to 280 of the survivors were brought to Queenstown. Not only were American lives jeopardized in this attack, but two American women perished in the open boats from exposure. These were Mrs. Mary Elizabeth Hoy and Miss Elizabeth Hoy, her daughter. They were on the way to join Austin Y. Hoy, Mrs. Hoy's son, in London. Mr. Hoy claims to be an American citizen, and represents the Sullivan Machinery Co. of Chicago. In a cablegram to President Wilson, Mr. Hoy made a stirring appeal to be allowed to avenge the death of his mother. He said he was living abroad, not as an expatriate, but for the promotion of American trade. He said he loved the flag, believing in its significance. His beloved mother and sister, passengers on the Laconia, had been foully murdered on the high seas. He continued:

"As an American citizen outraged and as such, fully within my rights and as an American son and brother bereaved, I call upon my Government to preserve its citizens' self-respect and save others of my countrymen from such deep grief as I now feel. I am of military age, able to fight. If my country can use me against these brutal assassins, I am at its call.

"If it stultifies my manhood and my nation's by remaining passive under outrage, I shall seek a man's chance under another flag."

Another development at the very end of the month came in a revelation by the Associated Press that Germany, in planning unrestricted submarine warfare, had, the previous month, when relations with the United States were still friendly, proposed an alliance with Mexico and Japan to make war on the United States in the event that the United States should not maintain its policy of neutrality should Germany practice unrestricted submarine warfare. The communication was directed to the German Minister at Mexico City, Von Eckhardt, who, by instructions, signed by German Foreign Minister Zimmermann, at Berlin, Jan. 19 1917, was directed to propose the alliance with Mexico to Gen. Carranza and suggest that Mexico seek to bring Japan into the plot.

In a financial way, the great event of the month was the closing of subscriptions for the new British war loan and the stupendous success attained by the loan. The number of subscribers reached 5,289,000 and the aggregate of the subscriptions £1,000,312,950. Thus the loan was truly a "victory loan." Of the subscriptions, £130,711,950 were Treasury bills, leaving £869,601,000 as representing new money.

On the Stock Exchange a tremendous slump in prices occurred on Feb. 1, owing to the appearance in the daily papers that morning of the announcement that Germany would begin unrestricted submarine warfare. As one illustration, U. S. Steel common had closed the day before (Jan. 31) at 112. It now opened at 105 to 100 and got down to 99; it closed that day at 102¾. The next day (Feb. 2) it opened at 102½ and got up to 104⅛, but closed at only 100⅜. The general market recovered on that day, but experienced a sharp break at the close. On Saturday, Feb. 3, news came quite early that relations with Germany had been, or would be, broken off, and also that the President was to address Congress in the afternoon. It being Saturday, the market closed at noon and, notwithstanding this news, sharp recovery ensued. Doubtless the covering of short commitments had something to do with the recovery. The following Monday the recovery made further progress. On the 6th a big advance occurred in Crucible Steel and sharp advances in International Nickel, Republic Iron & Steel, American Locomotive, Baldwin Locomotive, American Woolen, &c. The theory seemed to be that with the United States engaged in war, large Government orders would tend to stimulate trade and insure a continued period of prosperity to the industrial properties. The market at this time was quite active, with the volume of business large. Later, however, it gradually lapsed into dulness, with the railroad shares inclined to weakness and the industrial shares manifesting occasional ebullition of strength and the copper shares also rather firm. The tone of the market, the latter part of the month, was variable, and so was the course of values, with no very pronounced movement in one direction or the other.

In the money market there was a marked tendency toward firmness in the rates for time loans, notwithstanding the renewed large importations of gold. The growing strain in the international situation had something to do with this and in some quarters the belief was expressed that in the event of war there would be widespread activity requiring banking accommodation on a large scale. In the early part of the month, the payments in connection with the $250,000,000 British loan placed in this country were also an influence in the situation.

In the foreign exchange market the effect of the inauguration of Germany's new submarine policy was to confine business in sterling exchange very largely to cable transfers, the difficulty of forwarding documents, owing to the absence of definite sailing dates, having virtually suspended business in demand and other classes of bills. Obviously, bills could not with safety be bought drawn against shipments of merchandise if, as was now the case, there was to be long delay before the steamer issuing the bill of lading would sail. The suspension of sailings and consequently of mail opportunities, would doubtless have exerted a much more spectacular influence had there been anything more than the purely arbitrary market under the control of the British Treasury. The middle of the month there was a resumption of gold imports on a tremendous scale. Cable transfers nearly the whole month were kept unchanged at 4 76 7-16, but sight bills, for the reason already given, declined from 4 7577½ to 4 75⅛. Sixty-day bills declined from 4 72¼ to 4 71⅛. In the Continental exchanges there was great weakness in Italian lire and also more or less weakness in the rates on some of the other belligerent countries.

NEW YORK STOCK EXCHANGE

MONTHLY AND YEARLY RECORD

The following tables furnish a complete record of the New York Stock Exchange transactions for the past month and the year 1917. They need no extended introduction, as they are self-explanatory. The tables embrace every security excepting only State bonds) dealt in on the Exchange. We give bonds first, using the classification adopted in the official list. The black-faced letters in the column headed "Interest Period" indicate in each case the month when the bonds mature.

In accordance with the rule adopted by the New York Stock Exchange in 1909, all quotations for interest-paying bonds are at a price to which accrued interest must be added. The exceptions to the rule are income bonds and bonds on which interest is in default. This method of quoting bonds became effective January 2 1909.

BONDS AND STOCKS.

1. In the following thirty pages of tables, quotations are given for all the more important securities listed on any Stock Exchange in the United States; also for leading unlisted and inactive securities.

2. Quotations from all Stock Exchanges are as near as possible for the closing day of the month preceding the date of issue. As the New York Stock Exchange began with Jan. 2 1909 to quote all bond prices "and interest," we have adopetd the same method, and no longer employ a designating mark to indicate the fact except where there is a deviation from this rule. The reader will understand, therefore, that unless the letter "f" is prefixed to the price, he must pay accrued interest in addition to the price. This, however, does not apply to income bonds or bonds in default, in which cases the price includes the interest, should there be any.

3. The letter "f" prefixed to bond prices denotes that the quotation is a flat price—that is, that the accrued interest forms part of the price, and therefore the purchaser does not have to provide for it separately in making payment. As already stated in the case of income bonds and bonds in default, the price is always "flat," and no designating mark is employed to indicate the fact.

4. Stock prices marked thus (d) are per share. All others are per cent except bank stock prices, which are quoted per share unless otherwise stated.

5. It should be borne in mind in the use of these tables that the quotations for many inactive and unlisted securities are merely nominal, but in all cases the figures are obtained from sources which are considered reliable.

6. The following abbreviations are often used, viz.: "M" for mortgage, "g" for gold, "g'd" for guaranteed, "end" for endorsed, "cons" for consolidated, "conv" for convertible, "s f" for sinking fund, "l g" for land grant, "op" for optional.

7. The black-faced type in the letters showing the interest period indicates the month when the bonds mature.

NOTICE—All bond prices are "and interest" except where marked "f" and income and defaulted bonds.

PUBLIC UTILITIES

In the following rearrangement of our quotation lists we bring together under the general designation of "Public Utilities," all the different forms of such securities, thinking it easier for the reader to find any particular issue in a general list than when the securities are subdivided under separate heads and there is doubt as to what head to look under. In other words, under "Public Utilities," we include Street and Electric Railways, Gas, Electric, Power, Water and Telegraph and Telephone Companies.

In quoting Public Utility bonds, we employ the same method as in quoting the bonds of steam railroads. The great majority of issues being quoted "and interest," we use no designating mark whatever where that is the case. On the other hand, we prefix the letter "f" where there is a deviation from this rule; in such cases the interest forms part of the price. Unless, therefore, "f" appears against a quotation, the buyer will understand that the accrued interest is to be added on. This, however, does not apply to income bonds and bonds in default, in which cases the price takes account of the interest (should any payment be announced) and no designating mark is employed.

NOTICE.—All bond prices are "and interest" except where marked "f" and income and defaulted bonds.

INDUSTRIAL AND MISCELLANEOUS SECURITIES

In the rearrangement of our quotation lists we classify under the designation "Industrial and Miscellaneous Securities," all issues which do not appear under the previous two headings, namely "Railroads (Steam)" and "Public Utilities." In the case of stocks, however, we put "Textile Manufacturing," "Insurance," "Mining," "Real Estate and Land," "Title Guarantee and Safe Deposit Companies" under separate heads, then follow with the rest of the "Industrial and Miscellaneous."

Quotations marked "f" indicate that accrued interest is included in the price. Prices not marked are "and interest," that is, purchaser has to pay accrued interest in addition to the price. This, however, does not apply to income bonds and bonds in default, in which cases the price takes account of the interest and no designating mark is employed.

NOTICE.—All bond prices are "and interest" except where marked "f" and income and defaulted bonds.

STATE AND MUNICIPAL BONDS

In State and municipal bonds the custom has always been to quote them, "and interest." That is the accrued interest must in all cases be added on. There are a very few instances which form exceptions to the rule—that is, where the prices given are flat prices, the accrued interest having been taken into account in making them. These are indicated by a special mark, thus (f).

The figures in the column "to net" indicate the basis on which the securities sell or the interest rate which the securities if held to maturity will net to the purchaser at the present market price.

BANKS AND TRUST COMPANIES.

Quotations in this department are given per share, not per cent, except for stocks of New York City, Brooklyn and Canadian institutions, and are as near as possible for the closing day of the month preceding the date of issue, though often are nominal. An asterisk (*) denotes sales. The letter (h) prefixed to a price indicates that the figures show the book value.

Figures of deposits, capital and profits for the national banks are from the Comptroller's last call; for all other institutions they are the latest obtainable, direct returns being procured by us where no periodic statements are required. For the Clearing-House banks of New York, Philadelphia and Boston, deposits are taken from the latest weekly statement.

Where Names are Printed in Italics Fuller Returns may be Found in the Advertising Columns
