The Panama Canal Company is a wholly owned Government corporation whose primary purpose is maintaining and operating the interoceanic canal at the Isthmus of Panama, and other necessary supporting operations.

The administration of the Company is integrated with that of the Canal Zone Government, an independent agency initially financed by appropriations. The Governor of the Canal Zone is ex officio president of the Company. The Company is expected to be self-sustaining and is required to reimburse the U.S. Treasury for the net cost of the Canal Zone Government, the cost of interest on the net direct investment of the United States in the Company, and for annuity payments made by the United States to the Republic of Panama pursuant to the treaty of 1903 as amended in 1936.

3. General corporate expense.—This includes payments to the Treasury for the net cost of Canal Zone Government and interest expense payable to U.S. Treasury, general and administrative expenses under statutory limitation, and other general corporate expenses not under limitation.

Financing.—The Company is authorized to obtain appropriations for its capital needs and to cover losses sustained in the conduct of its activities. In addition, under Public Law 86-200 (73 Stat. 428), the Company may borrow from the Treasury, at interest, amounts not exceeding $10 million outstanding at any time. While the latter authorization is utilized to backstop the Company's objectives, no cash withdrawals against it are planned during during 1969 or 1970. With the total borrowing authority utilized as a resource the Company's unobligated balance at June 30, 1970, is estimated at $14,507 thousand.

Operating results and financial condition.—There will be an increase in retained earnings in 1969 estimated at $13,466 thousand and a further increase in 1970 estimated at $10,500 thousand, wholly representing net operating income for those years.

Note.—Contingent and other liabilities: The Company is contingently liable with respect to certain pending suits and claims. In addition, the Company has outstanding at all times, certain liabilities of indeterminable amounts, which are recognized in the accounts on an as-paid basis. These liabilities include, principally, commitments for construction work, supplies and services, and death and disability benefits payable under provisions of Federal Employees' Compensation Act. The maximum liability which could result from outstanding claims and lawsuits is estimated to be $4.3 million exclusive of claims that may arise as a result of a bus/train collision that occurred subsequent to June 30, 1968, the cost of which is not determinable at this time. Commitments under uncompleted construction contracts and unfilled purchase orders amounted to about $7.9 million at June 30, 1968.

GENERAL PROVISIONS—THE PANAMA CANAL

The Governor of the Canal Zone is authorized to employ services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109, in an amount not exceeding $30,000: Provided, That the rates for individuals shall not exceed $100 per diem.

Funds appropriated for operating expenses of the Canal Zone Government may be apportioned notwithstanding section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (31 U.S.C. 665), to the extent necessary to permit payment of such pay increases for officers or employees as may be authorized by administrative action pursuant to law which are not in excess of statutory increases granted for the same period in corresponding rates of compensation for other employees of the Government in comparable positions. Proceeds from the sale of fishing and hunting permits are used to carry out a program of development, conservation, and rehabilitation of fish and wildlife on the 44 military reservations charging such fees. This program is carried out through the cooperative plans agreed upon by the local representatives of the Secretary of Defense, the Secretary of the Interior, and the appropriate agency of the State in which the reservation is located (63 Stat. 759 and 74 Stat. 1053).

The laws administered by the Food and Drug Administration are designed to protect the public against dangerous, misbranded, and adulterated foods, drugs, therapeutic devices, cosmetics, and other products. The agency investigates injuries, poison ingestion, and exposure to pesticides, and takes steps to reduce them.

1. Medical evaluation.—(a) Grants.—Research grants are awarded to universities and other eligible institutions to support studies of accidental poisonings, burns, and other product-related injuries. Approximately 15 grants will be awarded in 1970, compared to 16 in 1969 and 27 in 1968.

(b) Direct operations.—Medical policy pertaining to the efficacy and safety of drugs is developed and promulgated. New drug applications proposing the sale of human and veterinary drugs, as well as claims for investigational drugs, are evaluated. An adverse drug-reaction program and an epidemiological program, as well as clinical studies of drugs, are conducted. The medical aspects of FDA's regulatory programs and court cases are developed. Studies of the detrimental effects of long-term exposure to pesticides are performed intramurally and through contracts. Labels of pesticides are evaluated before the Department of Agriculture registers them. Data on poisonous substances are collected and disseminated; and programs to reduce injuries resulting from hazardous products are conducted. The 1970 increase will provide for additional effort in the review of drug submissions from industry, and for an expansion of research on contraceptives and drug equivalency.

2. Scientific research and evaluation.—(a) Grants.—This activity awards research grants to State agencies and other qualified investigators to promote the study of pesticide-caused hazards. Approximately 20 grants will be awarded in 1970, compared to 22 in 1969 and 30 in 1968.

(b) Direct operations.—Biological and chemical research is conducted intramurally and through contracts, to support the agency's regulatory mission. Regulations are developed and promulgated for pesticide residue tolerances and exemptions, food additives, color additives, and food standards; scientific evaluations are made of the submissions required by those regulations and of the labeling of hazardous products. Methods and bases for the evaluation of petitions and the establishment of tolerances are developed. Scientific activities of the agency are coordinated, and a scientific information system is maintained. A facility has been established in the field to support regulatory activities through expeditious analysis of drug samples. The 1970 increase will provide for such analysis of a greater number of drug samples.

3. Education and voluntary compliance.—Direct operations.—Programs are conducted to enlist industry's voluntary compliance with the law and to educate and inform consumers. Programs aimed at industry include seminars on good manufacturing practices, the self-certification program for food manufacturers, and other advisory or training services to help industry improve the quality of its products. The 1970 increase will provide for mandatory costs.

4. Regulatory compliance.—(a) Grants.—Research grants are made available to State agencies, universities, and other eligible institutions to support research in shellfish sanitation. Approximately 10 grants will be awarded in 1970, compared to 11 in 1969 and 19 in 1968.

(b) Direct operations.—Nationwide inspectional, investigational, and analytical programs are carried out through 17 district offices and subordinate resident inspector posts to administer the laws that are the responsibility of the Food and Drug Administration. Methodology research is performed intramurally to develop methods used in the analysis of product samples; inspectional and other field actions are reviewed to evaluate the degree of compliance with the law; and evidence is developed to support court cases where necessary. The 1970 increase will provide for the inclusion of an additional 75 major drug firms in the intensified drug-inspection program.

5. Program direction and management services.—The executive functions within this activity include the establishment of policy; the formulation and promulgation of agencywide plans, budgets, and directives; the allocation of resources; the day-to-day direction of the agency; the evaluation of performance and accomplishments; the maintenance of liaison with Congress and other Government agencies; and the coordination of the agency's activities in the area of international affairs. Management services are provided in the areas of financial management, mail and records, printing and distribution, facilities management, supply management, management services, personnel, and training. The 1970 increase will provide for mandatory costs connected with personnel compensation and benefits.

The Department of Health, Education, and Welfare has the responsibility for the investigation of causes of air pollution, the determination of its effects upon life and property, the development of effective means of prevention and control, the development of air quality criteria, and direct Federal enforcement. The Air Quality Act of 1967, which further amended the Clean Air Act of 1963, provides for an approach to these problems through two broad areas of activity: (a) the solution of significant technical problems through research, development, and demonstration, and (b) the application of available technology and control techniques, through a variety of coordinated Federal-State abatement and control measures.

The Act places emphasis on regional control of air pollution, primarily as a State responsibility, with requirements for Federal action in regional designation and assistance in the development of State standards. A program of basic and applied research, accelerated development of improved emission control technology, grants-in-aid to air pollution control agencies, direct Federal abatement in specified areas, technical services to States and local agencies, review of State standards and plans, and a training program designed to provide competencies necessary to cope with the complex problem of air pollution, serves to carry out these approaches. The program is accelerated by extensive use of other organizations, both public and private, through grants and contracts.

1. Abatement and control.—(a) Grants.—Control program grants are made to regional, State, and local air pollution control agencies on a matching basis for the purpose of establishing, developing, improving, and maintaining programs for the prevention and control of air pollution. Control program grants are also available for planning programs under the Air Quality Act of 1967. Approximately 225 grants will be awarded in 1970 compared with 210 in 1969 and 190 in 1968.

(b) Direct operations.—This activity includes direct Federal abatement in interstate and intrastate areas, enforcement of Federal automotive vehicle emission standards, technical assistance to States and local governments, the Federal facilities pollution control program, and implementation of the emergency episode provisions of the Act. The increase in 1970 provides for an accelerated national abatement program.

2. Research, development, and demonstration.—(a) Grants and contracts.—Grants are made to public agencies and communities for surveys to assess their air pollution problems and to demonstrate control techniques. Grants are also awarded to universities and other nonprofit institutions to conduct research into air pollution problems. Contracts relating to fuels and vehicles are used to accelerate research and development into new and improved methods, having industrywide application, for the prevention and control of air pollution resulting from the combustion of fuels. Approximately 350 grants and contracts will be awarded in 1970 compared with 288 grants and contracts in 1969 and 236 grants in 1968.

(b) Direct operations.—This activity includes research into the nature and extent of air pollution; its transport and atmospheric behavior; the effects on humans, other biological systems, property, and the atmosphere itself; and improvement in means for controlling pollution. The 1970 program will continue and expand the ongoing research in the three principal areas of automotive vehicle emissions, sulfur oxides pollution, and development of air quality criteria, and will place primary emphasis on research areas designated for special attention by the Air Quality Act of 1967. These include accelerated research into new and improved methods, having industrywide application, for the prevention and control of air pollution from the combustion of fuels; development of air quality criteria and emission control techniques as preliminary to subsequent application and regulatory enforcement measures; a comprehensive economic cost study; and a program of registration by manufacturers and processors of all additives placed in fuels used for combustion.

3. Manpower training.—(a) Grants.—Fellowship awards support individual postgraduate training in air pollution research and control activities; training grants are awarded to universities to support the development and improvement of, primarily, graduate-level air pollution curricula and to provide student stipends. Approximately 115 grants will be awarded in 1970 as compared with 106 in 1969 and 109 in 1968.

(b) Direct operations.—Training of technical personnel for Federal, State, and local government research and control operations is carried out through this activity. In 1970, nearly 4,000 individuals will receive technical short course training in air pollution compared to 2,600 persons in 1969.

4. Program direction and management services.—Overall executive direction and supervision of Federal air pollution activities and formulation of program and administrative policies are carried out under this activity. Direction, supervision, and coordination of administrative services, including financial and personnel management, general services, contracting and facilities planning are also provided under this activity. During 1970, emphasis will be directed at coordinating and assisting Federal, State, and local efforts at establishing effective control programs in cooperation with the designation of Air Quality Control Regions. The increase requested will provide for additional executive direction to support the expanded programs.

The Environmental Control appropriation supports a national program for the prevention and control of environmental hazards and health problems in order that man may more efficiently deal with his environment. Particular attention is devoted to solid wastes management, occupational safety and health, radiological health, water hygiene, and community environmental management which includes urban housing hygiene, sanitary marketing of milk and food, the health and sanitation hazards associated with interstate travel, the Aedes aegypti mosquito, and the special environmental problems of the Arctic region. These activities are carried out through research, training, and fellowship grants to universities, nonprofit institutions, and individuals; demonstration and planning grants to State, interstate, and local agencies in support of solid wastes management programs; and direct Federal operations.

1. Solid wastes.—(a) Grants.—Research, training, demonstration, and planning grants support this activity. The following are comparative statistics of the number of grant awards: Research—1970, 59; 1969, 59; 1968, 54. Training—1970, 11; 1969, 11; 1968, 10. Demonstration—1970, 51; 1969, 51; 1968, 53. Planning—1970, 41; 1969, 41; 1968, 37.

(b) Direct operations.—The solid wastes program is designed to ensure proper health protection and improved solid wastes disposal practices and technology through research, training, technical assistance, demonstration development, and systems planning. The 1970 increase will provide field demonstrations, studies in reuse and disposal of wastes, and initiation of computer analysis to solid wastes management.

2. Occupational safety and health.—(a) Grants.—Research and training grants support this activity. The following are comparative statistics of the number of grant awards: Research—1970, 68; 1969, 69; 1968, 65. Training—1970, 8; 1969, 8; 1968, 8.

(b) Direct operations.—Research is conducted and assistance provided to Federal, State, and local agencies and to industry for prevention and control of occupational hazards and diseases. The 1970 increase will provide for expansion of studies on the health problems of uranium workers.

3. Radiological health.—(a) Grants.—Research and training grants support this activity. The following are comparative statistics of the number of grants supported: Research—1970, 77; 1969, 87; 1968, 76. Training—1970, 33; 1969, 33; 1968, 41.

(b) Direct operations.—This program has the responsibility for conducting a national program for the control and prevention of radiological hazards to public health, involving both basic and applied research on the sources, levels and effects of radiation as well as means of protecting the public. A training program is utilized to provide the competencies needed in the expanding area of radiation protection and control. Technical assistance is provided to State and local agencies to aid in the development of their own radiation programs. The 1970 increase will be used for further expansion of research and development related to radiological health hazards associated with electronic products.

4. Community environmental management.—(a) Grants.—Research and training grants and fellowships support this activity. The following are comparative statistics of the number of grants supported: Research—1970, 87; 1969, 131; 1968, 140. Training—1970, 17; 1969, 20; 1968, 24. Fellowships—1970, 7; 1969, 17; 1968, 10.

(b) Direct operations.—This program directs its efforts to managing environmental conditions associated with man's home, neighborhood, metropolitan area and regional complexities. Assistance is provided to communities through technical consultation, training, demonstrations, and establishment of criteria for planning healthful environments for urban areas and the development and application of standards to improve the quality of healthful housing. Effective programs for the control and prevention of foodborne illnesses are developed in conjunction with other Federal agencies, States, communities and the food industry. Investigations are conducted on health and sanitary hazards associated with interstate travel including implementation of the Interstate Quarantine Regulations. The program is also engaged in research and developmental efforts aimed at control of the threat posed by the Aedes aegypti mosquito. The Arctic Health Center emphasizes an environmental health program which will enhance human adaptation to and health in cold weather climates.

5. Water hygiene.—(a) Grants.—Research and training grants and fellowships support this activity. The following are comparative statistics of the number of grants supported: Research—1970, 4; 1969, 4; 1968, 9. Training—1970, 4; 1969, 4; 1968, 6. Fellowships—1970, 0; 1969, 0; 1968, 2.

(b) Direct operations.—The responsibility of this program is to assure that the quality of the Nation's waters intended for drinking, recreation, and other human contact is maintained at safe levels. Through research, training and technical assistance, standards development, and interstate regulatory and certification activities, guidance and leadership are provided to States and local communities for safeguarding the sanitary quality of water supplies. The 1970 increase will be used to conduct a program of epidemiological surveillance of selected communities related to their water supplies and on the status of community water supplies, and to permit more effective DHEW participation in the nationwide interdepartmental water resources planning activities.

6. Program direction and management services.—The Office of the Commissioner of the Environmental Control Administration directs and coordinates the programs of the Administration and furnishes management services for the Administration's performance. This is accomplished by (a) formulation of administrative and program policies, coordination of research and development activities and dissemination of information, (b) providing of management activities with regard to program planning, legislative matters, financial and personnel management, procurement, office services, and organizational and staffing problems. The 1970 increase provides for mandatory changes only.

The Office of the Administrator directs, administers, and coordinates consumer protection and environmental health activities of the Department. This consists of: (1) establishment of basic Service policies, goals, and objectives; (2) provision of legislative, public and inter-governmental affairs, and policy compliance functions for the Service; (3) provision of leadership in evaluating and formulating plans related to Service research and development activities; (4) provision and coordination of overall Service program planning, development, implementation, and assessment; and (5) provision of Service administrative management planning, direction, coordination, evaluation, and assistance and management consultation to operating programs. The increase requested in 1970 will provide additional administrative management support needed for expanding Service programs.

1. Support and conduct of research.—a. Grants.—(1) Research.—Grants are awarded on a project basis for behavioral, clinical, psychological, and applied research in the area of mental health. Clinical research centers and general research support grants are also supported from this subactivity. Approximately 1,224 grants will be supported in 1970 as compared to 1,388 in 1969 and 1,442 in 1968.

(2) Hospital improvement.—These project grants to State institutions for the mentally ill are designed to improve the quality of care, treatment, and rehabilitation in these institutions. Approximately 92 of these grants will be supported in 1970 as compared to 127 in 1969, and 128 in 1968.

(3) Early child care demonstrations.—These grants are designed to demonstrate and evaluate various methods of contributing to early, healthy child development and preventing emotional disturbances and mental illness among young children from poor and culturally deprived families.

b. Direct operations.—(1) Intramural research.—Laboratory and clinical research is conducted in the behavioral and biological sciences; e.g., psychiatry, socioeconomic studies, neurobiology, and neurochemistry. Additionally there is laboratory and clinical research in special mental health problems of neuropharmacology, clinical psychopharmacology, narcotic addiction, and alcoholism.

(2) Planning, development, and administration.—This subactivity supports the planning, development, and administration of grant and contract programs in behavioral sciences research, applied research, clinical research, and psychopharmacological research. It also includes those multidisciplinary programs which focus and coordinate the Institute's efforts in special areas of concern, such as alcoholism, suicide prevention, crime and delinquency, schizophrenia, and the mental health of children and families.

2. Manpower development.—a. Grants.—(1) Training.—Grants are made to training institutions for training in psychiatry, behavioral sciences, psychiatric nursing, psychiatric social work and other mental health disciplines. Experimental and special programs and continuing education in the mental health field are included as well as special training in such areas as alcoholism, drug abuse, and suicide prevention. In 1970, approximately 11,636 trainee stipends will be awarded as compared to 12,073 in 1969 and 11,125 in 1968.

(2) Fellowships.—Awards are made on the basis of excellence to individuals involved in mental health research. In 1970, approximately 1,159 awards will be made as compared to 1,137 in 1969 and 1,100 in 1968.

b. Direct operations.—Within this subactivity analytic studies of manpower are undertaken and the national mental health training program is coordinated and supported. Emphasis is given to the full range of manpower requirements in the field of mental health including the disciplines of psychiatry, behavioral sciences, psychiatric nursing, and social work. Also funded in this subactivity are the training activities of the National Center for Mental Health Services, Training, and Research and a program for training psychiatrists for careers in the Public Health Service.

3. Support of State and community programs.—a. Grants.—(1) Construction of community mental health centers.—Grants are awarded for the construction of public and other nonprofit community mental health centers as authorized by the Community Mental Health Centers Act (Public Law 88-164).

(2) Staffing of community mental health centers.—Grants are awarded on a project basis to eligible community mental health centers for partial support of the staffing costs of these centers as authorized by the Community Mental Health Centers Act of 1963, as amended.

(3) Narcotic addiction and alcoholism community assistance.—These grants provide partial support for the construction and staffing of facilities for the treatment and rehabilitation of narcotic addicts and alcoholics. It also provides for grants to nonprofit agencies to cover the cost of developing specialized training programs for prevention and treatment of narcotic addiction and conducting surveys and field trials for evaluating narcotic addiction prevention and treatment programs with a view to their improvement.

b. Direct operations.—The administration and stimulation of the community mental health centers program is undertaken in this subactivity as well as technical program assistance such as the mental hospital improvement program and its corollary, the mental hospital inservice training program. The nucleus for experimental, model community mental health centers, is also funded from this subactivity.

4. Service activities.—a. Narcotic addiction and drug abuse treatment and research.—This subactivity provides for the treatment and rehabilitation of narcotic addicts under contract arrangements with community agencies; the multidisciplinary programs of the Center for Studies of Narcotic Addiction and Drug Abuse, and the activities of the narcotic hospitals at Lexington, Ky., and Fort Worth, Tex.

b. Regional and field activities.—The professional activities related to mental health programs in the DHEW regional offices are funded in this subactivity. It also covers the central office coordination of regional programs and the Institute's relationships with other Federal agencies, professional societies, and State and community organizations.

c. Scientific communication and public education.—The National Clearinghouse for Mental Health Information which collects and disseminates scientific and technical information in the mental health field and the Institute's public education program are funded here.

5. Program direction and management services.—Central Institute program planning and evaluation, biometric and legislative services, and administrative management are funded in this subactivity.

Saint Elizabeths Hospital (1) provides treatment and care for the mentally ill who are either beneficiaries of the Federal Government or residents of the District of Columbia, (2) trains persons in the medical, nursing, and associated disciplines concerned with the treatment of psychiatric patients, and (3) conducts or cooperates with others in scientific research activities dealing with mental illness.

Programs of the hospital are financed by Federal appropriations covering treatment and care of Federal beneficiaries and by reimbursements made to the hospital for services rendered other patient groups, principally residents of the District of Columbia. Federal appropriations to the hospital are of the indefinite type, under which the hospital receives in appropriated funds the difference between the amount of reimbursements actually received during the year, for patient care provided by the hospital, and the total program costs approved by the Congress for the year. Reimbursement rates for reimbursable patient groups other than the residents of the District of Columbia are based on a pro rata share of the total program costs. Charges to the District of Columbia are based on the estimated mean (or average) cost per patient-day in State mental hospitals of the upper 10% of the States. Effective October 30, 1968 Saint Elizabeths Hospital was reorganized as the National Center for Mental Health Services, Training and Research. The goal of the new organization is to provide a model demonstration of the conversion of a large mental hospital into a modern, community-based mental health facility, develop a coordinated and intensified program for the provision of trained mental health personnel, and accelerate research efforts to provide a better understanding of mental illness.

The functions of the national center are implemented under three divisions. Each division is represented by one of the three activity headings set forth below:

1. Clinical and community services.—This activity consists of the Saint Elizabeths Hospital—Division of Clinical and Community Services. It provides all of the therapeutic and rehabilitative programs of the National Center, maintenance of buildings, procurement of supplies and materials, and provision of necessary administrative services. The hospital is cooperating with the District of Columbia in the establishment and operation of a community mental health center on its campus, in order to serve the residents of the major southeast portion of the District. Actual and estimated patient load and admission data follows:

	Inpatients	Outpatients	Admissions
1968 actual.....	5,438	1,786	3,910
1969 estimate.....	5,200	1,825	4,291
1970 estimate.....	5,000	1,826	4,565

2. Training and education.—Funds in this activity support the Division of Intramural Training, and provide multidisciplinary clinical training for professional and ancillary personnel engaged in or interested in mental health activities. Beginning with 1970, this activity will be funded under "Mental Health."

3. Research.—Funds in this activity support the Division of Clinical Research of the National Center which carries out coordinated research programs for the purpose of obtaining a better understanding of the causes of mental disorders, and of the factors bearing upon their development, treatment, and possible prevention. This activity will be funded under "Mental Health."

The National Center for Health Services Research and Development has been established by the Secretary to establish within the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, scientific methods of making improvements in the broad field of health services. The center has the general mission of working with the providers of health services to build a research and development capability that will continuously improve these services for the benefit of all people. In order to conceptualize, for the field of health services, a frame of reference and strategy of action which are equivalent in effectiveness to that accomplished in the field of biomedical research over the past three decades, the center must provide the Department and health service providers with an expanded base of knowledge and understanding of the forces and factors which affect the ability to attain desirable goals with respect to availability, delivery, quality and finance of health services and to devise methods for their attainment. Vital to this effort is a major expansion of research training opportunities in health services.

(a) Grants and contracts.—Research.—Grants and contracts are awarded to organizations, institutions, and individuals for carrying out research investigations dealing with the organization, financing, utilization, quality, availability, and delivery of health services.

Training and fellowships.—Grants are awarded to institutions and to qualified scholars for supporting research training programs in the health services field.

(b) Direct operations.—This activity provides staff with the operational capability for both extramural and intramural research programs. The activity permits utilization of Federal direct health services and federally funded programs for the disadvantaged for the development, testing, and demonstration of improved health services techniques, and also the strengthening of research and development in such areas as economic analysis, the improvement of health service institutions, and manpower utilization. The 1970 increase will provide for additional specialized staff to concentrate on the above areas. It will also provide for consultative services associated with the center's program and to develop research training programs in universities and other appropriate settings.

2. Program direction and management services.—This includes top management and staff services for the national center, including central management services.

This appropriation encompasses a comprehensive nationwide program directed to improving the quality, quantity, effectiveness, and availability of health services in all settings. This will be accomplished through the following:

1. Partnership for health grants.—(a) Planning.—(1) Formula grants for comprehensive State health planning. These grants provide support for basic staff and advisory council costs for the State agency designated for comprehensive health planning. The program will be expanded in 1970 with State financial participation required equal to 25% of its formula allocation. By 1970 comprehensive health planning agencies will be established in each of the 50 States and 4 territories. Under contractual arrangements, specialized studies are underway in such areas as: Impact on the provision of health services and costs of title XIX of the Social Security Act, and specific recommendations on its implementation in the States, manpower problems, delivery of services to rural areas, ambulance services, alcoholism, drugs, water resources, and special problems of high risk groups; (2) Project grants for areawide comprehensive health planning. These grants provide support for planning personnel and for the collection and analysis of data, and aid in establishing the agency as a focus for coordination and cooperation among local institutions in the planning of health facilities and services. Continued support will be provided for 93 areawide health planning groups now underway and the development of approximately 20 new agencies; (3) Project grants for training, studies, and demonstrations for comprehensive health planning. These grants provide support for both long-term and short-term training of health planners in such areas as basic concepts of health, planning theories and techniques, urban sociology, and social problems in society today. Support is being provided to 22 institutions engaged in training health planners. They also support demonstration projects for the development of citizen representatives to serve effectively on health planning bodies.

(b) Formula grants to States for health services.—These grants to State health and mental health authorities assist the States in attacking those health problems they consider of most immediate importance. The State plan for carrying out these programs must be in accord with the overall plans developed by the State comprehensive health planning agency, at least 15% of the funds must support mental health activities, and 70% of all of the funds must be made available for the provision of health services at the local level.

(c) Project grants for health services development.—These grants provide support for activities to meet special regionally or nationally determined needs. Funds requested will provide continued support for cancer, mental retardation, tuberculosis, neurological and sensory, and venereal disease treatment and control projects. Support will also be provided for comprehensive health services in ghetto areas, rat control projects, and health components in model cities programs. In 1969 support will be provided to 20 neighborhood health projects serving 750,000 people. In 1970, 20 health projects serving approximately 950,000 persons will be supported. A proposed transfer of funds in 1969 will initiate an intensive immunization program against rubella—a disease which causes thousands of birth defects each year—with a goal of complete eradication within 5 years. In 1969, 8 million children will be immunized and in 1970 the program will be expanded to provide protection for an additional 20 million children.

2. Migrant health program.—Grants are made to finance part of the costs of establishing family health services clinics, to provide short-term hospitalization, and for other projects to improve the health services and health condition of agricultural migrant workers and their families. The increase will provide for 10 projects in addition to the 120 now being supported. Funds requested will provide for 310,000 patient visits for medical care, 40,000 dental visits, and hospital care for approximately 8,000 patients for a total of 50,000 hospital days. Through direct operations, the program provides technical assistance to migrant health projects and conducts studies vital to the effectiveness of the program.

3. Standard-setting and resources development.—This activity provides for development of specialized programs in comprehensive health and medical care administration, including the professional health aspects of title XVIII of the Social Security Act. Assistance is provided to Federal, State, and local health agencies, voluntary organizations and other interested groups through consultation, studies, demonstrations and assignment of specialized personnel. This activity also provides for program evaluation of the grant programs, and the review and approval of such grants. The increase in 1970 will provide for expanded consultation services and technical assistance to cities in improving the health care for the poor; and the expansion of health planning, and review and approval of grants activities.

4. Program direction and management services.—Provides for overall executive direction and planning and for administrative management.

The goal of this program is to reduce the illness, disability, and premature deaths resulting from heart disease, cancer, and stroke, and to prevent and control chronic diseases such as chronic respiratory diseases, diabetes, arthritis, chronic kidney diseases, and neurological and sensory disorders.

1. Operational and planning grants.—Regional medical program grants support the establishment of cooperative arrangements among medical schools, hospitals, research centers, physicians, and other health groups and institutions on a regional basis, for the purpose of planning and conducting research, training, demonstrations of patient care, and other related projects which increase the availability and utilization of advanced diagnosis and care for these diseases. To date, 54 regions encompassing all of the Nation's population have received planning grants and of these 23 have been awarded operational grants. It is anticipated that 22 additional operational programs will be awarded for the balance of 1969 and that three to five operational programs will be funded in 1970.

2. Development, assistance, and chronic disease control.—These programs provide extramural and intramural research, training in chronic disease control, and program consultation and assistance to State and local health agencies, voluntary organizations, and educational institutions on the conduct of their programs of regionalization and chronic disease control through contracts, cooperative agreements, assignments of personnel, and loan of equipment.

This program provides facilities and services for the investigation, prevention, and suppression of communicable diseases, including tuberculosis and venereal diseases, by the direct development, advancement, and demonstration of knowledge and techniques, through research grants, and through the prevention of the introduction of communicable diseases from foreign countries.

1. Laboratory improvement.—A comprehensive national laboratory improvement program is administered through research for improving and standardizing laboratory methodology and through evaluation of techniques, materials, and reagents used in public health laboratories. States are provided experimental vaccines and special immune globulin is distributed to prevent and control laboratory infections. States are also provided consultation, training, and informational services in laboratory techniques. The program provides for upgrading the performance of the Nation's clinical laboratories and for the licensure and evaluation of clinical laboratories engaged in interstate commerce.

2. Prevention and control.—(a) Grants.—Research grants are awarded to organizations, institutions, and individuals for research concerned with epidemiology, prevention, laboratory diagnosis, and treatment of communicable diseases at the community level. Approximately 72 research projects will be supported in 1970 as compared to 72 in 1969 and 102 in 1968.

(b) Direct operations.—(1) Communicable diseases.—Scientific and technical skills in the fields of epidemiological medicine and microbiology, are provided to State and local health departments through investigations, consultations, and demonstrations. Important disease investigation and control programs include hepatitis, aseptic meningitis, poliomyelitis, rubella, viral encephalitis, the enteric diseases, staphylococcal and other institutionally acquired infections, the acute fungal diseases, diseases of animals transmissible to man, and the vector borne diseases. Professional competence in the investigation of epidemic outbreaks is afforded to the States through the staff of the Epidemic Intelligence Service which is constantly alert to the epidemic situation in the country. These EIS officers provide a wide range of service, including epidemic aid, epidemiological field investigations, consultations in communicable disease control, surveillance of infectious diseases, and collaborative field and laboratory research.

Courses.....	458	706	447	425	425

(2) Tuberculosis.—Studies are conducted in epidemiology, prevention, detection, diagnosis, and therapy of tuberculosis. This research is conducted in cooperation with State and local health departments, tuberculosis hospitals, private investigators and others. The results of the applied research are made available to the States and integrated into tuberculosis control programs by means of demonstrations, consultative services, operational studies, and training activities.

(3) Venereal diseases.—Research and evaluation activities are directed toward maintenance of uniformly satisfactory nationwide serologic services; development and introduction of new syphilis diagnostic tests; development of an immunizing agent for syphilis; improvement of diagnostic techniques for gonorrhea; evaluation of more effective methods of therapy; and the improvement of control procedures. Scientific and general information about venereal disease for both professional and lay groups is disseminated through State agencies.

(4) Foreign quarantine.—Certain visa applicants are examined in order to determine those who are excludable for physical or mental reasons. Other inspections (persons and importations) are made to prevent the introduction into the United States of quarantinable and other communicable diseases.

Federal funds are provided on a grant or loan basis to assist States, other public agencies, and nonprofit organizations for the construction or modernization of hospitals or health facilities.

1. Construction.—Federal funds are provided for the construction and modernization of hospitals, long-term care facilities, rehabilitation facilities, diagnostic or diagnostic and treatment centers, public health centers, and related health facilities. The modernization program provides funds for the renovation and replacement of hospitals and other health facilities which are functionally or structurally obsolete and inefficient or unsafe to operate. The $254.4 million requested for 1970 will provide an $763.2 million program for that year, assuming that the Federal participation will average 33⅓%.

2. Operations and technical services.—State agencies are provided technical assistance in making inventories of their hospitals, public health centers, and other health facilities and in determining the type, size, and locations of additional facilities required, and developing programs to meet the indicated needs. Technical assistance is also provided to States and to communities regarding the planning, programing, and design of hospital and other medical facilities, including facilities for the care of the mentally retarded. Proposed hospital and other health facility projects are reviewed to determine eligibility and compliance with the law and regulations. State plans and their annual revisions are reviewed for conformance with planning criteria and guidelines. Project applications, plans and specifications, wage rates, and contracts are reviewed for compliance with standards, and surveillance is maintained over projects under construction. Construction projects are inspected and payments are made as construction progresses.

beneficiaries of the Public Health Service. The major beneficiary groups are American seamen, coastguardsmen and their dependents, Bureau of Employee's Compensation cases, and persons afflicted with leprosy. Among these, the largest single category is the American seamen who receive comprehensive medical care in service facilities for all conditions. Medical care is also provided to foreign seamen and beneficiaries of other Federal agencies on a reimbursable basis.

1. Operation of hospitals and clinics.—Under this activity are operated 10 general hospitals, and the National Leprosarium at Carville, La. In addition, 28 outpatient clinics and 139 outpatient offices (private physicians rendering services under contractual arrangement) will operate to handle ambulatory patients at these facilities. Inpatient loads and outpatient visits as experienced during the past year and as expected during the next 2 years are shown below:

AVERAGE DAILY PATIENT LOAD AND ANNUAL TOTAL OUTPATIENT VISITS

Hospital patients, by type of hospitals:	1968 actual	1969 estimate	1970 estimate
General hospitals.....	2,124	2,085	2,040
Leprosarium.....	273	270	270
Total.....	2,397	2,355	2,310
Hospital outpatient visits.....	812,861	843,000	864,200
Outpatient clinic visits.....	833,851	920,000	1,010,000
Outpatient office visits.....	69,900	72,000	74,000

For 1970, the request provides for drug and supply needs of patients in the hospitals and clinics, an increase to meet the maintenance and repair needs at these facilities, an increase in contract medical care, and additional funds for equipment purchases.

2. Medical care for special groups.—(a) Coast Guard.—Medical services are provided for Coast Guard personnel at shore stations and on vessels. The estimates provide for an increase in staffing and funds to meet the expanding medical and dental needs of the U.S. Coast Guard; (b) Federal employees.—This activity provides survey and consultation to Federal agencies on the conduct of Federal employee health programs. Federal employee health programs are operated on a reimbursable basis on request by Federal agencies.

3. Special health service.—(a) Rehabilitative services.—This activity includes the Rehabilitation medicine program; (b) Payments to Hawaii.—Grants are made to Hawaii to defray the cost of care and treatment of persons afflicted with leprosy. Average daily patient load is expected to be 240 in 1970, compared with 249 in 1968 and 245 in 1969.

4. Personnel detailed to other agencies.—Medical, dental, and other professional personnel are detailed to certain other Federal agencies on a reimbursable basis.

5. Program direction and management services.—Staff program advice, guidance, and direction, along with management services are provided operational personnel and facilities with regard to the efficient and effective conduct of program activities.

1. National vital and health statistics.—The program of the National Center for Health Statistics comprises the major activities of the Public Health Service in the measurement of the health status of the Nation and in developing and applying optimum technical methods for the collection, processing, and analysis of health statistics. It includes: (a) The collection, compilation, analysis, and dissemination of statistics on births, deaths, fetal deaths, marriages and divorces and other health data related to these basic vital events; (b) continuing surveys and special health statistics studies on the amount, distribution, and effects of illness and disability in the United States and the services received for or because of such conditions; (c) studies of health survey methods with a view toward their continued improvement; and (d) technical advice and assistance on the application of statistical methods in the health and medical fields.

2. Program direction and management services.—All of the program activities of the National Center for Health Statistics are centrally directed and managed. The Office of the Director establishes program priorities for the center and provides centralized administrative management support. The Office of Program Planning and Evaluation reviews program plans and periodically evaluates overall effectiveness of program activities.

The following construction projects will necessitate the provision of additional funds in 1970:

1. General program.—(a) Repair and improvements.—The 1970 request provides for continuation of a program of major alterations, repairs, and improvements of buildings and facilities inaugurated in 1964.

The following activities will require funds in subsequent years:

(b) Modernization of Public Health Service hospitals.

(c) Communicable disease facility, San Juan, P.R.

The remaining activities will be completed with funds appropriated in prior years.

Saint Elizabeths Hospital.—(a) Construction and equipment, continued treatment building (rehabilitation center).—The hospital proposes to discontinue this project and to utilize the unobligated funds for the 1969 and 1970 increments of its miscellaneous improvements program.

(b) Miscellaneous improvements of existing facilities.—This activity will provide for (a) rewiring and extension of electrical facilities, (b) screening in patient buildings,

(c) replastering of hospital buildings, (d) renovation of selected ward areas, and (e) air conditioning for two patient buildings.

Birth rate per 1,000 women ages 15 to 44 (1964).....	230.2	195.2	187.4	179.7
Indian homes provided safe water and waste disposal systems (1961-67 average).....	3,600	5,700	7,830	8,670

Note.—Year (s) in parentheses represents base year.

1. Patient care.—This activity consists of the operation of 49 general hospitals and their outpatient clinics and two tuberculosis sanatoria and medical care under contract with non-Federal hospitals, clinics, private physicians and dentists.

By the end of 1970 construction of a new (replacement) medical center at Phoenix, Ariz., will be completed.

Workloads for the total program are expected to be as follows:

2. Field health services.—These include programs in sanitation, health education, nutrition, maternal and child health, school health, tuberculosis and other communicable disease control, medical social services, public health nursing, oral health, and family planning. The services are provided through health centers, clinics, and other field units operated directly by the Service, as well as through contractual arrangements with State and local health organizations. It is estimated that new school health stations at Beshbitoh and Dilkon, Ariz.; Sanostee and San Felipe, N. Mex.; and health stations at White Shield, N. Dak.; Lapwai, Idaho; Wellpinit, Wash., and a health center at Four Bears Park, N. Dak., will be completed during 1970. In addition, a program initiated in 1969 to train Indians as community health representatives providing educational, sanitation, and referral services to the beneficiary population will be expanded.

3. Special assistance to the Menominee Indians.—A 4-year program to assist the Menominee Indian people of Menominee County, Wis., was authorized by Public Law 89-653. The assistance covers joint school district costs and public welfare benefits as well as health and sanitation services.

1. Medical stockpile.—The goal of this activity is to provide essential medical material for civilian needs in time of disaster. Medical supplies and equipment have been assembled into emergency packaged disaster hospitals which are located throughout the United States. The estimate for 1970 provides for a continuing program of rehabilitation and refurbishment of the existing packaged disaster hospitals; relocating the packaged disaster hospital to achieve direct affiliation with the community hospital; procurement of new materials to increase the emergency medical supply inventories of community hospitals; and maintaining, inspecting, and servicing the national medical stockpile.

2. Training and community preparedness.—This activity supports the preparation of national emergency health and medical plans, and the development of preparedness programs to achieve a continuity of health services necessary to meet all conditions of a national emergency. The estimate for 1970 provides for a continuing program of the development of plans and operational capability of civilian health manpower as well as utilization and distribution of other health resources including: the placement of federally furnished medical supplies and equipment in community hospitals; development and initiation of disaster management services; training at the State and local level; and providing assistance to States and communities in disaster situations.

3. Hospital and ambulance services.—This activity provides for assistance to States and communities for the planning of organized programs of emergency health services.

NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH

The National Institutes of Health constitutes the primary arm of the U.S. Government in the support of biomedical research and education. Many, if not most, of the advances in medical science in recent years have benefited either directly or indirectly from the activities of the NIH, whose mission is investigating basic life processes, advancing the capability for the diagnosis, treatment and prevention of disease, accelerating the development of adequate health resources, and providing support to strengthen the national science base in biomedical research and education. This mission is carried out by two major mechanisms: (1) extramural grant programs (about 70% of total obligations for 1970), and (2) operations conducted directly and through contracts.

NIH consists of nine National Institutes, six program divisions, the Bureau of Health Manpower, the National Library of Medicine, and the office of the Director. The National Institutes, each with a particular area of concern are: General Medical Sciences, Child Health and Human Development, Cancer, Heart, Eye, Dental Research, Arthritis and Metabolic Diseases, Allergy and Infectious Diseases, and Neurological Diseases and Stroke. The program divisions are: Biologics Standards, Research Facilities and Resources, Computer Research and Technology, Engineering Development, Environmental Health Sciences, and the John E. Fogarty International Center for Advanced Study in the Health Sciences. The operating appropriations contribute to a management fund to provide central services for all organizational components of NIH. The budget request for these appropriations in 1970 will provide a level of obligations 2.2% above the 1969 level and will support the continuation of current efforts in the fight against disease.

A distribution of obligations for the National Institutes of Health follows (in thousands of dollars):

<sup>1</sup> Excludes NIMH's share which totals in 1968, $5,483 thousand; in 1969, $7,755 thousand; and 1970, $7,863 thousand.

The major activities are described below. Unique activities are included under the appropriate institute.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Research grants constitute the principal activity of the research institutes and divisions of NIH. Regular grants are awarded to individuals for health related research projects, following their review for scientific merit and relevance by discipline-oriented and disease-oriented study groups, and their approval by disease-oriented national advisory councils. Grants are also awarded to support various special programs designed to enhance the Nation's capability to conduct research and research training; these include the support of clinical and specialized research centers. All institutes provide funds for general research support grants which are awarded to institutions to strengthen their overall biomedical research program. These grants are of two types: (1) A formula grant which provides funds in proportion to the institution's involvement in biomedical research; and (2) a project grant aimed at expanding the number of outstanding academic research institutions engaged in biomedical research throughout the Nation.

(b) Fellowships.—Fellowships are awarded to individuals in order to increase research manpower in the medical sciences. There are several different types of awards, such as predoctoral, postdoctoral, research career development awards, and foreign research fellowships, each designed to support a specific phase in the development of a research scientist.

(c) Training.—Training grants are awarded on the basis of competitive review to various academic or research institutions which have demonstrated the ability to design and conduct successful training programs in one or more of the biomedical sciences.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—The research institutes and divisions conduct research activities within their own laboratories and in a commonly shared clinical center facility.

(b) Collaborative research and development.—Collaborative research and development programs are conducted by NIH investigators in collaboration with other Federal and non-Federal institutions largely through contracts. These programs are strongly oriented toward the solution of specific health problems in certain categorical areas where the state of knowledge is sufficiently advanced to permit a more targeted approach. Included are such directed activities as the development of artificial organs, vaccines, and chemotherapeutic agents.

(c) Biometry, epidemiology, and field studies.—Data relating to the incidence of disease in various population groups and regions of the world are collected and analyzed with the tools of modern statistics.

(d) Other.—Additional activities under direct operations include international research, computer research and technology, and biologics standards, and will be discussed under their respective appropriations. Funds are also included for program direction, research support and service activities, and review and approval of grants.

3. Bureau of Health Manpower.—Provides a national focus for health manpower activities, and supports programs designed to enlarge and improve the pool of qualified health manpower through institutional support grants, student assistance awards, and research grants and direct operations which evaluate and support special studies related to health manpower requirements and utilization.

4. National Library of Medicine.—Serves as a national resource for biomedical information and as a focus for national planning to improve communications in the health sciences.

5. Construction grants.—Federal matching funds are provided on an individual project basis to public and other nonprofit agencies or organizations to assist in the construction of new facilities and the expansion, rehabilitation and modernization of existing facilities for teaching, for research in the sciences related to health, and for medical library facilities.

(b) Fellowships.—Approximately 192 postdoctoral and special fellowships will be supported in 1970 compared to 200 in 1969 and 213 in 1968. Also some 93 career award and career development fellowships will be supported in 1970 compared to 99 in 1969 and 92 in 1968.

(c) Training.—Grants are awarded to accredited schools for the improvement of instruction in the curriculum; clinical training grants are awarded for training in such fields as surgery, pathology, radiobiology, radiotherapy, and internal medicine; and grants are awarded to research training centers for individual traineeships. The following table summarizes those grants.

Graduate training	89	86	79
Cancer clinical training	110	105	103

2. Direct operations—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—Research includes laboratory research in the fields of biochemistry, biology, pathology, and physiology and clinical research in the fields of dermatology, endocrinology, immunology, metabolism, and surgery.

(b) Collaborative research and development.—Research is conducted in the areas of etiology and cancer therapy. This activity includes several task forces including breast cancer and lung cancer and the special virus-leukemia program. Research efforts include field studies, investigations and contracts with public and private organizations and universities for the acquisition, development, and application of new knowledge pertinent to the prevention, control, and treatment of cancer.

(c) Biometry, epidemiology, and field studies.—This program is designed to analyze defined populations having unusual risks to specific cancers or known exposure to high risk environments, in order to reveal statistically significant cause-and-effect associations and disassociations leading to the discovery of etiologic factors and agents.

(b) Fellowships.—Approximately 365 awards will be supported in 1970 compared with 418 in 1969 and 390 in 1968.

(c) Training.—For undergraduate training, funds in 1970 will provide assistance to 112 schools of medicine, osteopathy, and public health, compared with 112 in 1969 and 110 in 1968. Funds will also provide for 266 grants for graduate research and clinical training for 1,064 trainees. Comparable numbers of grants and trainees were 285 and 1,140 in 1969 and 285 and 1,140 in 1968.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—Research is conducted to aid in the understanding of the cardiovascular system and its diseases, with emphasis in therapeutic agents, diagnostic instrumentation, surgery, and clinical medicine.

(b) Collaborative research and development.—Funds will support the artificial heart-myocardial infarction program, heart cooperative drug study, and a national blood program.

(c) Biometry, epidemiology, and field studies.—This activity conducts and supports epidemiological, biometrics research, and clinical trial studies to seek knowledge of the causes and prevention of cardiovascular disease. Causal factors are sought both by intensive study of "natural experiments" in population groups and by experimental modification of suspected factors.

(d) Training activities.—Inservice training is provided for positions requiring unique combinations of cardiovascular training and experience.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Funds available for 1970 will support approximately 1,387 grants, including 106 for the United States-Japan cooperative medical science program. This compares to 1,376 in 1969, including 104 for the United States-Japan cooperative medical science program, and 1,410 in 1968, including 78 for the United States-Japan cooperative medical science program. In addition, funds are provided for general research support grants, clinical research centers, the Gorgas Memorial Laboratory and International Centers for Medical Research and Training.

(b) Fellowships.—An estimated 240 awards will be made in 1970 for postdoctoral, special and research career fellowships. This compares to 271 awards in 1969 and 262 in 1968.

(c) Training.—Funds in 1970 will provide approximately 156 grants to train 940 individuals in allergy and immunology, tropical medicine, infectious diseases, parasitology, mycology and rickettsiology. This compares to 162 grants and 980 individuals in 1969 and 182 grants and 979 individuals in 1968.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—Laboratory and clinical research is conducted in the broad fields of allergic infections and parasitic diseases.

DISEASES—Continued

The increase in 1970 provides for expanded research in clinical allergy and immunology, chronic and degenerative, and viral diseases.

(b) Collaborative research and development.—Contracts are programed in the areas of vaccine development and testing, research reagents development, production and distribution, tissue transplantation immunology, and for the geographic medical science program. The increase in 1970 will provide for expanded support in transplantation immunology and the geographic medicine program.

(c) Training activities.—This activity provides 2-year training of promising young scientists to work abroad as members of the U.S. biomedical research groups in medical research related to problems of an international nature which cannot ordinarily be undertaken in the United States.

(b) Fellowships.—Approximately 85 postdoctoral and special fellowships will be supported in 1970 compared to 145 in 1969 and 136 in 1968. Also, some 122 career awards and career development fellowships will be supported in 1970 compared to 107 in 1969 and 98 in 1968.

(c) Training.—Approximately 127 training grants will be supported in 1970 compared to 142 in 1969 and 151 in 1968.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—Laboratory and clinical research is conducted in five major program areas of child health and human development. Reproduction and population research—reproductive biology, endocrinology, and ecology. Perinatal biology and infant mortality—maternal-child interactions; maturation of motor and behavioral systems; nutrition and development. Growth and development—neurophysiology, neurochemistry, and nutrition. Adult development and aging—cellular biology, biochemistry, physiology, and psychology. Mental retardation—biochemistry, neurophysiology, and behavioral research.

(b) Collaborative research and development.—This activity serves the important purpose of supplementing and complementing NICHD's intramural research programs. It is one of the most effective ways for coordinating program development in family planning, perinatal biology, growth and development, aging, and mental retardation. The main thrust of the Institute's population research program is accomplished by contract efforts within this activity. Program liaison is maintained and advanced through support of interdisciplinary research conferences and symposia and through scientific information centers.

(c) Biometry, epidemiology, and field studies.—Through contracted research, this activity supports the Institute's scientific staff in planning and conducting studies dealing with the incidence, distribution, and control of health problems in certain populations. Efforts are also being made to develop more effective and reliable means for measuring health problems, to collect and analyze health data, and to make statistical studies for use in initiating and evaluating scientific programs.

(d) Training activities.—This activity represents the NICHD career development program designed to help overcome the shortages of professional manpower in pediatrics and obstetrics and the lack of the necessary cross-disciplinary training required in the basic research programs of the Institute.

1. Grants.—(a) Research.—Approximately 100 regular research grants will be supported in 1970 compared to 88 in 1969, and 82 in 1968. There will be eight Environmental Health Institutes supported in 1970 compared to six in 1969. This activity supports research on the phenomena associated with the source, distribution, mode of entry, and effect of environmental agents on biological systems through grants to universities, research institutes, and other public or private nonprofit institutions.

(b) Fellowships.—Approximately 18 awards will be supported in 1970 compared to 20 in 1969 and six in 1968. Under the fellowship program, predoctoral, postdoctoral, and special grant awards will be made to graduate students and scientists for training in the field of environmental health sciences.

(c) Training.—Approximately 47 grants will be supported in 1970 compared to 43 in 1969 and 50 in 1968. The graduate research training program supports the availability of high-quality training opportunities in environmental health. It has a threefold goal: (1) To increase the number of highly qualified scientists primarily concerned with environmental health; (2) to enable training institutions to strengthen and to enrich their research training capabilities; and (3) to expand opportunities for environmental health research training in a greater number of graduate institutions throughout the United States.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Laboratory and clinical research.—This activity supports the in-house research programs in environmental health sciences at the National Environmental Health Sciences Center in the Research Triangle Park, North Carolina. Included are research efforts in cell biology, pharmacology and toxicology, analytical and synthetic chemistry, biophysics and biomedical instrumentation, animal science and technology, pathologic physiology, epidemiology, biometry, epidemiologic pathology, and scientific information as well as the supporting services for these laboratories and branches.

(b) Review and approval of grants.—The scientific and administrative staff responsible for the review, negotiation, processing, and awarding of all grants is supported by this activity.

(c) Program direction.—This activity supports the Office of the Director of the Division and scientific administrative staff who assist in the planning, supervision, and technical direction of the program.

GENERAL RESEARCH AND SERVICES, NATIONAL INSTITUTES OF HEALTH

For the activities of the National Institutes of Health, not otherwise provided for, including research fellowships [and], grants for research projects and training grants pursuant to section 301 of the Public Health Service Act; and grants of therapeutic and chemical substances for demonstrations and research; [$84,809,500] $74,809,000: Provided, That funds advanced to the National Institutes of Health management fund from appropriations included in this Act shall be available for the cost of sharing medical care facilities and resources pursuant to section 328 of the Act, purchase of not to exceed [nine] fourteen passenger motor vehicles for replacement only; and not to exceed [$2,500] $5,000 for entertainment of visiting scientists when specifically approved by the Surgeon General. (Department of Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriation Act, 1969.)

NOTES

Excludes $433 thousand for activities transferred in the estimates to "Salaries and expenses, Office of the Director."
Excludes $10,261 thousand for activities transferred in the estimates to "National Institute of Allergy and Infectious Diseases."
Excludes $2,832 thousand for activities transferred in the estimates to the "John E. Fogarty International Center for Advanced Study in the Health Sciences."
The amounts obligated in 1968 and 1969 are shown in the schedules as comparative transfers.

The appropriation for general research and services finances the Division of Research Facilities and Resources whose programs are oriented toward providing the resources and facilities necessary for the conduct of biomedical research; this includes support for the maintenance of laboratory animals and the provision of specialized resources such as large-scale equipment to improve multidisciplinary research capabilities of institutions. The appropriation also finances the engineering development activity, and the Division of Computer Research and Technology which plans and conducts research, developmental, and demonstration programs in mathematical and other computer related sciences.

The activities listed in the program and financing schedule for the general research and services appropriation are described below:

(a) Grants.—(1) Research.—Funds in 1970 will provide the following: General Clinical Research Centers—approximately 90 centers will be supported in 1970, the same as in 1969, compared to 91 in 1968; Special Research Resources—approximately 46 grants will be supported in 1970 compared to 57 in 1969 and 68 in 1968; Animal Resources—approximately 57 animal resources and seven primate centers grants will be supported in 1970 compared to 55 animal resources and seven primate centers in 1969 and 57 animal resources and seven primate centers in 1968.

(2) Fellowships.—Approximately 15 fellowship awards will be supported in 1970, the same as in 1969 and compared to 16 in 1968.

(3) Training.—Approximately nine training grants will be supported in 1970, the same as in 1969 and compared to eight in 1968.

(b) Direct operations.—(1) Collaborative research and development.—Research is conducted in collaboration with Federal and non-Federal institutions through contracts. Included are chemical/biological information handling program, special research resources, surveys of animal resources, development of standards for laboratory animal facilities, and the applying of engineering and technological innovations to biomedical problems in such areas as the development of artificial organs, synthetic materials, and the automation of clinical and laboratory measurements.

2. Division of Computer Research and Technology.—This activity conducts research in mathematics and the computer sciences as they relate to biomedical problems, provides professional advice to other areas of NIH, serves as a focus for training activities in computation and data processing and operates a central computing facility for the National Institutes of Health.

John E. Fogarty International Center for Advanced Study in the Health Sciences.—The primary function of the Center, which will be located at the National Institutes of Health, Bethesda, Md., is to create the environment and provide the means to bring together scholars, scientists, and innovative minds for advanced study of the development of science as it relates to health and its implications for the future. Specifically, the Center will administer a fellowship program to provide support for the broad international exchange of individuals for teaching, research, and study in the health and related sciences. It also administers the international postdoctoral research fellowship program and its companion program of grants to returning fellows. It serves as the focal point of the Special Foreign Currency (Public Law 480) program for the National Institutes of Health. Further, the Center will provide leadership in planning and organizing conferences, seminars, and working scientific sessions developed around the major scientific problems, opportunities, trends, and developments to facilitate the progress of knowledge and to explore its implications for society. In addition, the Center will serve as the central point for reception and assistance of foreign scientists and other international visitors to the National Institutes of Health. In 1970 funds are required for provision of staff, for the scholars-in-residence program and the international conference and seminar program.

1. Operations.—(a) Grants.—(1) Research (project).—Funds will support approximately 52 grants in 1970 compared to 56 grants in 1969 and 101 in 1968. In addition, funds are provided for scientific evaluation. (2) Fellowships.—Approximately 183 fellowships will be supported in 1970 compared to 188 in 1969 and 159 in 1968.

(b) International center.—Provides for the executive direction, planning, and coordinating of all international activities of the National Institutes of Health, including operation of oversea offices and international seminars and conferences.

1. Institutional support.—The principal agents of this activity are grant programs directed toward enhancing the educational experience of students entering the health and allied health professions resulting ultimately in better health service to the Nation. Schools use these funds to support and enlarge faculty staffs, expand library holdings, modify existing and add new curriculums, modernize teaching laboratories, and purchase educational aids and equipment. A substantial increase is requested in 1970 for these activities. The support for nursing schools in 1970 is for project grants provided in the Health Manpower Act of 1968. Under the Health Manpower Act of 1968, schools of pharmacy and veterinary medicine will be eligible for support for the first time in 1970.

Number of institutions receiving basic support and improvement funds:

Medical.....	99	100	100
Dental.....	51	52	52
Nursing.....	493	479	90

Pharmacy.....	---	---	74
Veterinary medicine.....	---	---	18
Other health related.....	20	20	20
Allied health.....	230	280	300

Improving the utilization of limited resources of health professionals requires appraisal of how various types of personnel are being utilized and the identification of new categories of allied health professionals and technicians for more effective team practice. In 1970, allied health new methods grants will support the existing level of 16 projects to develop curriculums to produce personnel requiring newly identified skills.

2. Student assistance.—Student assistance is of two kinds: graduate and specialized, comprising traineeships and research fellowships; and undergraduate, comprising scholarships and student loans. Research fellowships support candidates at the predoctoral and postdoctoral levels for research training in special fields related to studies for improving nursing care. Traineeships support the graduate and specialized preparation of teachers needed to expand and improve curriculum offerings, and the advanced training needed by supervisors, administrators and other specialists in nursing, public health, and the allied health professions.

Number of persons trained:

Nursing fellowships.....	115	130	130
Nurse traineeships.....	6,900	7,000	7,000
Public health traineeships.....	13,457	12,100	12,100
Allied health traineeships.....	257	400	400

Nursing and health professions scholarships enable deserving students from low-income families to pursue their education. Students of veterinary medicine will become eligible for scholarships for the first time in 1970. Schools make scholarship awards to students who, in the judgment of the school, have an exceptional financial need. The student loan programs for the health professions, including nurses, are also designed to help provide an adequate supply of health manpower and to assure that the needed supply of health professions and nursing manpower is drawn from the most capable individuals, but particularly to assure that students from low-income families can enroll for health professions training. The 1970 program concentrates these loans to students from families with annual incomes under $10,000. While the table below reflects a decline in health professions student loans in 1970 due to the concentration of these loans on students from lower income families, it is anticipated that the decline in numbers of students receiving loans under this program will be more than offset by increases in numbers of health professions students receiving Office of Education Guaranteed Student Loans.

Number of recipients (including student loan revolving fund recipients):

Scholarships:
Medical.....	4,126	6,550	8,556
Dental.....	1,869	2,886	3,694

Nursing.....	24,532	27,000	29,000
Other health related.....	3,850	3,817	3,049

3. Manpower requirements and utilization.—(a) Grants.—Research grants support studies in the areas of physician methods and techniques, continuing physician education, effective use of health manpower, nursing care, and methods to deliver nursing care to patients. Research training grants enable institutions to establish training programs in fields where there is unusual demand for researchers having skills in nursing specialties and in the field of educational research.

(b) Direct operations.—Funds are provided for programs to assess requirements, availability, and quality of health discipline education; provide professional guidance and leadership to meet the goals of nursing care by means of research, consultation, application of research findings and administration of grants; develop, administer, and support grant and operational programs to increase the supply and improve the education, utilization, and effectiveness of manpower in the health occupations; for servicing training and construction grants, student loans, scholarships and operational programs for training of personnel. The increase in 1970 will be used primarily for services and technical assistance related to the new and expanded grant programs of the recently enacted Health Manpower Act of 1968.

4. Program direction and management services.—The Bureau of Health Manpower provides a national focus for health manpower activities. The Bureau guides and supports health manpower programs, designs proposals to meet needs for new or revised health manpower programs, coordinates research and program reporting activities, and provides technical guidance and coordination to Bureau activities.

1. Grants—(a) Research.—Research grants support studies in the prevention and control of oral diseases, more efficient methods for delivering dental services, and the effective use of dental manpower. Thirty-two grants will be supported in 1970, the same number as in 1969.

(b) Fellowships.—Research fellowships support candidates for advanced degrees to prepare them to conduct research to help improve dental health by obtaining information about preventive dentistry, dental diseases, dental education and more effective methods of delivering dental services. Ten fellows will be supported in 1970, compared to 13 in 1969.

(c) Training.—In 1970, three new dental schools will initiate developmental programs to train students to use dental auxiliaries. The increased funds will permit existing programs to lengthen the training and to include other types of auxiliaries such as dental hygienists. Research training grants enable institutions to establish training programs in fields urgently in need of researchers in dental science. A dental continuing education grant program provides for upgrading the skills of dentists and auxiliaries through a national network of dental school programs benefiting an additional 4,000 dentists and 20,000 auxiliaries in 1970.

2. Direct operations.—Funds are provided for programs to study the supply, utilization, and distribution of dental manpower, to increase the productivity of dental practitioners and to assist dentists to keep abreast of the latest concepts and techniques in dentistry. Funds also provide for disease prevention control programs, for studies related to the organization, delivery, and financing of dental health care services, and for research and development in dental technology.

Teaching facilities.—Under the provisions of the Health Manpower Act of 1968, Public Law 90-490, Federal grants are provided on an individual project basis to assist in the construction of medical, dental, pharmacy, optometry, podiatry, veterinary, osteopathy, and public health teaching facilities, schools of nursing, and for training centers for allied health personnel.

(a) Medical, dental, and other health personnel.—The $118.1 million requested for 1970, plus the $22.9 million carryover balance, will, assuming that Federal participation will continue at approximately 55%, provide a total program of $256.4 million for that year. From the beginning of the program in 1964 to July 1, 1968, a total of 148 projects have been awarded with obligations of approximately $406 million, providing for the construction of an estimated 4,205 first-year places. The funds requested for 1970 will provide approximately 768 new first-year places, increasing by more than 3% the nationally available first-year places (estimated at 23,411) in medical, dental and other health professions' schools. Considered separately, medical and dental first-year places will increase by more than 4%. Since 1964 almost all major construction of teaching facilities for medical and dental personnel has been undertaken with Federal support.

(b) Nurses.—The $8.0 million requested for 1970 will provide a $14.5 million program for 1970, assuming that the average Federal participation will be approximately 55%. From the beginning of the program in 1964 to July 1, 1968, a total of 93 projects have been approved for $54.2 million. The 1970 program will provide approximately 570 new first-year places and renovate approximately 1,710 existing places. The 570 new first-year places is estimated to be the total national increase in new nursing places in 1970 and represents about a 1% increase over existing spaces (estimated at 58,700). Over 97% of the construction of teaching facilities for nurses in the period 1965 to 1968 has been undertaken with Federal support, representing 4,513 of 4,614 new first-year places.

(c) Allied health professions personnel.—Matching grants are made to public and other nonprofit schools for construction, expansion, and rehabilitation of teaching facilities as training centers for technical and other allied health personnel. No funds are requested for 1970. From the beginning of the Allied Health Act of 1967 to July 1, 1968, one project was awarded in the amount of $1.8 million, providing 337 new first year student places.

Health research facilities.—Matching grants are made to public and other nonprofit institutions to assist in the construction of new facilities, and replacement of out-moded facilities, for the conduct of research in the sciences related to health. No funds are requested for 1970. From the beginning of this program in 1957 through July 1, 1968, a total of 1,463 grants have been awarded amounting to $452.8 million. The total national inventory of health-related research space in use by non-Federal, nonprofit institutions in 1968 is about 26 million net square feet. In 1957, the year the health research facilities program was initiated, the total inventory of such space was 10 million net square feet. Of 16 million net square feet added since 1957, 11,500,000 net square feet were constructed with financial assistance from the health research facilities program. An additional 2 million net square feet was remodeled or replaced during this period with assistance from the health research facilities program. In addition, approximately 5 million net square feet of health research facilities space is now under construction or will be under construction shortly.

Thus, approximately 50% of the national inventory of health related research space has been constructed or remodeled with financial assistance from the health research facilities program.

Medical libraries.—Matching grants are made to public and other nonprofit agencies or institutions for construction of new, and the renovation, expansion or rehabilitation of medical library facilities. No funds are requested for 1970. From the beginning of the program through July 1, 1968, a total of nine grants have been awarded for $10 million providing 294,700 net square feet of medical library space. Funds available in 1969 will support one construction project providing an additional 30,000 square feet of medical library space.

The National Library of Medicine serves as a national resource for biomedical information and as a focus for national planning to improve communications in the health sciences. Toward these ends the Library conducts programs to provide: (a) interlibrary loan, reference, and bibliographic services to units of the national system of libraries and information centers; (b) bibliographic and literature searches through the computer-based MEDLARS (Medical Literature Analysis and Retrieval System) and its decentralized satellites; (c) specialized information services including development of a Toxicology Information Exchange to meet national needs for information relating to the effects of chemical agents on man; (d) audiovisual resources and services and the development of new media for medical and health-related education through the National Medical Audiovisual Center; (e) systems engineering, design, and implementation of a national multimedia biomedical communications network for the most timely and efficient delivery of biomedical information to health professionals; and, (f) administration of grant support programs authorized by the Medical Library Assistance Act of 1965 for the improvement of communications in the health sciences.

Funds requested in 1970 relate to three general aspects of the Library's programs: (a) the maintenance of its direct service programs for the dissemination of biomedical information; (b) further development and installation of a second-generation MEDLARS begun in 1968; and (c) systems engineering and development of a national biomedical communications network through the Lister Hill National Center for Biomedical Communications established in 1969.

The following is a summary of activity goals:

1. Grants.—(a) Training.—Training grant awards in 1970 will number approximately 21 compared to 17 in 1969 and 18 in 1968.

(b) Special scientific projects.—Awards to health scholars will number four in 1970 compared to three in 1969 and three in 1968.

(c) Research.—Funds available in 1970 will support 34 projects. This compares to 35 in 1969 and 54 in 1968.

(d) Library resources.—Some 424 libraries will receive grants in 1970 compared to 390 in 1969 and 373 in 1968.

(e) Regional medical libraries.—In 1970 eight regional medical libraries will receive continued support begun in 1969 compared to three in 1968.

(f) Publications support.—An estimated 13 awards will be made in 1970 compared to 10 in 1969 and 14 in 1968.

2. Direct operations.—(a) Library operations.—The increase in 1970 will provide funds for continued installation and conversion to a second generation MEDLARS system to improve the quality and speed of response and to meet increased service demands, and expansion of bibliographic, reference, and loan services.

(b) Toxicology information.—Increases in 1970 will maintain continued identification of user needs, fact gathering and file building activities, and staff planning and project management.

(c) National Medical Audiovisual Center.—The increase in 1970 will support the initial implementation of a videotape distribution center; expansion of existing collections of motion picture films, audiotapes and other audiovisuals with primary emphasis for use by medical and health-related professions; and the projected increase in demand over 1969 of 20% for loans of audiovisuals to health professionals, agencies, institutions, and organizations interested in health.

(d) Lister Hill National Center for Biomedical Communications.—The increase in 1970 will fund systems engineering in information and communications science and design and activation of a national biomedical communications network.

(e) Research and support contracts.—The decrease and elimination of this subactivity in 1970 reflects incorporation of 1969 amounts for this subactivity into the base for the Lister Hill National Center for Biomedical Communications.

(f) Review and approval of grants and contracts.—The decrease in this activity is associated with decreases in grant and contract funding.

(g) Program direction.—The 1970 decrease reflects transfer of funding of some centralized administrative service costs to the new appropriation Salaries and expenses, Office of the Director.

Proposed projects.—The following construction projects will require additional funds in 1970:

7. Dental health center addition.—In 1970 funds are requested for major equipment necessary to make this facility operable.

14. Lister Hill National Center for Biomedical Communications.—Planning and design funds are requested in 1970 for an addition to the National Library of Medicine Building to provide needed space for the new and expanded programs of the National Library of Medicine.

15. Master utilities extension.—The 1970 request provides funds for the design and a portion of the construction costs for the utility extensions to those buildings currently under design contract or in the later stages of preliminary planning.

18. Neurology-allergy virus research facility.—Planning and design funds are requested in 1970 for a virus research facility to serve the joint requirements of the National Institutes of Neurological Diseases and Stroke and Allergy and Infectious Diseases.

22. Repairs and improvements.—The 1970 request provides for continuation of the program of major repairs and improvements initiated in 1964.

The following activities will require appropriation of funds in subsequent years to complete, but will be continued in 1969 with funds appropriated in prior years:

5. Child health and human development research facility.

The Allied Health Professions Personnel Training Act of 1966 (Public Law 89-751) amended title VII, part C of the Public Health Service Act to establish a revolving fund from which schools may obtain loans to provide loans to health professions students. This amendment supplements the existing Federal capital contributions method of funding student loans as authorized by the Health Professions Educational Assistance Act, Public Law 88-129.

The first year student loans were awarded from the revolving fund was in 1968. In that year, approximately 12,000 health professions students received loans totaling $11,541 thousand.

In 1969, approximately 13,900 health professions students received loans totaling $12,209 thousand.

In 1970, approximately 1,150 health professions students will receive loans totaling $1,113 thousand.

In 1970, $131 thousand is required for payment of interest due the Government National Mortgage Association for notes held by private interests.

Provision is also made for reimbursement of interest losses of health professions schools as provided by section 744(b) of the Public Health Service Act. In 1970 it is estimated $604 thousand will be required for this purpose.

The budget authority required for "insufficiencies" is computed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

The Allied Health Professions Personnel Training Act of 1966 (Public Law 89-751) amended section 827 of the Public Health Service Act to establish a revolving fund to provide loans to nursing students. This amendment supplements the existing Federal capital contribution method of funding student loans as authorized by the Nurse Training Act, Public Law 88-581.

The first year that student loans were awarded from the revolving fund was in 1968. In that year, approximately 9,100 students received nursing student loans totaling $6,581 thousand.

In 1969, approximately 11,700 nursing students received loans totaling $7,300 thousand.

In 1970, approximately 7,180 nursing students will receive loans totaling $2,671 thousand.

In 1970, $38 thousand is required for payment of interest due the Government National Mortgage Association for notes held by private interests.

Provision is also made for reimbursement of interest losses of nursing schools as provided by section 827(b) of the Public Health Service Act. In 1970 it is estimated that $184 thousand will be needed for this purpose.

<sup>3</sup> Reimbursements from non-Federal sources are derived from the sale of meals to employees and others (42 U.S.C. 290).

The National Institutes of Health management fund was established to facilitate the conduct of operations of the National Institutes of Health which are financed by two or more appropriations. The activities of the fund are financed primarily from advances and reimbursements from the several institutes. Formulas for determining the contribution from each institute are designed to reflect utilization of services performed by the management fund.

Taken into consideration are such factors as the number of activated beds in the clinical center, number of laboratory workers, total personnel, and dollar level of grant, direct research, and direct operations funds obligated by the institute. A small portion of the funds comes from reimbursements from outside sources, and from other Government agencies.

The centralized organizations of the National Institutes of Health provide supporting services to all programs as follows:

1. Research services.—Provide the central administration and operation of services for the conduct of research activities such as the planning and supervising of design, construction and development of new research activities; providing laboratory animals, culture media and glassware; design and fabrication of laboratory instrumentation; operating the NIH medical reference library including the translation of medical literature; scientific photography and medical arts; maintenance and alteration of all physical facilities including utility services; and environmental engineering services.

2. Clinical services.—Consist of the operation of the 516-bed clinical center together with the laboratory space required for the treatment of research patients.

3. Administrative management.—Provides for such office services as housekeeping, transportation, space management and communications, supply management, and protection and safety.

4. Grant review and approval.—Initiates and develops recommendations and provides staff support services for the National Institutes of Health in formulating Public Health Service grants and awards policies and procedures relating to research, center, and training grants and fellowship programs; assigns grant and award applications to the appropriate bureau of the Public Health Service; assigns applications within the National Institutes of Health to institutes and divisions and to initial review groups, and provides for the scientific review of applications by the National Institutes of Health study sections and review committees; conducts negotiations with grantee institutions, makes studies, and provides advisory and consultative services to NIH institutes and divisions relative to PHS grant policy and NIH-wide management matters; collects, stores, retrieves, and analyzes management and program data needed by the National Institutes of Health in the management of its extramural programs.

5. Cafeteria.—The clinical center cafeteria was operated for a portion of 1968 by the nutrition department. Effective February 9, 1968, this service has been provided by contract with a non-Federal firm. Income and expenses for the period July 1, 1967 to February 8, 1968, are as follows:

The NIH service and supply fund provides a single means for consolidated financing and accounting of business-type operations involving the sale of services and commodities to customers. Public Law 170, 83d Congress (67 Stat. 254), increased the capitalization of the fund as follows: "Service and Supply Fund: For additional working capital for the Service and Supply Fund, created by title II of the act of July 3, 1945, (42 U.S.C. 231) not to exceed $200,000 to be derived by transfer from such other funds appropriated in this act to the NIH as the Surgeon General may determine to remain available until expended: Provided that any stocks of supplies and equipment of the PHS related to services financed under this fund may also be used to capitalize said fund."

There are four categorical program classifications; Administrative Services, Computation and Data Processing Services, Instrumentation Services, and Research Animals. Combined, these activities rendered services or sold commodities to the Institutes/Divisions of NIH at a $12.9 million level in 1968. It is expected that this level will increase to $14.4 million in 1969 and $16.0 million in 1970. One activity, the Glassware Unit, was added to the fund in 1969, adding approximately $300,000 in services. Presently, there are no additional activities contemplated for transfer to the fund in 1969. Studies of NIH activities will continue in 1969 with some conclusions expected for 1970.

Budget Program 1970.—The following activities are carried out under the fund.—Administrative services.—These services include the sale of commodities from inventory totaling $6,134,000, printing and reproduction services amounting to $1,011,000, and approximately $652,000 of other services. The NIH maintains a supply of scientific and general-use materials and supplies, alteration and construction material, linens and special equipment. The Printing and Reproduction Section provides printing, distribution, and related services. Its printing plant is equipped to produce brochures as well as ordinary administrative materials.

Computation and data processing.—This central facility is expected to provide data systems design and consultation, key punching, EAM processing, computer programming and computer processing services to Institutes/Divisions of NIH at an estimated $5,114,000 level in 1970.

Instrumentation.—The Biomedical Instrumentation and Engineering Branch maintains, repairs and fabricates scientific laboratory apparatus and equipment for use in the research laboratories at NIH. There is also a specialized inventory of materials used in the development of the scientific equipment which is part of the services provided by the shops.

Research animals.—The NIH animal facilities provide small and large research animals to the research laboratories. The facilities include breeding, holding and conditioning facilities for mice, rats, guinea pigs, rabbits, hamsters, dogs, cats, primates and ungulate animals.

Operating results.—The activities financed under the fund operated at a less than 1% income-expense variance in 1968. A small retained earnings account provides for any losses and the possibility of future losses. The cash position of the fund remains in a stable position, with the collection of receivables, in most instances, on a monthly basis. Most rate charges remained in line with those of 1968.

1. Educationally deprived children.—Grants are made to schools to assist in expanding and improving instruction and ancillary services for children from low-income families, handicapped children, dependent and neglected children, orphans and juvenile delinquents, children of migratory workers, and Indians. In addition, payments are made to State educational agencies for administrative expenses. In order to notify schools well in advance of the academic year as to the amount of Federal grants on which to base financial, personnel, and other plans, this program requests a minimum amount for advance funding of 1971.

2. Dropout prevention.—Grants are made to local school districts for experimental projects in poverty area schools to reduce and prevent dropouts. In 1970, about 25 model school projects serving over 25,000 students will be funded to develop new means to prevent school dropouts.

3. Bilingual education.—Grants are made to local educational agencies to develop, establish, and operate programs of bilingual education and to provide preservice and inservice training for professional personnel participating in such programs.

4. Supplementary educational services.—Grants are made to States and to local school districts, in association with colleges, private schools, museums, and other educational resources, to develop and establish programs which serve as models for improving and supplementing the

5. Library resources.—Grants are made to States for procurement of library resources, textbooks, and other printed and published instructional materials for use by students and teachers in public and private elementary and secondary schools. These grants are in addition to Federal support for purchase of school library books from other programs such as those for education of the disadvantaged and supplementary educational services.

6. Guidance, counseling, and testing.—Grants are made to States on a matching basis to assist in establishing and maintaining programs of guidance, counseling, and testing in public elementary and secondary schools and public junior colleges and technical institutes.

7. Equipment and minor remodeling.—Grants were made to States for equipment and minor remodeling of laboratory or other space suitable for use in providing education in public elementary or secondary schools while loans were made to nonprofit private schools for similar uses.

It is proposed that these grants be terminated in 1970. Schools and States will have more flexibility to determine the most appropriate mix of equipment and other school resources under Federal grants for educationally deprived children, grants for supplementary services and other Federal aids which will be expanded in 1970.

8. Strengthening State departments of education.—The leadership ability of State educational agencies is improved by grants to assist them in developing systematic and technically proficient planning and evaluation activities, and in supporting research, statistical, and technical assistance for local school systems.

9. Planning and evaluation.—Funds are made available to the Secretary of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare for expenses including grants, contracts, or other payments, for: (1) planning succeeding year activities or projects for any program for which the Commissioner of Education has responsibility for administration; and (2) evaluation of such programs and projects.

1. Maintenance and operation.—Payments are made to assist in operation of schools in areas where enrollments are affected by Federal activities. The eligible districts are located in all States, Puerto Rico, various outlying areas, and, since July 1964, the District of Columbia. Under certain circumstances, payments are made to other Federal agencies to make arrangements for education of children where local school districts do not assume responsibility for such children. Arrangements may be made for free public education of children of members of the Armed Forces on active duty not residing on Federal property. The 1970 request is based on legislation to be proposed that will more equitably distribute funds to school districts consistent with the burdens imposed by Federal activities.

2. Construction.—Payments are made to assist in construction of schools in areas where enrollments are affected by Federal activities. From 1951 through 1967, $1,337 million has been appropriated for this program, aiding in the construction of 61,000 classrooms to house about 1.8 million pupils in the 50 States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and Wake Island.

The authorized programs for 1970 will support the following activities:

(a) Assistance to local educational agencies.—Grants are made to local districts for school construction, on behalf of increased numbers of children residing on Federal property and/or with a parent employed on Federal property. In 1970, grants will be made within available funds for these projects where enrollment growth, proportion of federally connected children and existing facilities indicate the greatest need for this assistance.

(b) Assistance for school construction on Federal properties.—Where the local educational agency is unable to provide school facilities for increased numbers of children living on Federal property, the Commissioner of Education is authorized to arrange for construction of schools. Under certain circumstances, the Commissioner may also arrange to provide school facilities on a temporary basis for children of members of the Armed Forces on active duty who do not reside on Federal property.

(c) Payments for technical services.—Provides technical and administrative services in connection with the construction of school facilities.

3. Evaluation.—Funds in 1969 provide for studies to evaluate the type of payments, level of funding, and possible legal formula changes to make payments correspond to federally caused burdens upon local school districts.

Support is provided to broaden and strengthen training of teachers and other educational personnel under the Education Professions Development Act.

1. Preschool, elementary, and secondary.—(a) Grants to States.—Grants are made to States to recruit and train persons for careers as elementary and secondary teachers and teacher aides. It is estimated that training will be provided for about 9,000 persons in 1969 and the same number in 1970, of which approximately one-third will be teacher aides.

(b) Training programs.—Grants and contracts are supported to meet critical shortages of educational personnel, to improve the quality of teaching at the preschool through postsecondary vocational levels, and for developing and strengthening teacher education programs at the graduate level. Grants and contracts with higher education institutions and State and local education agencies support programs to update and improve the training of personnel such as teachers, teacher aides, supervisors, administrators, counselors, teachers of disadvantaged youth, and educational media specialists. Stipends are paid to participants in these programs.

Teams of experienced teachers and teaching interns are made available to serve, upon request, in schools located in neighborhoods with concentrations of low-income families. Federal grants are made to institutions of higher education for preservice and inservice training of the interns and experienced teachers. Local school districts receive Federal grants for payment of a portion of the salaries of both interns and experienced teachers during their period of service. Cooperative arrangements between the institutions of higher education and local school districts permit the interns to work toward completion of requirements for advanced degrees.

Grants and payments are made to States, educational institutions, and individuals for support of higher education programs under the Higher Education Act, Higher Education Facilities Act, National Defense Education Act, Education Professions Development Act, and Bankhead-Jones Act.

1. Program assistance.—To raise the academic quality of developing colleges, grants are made for projects to strengthen faculty and administrative skills, to upgrade curriculum, and for teaching fellowships. Such grants require the establishment of cooperative links between the developing colleges and universities, businesses, or other developing institutions. Grants also are allotted among States for support of instruction in agriculture, the mechanic arts, and related fields at the 69 land-grant colleges. Grants were made in 1967 through 1969 to higher education institutions for acquisition of television and other equipment and minor remodeling of space in order to improve undergraduate instruction. In 1970, pilot grants will be made under provisions contained in the Higher Education Amendments of 1968 for: (1) sharing of educational resources such as libraries or faculties; and (2) strengthening and improving the quality of graduate programs.

Number of developing colleges in cooperative programs.....	501	367	350	375
Number of national teaching fellowships.....	1,523	727	650	775

2. Construction.—Grants are awarded on a matching basis for construction of academic facilities at colleges, universities, junior colleges, and technical institutes. Beginning in 1969, direct loans will be replaced by annual interest grants, for which a supplemental appropriation will be requested, to reduce the cost of loans from non-Federal sources for construction of academic facilities. Direct Federal loans for construction were provided through the higher education facilities loan fund during 1967 through 1969. Grants are also made to assist State commissions in administering undergraduate construction grants under this program, and in comprehensive planning of future higher education construction. Technical engineering and other review services are provided for construction projects.

3. Student aid.—Funds are allotted to colleges and universities to provide: (1) educational opportunity grants for financially needy undergraduate students; (2) work-study grants under which wages are provided for part-time jobs during the school year and full-time summer jobs for students who are in need of financial assistance in order to continue their education; and (3) capital contributions to National Defense Education Act student loan funds from which loans are made to graduate and undergraduate students. Advances are made on a matching basis to State and nonprofit private loan insurance funds to guarantee loans to college and vocational students, and payments are made to reduce interest costs for students whose adjusted family incomes fall below $15 thousand. In 1970 an increase in students receiving guaranteed loans will permit a reduction of capital contributions for direct loans by colleges and universities. Grants are made to higher educational institutions to develop cooperative arrangements with private industry or public agencies to provide students employment experience directly related to their college courses. For disadvantaged students, grants and contracts are supported for: (1) the Upward Bound program to motivate high school students to attend college and improve their academic preparation; (2) the talent search program to identify youths with exceptional potential for a college education and publicize available sources of financial aid; and (3) special remedial and other services for enrolled college students to encourage and assist them in continuing their higher education.

A supplemental appropriation will be submitted to provide for an endowment in lieu of a land-grant for the Federal City College of the District of Columbia as authorized by Public Law 90-354, approved June 20, 1968. These funds will be invested in bonds with the income to be used for the support of the College under the provisions of the First Morrill Act of 1862. In addition, supplemental funds will be requested for interest subsidization grants to facilitate borrowing for construction by higher education institutions from non-Federal sources.

1. Basic grants.—Matching grants are made to the States for support and improvement of vocational education programs, including the construction and remodeling of vocational education school facilities. Training for gainful employment as semiskilled or skilled workers and for business and office occupations is emphasized. Under provisions contained in the Vocational Education Amendments of 1968, two-fifths of these funds will be set aside in 1970 for special vocational programs for children from low income families, the physically and mentally handicapped and post-secondary courses. In addition, $2 million will be transferred to the Department of Labor for manpower projections and studies which will help State and local school officials in planning useful and up-to-date training programs. Funds are also made available to support the advisory, review, evaluation, and reporting function of the National Advisory Council and the State Advisory Councils which are required to be established under the Vocational Education Amendments of 1968. Beginning in 1970, homemaking education is included as a separate program activity.

3. Work study.—In 1968 grants were made to States for financial support of students from low income families. These grants have been terminated because of similar benefits provided by the cooperative work and study assistance and by the Neighborhood Youth Corps in-school program administered by the Department of Labor under delegation from the Office of Economic Opportunity.

4. Cooperative education.—Grants are made to States for supervisory and other costs of cooperative study and work programs. Local school districts will arrange with private industry or public agencies for employment experience directly related to student vocational objectives; employers will pay enrollee wages equal to the value of work produced. In 1970, about 97,600 students will be supported.

5. Innovation.—The Vocational Education Amendments of 1968 provide for exemplary and innovative programs to develop new models for experimenting with alternate approaches for upgrading vocational education programs and stimulating new ways to create a bridge between school and earning a living for young people. In 1970, 106 projects will effect the redirection of State program planning in areas of city ghettos, rural poor, school dropouts and youth who graduate from high school lacking saleable work skills.

6. Curriculum development.—The Vocational Education Amendments of 1968 provide a new program of grants to colleges, universities and other institutions designed to give assistance to State and local education agencies by development of curriculums for new and changing occupations.

7. Planning and evaluation.—Funds are made available for grants, contracts or other payments, for planning training programs and conduct of evaluation studies of vocational and technical education.

devote primary attention to the development and validation of curricular and instructional alternatives for use in the Nation's schools. Research and development centers concentrate on studying such specific problem areas as early childhood learning, teacher education, higher education, problems of the disadvantaged, educational administration, and educational policy. In 1970 research emphasis will be shifted toward minority groups in education, and toward basic research in reading processes, learning, and motivation. Major development efforts will include work on secondary school curriculum systems and the use of television for early childhood education. The amount includes a transfer of $2,000 thousand to the National Foundation on the Arts and the Humanities for joint projects involving scholars, practitioners, artists and writers in the classroom. It also includes $2,000 thousand for continuing support of a national study of the educational attainment of the population.

2. Major demonstrations.—Support will be provided for the demonstration of two model approaches to urban education: one, stressing community participation in school program planning and execution, in the Anacostia section of Washington, D.C., will be continued; the second will provide initial assistance for a school in the "new town" setting of the Fort Lincoln community, also in the District of Columbia.

3. Dissemination.—A network of information clearinghouses is supported to promote efficient transfer of information from research and experimental projects in education to teachers, administrators, scholars, and research personnel. Each clearinghouse selects, evaluates, indexes, abstracts and disseminates information on current and completed projects in an important area of education (such as teaching of the disadvantaged, teacher training, vocational education, reading, etc.). Reporting and retrieval services are provided and compilations and analyses are made on research related to selected educational topics. A monthly publication listing all acquisitions is produced and distributed on a subscription basis. In 1970, a newly authorized program will be started to provide—through technical assistance, conferences, seminars, publications and other information techniques particularly useful for parents, students, teachers, and administrators—information about projects in schools and colleges.

6. Statistical surveys.—Contractual studies support the responsibilities of the National Center for Educational Statistics for measuring the progress and status of education in the Nation, and help in developing and applying scientific and technical methods to the collection, processing, and analyses of education statistics. They will include: the collection, compilation, analysis, and dissemination of statistics; work on standard educational terminology and definitions which can serve as the foundation of a comprehensive system of educational information for use in the management and operation of local school systems; and continued research in statistical survey methods and in the development of more efficient sampling techniques.

To assist the development of educational resources in American schools and colleges concerning modern foreign languages, area studies and world affairs, grants and contracts are awarded for institutional research, courses of study, and training of individuals. Authority for these programs is provided under title VI of the National Defense Education Act (secs. 601 and 602), section 102(b)(6) of the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchange Act (Fulbright-Hays Act), and sections 101 and 102 of the International Education Act (Public Law 89-698).

Foreign currencies which are in excess of the normal requirements of the United States are used to support projects which will add to educational and scientific knowledge in the United States. The funds are used for the promotion of education in foreign languages and world affairs by assisting in the support of overseas activities of American institutions of higher education. By research and study of foreign educational developments, the projects provide information that will be of value to American education.

1. Training for school personnel and grants to school boards.—Desegregation of school facilities under the Civil Rights Act of 1964 frequently poses group leadership problems for teachers, school officials, and others affected by school desegregation. To help such people understand and deal with these problems, special training grants and contracts are awarded to school boards and to training institutions. Awards are made on the basis of relative need from proposals submitted to the Office of Education.

STUDENT LOAN INSURANCE FUND—Continued

Under the Higher Education Act of 1965 the Office of Education insures loans to college and vocational students in eligible institutions who do not have reasonable access to State or private nonprofit programs of student loan insurance.

The Higher Education Amendments of 1968 merged the National Vocational Student Loan Insurance Act into the higher education insured loan program; and, in addition to extending the Federal insurance program to June 30, 1971, authorizes the Office of Education to reinsure loans guaranteed by State and nonprofit private agencies at 80% of default by student borrowers.

Upon default by the student borrowers, the Office of Education will pay to the beneficiary the amount of the loss sustained by the insured on federally insured loans and 80% of the loss sustained on reinsured loans guaranteed by State and nonprofit private agencies.

<sup>1</sup> Only the federally insured loans represent unfunded contingent liabilities for 1968, since the guarantee authority was effective in 1969 (Higher Education Amendment of 1968).

The fund takes over loans on which it pays insurance claims and seeks to collect on them. Loans which are deemed uncollectable are written off as "loss on insured loans." Loans deemed collectable are as follows: 1968, $2 thousand; 1969, $294 thousand; 1970, $2,794 thousand.

Deposits to the fund are derived from insurance premiums earned from direct Federal insurance, which is not to exceed ¼ of 1% per annum of the unpaid principal amount (excluding interest added to principal), repayment of collectable loans, and interest payments on collectable loans. Deposits are estimated as follows: 1968, $461 thousand in premiums; 1969, $1,165 thousand in premiums and $5 thousand in interest income; 1970, $2,122 thousand in premiums, $17 thousand in interest income and $3 thousand in repayments of loans.

Estimated claims paid on loans purchased upon default of student borrowers are as follows: 1968, $13 thousand; 1969, $1,948 thousand; 1970, $16,388 thousand. These amounts will be funded by an unobligated balance of $3,750 thousand in 1968, deposits into the fund during 1968 through 1970 of $3,773 thousand, and a requested appropriation of $10,826 thousand for 1970.

The Higher Education Facilities Act authorizes loans for construction of academic facilities in higher education institutions. Such loans may be made for up to 75% of a project's total development cost and must be repaid within 50 years.

The Participation Sales Act of 1966 established a revolving fund for these loans and authorizes the sales of such loans to the private credit market, the proceeds of which are deposited into the fund to be used for new loans to colleges and universities. The Federal National Mortgage Association is authorized to serve as trustee for these sales.

In 1968, 240 projects totaling $147,629 thousand were approved. This level was funded by the sale of $85 million in participations and a $62,629 thousand carryover from 1967. In 1969, five new project approvals totaling $5,000 thousand are estimated to be funded under this fund and 194 new project approvals funded by the new interest subsidization program under Higher education. This program will displace the direct loan program under the Higher Education Facilities Loan Fund.

Appropriations for insufficiencies are used to fund the deficit resulting from the difference between the interest rate required to sell the participations and the interest rate paid by higher education institutions on facilities loans. The budget authority required for insufficiencies is computed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Maintenance payments to recipients are intended to defray costs of food, shelter, clothing, and other necessary items of daily living. In certain cases such payments may be made on his behalf to another person: for example, protective payments on behalf of aged recipients unable, because of mental conditions, to manage funds; payments for foster care provided certain children under the AFDC program; and payments for institutional services in intermediate care facilities provided to persons in need of personal care short of skilled nursing home care.

Grants to States for maintenance payments for programs of old-age assistance, aid to the blind, aid to the permanently and totally disabled, and aid to families with dependent children are made to States that have plans for these programs approved by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. As of July 31, 1968, 54 jurisdictions including all the States, the District of Columbia, Guam, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands were administering old-age assistance, aid to the blind, and aid to families with dependent children under approved plans; and 53 jurisdictions were administering aid to the permanently and totally disabled.

Since October 1, 1962, as an alternative to separate plans for each program, States could elect to receive grants under a combined single plan for the adult assistance programs, that is, old-age assistance, aid to the blind, aid to the permanently and totally disabled, and medical assistance for the aged. Nineteen States have elected the alternative of a combined single plan for the adult assistance programs.

The 1967 Amendments to the Social Security Act included provision for payments to intermediate care facilities, licensed under State law, for care provided recipients of old-age assistance, aid to the blind, and aid to the permanently and totally disabled whose physical or mental limitations require living accommodations and care available only through institutional facilities, and do not have illness, disease, etc., requiring the degree of care and treatment which a hospital or skilled nursing home is designed to provide. Federal participation is the same as for money payments or at States option under the medical assistance percentage which ranges from 50% to 83%. Another provision of the 1967 amendments was for emergency assistance to families with dependent children (including migrant families) in danger of destitution.

Effective January 1, 1966, States had the option of claiming Federal financial participation in maintenance payments under section 1118 of the Social Security Act if they have a medical assistance program under title XIX or under the provisions of titles I, IV, X, XIV, or XVI. Federal financial participation in emergency assistance is limited to 50% of expenditures.

Amount of request.—For 1970, total expenditures for maintenance payments from Federal, State, and local sources are estimated at $7,005 million; the Federal share of this total is 53%. The appropriation request of $3,719 million for 1970 is $294 million more than Federal requirements for 1969, including the proposed supplemental. The 1970 request is based on estimates received from the States in December 1968.

Provisions for determining the Federal share of maintenance payments.—Grants to States for maintenance payments are available to the States under the following titles of the Social Security Act:

Old-Age Assistance (title I).	Aid to Families With Dependent
Aid to the Blind (title X).	Children (title IV.)
Aid to the Permanently and Totally	Emergency Assistance (title IV).
Disabled (title XIV).	General Provisions (title II, secs. 1118
Aid to the Aged, Blind, or Disabled	and 1121).
(title XVI).

The Federal share of money payments to or on behalf of recipients may be determined by either applying the Federal medical assistance percentage (limited to States with a title XIX program) or application of the formulas included in the specific titles of the Social Security Act. The latter provide in the adult categories, a Federal share of  $\frac{2}{7}$  of the first \$37 of the average monthly payment per recipient and  $\frac{1}{2}$  of the first \$18 per recipient of aid to families with dependent children. They also provide a Federal share of the balance of the average monthly payment, up to a maximum of \$75 per recipient in the categories for adults and up to \$32 per recipient (\$100 per child in foster care) in aid to families with dependent children, which varies according to the per capita income of the States, and ranges from 50% to 65%. The Federal share of emergency assistance is 50%. The medical assistance percentage which a State with a title XIX program may apply to determine the Federal share of maintenance payments ranges from 50% to 83%.

Grants to States for maintenance payments.—1. Old-age assistance.—The average monthly number of maintenance payments recipients for 1970 is estimated to be 15,000 fewer than for 1969 while the intermediate care recipients will increase 23,100.

5. Emergency assistance.—The appropriation request is for $16.1 million for grants to States to provide emergency assistance for maintenance needs of recipients in crisis situations that must be met before the process of eligibility determination for and authorization of aid to families with dependent children can be completed. Examples of crisis situations include imminent eviction, loss of utility service turned off because of nonpayment, and exhaustion of food supplies.

Federal financial participation is available at the 50% rate in emergency assistance payments for periods not to exceed 30 days in any 12-month period. Assistance provided may be in the form of money payments to the individual to meet maintenance needs or vendor payments for food, clothing, rent, utilities, medical care, or other items.

In connection with its consideration of the regular Labor-HEW appropriation bill for the fiscal year 1969, Congress approved an appropriation of $3,051,900,000 for grants to States for old-age assistance, aid to families with dependent children, aid to the blind, and aid to the permanently and totally disabled under titles I, IV, X, XIV, and XVI of the Social Security Act, as amended.

GRANTS TO STATES FOR MAINTENANCE PAYMENTS—Continued

Estimates submitted by the States in December 1968 indicate that the appropriation for 1969 will fall short of meeting the Federal share of State expenditures by an estimated $373,524,000.

WORK INCENTIVES [ACTIVITIES]

For carrying out a work incentive program, as authorized by part C of title IV of the Social Security Act, and for related child-care services, as authorized by part A of title IV of the Act, including transfer to the Secretary of Labor, as authorized by section 431 of the Act, [$117,500,000] $164,640,000. (Department of Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriation Act, 1969.)

Note.—Excludes $481 thousand for activities transferred in the estimates to "Office of Manpower Administrator, Salaries and expenses." The amount obligated in 1969 is shown in the schedule as a comparative transfer.

The 1967 amendments to the Social Security Act authorize a program designed to encourage and promote the employment, work experience, and training of public assistance recipients, primarily those receiving support from the Aid to Families with Dependent Children Program.

1. Training and incentives.—(a) On-the-job training.—This activity provides costs of on-the-job training both coupled and full-cost as well as followup (regular, intensive, and employer).

An estimated 20% of the trainees will participate in regular on-the-job training; 5% of the trainees will participate in full-cost on-the-job training and 70% of the trainees will participate in the followup on-the-job training.

Included in this activity are program service costs related to on-the-job training programs.

(b) Institutional and work experience training.—This activity provides for the costs of orientation of participants in priority 1 and 2 activities of the Work Incentives program. Through the orientation process, each person will be given training in basic employment skills along with vocational counseling and testing. During this orientation period, an employability plan is developed for each person which will most likely lead that individual to permanent employment. Upon completion of the orientation period, some persons will go directly into employment, with the remainder going into some phase of training. This activity also provides for the classroom and/or work experience training which will be needed by the majority of persons served in this program. In addition to the categories of orientation, work sampling and internship, basic education and general development, institutional and vocational training, work experience and relocation, in 1970, three new categories will be introduced to the program. They are as follows:

Vestibule training—utilizing "company schools";

Para-professional—classroom vocational training aimed toward entry in public service employment; and

Employment preparation—to be used for participants who have completed training but lack motivational and social behavior necessary to "sell" themselves to employer.

(c) Work projects.—The Social Security Amendments of 1967 authorize the Secretary of Labor to enter into agreements with public agencies and private nonprofit agencies organized for a public purpose (including councils of Indian tribes living on a reservation) for special work projects to employ those persons for whom jobs in the regular economy cannot be found at the time and for whom training may not be appropriate. Funds were appropriated for these agreements for 1969 only for the employers' (public agencies and councils of Indian tribes only) share of the first full-year (1969) costs of wage payments under these projects.

(d) Program direction and evaluation.—This activity provides for the program development, evaluation, and administration of the Work Incentives (WIN) program by the Department of Labor.

Work and training workload data for WIN are as follows:

Number of States participating (includes District of Columbia, Guam, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands).....	38	54
New enrollees.....	130,000	175,000
Man-years.....	69,400	125,500
End-of-year training slots.....	105,300	150,000

2. Child care.—The amendments to the Social Security Act require that child care be provided to all WIN participants who need such service. The child care may be provided in the child's own home or through day care in a family day care center or group day care center. Child care continues until such time as the parent is able to make other satisfactory arrangements, but the parent may be required to pay a portion of the costs in accordance with ability to pay.

The requested funds will provide services for an average of 30,200 preschool children and 115,800 school-age children. Day care services are provided in accordance with the standards prescribed by the Federal Interagency Day Care Requirements.

Grants for medical assistance under title XIX of the Social Security Act (Medicaid), and for medical assistance provided under other titles of the act are made to States having plans approved by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. After January 1, 1970, Federal financial participation in payments to medical vendors will be available only under Medicaid. Federal Medicaid payments vary from 50%–83% according to the per capita income of the State. Eligible recipients must include all persons receiving or eligible to receive money payments under the Social Security Act, and States may elect to cover certain medically needy persons eligible for help only with their medical bills. Medicaid complements the Federal Medicare program by paying the deductible and coinsurance for the needy aged, paying their premiums for Medicare's supplementary medical insurance program, and by paying for services not covered by Medicare, e.g., long term nursing home care.

The appropriation request for 1970 is $3,057 million, an increase of $661 million over the amount for 1969 including the proposed supplemental for that year. This request reflects estimates made by the States in December 1968 of their anticipated Medicaid payments in 1970. The Federal share is expected to amount to about 53% of the total Federal, State, and local payments in 1970 compared with 52% in 1969 and 50% in 1968. More favorable matching provisions under title XIX compared to the provisions of the money payment titles and increasing payments by States with relatively higher medical assistance percentages are responsible for the increasing Federal share.

Costs of administration.—The costs of skilled professional medical personnel engaged in the administration of the program and their supporting staff and the costs of training skilled professional medical personnel are subject to the 75% rate of Federal financial participation, as are costs of training programs for nursing home operators, to enable them to qualify as operators of licensed homes under the States licensing laws, as required under the 1967 amendments. All other costs are subject to 50% Federal participation.

Expenditures for State and local administration during 1970 are expected to total $250 million, an increase of $62 million over the estimate for 1969. The Federal share of this amount is $130 million, slightly more than one-half:

ADMINISTRATIVE COSTS

Federal.....	76,918	98,100	130,000
State.....	70,813	89,900	120,000

Reasons for increased Medicaid costs.—The major factors accounting for the increase in Medicaid payments in 1970 are increased numbers of recipients of money payments (nearly 900,000 more in 1970 than in 1969); increased utilization of services available under the program; and the continued rise in medical prices which has the twofold effect of increasing the amounts paid for the same volume of service and bringing into the program persons who might otherwise have managed without help.

The number of individuals served by the Medicaid program will increase by 700,000 in 1970, due largely to the anticipated increase in the number of persons eligible for public assistance (in millions):

Mothers and children.....	2.0	2.2	2.4
Others.....	.3	.3	.3
Total, noncash recipients.....	3.3	3.6	3.9

Also, as more States come into the program, a larger number of persons become eligible for medical assistance. As of July 1, 1968, 42 States or jurisdictions were operating under Medicaid. Of the remaining 12 States seven either do not have the necessary legislation or are not expected to begin operation during 1969. All States and jurisdictions are expected to be in the program in 1970.

Distribution of benefits.—Although the aged are about 32% of the recipients of medical assistance, payments made on their behalf constitute about 46% of all Medicaid payments. On the other hand, while mothers and children related to the AFDC category constitute 55% of all recipients of medical assistance, benefit payments made for them are only about 34% of all Medicaid payments. This disparity is accounted for by the fact that the medical costs of the aged, especially in nursing homes, are generally much higher than those of mothers and children who are more often in need of less expensive outpatient care and do not stay in the hospital as long as the aged. Compared to 1965, however, when medical vendor payments for the aged accounted for about 70% of all medical assistance payments and AFDC related payments were only about 11% of the total, Medicaid has brought about a significant redistribution of benefit payments.

In 1970 cash assistance recipients will be about 62% of the recipients under Medicaid. Medical payments on behalf of this group will amount to about 48% of all medical vendor payments. The relatively higher medical bills of those not receiving maintenance payments is largely due to higher than average medical costs for the aged in nursing homes, who are often not eligible for maintenance payments. Also included among nonmoney payment recipients are the medically needy whose medical bills absorb enough of their income to make them eligible for Medicaid. Their bills also tend to be larger than average.

The Federal share of medical assistance payments (including administrative costs) to the eight major States in the program account for about 62% of the total for all States in 1970. Since these States include only about a third of the poor in the Nation, there appears to be considerable potential for further Medicaid expansion in the remaining States. Federal payments are distributed as follows (in millions):

In connection with its consideration of the regular Labor-Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriation Bill for 1969, Congress approved an appropriation of $2,118,300 thousand for Grants to States for medical assistance under titles I, X, XIV, XVI, and part A of title IV of the Social Security Act, as amended.

In December 1968, State public assistance agencies forecast the Federal share of medical assistance programs in 1969 as $2,396,322 thousand or $278,022 thousand over the amount appropriated. The rate of increase in Federal funds provided during the first half of 1969 supports the forecast by the States.

Grants are made to States operating public assistance programs approved by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare under titles I, IV, X, XIV, and XVI of the Social Security Act. They provide social services prescribed or specified by the Secretary and for the necessary costs of proper and efficient administration. The purpose of the grants is to enable each State, as far as practicable under the conditions existing in the State, to furnish rehabilitative and other services to recipients and potential recipients to help them maintain and strengthen family life and to attain or retain capability for maximum self-support, self-care, and personal independence. Grants are also available for training State and local personnel and for support of graduate and undergraduate programs of social work training. Experimental, pilot, and demonstration projects are also supported to test new methods of administration and the delivery of services.

For 1970 the appropriation request for social services, administration, training, and demonstration projects is $730.7 million; this amount is $135.9 million more than the appropriation for 1969. Total expenditures from Federal, State, and local funds are estimated at $1,174.7 million in 1970 compared to $956.5 million in 1969. The 1970 request is based on State estimates received in December 1968.

The Federal share is 75% for: (1) the cost of providing preventive and rehabilitative services that are specified by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare; and (2) the cost of staff training, including educational leave and agency training sessions.

Under the 1967 legislation, States were encouraged to provide certain services that they are not required to furnish until 1970. To this end, the rate of Federal financial participation in the costs of such services is 85% until 1970 when it drops to 75%.

The Federal share of costs, other than those specified above, is 50%.

Section 1115 of the Social Security Act provides for meeting the non-Federal share of costs of demonstration projects that could be expected to contribute significantly to existing knowledge about the kinds and scope of services or methods of work which enhance the capacity of public assistance and medical assistance agencies to assist needy persons in solving problems that threaten the stability of family life and prevent self-support or self-care.

1. Social services.—The 1962 amendments to the Social Security Act authorized 75% Federal financial participation in State and local costs of providing social services to applicants for and recipients of public assistance, under an approved plan for the provision of such services. Total expenditure for State and local costs of social services is expected to increase by $155.2 million, about 23% from 1969. The Federal share will be $106.1 million or about 68% of the total increase.

Most of the additional expenditures for social services will be made in the program of aid to families with dependent children as States move to carry out the provisions of the 1967 amendments requiring them to develop programs: (1) for review of the employment potential of each adult and older child not attending school; (2) for reducing the incidence of illegitimacy and strengthening family life; (3) for furnishing homemaker and home management services either directly or through purchase from other community agencies; and (4) for other services designed to promote independence and strengthen family life.

The types of services to adults requiring the greatest expenditures are homemaker services, and services related to improving housing for recipients. States are expected to make only modest expansions in service programs for adults during 1970.

Total expenditures and the Federal share of expenditures for social services, including costs of determining eligibility for financial assistance, are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Federal share.....	346,654	445,500	551,620

2. State and local administration (excluding medical assistance).—Included in this activity are caseload-related costs of State and local administrative personnel, personnel engaged in making payments to recipients, and staff engaged in providing services to employees of the department, as well as costs of travel not directly related to social services, automatic data processing, and other similar functions. Costs of reimbursing law enforcement officials for locating and obtaining support payments from absent fathers, as authorized by the 1967 social security amendments, are also included.

Costs of State and local administration are expected to increase by $58.3 million from 1969 to 1970. Total administrative costs and the Federal share for 1968-70 are estimated as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	1968 actual	1969 estimate	1970 estimate
Federal share.....	92,454	114,400	143,700

3. Training.—Expenditures for training staff of State and local agencies administering public assistance programs, and of training persons preparing for employment in these agencies may be shared by the Federal Government at the 75% rate. In 1970, expenditures for training State and local staff are expected to total $37.9 million. The largest share of this expenditure is for inservice training of the staff of public welfare agencies. The 1967 amendments also add provisions for training subprofessional personnel.

The 1970 estimate also includes $3 million for grants to colleges, universities, and accredited graduate schools of social work to meet part of the costs of developing, expanding, or improving their social work training resources.

Total expenditures and the Federal share of expenditures for training are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

	1968 actual	1969 estimate	1970 estimate
Total.....	28,439	40,200	40,900
Federal share.....	21,329	30,900	31,400

4. Demonstration projects.—Demonstration project authority is one of the most potentially useful provisions in the Social Security Act. It provides for the waiver of certain legal requirements, and for additional financing in the interest of encouraging program innovation in the States. The 1967 amendments raised the authorization from $2 to $4 million a year to help States finance such projects. The authorized amount was provided in 1969 and is proposed for 1970.

Projects operated under the authority include those designed to provide direct social services in new areas; to strengthen administration and stimulate program development; to demonstrate new methods of administration, including restructuring of agencies; to promote and strengthen staff recruitment and development; to demonstrate new approaches to encourage education and preparation for self-support; to show the effect of broadening program coverage and raising assistance payments; and to improve the administration of medical assistance.

ASSISTANCE FOR REPATRIATED UNITED STATES NATIONALS

For necessary expenses of carrying out section 1113 of the Social Security Act, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1313), and of carrying out the provisions of the Act of July 5, 1960 (24 U.S.C. ch. 9), and for care and treatment in accordance with the Acts of March 2, 1929, and October 29, 1941, as amended (24 U.S.C. 191a, 196a), [$545,000] $700,000, of which $50,000 shall be apportioned for use pursuant to section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (31 U.S.C. 665), only to the extent necessary to provide for requirements not anticipated in the budget estimates. (Department of Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriation Act, 1969.)

Public Law 86-571, approved July 5, 1960, provides for hospitalization and services to repatriated mentally ill U.S. nationals until arrangements can be made for assumption of responsibility by States of residence or the repatriate's family. The budget estimate assumes that a total of 116 mentally ill repatriates will require hospitalization and/or other financial assistance in 1970; this compares with 110 who required such care in 1968 and 114 estimated for 1969.

Section 1113 of the Social Security Act authorizes temporary assistance to U.S. citizens and their dependents who return to this country because of destitution, illness, or international crises and who are without available resources. It is estimated that in 1969 and 1970 temporary assistance will be provided a total of about 200 cases who have been repatriated from countries other than Cuba because of destitution and sickness as compared to 162 in 1968. It is also expected that the monthly flights of repatriates from Cuba entering the United States via Brownsville, Tex., which began in February 1968, will continue in 1969 and 1970.

The request on which the 1969 appropriation was based provided only $9 thousand for repatriates from Cuba. Although it was known a large number of persons with American citizenship remained in Cuba to be repatriated, negotiations since December 1965 between Cuba and the Swiss Embassy, representing the United States, for return of these Americans had been unsuccessful, so that there was no basis for expecting that they would be permitted soon to return to this country. In December 1967, however, the Cuban Government, on short notice, permitted return of a number of the Americans and agreed that one plane per month, beginning February 1968, could repatriate U.S. citizens and their dependents, stipulating that they must enter the United States via Brownsville, Tex. These flights have continued monthly during 1969 and it is estimated that $100 thousand will be required in supplemental funds for providing assistance to U.S. citizens repatriated from Cuba who are needy.

1. Vocational rehabilitation services.—(a) Basic support.—Federal matching grants are made to assist the States in rehabilitating handicapped individuals so that they may prepare for and engage in remunerative employment to the extent of their capabilities. The rehabilitation services provided by the States include medical restoration, training, counseling and placement services, and rehabilitation services for an extended period prior to the determination of an individual's vocational rehabilitation potential. As a result of the 1968 amendments to the Vocational Rehabilitation Act, the Federal matching rate will be 80% of the total program expenditures commencing in 1970. The new amendments also provide that funds granted under section 2 may be used for construction and acquisition of new facilities, authorizes the Secretary to permit the State agency to share funding and administrative responsibility with another agency of the State in order to carry out a joint project to provide services to handicapped individuals and extends services to the families of handicapped individuals when such services will contribute to the rehabilitation of such individuals.

(b) Innovation.—Federal grants are made to State agencies for initiating projects that demonstrate new methods, or techniques for providing vocational rehabilitation services for handicapped individuals, or which are specially designed for development of provisions for new or expanded vocational rehabilitation services for groups having catastrophic or particularly severe disabilities. The matching rate of 90% for the first 3 years of a project is designed to encourage development of new methods and techniques. In 1970 the program will provide support for about 107 projects.

(c) Expansion of services.—Federal grants are made to State agencies, local governmental units, and to private, nonprofit organizations for projects designed to expand the scope of services to the disabled with particular interest on the disadvantaged. A total of 155 expansion grants, three contracts with industry, seven grants for new career opportunities for vocational rehabilitation and four grants for new career opportunities for the handicapped will be supported in 1970.

(d) Vocational evaluation and work adjustment.—Federal grants are made to State agencies for providing 90% of the cost of evaluation and work adjustment services. Such services include preliminary diagnostic studies, comprehensive evaluation, appraisal of individual's pattern of work behavior and other goods and services needed to determine if the individual can benefit from vocational rehabilitation services or other services available to disadvantaged individuals. It is estimated that 10,000 persons will receive services in 1970.

(e) Services for migratory agricultural workers.—Federal grants are made to State and local government agencies to pay 90% of the cost of projects to provide vocational rehabilitation services to the handicapped migratory workers and members of their families whether or not handicapped. A total of 45 projects will be supported in 1970.

2. Rehabilitation facilities.—(a) Project development and construction.—Project grants are made to assist in meeting the cost of construction of public or other nonprofit rehabilitation facilities. The 1970 program will support 50 project development grants and 10 construction projects.

(b) Initial staffing.—Project grants are made for the initial staffing of any public or other nonprofit rehabilitation facility for a period not to exceed 4 years and 3 months. The 1970 program will support 23 projects.

(c) Facility improvement.—Grants are made to States and public and other nonprofit organizations and agencies to pay 90% of the cost of providing training services to physically handicapped individuals, and improvement grants to pay part of the cost of projects to analyze, improve, and increase their professional services to the handicapped. The 1970 program will support 36 training services grants and 160 facility improvement grants.

1. Research.—Grants are awarded to organizations, institutions, and individuals to provide new knowledge and data relative to mental retardation. In 1968, one new and two continuation grants were awarded; in 1969, two continuations will be awarded; and in 1970, approximately three new grants will be awarded to support appropriate research activities to explore the health and care needs of the mentally retarded.

2. Hospital improvement.—Grants are awarded to institutions for the mentally retarded to improve the quality of care provided for the mentally retarded through projects for care improvement and inservice training. In 1968, 193 grants were awarded serving 32,123 retardates and training 16,116 individuals. In 1969, an estimated 169 grants will be awarded serving 27,534 retardates and training 14,378 individuals. In 1970, an estimated 176 grants will be awarded serving 27,887 retardates and training 15,326 individuals. For all 3 years, the program has remained at about the same funding level.

3. Rehabilitation services projects.—Grants are awarded to public, nonprofit organizations, and to individuals, for service, training and research activities. In 1970, the first year for this program, $4,500 thousand will support approximately 33 projects for services to 5,000 retardates, approximately 33 projects for training of 800 professional and nonprofessional personnel needed in the field of mental retardation, and approximately 80 projects for training of 850 students in the Student Work Experience and Training (SWEAT) program.

4. Community service facilities.—(a) Construction.—Grants are awarded to public and other nonprofit organizations to support construction of community service facilities to house services for the mentally retarded. In 1968, $15,997,618 supported 73 projects which can provide services to 20,000 retardates. In 1969, $18,013,085 will support approximately 80 projects which can provide services to 22,000 retardates. In 1970, estimated obligations in the amount of $13,531 thousand will support approximately 60 projects which can provide services to 16,500 retardates.

(b) Initial staffing.—Grants are awarded to assist in initial staffing of new community mental retardation facilities and new programs in existing facilities which will provide specialized services to mental retardates not now being served. In 1969, the first year for this program, $8,358 thousand will support approximately 40 new projects with services to 5,200 retardates. In 1970, $12 million requested will continue to support the 40 projects initiated in 1969 and approximately 24 new projects providing services to 8,320 retardates.

This grant program has as its major goal the provision of health services to mothers and children in areas suffering from severe economic distress. Through assistance to States, localities, and nonprofit groups it directs primary attention to: (1) reducing infant mortality and otherwise promoting the health of mothers and children; and (2) locating, diagnosing, and treating children who are suffering from crippling or handicapping illnesses.

Infant mortality.—Significant contributions to recent reductions in the Nation's infant mortality rate have been made through the maternal and child health program and comprehensive maternity and infant care projects. For the Nation as a whole, infant mortality decreased by only 5% during the decade 1956-65. In the 2-year period 1965-67, the decrease was 10%, or twice that of the entire previous decade. Especially significant reductions are occurring in large cities in which maternity and infant care projects are located.

	24.8	24.7	23.7	22.1

Family planning.—Analysis has shown that one of the most effective measures for reducing infant mortality is through the provision of family planning services which enable women to decide the number and spacing of children they wish to have. Thus, the Child Health Act of 1967 specified that not less than 6% of the amounts appropriated for child health shall be available for family planning. In 1970, increased emphasis will be placed on voluntary family planning services primarily through maternity and infant care projects and through special grants to public or nonprofit private agencies:

Number of women receiving family planning services.....	420,000	850,000	1,325,000
Obligations (millions).....	$6.5	$18.5	$31.5

Mental retardation.—Many activities under this appropriation help generally to reduce the incidence of mental retardation. It is estimated that about $32 million will be used in 1970 to provide and improve services to children suffering from this handicap, including services in special mental retardation clinics.

Number of children served in clinics...	45,000	46,500	46,500
Obligations (millions).....	$27.5	$29.8	$32.0

1. Maternal and child health services.—Formula grants are made to States for the extension and improvement of health services for mothers and children. One-half of the amount appropriated must be matched by the States and the remainder is distributed in proportion to financial need of the States, except that not more than 12½% of the appropriation may be used for special project grants.

Number of children attending well-baby clinics.....	1,632,000	1,750,000	1,750,000

2. Crippled children's services.—Grants are made to States on a formula basis. Matching requirements are the same as for maternal and child health services.

Number of children: Receiving physicians' services.....	461,000	485,000	500,000
Inpatient hospital care.....	78,000	80,000	90,000

The combined Federal-State effort in the two previous health care programs resulted in the following expenditures (in millions):

Federal.....	94.3	106.1	107.1
Total.....	259.3	276.1	277.1

3. Maternity and infant care.—Matching grants are made to State or local health agencies, or to other public or nonprofit private organizations for maternity and infant care projects to help reduce infant and maternal mortality and the incidence of mental retardation and other handicapping conditions associated with childbearing. The existing projects are also serving a demonstrated need to improve the quality and quantity of maternity services to women in low-income areas. It is anticipated that in 1970, a portion of the costs of this program will be funded through Medicaid reimbursements, thereby making it possible to divert approximately $750 thousand to establish new health centers in Model Cities.

Admissions.....	162,000	187,000	190,000
Obligations for centers (millions).....	$29.6	$36.0	$39.0

4. Health of school and preschool children.—Matching grants are made to State or local agencies, medical schools, and teaching hospitals for comprehensive health care projects for children and youth, particularly in areas where low-income families are concentrated.

Number of centers.....	58	58	59
Children served.....	220,000	285,000	400,000

It is anticipated that in 1970, a portion of the costs of this program will be funded through Medicaid reimbursements, thereby making it possible to divert approximately $750 thousand to establish new projects in Model Cities.

5. Training.—Grants are made to public or nonprofit institutions of higher learning including university-affiliated mental retardation centers for training personnel for health care and related services for mothers and children.

6. Research.—The main focus of this program is to improve delivery of health services to needy mothers and children through research grants, contracts, or jointly financed cooperative arrangements. In 1970, approximately 80 projects will be funded, including those emphasizing improved delivery of family planning services.

CHILD WELFARE

To carry out part B of title IV of the Social Security Act, as amended, and for expenses of a White House conference on children and youth, $57,000,000.

Note.—Includes $56.6 million transferred in the estimates from "Maternal and Child Health." The amounts obligated in 1968 and 1969 are shown in the schedule as comparative transfers.

1. Child welfare services.—Grants are made to States to establish, extend and strengthen services for the protection and care of homeless, dependent, and neglected children. Federal funds are matched by State funds at a rate varying from 33½ to 66½ percent. Beginning in 1969 increased emphasis is being given to more effective involvement of parents in child welfare programs and to training and employment of subprofessional staff, particularly those in low-income groups, and the use of volunteers. States are required under the Social Security Act to make a satisfactory showing that they are extending child welfare services with a view toward making them available by July 1, 1975, in all political subdivisions of the State for all children in need of them.

2. Training.—Grants are made to public or other nonprofit institutions of higher learning to train personnel for work in the field of child welfare.

3. Research and demonstration.—Grants, contracts or other jointly financed cooperative arrangements are made for the conduct of research and demonstration projects in child welfare which are of regional or national significance, demonstrate new methods or facilities or demonstrate utilization of research and research findings.

4. White House conference on children and youth.—The seventh decennial White House conference on children and youth is planned for 1970 to review present-day conditions of child life. As a joint undertaking of the Federal, State, and local governments and the private sector, it will focus primarily on assessing and evaluating past and future services and opportunities for children and youth and on developing proposals to meet identified deficiencies and emergent needs of the Nation's young people.

1. Grants to States for community planning and services.—Grant funds are allotted to State agencies according to formula. These allotments are available to pay up to 75% of the first year costs of projects, up to 60% of the second year costs, and up to 50% of the third year costs. Projects are limited to 3 years of Federal support. States may use up to 10% of their allotment or $25 thousand, whichever is larger, to pay up to one-half of the administrative costs of the State agency.

2. Foster grandparents.—Grants are made to public and nonprofit private agencies, organizations, and institutions to recruit low-income men and women over 60 years of age to provide, on a part-time basis, supportive “person-to-person” services to children with exceptional needs in various institutional and community settings. This program, which supports on an annual basis a level of 4,000 foster grandparents, was funded previously by the Office of Economic Opportunity with the Office of Aging in the Social and Rehabilitation Service having responsibility for grants management.

3. Research and demonstration.—Grants and contracts for research, development, and demonstration are made with public, nonprofit and private agencies, organizations, institutions, and individuals after consultation with the appropriate State agency. There are no matching requirements. However, recipients of a grant are required to contribute toward the cost of the project.

Grants and contracts are made for the following purposes: to develop new knowledge about social, health, and economic factors affecting the aged; to determine what kinds of services, resources, and living arrangements are needed to foster independent, wholesome, and meaningful living; and to develop or demonstrate new approaches, techniques, and methods which can provide older people with increased opportunities for community participation, social contacts, and productive, satisfying retirement years.

4. Training.—Grants are made to, and contracts are made with, public and nonprofit private agencies, organizations, and institutions after consultation with the appropriate State agency. There are no matching requirements. However, recipients are ordinarily required to contribute money, facilities, or services toward the cost of the project. Grants and contracts are made for training of personnel in a wide variety of specialized services to the aging.

5. White House Conference on Aging.—Public Law 90-526 authorizes the President to call a White House conference during calendar year 1971 to develop recommendations for further research and action in the field of aging. Initial costs associated with preconference planning are proposed for 1970.

1. Planning, prevention, and rehabilitation.—Under title I of Public Law 90-445, funds may be provided to States and localities for the preparation of plans for coordinated and comprehensive networks of juvenile delinquency prevention and rehabilitation programs. In 1969, 42 such programs will be initiated. The 1970 estimate includes funds for continuation of about 35 projects and approximately 12 new starts.

Funds may also be provided for grants to promote the full use of community rehabilitation services for the diagnosis, treatment, and rehabilitation of delinquent youth and youth in danger of becoming delinquent. In 1969, about six projects will be supported. The 1970 estimate includes funds for continuation of the six projects and approximately 30 new starts. Included under rehabilitation are funds for the construction of community based facilities. No funds were provided for this activity in 1969. The 1970 estimate will support about 14 new projects.

Under title I, funds may also be provided for grants to meet the costs of projects designed to promote the use of community-based services for the prevention of delinquency. The 1969 estimate for this purpose will support about six projects. The 1970 estimate will allow for the continuation of the six projects and approximately 46 new starts.

2. Training.—Funds are for the purpose of training personnel employed in or preparing for employment in fields related to the diagnosis, treatment, or rehabilitation of youths who are delinquent or in danger of becoming delinquent. This training will be accomplished through curriculum development, short-term institutes, and traineeship grants and projects. The funds provided in 1969 will allow for the training of about 3,500 individuals. The 1970 estimate will permit approximately 4,000 individuals to be trained.

3. Model programs and technical assistance.—The model programs activity provides for the development of improved techniques and practices which hold promise of making a substantial contribution to preventing delinquency and the treatment of youth who are delinquent or in danger of becoming delinquent. No funds were provided for this activity in 1969. The 1970 estimate will support about 17 projects.

Under the technical assistance provisions of the act, grants and contracts will be awarded for the provision of this service directly to public or nonprofit agencies and organizations, and to State agencies willing to provide technical assistance to local public and private nonprofit agencies. In 1969, the funds provided will support about 15 projects. The 1970 estimate includes funds for continuation of 11 projects and approximately 7 new projects.

Funds will also be available for the support of the committees, cost of consultant services and supporting travel, and other related costs as authorized under title IV of the act.

The Social Security Act authorizes grants to States, grants to public and nonprofit organizations and contracts (including contracts with private organizations and agencies) or jointly financed cooperative arrangements for the conduct of research or demonstration projects relating to programs carried on or existing under the Social Security Act and related programs. The program is administered by the Social and Rehabilitation Service in cooperation with the Social Security Administration.

Funds appropriated are used to support cooperative research or demonstration projects in areas such as: (1) the prevention and reduction of dependency; (2) effecting coordination of planning between private and public welfare agencies; and (3) improving the administration and effectiveness of programs carried on or existing under the Social Security Act and related programs.

The $6,500 thousand requested for 1970 will provide $460 thousand to support approximately 10 new grant projects, $1,290 thousand for the continuation in 1970 of 16 grant projects initiated in prior years and $4,750 thousand for contracts under the directed research and demonstration program. $3,000 thousand will be used for income maintenance experiments.

The Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, and the International Health Research Act of 1960 authorize the conduct of research and related activities abroad. Research, demonstration, and research training programs are supported primarily with foreign currencies accruing to the United States through the sale of surplus agricultural commodities and through other sources. The estimate for 1970 proposes an appropriation of $5 million for the purchase of foreign currencies in 10 excess currency countries.

Rehabilitation.—Research and demonstration programs are directed to the solution of problems which hold promise of contributing knowledge to the advancement of rehabilitation both in the United States and in other countries. Research training and fellowships are provided and exchanges of rehabilitation experts are arranged between the United States and cooperating foreign countries to increase the rehabilitation research resources both here and abroad.

Maternal and child health.—Studies, research, research planning, and research training including the interchange of experts and research fellowships in maternal and child health and handicapping conditions are conducted in special applied health fields to gain knowledge of value to the United States, to the country involved, and internationally.

Social welfare.—Studies of urban social welfare and delivery of social services are conducted in countries selected because of country experiences and research facilities in programs such as urban social services, community development, methods to strengthen family life, improve child care, control and prevent juvenile delinquency, and services for the aging. Cooperative projects including seminars and expert consultation contribute new knowledge valuable to social welfare programs in the United States, the country concerned, and internationally.

Aging.—The number of older persons in the population of western countries has been increasing steadily since the Industrial Revolution. This trend is now being marked in other countries. Based on methodology developed in a study in three industrial societies, six projects in India, Israel, Poland and Yugoslavia are obtaining basic knowledge to test assumptions which have serious implications for social policy and for programs to meet the diverse needs of this age group. Continuing collaboration among investigators from different disciplines engaged in this gerontological research maximizes the benefit of findings and increases the possibility of drawing general conclusions of cross-national applicability.

EXPENSES—Continued

This appropriation finances the support activities for the various grant and contract programs associated with the provision of constructive and rehabilitation services to needy, disabled, and other disadvantaged persons. Included in these support activities are technical assistance and consultative services provided to State and local governments, voluntary organizations, and other grantees; monitoring and review activities designed to assure the effective and prudent use of Federal funds by grantees; policy and program development activities; the conduct of research by intramural staffs; the preparation of publications and other informational material of interest to the public and to professional groups concerned with Social and Rehabilitation Service programs; grants management activities; collecting, processing, and disseminating statistical data.

1. Assistance payments.—This activity provides the Federal administration of the public welfare assistance program involving cash payments to welfare recipients and the reimbursement to State and local agencies for the cost of eligibility determination and general administration. Also included are technical services, leadership, and consultation to State and local agencies, establishment of Federal standards, and administrative, legal, or quality control reviews of expenditures. The objective of the program is to assure that eligibles are provided funds to meet the essentials of life.

2. Work incentives.—This activity develops comprehensive work and training programs and related child care arrangements for appropriate members of families with dependent children, who are referred to manpower agencies for work and training, to foster self-sufficiency. This includes referral through followup after placement in the labor market, work plans, policy standards, procedures development, and technical assistance to State and local agencies.

3. Medical assistance.—Administers program of medical assistance to the needy, particularly the medical assistance program authorized by title XIX of the Social Security Act. These programs provide comprehensive medical care including nursing homes and intermediate care facilities to the needy, through State medical assistance programs. Also included is evaluation of the programs, assistance in recruiting and training State staff, and the development of policies and guides related to the comprehensiveness of State medical assistance programs.

4. Rehabilitation.—This activity covers responsibilities for programs offering services to individuals with a wide range of disabilities. Included are vocational evaluation and work adjustment, innovation or expansion, new career opportunity, and development of services grants.

Representative of the projects supported are the construction of rehabilitation facilities and workshops, grants to States for vocational rehabilitation, and rehabilitation of migratory agricultural workers. Through trust fund financing, and in cooperation with the Social Security Administration, rehabilitation of disability insurance beneficiaries is also accomplished. In addition, program development activities are conducted for services provided recipients of aid to the blind and permanently and totally disabled as authorized by titles X, XIV, and XVI of the Social Security Act.

5. Mental retardation.—Develops and coordinates programs to support health and rehabilitation services for the mentally retarded. Consultative services are provided to State, local, and voluntary health agencies, educational and other institutions, that are initiating, improving, or expanding retardation services and activities. Provides grants to improve or provide care, to train personnel in State residential institutions, to support construction and initial staffing of community service facilities and for planning and construction of university affiliated facilities for the mentally retarded.

6. Family and child health and welfare.—This activity supports investigations into, and reports on, the health and welfare of children. Program development and administration of the maternal and health services, crippled children services, child health research and demonstrations, special projects for maternity and infant care, and health care of school and preschool children, as well as training of personnel for health care of mothers and children are included. Administration and policy development associated with child welfare services; services to families and children who are receiving AFDC payments, and child welfare research and training efforts are also included.

7. Aging services.—Provides development and coordination of programs which meet the needs of older persons. These include grants to States for community services and planning, research and demonstrations, training of specialized personnel, stimulation of interagency programs and coordination of services to older persons, maintenance of the clearinghouse for information concerning the aging, and administration of the Foster Grandparent Program. All efforts are directed toward improving, restoring, or retaining the older person's capacity for personal and social functioning. In addition, program development activities are conducted for services to the aged as authorized by titles I and XVI of the Social Security Act.

8. Juvenile delinquency.—Activities are directed toward an expanded effort to assist State and local communities to develop effective approaches to the prevention and control of juvenile delinquency. Training assistance is provided for new, or to upgrade manpower resources. Support for research and demonstrations and for technical assistance to States and communities is provided to help develop comprehensive programs directed at the prevention and control of juvenile delinquency.

9. Research and demonstrations.—This activity provides support for many program activities. Representative of these efforts are the intramural research program, the co-operative research and demonstration projects related to social security programs, research for rehabilitation of the disabled, experimental or demonstration projects in public assistance and medical assistance, the social work manpower training program, and the foreign currency research and training program.

10. Statistical services.—This activity provides design, direction, and execution of the statistical programs of the Social and Rehabilitation Service including collecting, processing, analyzing, and disseminating statistical data on all programs of the Service.

11. Executive direction and program services.—This activity covers overall program leadership, coordination and direction, analysis of legislative proposals, preparation and dissemination of publications and public information, general administrative and management services, program planning and evaluation, and other specialized services best carried out on a centralized coordinated basis for all programs of the Service.

12. Regional operations.—Provides the focal point for identifying and responding to the needs of State and local governmental agencies, and other public and private organizations concerned with the provision of social and rehabilitative services. Assures the attainment of Social and Rehabilitation Service national goals through decentralized local technical services in all programs of the agency including State plan approval and multiprogram activities.

In 1961 the President established a program to assist Cuban refugees in the United States. During 1961 and 1962, the program was conducted under the authority of the Mutual Security Act of 1954 and the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961. On June 28, 1962, the Migration and Refugee Assistance Act of 1962 was enacted which provides for assistance to refugees in the United States.

Refugees were arriving in Miami at the rate of about 1,700 a week when the missile crisis occurred in October 1962 after which the number of arrivals decreased to about 100 a week. On September 28, 1965, Castro publicly announced that any person who wished to leave Cuba could do so and on October 3, 1965, President Johnson announced that the United States would permit the orderly influx of refugees allowed to leave Cuba. In December 1965, the airlift of the new influx of refugees started and refugees are now arriving in Miami at the rate of about 900 a week. Between 1961 and the end of June 1968, 290,353 refugees had registered at the Cuban Refugee Center in Miami of which 189,156 had been resettled to other locations in the United States. The program provides the following services for Cuban refugees in the United States:

1. Welfare assistance and services.—State and private welfare agencies provide to needy refugees on a reimbursable basis, financial assistance, hospitalization, surplus food, as well as care for unaccompanied children. At the end of 1968, 22,604 persons were receiving financial assistance in Florida. The total number of persons requiring financial assistance in Florida is estimated at 27,704 persons on June 30, 1969, and 32,804 persons on June 30, 1970.

2. Resettlement.—Through contracts with various agencies, refugees are provided homes and jobs in areas other than Miami. During 1968, 35,767 persons were resettled and it is estimated that 37,000 persons will be resettled each year in 1969 and 1970.

3. Education.—Selected training is provided to equip the refugees for employment and resettlement. The average daily child population on whose behalf payments are made to meet part of the added cost to the Miami public schools is expected to increase from 23,620 in 1968 to 27,300 in 1969 and 30,920 in 1970. Changes in reimbursement rates are expected to decrease the average cost per child. Loans made to needy college students are expected to rise from 4,234 in 1968 to 4,800 in 1969 and 5,000 in 1970.

4. Health services.—These services are provided to new arrivals and to needy refugees in Miami and includes medical screening, outpatient clinic services, and care of patients with tuberculosis and mental illness.

ASSISTANCE TO REFUGEES IN THE UNITED STATES—Continued

5. Transportation of refugees from Cuba.—This provides for the cost of airlifting the refugees from Cuba.

6. Program administration.—Provides Federal direction of the program and includes work with refugees to prepare them for resettlement and employment. New registrations are estimated to be 48,000 in both 1969 and 1970.

This appropriation provides two general fund payments to the health insurance program totaling $1,545,413 thousand.

1. Reimbursement for hospital insurance expenditures for the uninsured.—A payment of $617,262 thousand to the Federal hospital insurance trust fund is budgeted for 1970 to cover the costs of hospital and related care for individuals age 65 and over who are not insured under the social security or railroad retirement systems and to cover deficiencies in financing prior years' costs. (Costs for the aged who are insured are financed by worker and employer payroll taxes.) The estimate assumes that there will be an average of 2 million uninsured persons covered for hospital benefits during 1970.

2. Contributions to supplementary medical insurance trust fund.—An estimated $928,151 thousand will be required in 1970 to finance the Government's contribution to the Federal supplementary medical insurance trust fund and to cover the deficiency in financing the Government's contribution for 1969. For each monthly premium paid by enrollees in the voluntary medical insurance program, which primarily covers doctor bills, the Federal Government matches a like amount. The estimate for 1970 assumes that an average of about 19.1 million persons will be enrolled in the program during 1970 as compared with an average of about 18.8 million in 1969.

The appropriation covers the reimbursement to the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund, the Federal Disability Insurance Trust Fund and the Federal Hospital Insurance Trust Fund for benefits paid on the basis of noncontributory military service credits of veterans of World War II and certain veterans of the postwar period. The estimated payment also includes reimbursement for administrative expenses and interest lost to the trust funds.

Reimbursement for noncontributory military service credits.—Section 217(g) of the Social Security Act, as amended, required the Secretary to determine in September 1965 and in every fifth September thereafter, the amount which, if paid in equal installments at the beginning of each fiscal year in the period beginning with July 1, 1965, and ending with June 30, 2015, would accumulate, with interest compounded annually, to an amount sufficient to place the trust funds in the same position at the end of the period, as they would have been if the noncontributory credit for military service had not been provided.

On the basis of this requirement, it has been estimated that annual installments of $105 million are required. Appropriations for the first four installments were made for 1966, 1967, 1968, and 1969. The payment to each trust fund is (in millions of dollars):

This appropriation provides for a general fund payment of $364,151 thousand to the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund as reimbursement for funds expended in 1968 on account of payment of benefits to certain noninsured individuals aged 72 and over. The appropriation includes reimbursement for benefit payments, related administrative expenses, and interest loss to the trust fund.

Section 228(g) of the Social Security Act, as amended, authorizes an appropriation for the amount which is necessary to place the Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance Trust Fund in the same position as it would have been if the payments made from the trust fund to persons with fewer than three quarters of coverage had not been made. The first such authorized appropriation is for the year ending June 30, 1969, on account of payments made in the year ending June 30, 1967. Similar appropriations are authorized for each fiscal year thereafter.

Monthly benefits to certain noninsured persons aged 72 and over first became payable for the month of October 1966. Initially, $35 a month plus an additional $17.50 for an eligible wife, these benefits were increased effective February 1968 to $40 and $20, respectively.

CONSUMER CREDIT TRAINING

For necessary expenses of the Bureau of Federal Credit Unions, with respect to consumer credit training, as authorized by section 21(f)(2) of the Federal Credit Union Act, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1766), $300,000.

The social security program provides old-age, survivors, and disability insurance protection for over 90% of the workers and their families in the United States. It also provides hospital insurance protection for virtually all individuals in the United States who are age 65 or older, as well as supplementary medical insurance coverage for about 95% of persons aged 65 or over who have elected it. Individuals covered under the Social Security Act contribute a portion of their earnings during their working years to pay for this protection and employers match the contributions made by their employees. Monthly premiums are paid by those individuals age 65 and over who elect to come under the supplementary medical insurance program or by States for certain welfare recipients age 65 and over; these premiums are matched by the Federal Government by appropriations from the general fund. The Federal Government also finances from general fund appropriations the hospital insurance protection for individuals not insured under social security or railroad retirement systems. These contributions are deposited in the Federal Old-Age and Survivors, Disability, Hospital, and Supplementary Medical Insurance Trust Funds, from which benefit payments and administrative costs are paid.

The amount of funds required to administer the social security program is related to workloads which emanate from the statutory base of the program. The size of these loads depends upon objective factors such as population growth, the level of employment, incidence of illness among the aged and mortality rates. Legislated changes to the social security program have accelerated growth in workloads far beyond the effect of normal population growth and other factors. The most recent legislative changes were the 1965 amendments which established the medicare program and made significant changes in the cash benefit program and the 1967 amendments which provided for a 13% increase in benefit amounts and added new benefit categories making immediately eligible about 350,000 persons for monthly benefits.

1. Old-age and survivors insurance program.—This program provides monthly benefits for retired workers and their dependents, survivors of deceased workers, certain uninsured persons at age 72, and beginning with the 1967 amendments, disabled widows and widowers age 50 and over.

The effect of the 1967 amendments was to cause a large number of claims from persons made newly eligible for benefits to be filed in 1968 and 1969, creating a higher than normal volume of work pending at the end of each of these years. The estimated volume of claims to be processed in 1970 reflects a reduction in pending levels plus a modest increase in new claims to be received as compared with the 1969 estimate. With the growth in number of beneficiaries projected for 1970, the volume of work related to changes to the beneficiary rolls because of such events as changes of address, deaths, marriages, and employment will increase.

The administrative costs budgeted for this program cover the costs of processing claims for benefits, including reconsiderations and appeals of initial claims decisions; handling revisions to the beneficiary rolls to insure the prompt mailing of benefit checks each month to beneficiaries who are entitled to them, and to discontinue such checks when eligibility for benefits is interrupted or ends; and the annual program to reappraise the amount of benefits paid each beneficiary to determine whether the beneficiary is entitled to a higher amount of benefits due to events that have occurred since his initial entitlement to benefits.

2. Disability insurance program.—This program provides monthly benefits for disabled workers and certain of their dependents. The volume of new claims is higher in 1969 than estimated for 1970 because the 1967 amendments to the Social Security Act liberalized the insured status requirements for workers disabled before age 31, and persons made newly eligible for benefits as a result of this legislative change filed claims in 1968 and early in 1969.

Although the intake of new claims declines in 1970 as compared to 1969, the volume of reconsiderations and hearings will rise in 1970 because of the large new claims load in 1969. Also, the increased number of beneficiaries on the disability rolls projected for 1970 will result in a greater volume of investigations of continuing eligibility for benefits and changes to the beneficiary rolls to reflect such events as changes of address, deaths, and the attainment of age 65.

Disability benefit payments (in millions)	$2,088	$2,434	$2,624

The administrative costs budgeted under this program cover the costs of processing initial disability determinations and reconsiderations and appeals of denied claims; making investigations and determinations of continuing disability of beneficiaries and terminating their benefits if it is found that they have recovered; and servicing the beneficiary rolls and keeping it current by making all changes due to deaths, changes of address, attainment of age 65, returns to employment, and recoveries from disability. Determinations regarding the existence or continuation of a disability are made by State agencies in most cases, and these decisions are reviewed in the central office of the Social Security Administration.

3. Health insurance program.—This program includes both the hospital insurance and the voluntary supplementary medical insurance programs, which were established by the 1965 amendments to the Social Security Act.

(a) Hospital insurance plan.—The hospital insurance plan affords protection to persons age 65 and over against the costs of inpatient hospital services, posthospital home health services and posthospital extended care services. Bills for services rendered under the hospital insurance program are generally submitted by hospitals, extended care facilities, home health agencies, and in some instances by individuals who have received emergency care in nonparticipating hospitals. In most instances, these bills are processed by the Blue Cross Association and private insurance companies acting as intermediaries for the Social Security Administration. The individual beneficiary records of utilization of hospital services are maintained in the central office of the Social Security Administration. The growth in beneficiaries who will be covered by the program as the population age 65 and over increases and the rise in the utilization rates of available services cause an increase in the number of bills in both 1969 and 1970.

(b) Supplementary medical insurance plan.—Almost all persons age 65 and over are eligible to enroll in the supplementary medical insurance program, which covers the cost of physician services and other medical costs within certain deductible and coinsurance requirements. Enrollees in the program pay a monthly premium and the aggregate of these premiums is matched by the Federal Government by appropriations from the general fund. Claims for services under the medical insurance program are submitted by either the physician or other suppliers of service or the beneficiary to Blue Shield Associations and private insurance companies who have been designated to act as carriers for the Social Security Administration in specific geographical areas.

The volume of claims will rise in 1969 and 1970 as a result of the growth in the age 65 and over population, the increase in the utilization rate of medical services, and the observed trend toward submission of claims by beneficiaries soon after services are rendered by a physician rather than accumulating several bills before claiming reimbursement.

<sup>1</sup> Includes $508 million in 1968, $490 million in 1969, and $490 million in 1970 chargeable to the general fund.

The administrative costs budgeted under this activity cover the bill and claim payment functions performed by the intermediaries; services performed by State agencies in certifying and consulting with providers of services; all work performed by the Social Security Administration in directing the program, providing services to beneficiaries, maintaining records by individual beneficiary of utilization of hospital and medical services and processing claims to establish entitlement to hospital insurance for persons not insured for cash benefits under either the social security or railroad retirement program.

4. Contingency reserve.—This activity represents a contingency fund to be used with the approval of the Bureau of the Budget in the event that workloads and/or mandatory costs of agencies with which agreements have been made to participate in the program exceed the budget estimates. The fund is to be used only after maximum absorption of such costs within the existing limitation has been achieved.

No 1970 obligational authority is requested for construction from the trust funds, established by the Social Security Act, as amended.

1. Headquarters construction.—Obligations scheduled for 1969 and 1970 are based on estimated progress of construction projects already funded.

2. District office construction.—The 1965, 1966, and 1967 appropriations provided for the acquisition of sites, design, and construction of Social Security Administration district offices in 107 selected cities throughout the country. This is part of a long-range program to provide district offices in locations where construction is determined to be both feasible and advantageous. Funds in 1969 and 1970 are based on estimated progress in constructing district offices already funded.

1. Benefit payments.—The Social Security Act provides for payment of monthly benefits to retired workers and their dependents and to survivors of deceased workers. These benefits are financed by contributions made by workers, employers, and self-employed individuals based on earnings which are deposited in this trust fund.

2. Construction.—3. Administration.—The administrative expenses of the Department of Treasury, the Social Security Administration, and certain other components of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, are distributed currently on an estimated basis among the four social security trust funds. Adjustment is made in each succeeding year for the difference between actual and estimated costs for these organizations.

4. Payment to railroad retirement account.—Payments are made between this trust fund and the railroad retirement account so as to place this fund in the same position in which it would have been if railroad employment after 1936 had been included in social security coverage (45 U.S.C. 228E).

5. Vocational rehabilitation services.—The Social Security Act provides that payments may be made from this fund for the purpose of making vocational rehabilitation services available to disabled dependents of retired or deceased workers, who receive benefits under this program. The total amount of these payments, and similar payments for disabled workers, may not exceed 1% of the total benefits certified for payment to such individuals in the preceding year.

1. Benefit payments.—The hospital insurance program provides protection to approximately 20 million persons age 65 and over against the costs of inpatient hospital services, post-hospital home health services, and post-hospital extended care services. The costs of these services and administrative costs for those on the social security and railroad retirement rolls are financed by contributions from workers, employers, and self-employed individuals based on earnings. The combined worker-employer contribution rate is scheduled at 1.2% of taxable earnings up to a maximum of $7,800 annually through 1972. Self-employed persons are scheduled to pay one-half of the combined worker-employer rate. Costs for those not insured under the social security or railroad retirement program are met from general revenues of the Treasury. The growth in benefit payments in 1969 and 1970 results from increases in covered population, in utilization of services and in cost of services. Inpatient hospital benefits account for almost 90% of the total hospital insurance benefits. Benefits for extended care services account for the majority of remaining benefit costs with home health services accounting for only about 1% of the total. The following table shows comparative data concerning the program for 1968-1970.

1. Benefit payments.—Almost all persons aged 65 and over are eligible to enroll in the voluntary supplementary medical insurance program provided by the Social Security Act, and about 95 percent of those eligible have chosen to do so. Participants in the program are covered for the costs of physicians' services (which account for almost 95 percent of all medical insurance benefit payments), home health services not covered under the hospital insurance program, outpatient services, and certain other medical costs within specified deductible and coinsurance amounts. The costs of these services and administrative expenses are financed by premium payments by enrollees together with matching contributions from the general revenues of the Treasury. The monthly premium payment is scheduled to remain $4.00 through 1970. The following table shows comparative data concerning the supplementary medical insurance program for 1968-70. The 1970 estimate of benefit payments reflects the effect of an increased number of enrollees, and assumes both administrative and legislative action to maintain unit charges for services at current levels. In addition, the estimate reflects savings in benefit costs expected to result from improved administrative review of bills and claims in the program.

As authorized by Public Law 89-36, the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare entered into an agreement with the Rochester Institute of Technology for the establishment, construction, and operation of a National Technical Institute for the Deaf. Its purpose is to provide a residential facility for postsecondary technical training and education for persons who are deaf in order to prepare them for successful employment.

An amount of $2,851 thousand is requested for 1970 to be used for the operating programs of the Institute and for an educational program for 275 deaf students.

Gallaudet College is a private, nonprofit institution providing undergraduate higher education for the deaf, a graduate school offering advanced studies for students interested in the field of deafness, and a research program to provide information about the deaf. It operates the Kendall School for deaf children (primarily from the District of Columbia) and a preschool program for very young deaf children which serves as the laboratory facilities for the college graduate program. Federal funds provide approximately two-thirds of the operating costs.

A construction program designed to replace aging buildings and provide modern facilities to accommodate increased enrollments was initiated in 1956. Full financial support for the erection of a number of new buildings and alterations and repairs to the existing physical plant has been provided by the Federal Government. The estimates for 1970 provide for the continuation of this support to meet current needs and to afford adequate facilities for the expansion of the college to meet steadily increasing enrollments.

The University is a private nonprofit institution consisting of an undergraduate college, a graduate school offering the master's degree and the degree of doctor of philosophy (in English, history, chemistry, physics, zoology, government, pharmacology, and physiology) and eight professional schools. Federal funds provide 57.8% of the total operating costs.

In 1968, 231 research and training projects were supported by outside organizations, and it is estimated that the same number will be undertaken in 1969 and 1970. The operation and maintenance staff services 47 buildings located on the University's 60-acre campus. The dormitories, food service, bookstores and intramural athletic programs are intended to be self-supporting and render service at the lowest possible cost.

A Federal payment of $5,000,000 will provide for initial activities of the Corporation for Public Broadcasting as authorized by Public Law 90-129. These funds have been transferred by the Department to the private, non-profit Corporation and will be expended in a manner determined by the Board of Directors.

The purpose of the Corporation is to strengthen the quality of noncommercial educational television and radio broadcasting and make such public broadcasting service more widely available across the Nation. Public Law 90-129 authorizes use of Corporation funds for strengthening of local educational stations, production and distribution of high quality programming, development of an inter-connection service, and for Corporation administrative expenses. The authorizing legislation limits grants or contracts for any one project to a maximum of $250,000.

It is proposed that social insurance benefits under these programs be increased by an average of 10% for all beneficiaries on the rolls and that the minimum benefit be increased from $55 to $80 a month. This will result in caseload and average payment reductions in the old-age assistance program. The cost of these benefits will be financed by an increase in the maximum taxable wage and in the payroll tax rate.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 201. None of the funds appropriated by this title to the Social and Rehabilitation Service for grants-in-aid of State agencies to cover, in whole or in part, the cost of operation of said agencies, including the salaries and expenses of officers and employees of said agencies, shall be withheld from the said agencies of any States which have established by legislative enactment and have in operation a merit system and classification and compensation plan covering the selection, tenure in office, and compensation of their employees, because of any disapproval of their personnel or the manner of their selection by the agencies of the said States, or the rates of pay of said officers or employees.

SEC. 202. The Secretary is authorized to make such transfers of motor vehicles, between bureaus and offices, without transfer of funds, as may be required in carrying out the operations of the Department.

SEC. 203. None of the funds provided herein shall be used to pay any recipient of a grant for the conduct of a research project an amount equal to as much as the entire cost of such project.

SEC. 204. None of the funds contained in this Act shall be used for any activity the purpose of which is to require any recipient of any project grant for research, training, or demonstration made by any officer or employee of the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare to pay to the United States any portion of any interest or other income earned on payments of such grant made before July 1, 1964; nor shall any of the funds contained in this Act be used for any activity the purpose of which is to require payment to the United States of any portion of any interest or other income earned on payments made before July 1, 1964, to the American Printing House for the Blind.

SEC. 205. Expenditures from funds appropriated under this title to the American Printing House for the Blind, Howard University and Gallaudet College shall be subject to audit by the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare.

SEC. 206. None of the funds contained in this title shall be available for additional permanent Federal positions in the Washington area if the proportion of additional positions in the Washington area in relation to the total new positions is allowed to exceed the proportion existing at the close of fiscal year 1966.

SEC. 207. Appropriations in this Act for the Consumer Protection and Environmental Health Service, the Health Services and Mental Health Administration, the National Institutes of Health, and the Office of the Secretary shall be available for expenses for active commissioned officers in the Public Health Service Reserve Corps and for not to exceed two thousand eight hundred commissioned officers in the Regular Corps; expenses incident to the dissemination of health information in foreign countries through exhibits and other appropriate means; expenses of primary and secondary schooling of dependents, in foreign countries, of Public Health Service commissioned officers stationed in foreign countries, at costs for any given area not in excess of those of the Department of Defense for the same area, when it is determined by the Secretary that the schools available in the locality are unable to provide adequately for the education of such dependents, and for the transportation of such dependents between such schools and their places of residence when the schools are not accessible to such dependents by regular means of transportation; rental or lease of living quarters (for periods not exceeding 5 years), and provision of heat, fuel, and light, and maintenance, improvement, and repair of such quarters, and advance payments therefor, for civilian officers and employees of the Public Health Service who are United States citizens and who have a permanent station in a foreign country; not to exceed $2,500 for entertainment of visiting scientists when specifically approved by the Surgeon General; purchase, erection, and maintenance of temporary or portable structures; and for the payment of compensation to consultants or individual scientists appointed for limited periods of time pursuant to section 207(f) or section 207(g) of the Public Health Service Act, at rates established by the Surgeon General, or the Secretary where such action is required by statute, not to exceed the per diem rate equivalent to the rate for GS-18. (Department of Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriation Act, 1969.)

SEC. 401. Appropriations contained in this Act, available for salaries and expenses, shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109 but at rates for individuals not to exceed the per diem rate equivalent to the rate for GS-18.

SEC. 402. Appropriations contained in this Act available for salaries and expenses shall be available for uniforms or allowances therefor as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902).

SEC. 403. Appropriations contained in this Act available for salaries and expenses shall be available for expenses of attendance at meetings which are concerned with the functions or activities for which the appropriation is made or which will contribute to improved conduct, supervision, or management of those functions or activities.

SEC. 404. The Secretary of Labor and the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare are each authorized to make available not to exceed $7,500 from funds available for salaries and expenses under titles I and II, respectively, for official reception and representation expenses.

SEC. 405. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 406. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall be used to finance any Civil Service Interagency Board of Examiners.

SEC. 407. No part of the funds appropriated under this Act shall be used to pay salaries of any Federal employee who is convicted in any Federal, State, or local court of competent jurisdiction, of inciting, promoting, or carrying on a riot, or any group activity resulting in material damage to property or injury to persons, found to be in violation of Federal, State, or local laws designed to protect persons or property in the community concerned.

SEC. 408. None of the funds in this Act shall be available to finance interdepartmental boards, commissions, councils, committees, or similar groups under section 214 of the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1946 (31 U.S.C. 691) which do not have prior and specific Congressional approval of such method of financial support.

SEC. 409. No part of the funds contained in this Act may be used to force busing of students, abolishment of any school, or to force any student attending any elementary or secondary school to attend a particular school against the choice of his or her parents or parent in order to overcome racial imbalance.

【SEC. 410. No part of the funds contained in this Act shall be used to force busing of students, the abolishment of any school or the attendance of students at a particular school in order to overcome racial imbalance as a condition precedent to obtaining Federal funds otherwise available to any State, school district, or school: Provided, That the Secretary shall assign as many persons to the investigation and compliance activities of title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 related to elementary and secondary education in the other States as are assigned to the seventeen Southern and border States to assure that this law is administered and enforced on a national basis, and the Secretary is directed to enforce compliance with title VI of the Civil Rights Act of 1964 by like methods and with equal emphasis in all States of the Union and to report to the Congress by March 1, 1969, on the actions he has taken and the results achieved in establishing this compliance program on a national basis: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, funds or commodities for school lunch programs or medical services may not be recommended for withholding by any official employed under appropriations contained herein in order to overcome racial imbalance: Provided further, That notwithstanding any other provision of law, moneys received from national forests to be expended for the benefit of the public schools or public roads of the county or counties in which the national forest is situated, may not be recommended for withholding by any official employed under appropriations contained herein.】

【SEC. 411. No part of the funds appropriated under this Act shall be used to provide a loan, guarantee of a loan or a grant to any applicant who has been convicted by any court of general jurisdiction of any crime which involves the use of or the assistance to others in the use of force, trespass or the seizure of property under control of an institution of higher education to prevent officials or students at such an institution from engaging in their duties or pursuing their studies.】

【SEC. 412. No part of the funds appropriated under this Act shall be used to provide a loan, guarantee of a loan, or grant to any individual who (A) has, within the five-year period immediately preceding his application for such loan, guarantee of a loan, or grant, received a loan, guarantee of a loan, or grant the funds for which were made available pursuant to an Act making appropriations for the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare, and (B) has used any of the proceeds resulting from such loan, guarantee of a loan, or grant for any purpose other than the purpose for which the loan or grant was made.】 (Departments of Labor and Health, Education, and Welfare Appropriation Act, 1969.)

Grants to local public bodies and agencies to assist in financing multipurpose neighborhood facilities are authorized by section 703 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3103). To be eligible for Federal financial assistance, projects must be necessary for carrying out a program of health, recreational, social, or similar community services; designed for multipurpose use providing a wide range of services and activities needed in the neighborhood; consistent with comprehensive planning for the development of the community; and be conveniently located for use by a significant portion of the low- or moderate-income residents of the area.

While grant assistance applies only to provision of the structure, local communities schedule and provide multi-services designed to meet the needs of the particular neighborhood including service programs supported by other Federal agencies, thus providing an opportunity for coordinating the various services housed in the facility.

Priority consideration is given to neighborhood centers designed primarily to benefit members of low-income families or otherwise substantially further the objectives of a community action program approved under title II of the Economic Opportunity Act of 1964. Applications are rated on the degree of poverty in the service area and the extent to which the project provides needed service to low-income families in an effective manner. It is anticipated that about 144 applications will be approved in 1970.

Federal assistance may not exceed two-thirds of project development cost, except for projects located in redevelopment areas designated under the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965, where three-fourths grants are authorized.

ALASKA HOUSING

For assistance in the provision of housing and related facilities for Alaska natives and other Alaska residents, as authorized by section 1004 of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 [(80 Stat. 1284-1285)] (42 U.S.C. 3371), with which shall be merged the unexpended balances of funds heretofore appropriated pursuant to such authorization, $1,000,000, to remain available until expended. Loans and grants to the State of Alaska, or its designated agency, to assist in providing housing and related facilities for Alaska natives (Eskimos, Indians, and Aleuts, and other low-income residents) are authorized by section 1004 of the Demonstrations Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 (42 U.S.C. 3371).

The program will be carried out in accordance with a statewide program prepared by the Alaska State Housing Authority pursuant to a State enabling act and approved by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development. The program: (1) specifies the minimum and maximum standards for such housing and related facilities; (2) to the extent feasible, encourages the proposed users of such housing and related facilities to utilize mutual and self-help in the construction thereof; and (3) provides experience and encourages continued participation in self-government and individual homeownership.

The aggregate cost, including land, may not average more than $7,500 per dwelling. Grants are limited to three-fourths of the cost of dwellings and related facilities.

The Department lends lump-sum amounts to the Alaska State Housing Authority for use in providing loans and grants to qualified low-income people. Grants made to recipients will automatically be considered as a writeoff against the loan made to Alaska. Loans to recipients will be repaid to the Alaska State Housing Authority's revolving fund from which additional loans and grants will be made. At the end of 20 years, loan balances not written off as grants to participants will be repaid to the Federal Government.

This appropriation finances the administrative and supporting expenses for carrying out Renewal and Housing Assistance programs, including both direct expenses of organizations supervised by the Assistant Secretary for Renewal and Housing Assistance and a related share of overall supporting expenses of the Department. Descriptions of the programs involved are included in the narrative statements for each account under the heading "Renewal and Housing Assistance." Administrative expenses of the programs of direct loans for College Housing and Housing for the Elderly are paid from receipts of those revolving funds.

Public enterprise funds:

Note.—Schedules for the following funds are presented in accordance with the requirements of the Government Corporation Control Act. The first paragraph of title III of the Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1969, relating to corporations, is shown in the Other Independent Agencies chapter, p. 921.

URBAN RENEWAL

Title I of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, authorizes Federal assistance to local public agencies for rehabilitation or acquisition, clearance, and redevelopment of slums and blighted areas. Federal grants may defray two-thirds of the net project cost or three-fourths in localities with a population of less than 50,000 or located in a redevelopment area as designated by the Economic Development Administration, Department of Commerce.

The authorization to make contracts for urban renewal grants will total $9,625 million in 1970. The budget proposes to use $1,000 million of which $750 million is already enacted. The budget also proposes a $1,250 million appropriation for 1971 of which $850 million is on the basis of additional authorizing legislation to be proposed. This will continue the practice of requesting appropriations 1 year in advance. Additional funds, if necessary, may be requested in the 1971 budget. Temporary project financing and long-term financing of land disposed under lease agreements through direct or guaranteed loans are provided from a Treasury borrowing authorization of $1 billion.

Urban renewal activities are administered by local public agencies. Several approaches have been developed to treat slums, blighted and deteriorating areas. The more conventional approaches include renewal, code enforcement, and demolition. The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized new approaches involving annual action and funding techniques—neighborhood development programs and interim assistance for blighted areas certified for renewal in the near future. These approaches provide for clearance and redevelopment, rehabilitation, code enforcement, and replacement or installation of private and public facilities and other community needs such as schools, fire stations, libraries, parks, and preservation of historic structures.

Financial assistance and counseling are provided homeowners and businessmen in project areas to enable them to rehabilitate their properties when appropriate or to provide assistance in relocating in satisfactory facilities.

Almost 1,000 localities were participating in urban renewal programs through projects, code enforcement programs, community renewal programs, and demolition grants as of June 30, 1968.

URBAN RENEWAL PROGRAMS

For grants for urban renewal, [fiscal year 1970, as an additional amount] as additional amounts for urban renewal programs, as authorized by title I of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1450 et seq.) and section 314 of the Housing Act of 1954, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1452a), [$750,000,000] to remain available until expended, $250,000,000 for the fiscal year 1970, and $1,250,000,000 for the fiscal year 1971: Provided, That no part of any appropriation in this Act shall be used for administrative expenses in connection with commitments for grants aggregating more than the total of amounts available in the current year from the amounts authorized for making such commitments through June 30, [1968] 1967, plus the additional amounts appropriated therefor. (Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1969; additional authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

Budget program.—An administrative reservation of funds (grant reservation) is made at an early stage in the development of a regular full grant reservation project to assure availability of grant assistance when plans for the project are complete.

New reservations, adjustments in existing reservations, and obligations for neighborhood development programs and other title I activities are expected to total $1,000 million net in 1970. This includes title I activities to be provided in Model City neighborhood areas.

1. Projects and neighborhood development programs.—Grant reservations for urban renewal projects and neighborhood development programs are estimated at $868.6 million in 1970, including individual projects, general neighborhood renewal planning for areas larger or more complex than can be included within a single project, projects scheduled to be carried out as part of Model City programs under the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966, and for urban renewal activities in a neighborhood development program authorized by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. Neighborhood development programs, while encompassing larger areas than conventional renewal projects, will accelerate the renewal process by focusing on the annual increment necessary to achieve ultimate redevelopment.

The amounts estimated for projects and neighborhood development programs include grants of up to $3 thousand each for rehabilitation of homes by low income owner-occupants in urban renewal areas who otherwise could not afford to meet the standards of the urban renewal plan. The estimates also include full reimbursement to communities for the costs of relocating families, individuals, and businesses displaced from urban renewal areas. Payments to displacees for moving expenses and actual direct property losses, not otherwise compensated, are authorized up to $200 per family and $25 thousand per business. Eligible families, elderly people, and small businesses may receive relocation adjustment payments to ease the financial burden accompanying establishment in new accommodations. Maximum relocation adjustment payments are $2,500 for eligible businesses and $1 thousand for eligible families and individuals. Also, relocation payments up to $5 thousand are available to owner-occupants to assist them to acquire safe, decent, and sanitary dwelling units.

2. Code enforcement.—Grants to local governments for programs of concentrated code enforcement in deteriorated or deteriorating areas may cover three-fourths of the cost in communities under 50,000 population and two-thirds of the cost in localities over 50,000 population. Costs of planning and carrying out such programs include the cost of certain eligible public improvements necessary to arrest the decline of the area. Rehabilitation grants and relocation assistance are provided to the same extent as for an urban renewal project or neighborhood development program.

3. Community renewal.—Grants to localities cover two-thirds of the cost of preparing community renewal programs. These programs provide for analyses of renewal needs on a communitywide basis, including determinations of the economic base available to support renewal in terms of both current conditions and future market prospects; appraisal of physical, social, and financial resources of the area; the development of community renewal goals; and a schedule for accomplishing these goals.

4. Demolition.—Grants are available to city or county governments covering up to two-thirds of the net cost of demolishing structures which have been determined to be structurally unsound or unfit for human habitation under State or local law after the local governing body has exhausted other legal procedures to secure remedial action by the owners.

5. Interim assistance.—The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized grants to localities not to exceed $15 million per year to carry out limited short-term programs to temporarily alleviate harmful conditions in slums and severely blighted areas for which renewal is planned in the near future.

6. Certified areas.—Grants to localities are available under the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 to provide 100% grants to owner-occupants for rehabilitation of one-four dwelling unit residential properties in areas certified for rehabilitation or code enforcement in the near future.

7. All other.—This includes demonstration grants to develop and test new or improved techniques and to provide amounts to reimburse the urban renewal loan fund for uncollectable planning advances and interest on terminated projects.

Budget program.—Treasury borrowing authority of $1 billion is available to assist in financing the planning and execution of urban renewal projects with the following types of commitments:

1. Planning advances.—Advances provide for costs directly associated with project planning. They are repayable with interest from funds made available to the project during the execution stage.

2. Temporary loans.—Short-term direct Federal loans provide initial financing for projects under contract. Thereafter, working capital is generally provided by borrowing from the private market and secured by pledge of the Federal loan commitment. Temporary loans are repaid from proceeds of land sales and from local and Federal cash grants.

3. Definitive loans.—Definitive loans permit the disposition of project land through long-term leases in lieu of sale, at the option of the community. In such cases, commitments are issued to secure private financing for the net value of redeveloped land.

Loan commitments cover total expenditures by the local public agency in carrying out a project. Both the statute and experience recognize that only a minor portion of the Federal loan commitment will be outstanding at any one time in the form of direct Federal loans because: (a) project expenditures take place over several years; (b) early borrowings are progressively retired with funds provided from local and Federal grants and from the sale of land; (c) private financing (guaranteed with a pledge of the Federal loan commitment) is relied upon as the major source of funds for temporary loans and definitive loans.

Cumulative loan commitments will be $10,169 million by the end of 1970, but this amount will be reduced by $4,284 million in repayments and commitment waivers to produce a net outstanding commitment of $5,885 million on June 30, 1970. The maximum Federal exposure (i.e., maximum demand on Federal loans at any one time) is estimated at $823 million on June 30, 1970. This exposure is estimated at 12% of temporary loans, 18% of definitive loan commitments and 75% of planning advance commitments.

The status of loan commitments outstanding at the end of the past, current, and budget years follows (in thousands of dollars):

Unutilized commitments.....	1,822,363	2,066,362	2,436,212

Financing.—Borrowing authority previously committed is replenished by means of: (a) repayment of planning advances; (b) cancellation of temporary loan commitments; and (c) the repayment of direct Federal or guaranteed non-Federal loans from project settlement funds, including proceeds from the sale of land and Federal and local grants. Repayments of Federal temporary loans from the proceeds of non-Federal guaranteed loans, which are estimated to total $407.6 million in 1970, are reflected in the program and financing statement.

Operating results.—The use of grant appropriations is authorized to repay Treasury borrowing otherwise unrecoverable due to losses on planning advances and interest for terminated projects. The deficit resulting from capital grant payments and from uncollectable planning advances for terminated projects has been offset by the appropriation of funds for such purpose as shown below (in thousands of dollars):

Section 312 of the Housing Act of 1964, as amended, authorizes 20-year loans at 3% interest to owners or tenants of properties in urban renewal and code enforcement projects, and certified areas, and for properties uninsurable because of physical hazards. The program finances rehabilitation required to make property conform to applicable public standards. These low interest rate loans provide a method of financing private rehabilitation where necessary repairs might otherwise not be feasible due to the economic circumstances of the property owners or the difficulty of obtaining financing from other sources. A direct loan may be made only when financing cannot be obtained on comparable terms and conditions from non-Federal sources. Maximum loan amounts generally are $10 thousand for each residential unit and $50 thousand for business properties. To date, residential loans have averaged $3,400 per unit and nonresidential loans $20,000 per unit.

Budget program.—Specialists on the staff of each local public agency engaged in a rehabilitation program handle the initial contacts with potential applicants. Applications are then submitted to the regional offices of the Department for processing and approval. FHA insuring offices furnish appropriate technical services. The Government National Mortgage Association arranges and supervises loan servicing by private institutions, except for business loans, which are processed, closed and serviced by the Small Business Administration. Loan approvals are estimated at $26 million during 1969 and $84 million in 1970. Loan disbursements are estimated at $25.9 million and $73.7 million, respectively. The budget is based on the following volume of loan activity:

The United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1401 et seq.), established a low-rent public housing program to assist in providing safe and sanitary dwellings within the financial reach of families of low income. Such housing is owned and operated by local housing authorities created under State law. Federal loans and annual contributions assist local housing authorities in financing the construction of low-rent housing and in maintaining the low-rent character of such housing after completion. Pilot programs of both private management and purchase of low-rent units by tenants are underway.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (Public Law 90-448), approved August 1, 1968, increased the authorization for annual contributions contracts by $100 million on the date of enactment and by further amounts of $150 million on July 1 in each of the years 1969 and 1970 from $554.2 million previously authorized.

Budget program.—Development.—The low-rent development program began to be accelerated in 1968 with further growth proposed in 1969 and 1970 as part of the production necessary to meet the assisted housing goals of the 10-year housing program. The goal of 100,000 units available for occupancy in 1970 represents a 33% gain over 1969, and an 88% gain over 1968. Seventy percent of the 1970 production is planned to be from the acquisition, leasing, and turnkey programs.

In addition to the production of new dwellings, the program to modernize older dwellings, begun in 1968 with 26,000 units approved, will be expanded in 1969 to approvals for modernizing 100,000 units.

The workload accomplishments and the status of the development program by stage is presented in the following tabulations:

Annual contributions.—The increase in annual contributions requirements to $473.5 million in 1970 from $366 million in 1969, including a supplemental appropriation of $16 million, is attributable largely to: (1) an increased number of dwellings eligible for annual contributions resulting from the completion and permanent financing of new developments; (2) the additional subsidy ($17.0 million in 1969 and $23.5 million in 1970) authorized with respect to: (a) elderly families and persons; (b) handicapped individuals; (c) certain relocatees; and (d) large families and families of unusually low income; and (3) the increased requirements resulting from financing the cost of modernization of existing structures and dwellings.

Tenant services.—An expanded program to strengthen management activities and to provide services to public housing residents to assist them to achieve a better life was initiated by some local housing authorities in 1968 using rental receipts. Many local housing authorities, however, including those most in need of such services, are not able to carry out the expanded program without additional assistance. To aid in meeting this problem, grants to local housing authorities for these activities were authorized by section 204 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (Public Law 90-448) approved August 1, 1968. Fifteen million dollars is requested for such grants to provide at least 75 local housing authorities with assistance for such services as counseling and referral activities related to education and job opportunities, housekeeping techniques, money management, and other programs to help low-income residents cope with day-to-day problems while simultaneously improving family living standards and opportunities for productive and meaningful lives.

Other expenses.—Program receipts are used to meet certain expenses of the low-rent public housing program. The use of these funds correspondingly reduces the requirements for appropriated administrative funds.

As of June 30, 1968, one Federally owned, directly operated development located at Enid, Okla., containing 80 dwellings, remained in the program. Estimated program receipts and expenses for 1969 and 1970 are based upon the continued Federal operation of this development throughout both years.

Technical services are provided during development by construction representatives. The local housing authorities are charged a fixed fee which pays for the cost of the service. The estimate for 1970 is based upon the number of projects under construction.

Financing.—Loans are made to local housing authorities to finance the early costs of project development. These loans are made with certain available working funds and, when necessary, with funds borrowed from the Treasury for this purpose. Under the Housing Act of 1949, borrowings outstanding at any one time from the Treasury may not exceed $1.5 billion. There were no outstanding borrowings at the end of 1968. Outstanding borrowings are estimated at $8 million at June 30, 1969, and $12 million at June 30, 1970.

Section 203(b) of the Housing Act of 1968 amended section 20 of the Housing Act of 1937 so that the ceiling on borrowing authority of $1.5 billion applies only to Federal loans which the Secretary estimates will actually be disbursed and not to Federal commitments which are not expected to result in actual outlays.

The Secretary has initially estimated the maximum Federal loan exposure (i.e., the maximum demand for Federal loans at any one time) at 10% of all loan commitments outstanding.

Loan commitments cover the maximum amount of funds the Department may lend under contract to a local housing authority in carrying out a project, usually 90% of total project cost. The new law and experience recognize that only a minor portion of the Federal loan commitment will be outstanding at any one time in the form of direct Federal loans because private financing is relied upon as the major source of funds for temporary construction loans.

The total loan commitment is estimated at $3,154.9 million at June 30, 1969, and $3,871.7 million at June 30, 1970. The following table shows the status of all loan commitments (in thousands of dollars):

When the Federal development loans to a local housing authority accumulate to an amount which is attractive to private investors, the local housing authority sells short-term temporary notes to the public and utilizes the proceeds to repay the Federal loans and to meet current needs for additional working capital. These notes are secured by the Federal Government's pledge to make development loans, if necessary, covering up to 90% of the development cost of the project. This arrangement has established an excellent security rating for the notes which sold at an average interest rate of 3.346% in 1968.

In 1968, direct Federal loans were refunded through secured loans by private investors in the amount of $105.3 million. Refunding is estimated at $167 million in 1969 and $202 million in 1970. The temporary notes sold to private investors are issued for short periods which average 5 months and may be reissued several times and in increasing amounts before the project is permanently financed. As a result, a considerable turnover of short-term notes takes place and the volume of loan activity managed in the program during any fiscal year greatly exceeds the amount of loans outstanding at the end of that fiscal year.

Normally, projects are permanently financed toward the end of the construction period through the sale of long-term bonds to the public. These are usually 40-year serial bonds and are secured by the Federal Government's pledge to pay annual contributions. In 1968 they sold at an average interest rate of 4.401%. As of June 30, 1968, there were approximately 796,465 dwellings potentially eligible for permanent financing. Of these, 660,750 dwellings had been permanently financed leaving a potential permanent financing workload of 137,715 dwellings. The estimates for permanent financing based on program status as of June 30, 1968, follow:

Operating results and financial condition.—The 1968 activity reflects a reduction of the Government's equity for the retirement of capital stock issued to the Secretary of the Treasury in the amount of $1 million. This was done pursuant to the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 which repealed the corporate status of this fund and required the repayment of capital stock to the Treasury. In addition, the deficit reflects a decrease of $1.5 million for the unfunded accrued annual leave which was removed from the accounts due to the transfer of administrative expenses to other accounts. Net costs, in 1970, are approximately equal to the proposed appropriation for annual contributions payments less the amount of undelivered orders in support of the leasing and tenant services programs of $29 million at June 30, 1970. The magnitude of such costs and appropriations used on a cumulative basis are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Direct long-term low interest loans to assist in financing new construction and rehabilitation or conversion of existing housing and related facilities for rental by the elderly or the handicapped are authorized by section 202 of the Housing Act of 1959, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1701 et seq.). Loans may be made to private nonprofit corporations, consumer cooperatives, and those public agencies not receiving Federal financial assistance exclusively for public housing. The program is designed to provide housing for the lower-middle-income elderly or handicapped persons and families whose incomes are too high for public housing, but not sufficient to meet the cost of private rental housing, in order to assist them to live more independently.

Loans may be made for the total development cost and may extend for a period of 50 years. Interest rates are based on a statutory formula and are limited to the lower of 3% or 0.25% above the average rate on all interest-bearing obligations forming part of the Federal debt. The 1969 rate is 3%.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorized the refinancing in the private market of mortgages from this program under the program of mortgage insurance and rental assistance payments.

Beginning in 1969, this program will utilize the provisions of the rental assistance program (with its lower interest costs for sponsors) for permanent financing of completed projects to the extent that market conditions are favorable. To assure that planning for new housing continues without interruption so that future housing starts can meet established goals, amounts recovered from cancellations of reservations, including refinancing under the new program of loans disbursed during construction, will be used in both 1969 and 1970 for new reservations for projects for the elderly. These reservations may in turn be converted to the new interest subsidy program as additional authority is provided in future years for the new rental assistance program.

Budget program.—In order to assure continued housing production, loan reservations are reflected in 1969 both out of currently available funds as well as out of the repayments from units refinanced under the rental assistance program. If it proves impossible in 1969 to refinance projects through conversion to the new program, the 1969 program will be $80 million in net loan reservations—the maximum amount possible from existing funds. If sufficient authority is provided by the Congress, the full use of the available $80 million will not be needed in 1969. Approximately 2,500 units, bringing repayments of $30 million to the fund, are expected to be converted in 1969.

For 1970, the program is to be financed entirely through the recapture from cancellations and refinancings under the new program. Approximately 5,000 units with repayments of $60 million to the fund, are expected to be converted.

Principal workload items of the program are as follows:

Financing.—The program is financed by a revolving fund supported by direct appropriations. Appropriations of $500 million have been authorized, of which $455 million have been appropriated. No appropriation is proposed for 1970. In addition, refinancing of outstanding commitments under the rental assistance program will replenish the fund. Disbursements are estimated at $100 million in 1969 and $105 million in 1970.

Certificates of participation totaling $100 million have been sold against pools of mortgages from this program, as provided by the Participation Sales Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 164). In order to pay the interest on participation certificates, appropriations are required for the difference between the interest due on the participation certificates and interest collections on the mortgages underlying the certificates.

Title IV of the Housing Act of 1950, as amended, authorizes financial assistance to colleges and eligible hospitals for the construction or acquisition of housing and of essential housing-related facilities such as student centers and infirmaries at colleges. The law authorizes such assistance in two forms—as partial debt service grants to reduce the cost of borrowing on the private market or as direct Federal loans. The direct loan program has been in effect since 1950 with the debt service grant program being recently enacted in the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. Beginning in 1969, the program will be operated primarily as a debt service grant program with direct Federal lending used as an adjunct.

Debt service grants to colleges and eligible hospitals for loans obtained on the private market for the construction or acquisition of housing and of certain housing related facilities are authorized by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. Debt service grants may be made for a period not to exceed 40 years and may be in an amount equal to the difference between the average annual debt service which would have been required if the loan were made at a 3-percent interest rate and the average annual debt service payments on private market loans at market interest rates.

The direct Federal long-term loan program, authorized by the Housing Act of 1950, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1749) is available primarily as backup to the debt service grant program in those cases in which eligible applicants are not able to borrow on the private market at reasonable interest rates. Direct loans are ordinarily made for a period of 40 years. The interest rate on direct loans is based on a statutory formula and is limited to the lower of either 3% or 0.25% above the average rate on all interest bearing obligations forming part of the Federal debt. The 1969 rate is 3%. Funds for the direct loan program have come primarily through the use of a Treasury borrowing authorization and from the sale of certificates of participation against college housing loans held by the Federal Government as authorized in appropriation acts. The Treasury borrowing authorization increased by $300 million on July 1, 1968, to a total of $3,775 million. Direct Federal loans made in 1969 and 1970 will be funded from available unreserved balances in the fund.

Sales of certificates of participation in pools of college housing bonds, as provided in Public Law 89-429, Participation Sales Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 164), amounted to $600 million in 1967, $1,000 million in 1968 and $600 million in 1969. In order to pay the interest on the participation certificates, funds are required to be appropriated to match the difference between the interest due on the participation certificates and interest collections on the bonds underlying the certificates.

The budget authority required for such insufficiencies is computed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Interest accrued on participation certificates.....	57,562	125,533	126,662

Budget program.—The 1970 budget proposes programs for years 1969 and 1970 of $300 million in net loan reservations in each year. These loans will be financed, insofar as possible, by private funds which will be supported by annual debt service grants of $7.5 million each year. Not to exceed $100 million of direct loans would be available each year within the $300 million program for those institutions that are unable to obtain loans in the private market at reasonable interest rates and at reasonable terms. The full 1969 program is dependent on the enactment of supplemental debt service grant authority of $4.5 million to provide a total of $7.5 million required to support a full $300 million program in 1969. Without the supplemental, it is anticipated that the 1969 program will not exceed $200 million, supported by both debt service grants and direct Federal lending. An appropriation of $2.5 million is required for 1970 to provide payments of debt service grants resulting from the use of 1969 authority.

The relationship of net reservations for direct Federal lending to available funds under the direct loan program is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Unreserved balance, start of year.....	528,751	2,240,529	2,451,201

Unreserved balance, end of year.....	2,240,529	2,451,201	2,366,864

Financing.—Private securities supported by debt service grants will be sold by institutions at the time of construction contract award. Where institutions are unable to obtain funds in the private market, the Department will purchase bonds ordinarily when construction is well advanced. Direct Federal loan disbursements are estimated at $250 million in 1969 and $210 million in 1970.

The composition of loan assistance—both direct Federal loans and subsidized private loans—is shown in the following tabulation (in millions of dollars):

Total Federal and private loans.....	199.7	1200.0	1300.0
Private loans dependent upon proposed 1969 supplemental.....	-----	100.0	-----

The status of the authorization for debt service grant authority provided in the HUD Act of 1968 is projected as follows (in millions of dollars):

	1969 estimate	1970 estimate
Authorization available, start of year.....	-----	2.5
New authorization.....	10.0	10.0
Authorization released in appropriation acts.....	-3.0	-7.5

Unutilized authorization, end of year.....	2.5	5.0

Operating results and financial condition.—A net operating loss of $60,628 thousand is expected in 1970 primarily from the $62,547 thousand insufficiency due to payment of interest required on outstanding participation certificates. The restoration of $62,138 thousand of the latter amount will result in retained earnings of $8.8 million at the end of 1970.

A supplemental appropriation for 1969 is anticipated for payments required by the Government National Mortgage Association, as trustee, to meet insufficiencies of interest on participation certificates sold for the account of the Department of Housing and Urban Development under the authority of the Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Act, 1968. Amounts already appropriated, and other sums available to meet insufficiencies, will not be sufficient to cover the difference between the interest on the certificates and interest collections on the underlying loans. The full supplemental requirement is shown in the schedules for the College Housing Fund.

Grants are authorized by section 701 of the Housing Act of 1954 (40 U.S.C. 461), as amended, to supplement State and local funds for the purpose of financing comprehensive planning and helping communities solve planning problems resulting from changes in economy and population. Cities under 50,000, counties, metropolitan areas, multijurisdictional districts in nonmetropolitan areas, States, Indian reservations, and organizations of public officials are eligible to receive assistance. Grants usually are two-thirds of the total cost of an urban planning project. However, grants may be as much as three-fourths of project costs for localities in redevelopment areas so designated by the Department of Commerce; cities with substantial unemployment as a result of certain Federal actions; economic development districts designated by the Department of Commerce; cities, other municipalities and counties located in economic development districts; and regional commissions established by the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 requires that future comprehensive planning assisted under this program must consider housing needs and land use requirements for housing.

The program encourages and assists comprehensive planning for entire areas having common or related development problems. The planning work accomplished under the program embraces all the basic factors essential to balanced growth and development and includes (1) preparation as a guide for governmental policies in action, of general plans to guide the pattern and intensity of land use, the provision of public facilities and other governmental services, and the effective development and utilization of human and natural resources, (2) long range plans for such action, (3) programing of capital improvements and other expenditures, (4) coordination of all related plans of the levels of Government concerned, and (5) preparation of regulatory and administrative measures in support of the foregoing.

Up to $10 million, plus 5% of the funds appropriated may be used for studies, research, and demonstration projects for the development and improvement of techniques and methods for comprehensive planning and for the advancement of the purposes of the comprehensive planning assistance program.

Budget program.—The budget proposes an appropriation of $65 million for 1970.

Net grant approvals are estimated to be 990 in 1969 and 1,040 in 1970. The following table shows the relationship of net grant approvals to available funds (in thousands of dollars):

Title IX of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 1282-1284), as amended, authorizes the Secretary to make grants to assist States to provide technical assistance and to make available information on urban needs and on assistance programs and activities to small communities (those having populations less than 100,000) for the solution of urban problems.

Technical assistance services may be provided by States to small communities which request assistance for the solution of their urban problems. Technical assistance services include making available trained specialists in the field of urban renewal, public administration, relocation, housing, and other urban fields.

Information activities which may be aided by grants include the assembly, correlation, and dissemination of urban physical, social, and economic development information. The objective is to inform governments of small communities, and interested organizations and individuals, of the availability and status of Federal, State, and local programs and of other resources for the solution of urban problems.

Grants may be made for up to 50% of the cost of the activities carried out under an approved urban information and technical assistance program. However, no grant may be made to assist in assembling data or providing information to be used primarily in the day-to-day operations of State or local governing bodies and agencies.

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT TRAINING PROGRAMS

For matching grants to States for training and related activities, and for expenses of providing technical assistance to State and local governmental or public bodies (including studies and publication of information), as authorized by title VIII of the Housing Act of 1964 (20 U.S.C. 801-805), [$3,000,000] $8,000,000. (Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1969.)

Matching grants are authorized to be provided to States under the provisions of title VIII of the Housing Act of 1964 (20 U.S.C. 801-805), as amended, for the purpose of training and developing people with the capacity to master the skills needed in housing and community development. The States are authorized to assist subprofessional and professional persons who are employed, or who will be employed, in the fields of housing or community development by public or private nonprofit organizations. Special training programs are designed to cope with current and emerging problems in the individual States and are conducted in cooperation with local governments, universities, and urban study centers. The Secretary is authorized to render technical assistance to the States in the development of the programs and to publish training data which may be usefully exchanged among States for incorporation in their respective programs.

Fellowships in urban planning and related housing and urban studies are made to qualified students preparing for careers in the urban public service. Fellowships are authorized under title VIII of the Housing Act of 1964 (20 U.S.C. 811). The program is intended to attract students into graduate studies in urban affairs in order to increase the supply of trained personnel and alleviate the growing shortage of skilled persons needed in public service. Legislation is proposed to increase the authorization to support the increase in the budget program. Some 110 fellowships will be awarded for the 1969-70 school year, and a doubling to 220 is anticipated for the 1970-71 school year.

PLANNED AREAWIDE DEVELOPMENT

<sup>1</sup> Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Undisbursed grant obligations, 1969, $0; 1970, $8,000 thousand.

Section 205 of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 (80 Stat. 1261-1266), as amended, authorized supplementary grants to State and local public bodies carrying out federally aided development projects in areas which meet certain areawide comprehensive planning and programing requirements. This program will provide additional encouragement to communities to (1) achieve more effective implementation of areawide planning and programing; (2) strengthen the cooperative ties between State and local public bodies and agencies; and (3) promote more efficient use of Federal funds.

To be eligible for supplementary grants, the public bodies must demonstrate that (1) areawide comprehensive planning and programing are adequate for evaluating the location, financing, and scheduling of public facility and other proposed land development projects, whether or not federally assisted, which have areawide or interjurisdictional significance; (2) adequate areawide arrangements exist for coordinating local public policies and activities affecting the development of the area; and (3) public facility projects and other land development having a major impact on development of the area, whether or not federally assisted, are in fact being carried out in accord with areawide comprehensive planning and programing.

These grants will supplement existing Federal assistance to projects for transportation facilities (transit, primary and secondary highways, and airports), water and sewer facilities, recreation and other open space areas, historic preservation, libraries, and hospital and medical facilities. A supplementary grant may not exceed either 20% of eligible project cost or the total amount of the basic Federal grant assistance. In addition, total Federal contributions to the project may not exceed 80% of project cost. In 1970, approvals are anticipated for 80 projects for $10 million.

NEW COMMUNITY ASSISTANCE

For supplementary grants as authorized by Title IV of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 3911), $5,000,000, to remain available until expended.

<sup>1</sup> Selected resources as of June 30 are as follows: Undisbursed grant obligations, 1969, $0; 1970, $4,000 thousand.

Supplementary grants for new community assistance are authorized by the New Communities Act of 1968 (42 U.S.C. 3911). Grants are to supplement a water, sewer, or open space project which is being assisted under section 702 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, as amended; title VII of the Housing Act of 1961, as amended; or section 306(a)(2) of the Consolidated Farmers Home Administration Act of 1961, as amended. A supplementary grant may not exceed 20% of the total cost of a new community assistance project, nor may the total Federal contribution exceed 80%. Grants may be made if (1) a substantial number of housing units for low- and moderate-income persons will be made available by the new community development project and (2) the grant is necessary or desirable for carrying out a new community development project approved for a Federal new communities guarantee. Such guarantees are made to private developers of new communities meeting the requirements of title IV of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. Approvals of 10 new community assistance grants are anticipated in 1970.

OPEN SPACE LAND PROGRAMS

For grants as authorized by title VII of the Housing Act of 1961, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1500-1500e), and the provision of technical assistance to State and local public bodies (including the undertaking of studies and publication of information), [$75,000,000] $95,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, [That no part of any appropriation in this Act shall be used for administrative expenses in connection with commitments entered into during the current fiscal year for grants aggregating more than the total amounts available in the current year from amounts heretofore appropriated for making such commitments through June 30, 1967, plus the additional amount appropriated herein: Provided further, ] That no part of this appropriation may be used for financing a grant in excess of 50 per centum of the cost of any activity or project. Title VII of the Housing Act of 1961 (42 U.S.C. 1500), as amended, authorizes the Open Space Land Programs which provide for grants to assist public bodies in preserving and creating open space lands in order to enhance the urban environment. The program encourages protection of threatened lands which have scenic, recreation, conservation, or historic value; creation of orderly patterns of urban growth; and ventilation of congested neighborhoods. The program requires comprehensive areawide planning with provision for (1) review and consultation by regional planning organizations and (2) definition of local priorities for open space action, including long-range acquisition and development as an element in functional open space planning.

Budget program.—Net grant reservations for open space land activities will total $95 million in 1970, compared with $75.3 million in 1969.

1. Acquisition and development of open space land.—Fifty percent matching grants are available to assist public bodies in financing acquisition or permanent interest in undeveloped or predominantly undeveloped land in urban areas for open space uses. Development must be compatible with approved open space uses. Grant approvals for 1970 are expected to total 430 involving 42,140 acres, compared with 38,830 acres in 1969.

2. Developed land in urban areas.—Assistance in acquiring open space for densely populated, built-up areas where little or no open space exists, is provided through matching grants for the acquisition of already developed land and the demolition of the buildings on it. The 1970 program is expected to provide for the creation of 120 parks, compared with 85 in 1969.

3. Beautification and improvement programs.—Assistance for beautification takes the form of grants up to 50% of the increased expenditures of the local body over the previous norm for similar activities in preceding years. Local urban beautification and improvement programs are eligible for Federal financial assistance if the program represent significant and effective efforts, involving available public and private resources, for the beautification of open space or other public land in urban areas. In 1970, 145 grant approvals are expected compared with 105 in 1969.

4. Historic preservation.—Grants may be provided for up to 50% of the cost of acquiring sites or structures of historic or architectural value and restoring or improving such properties. The program seeks new ways to make historic properties economically viable and to stimulate new public uses for them. A total of 17 grants is anticipated for 1970.

5. Demonstrations, studies, and publications.—Grants may be provided for projects which have special value in developing and demonstrating new, improved methods and materials which have the potential of broad national applicability in open space areas. The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 increased the amount for studies from $50 thousand to $125 thousand.

GRANTS FOR BASIC WATER AND SEWER FACILITIES

For grants authorized by section 702 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3102), [$165,000,000] $135,000,000, to remain available until expended. (Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1969.)

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3102), as amended, authorizes grants to local public bodies and agencies for basic water and sewer facilities. With a limited exception, grants may not exceed 50% of project development cost. The program is designed to promote effective orderly growth and development of communities and to help urban communities meet ever increasing needs for water and sewer facilities.

Projects approved for grants must contribute to improved health or living standards of people in the community to be served and be so designed that an adequate capacity will be available to serve the reasonably foreseeable growth needs of the area. In addition, the project must be consistent with a program for a unified or officially coordinated areawide water or sewer facilities system as part of the comprehensively planned development of the area.

Net reservations are estimated at $150 million for 1969 and 1970, respectively. The level of activity in 1970 will allow grants to be approved for 290 communities.

GRANTS TO AID ADVANCE ACQUISITION OF LAND

For grants authorized by section 704 of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, as amended (42 U.S.C. 3104), $5,000,000, to remain available until expended.

Grants to local public bodies and States are authorized by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 3104), as amended, to assist the timely acquisition of sites planned to be used in the future for any public purposes. Grants may be made up to an amount equivalent to reasonable interest charges on a 5-year loan obtained privately by the grantee.

Public works or facilities planned for construction on sites acquired under the program must contribute to the economy, efficiency, and comprehensively planned development of the area.

Repayment of the grant may be required if the land purchased is not used within 5 years for the public purpose intended or if the land is used for other purposes.

A total of 20 grant reservations is estimated for 1969 and 25 for 1970. The following table shows the relationship of net grant reservations to available authority (in thousands of dollars):

Contracts and grants to public bodies and private or public nonprofit institutions of higher learning which primarily concern the relationship of urban transportation systems to the comprehensively planned development of urban areas, or the role of transportation planning in overall urban planning may be made by the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) under the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 (49 U.S.C. 1601), as amended. Reorganization Plan No. 2 of 1968 transferred certain urban mass transportation functions from HUD to the Department of Transportation (DOT). Under the provisions of the reorganization plan and agreements made pursuant to the plan, HUD and DOT will establish formal and continuing procedures for developing and executing joint program responsibilities in urban transportation. In addition, procedures for close coordination of research, development, demonstration, training and technical studies between the two departments have been established.

1. Research, development, and demonstrations.—The residual authorities to HUD under sections 6 and 11 of the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964 enable HUD to make contracts and grants to assist in establishing and carrying on comprehensive research and investigations into problems of urban transportation as they relate to comprehensive urban development or increase understanding of transportation system and service impacts on urban areas.

Grants under this program usually provide for some matching assistance from grantees.

Approval of 27 projects for $5,750 thousand is anticipated for 1969, while approval of 28 projects for $5,750 thousand is anticipated for 1970.

2. Technical studies.—Federal assistance is provided to public bodies to study the external effects of particular proposed transportation services and the resulting relationships of such services and systems to the comprehensively planned development of the urban community. Grants may be up to two-thirds of net project cost. Approval of 10 projects for $1.5 million is anticipated in 1969, while approval of 17 projects for $2 million is anticipated in 1970.

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

For necessary administrative expenses of programs of metropolitan development, not otherwise provided for, [$7,000,000] $8,000,000. (Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1969.)

This appropriation finances the cost of administration of metropolitan development programs including direct expenses of organizations supervised by the Assistant Secretary for Metropolitan Development and a related share of overall supporting expenses of the Department.

Descriptions of the programs involved are included in the narrative statements for each account under the head, Metropolitan Development. Administrative expenses of the Public Facility Loan Program and the Liquidating Program are paid from receipts of those revolving funds.

Interest-free advances to States and local public agencies and Indian tribes to finance the preparation of feasibility studies and local public works and facilities project plans are authorized by the Housing Act of 1954 (40 U.S.C. 462), as amended. The program is intended to help attain maximum economy and efficiency in the planning and construction of public works.

Advances are made only if it is intended to construct the project within a reasonable period of time. Projects must be in conformity with applicable State, regional, and local development plans. Advances are repayable when construction commences on the planned project, except in those instances where the construction was initiated under the Public Works Acceleration Act.

Budget program.—Net advances approved are estimated at $7.5 million for 1969 and 1970, respectively, which will provide 245 approvals for each fiscal year.

Financing.—The program is financed by a revolving fund authorized to aggregate a maximum of $128 million.

Operating results and financial condition.—A substantial increase in the program deficit is shown in 1968 as the allowance for losses was increased to recognize experience. A change in accounting policy during 1967 shifted previous write-offs of advances to the deficit, including those for which repayments were forgiven under the Public Works Acceleration Act (76 Stat. 541, 544 and 79 Stat. 451, 509). Allowances for losses are estimated at 85% on outstanding active plans for the first and second programs and at 25% of gross disbursements for the current program. The cumulative deficit at the end of 1970 is estimated at $66.7 million, of which $37.5 million represents this allowance.

The New Communities Act of 1968, title IV of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 (Public Law 90-448), authorizes guarantee of obligations issued by private developers to help finance the land acquisition and land development cost of new communities, provided that the proposed new communities meet the statutory requirements for planning and housing of low- and moderate-income families in a satisfactory manner.

The outstanding principal obligations guaranteed under this title with respect to a single new community development project shall at no time exceed $50 million.

Additional support may be available to the developer of new communities through the new community assistance grants program described above.

Budget program.—Net guarantee commitments are expected for at least one new community for demonstration purposes in 1969 and at least four new communities in 1970. The following table shows the relationship of this program to the guarantee authority:

Financing.—The Secretary must report to the Congress on or before January 1, 1970, concerning the fees and other charges which he estimates will be adequate to provide money sufficient for a self-supporting program.

Operating results.—The earnings of the fund will be retained against possible future losses.

The Housing Amendments of 1955, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1492) authorize direct, long-term loans to municipalities and other subdivisions and instrumentalities of States, and Indian tribes for financing construction of essential public facilities, and to private, nonprofit corporations for construction of water or sewer facilities in communities under 10,000. Loans are made only when credit is not otherwise available on reasonable terms and conditions.

The loan program is funded by a Treasury borrowing authorization aggregating $600 million. This authorization is adequate to finance the program through the period covered by this budget.

Communities with populations up to 50,000 are eligible for public facility loans, but the basic program extends priority to municipalities under 10,000 population for water, sewage, and gas distribution systems. Other eligible communities are those with populations up to 150,000 in redevelopment areas designated by the Secretary of Commerce and those where the National Aeronautics and Space Administration maintains research or development installations.

Public facility loans may run for as long as 40 years and must be of sound value or so secured as reasonably to assure repayment. Interest rates are based on a statutory formula holding the maximum rate to the higher of either 3% or 0.5% above the average rate on all interest-bearing obligations forming part of the Federal debt. The current interest rate is 5%.

Budget program.—Net loan approvals are estimated at $50 million in 1970. This will allow approval of an estimated 85 projects.

Financing.—Budget outlays are estimated at $50 million for 1969 and $31 million for 1970.

Operating results and financial conditions.—The estimated net loss of $3.9 million in the budget year is largely attributable to the $3.2 million loss on participation certificates. A $3.2 million appropriation holds the cumulative deficit at the end of 1970 to $16.2 million of which $11.7 million represents the allowance for losses.

The Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1955, established a single revolving fund for the more efficient liquidation of assets acquired under a number of housing and urban development programs as well as any other programs which might be transferred by subsequent legislation. Some $19.6 million in assets, with a net book value of $12.2 million, remained on June 30, 1968.

Out of property originally capitalized at $2.5 billion, some $415 million has been transferred to other agencies and programs and $902 million will have been recovered and returned to the Treasury by the close of 1970. The following schedule shows the Government's investment at the close of the respective years (in thousands of dollars):

Title I of the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 (Public Law 89-754) authorizes a program of financial assistance to help cities plan, administer, and carry out coordinated physical and social programs to improve the environment and the general welfare of people living in slum and blighted areas. Federal grants are authorized to cover up to 80% of the cost of planning and developing model city programs. This assistance may be provided only if: (1) the application for such assistance has been approved by the local governing body of the city; and (2) the Secretary has determined that there exists administrative machinery through which coordination of all related planning activities of local agencies can be achieved, and that there is evidence that the necessary cooperation of agencies engaged in related local planning can be obtained.

With the completion of a sound comprehensive plan, a model city becomes eligible for supplementary grants to carry out special projects or activities and to supplement the assistance available under other grant-in-aid programs. The amount of these supplementary grants can be up to 80% of the total non-Federal contributions required for all projects or activities assisted by other Federal grant-in-aid programs which are carried out as a part of a model city program.

To assist cities during the planning and action stages of their programs, the act authorizes the Secretary to provide technical assistance directly or by contract to city demonstration agencies. In 1969, contracts will be entered into with selected institutions and agencies which can provide necessary skills and furnish technical assistance to the cities. This activity will be expanded in 1970 to increase the range of specialized assistance to be made available to the cities, including contracts to assist the cities and the Department in evaluating the effectiveness of city programs.

During the action phase of the program, the act authorizes the Secretary to make grants to city demonstration agencies to pay up to 80% of the cost of administering approved comprehensive model city programs.

In 1967, 193 cities applied for planning grants. Seventy-five of these cities were selected and will be completing their planning and become eligible for supplementary grants and expanded assistance under existing grant-in-aid programs in 1969. A second group of cities was approved for planning grants during 1969; these cities are expected to become eligible for supplementary grants on completion of planning in 1970.

In 1968 and 1969 a special authorization was made available for urban renewal projects and activities which are specifically identified and scheduled to be carried out within approved model city programs. This amount is in addition to supplementary grant funds described above and to regular urban renewal projects included in such programs. In 1970, funds will be supplied through the regular Urban Renewal appropriation.

The Department of Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 directs the Secretary to conduct comprehensive studies, and to make available findings with respect to the problems of housing and urban development. The Housing Acts of 1948 and 1956 and the Demonstration Cities and Metropolitan Development Act of 1966 also authorize a program of research into housing, urban technology, metropolitan growth, and urban problems.

The program involves research directed at basic areas of urban development and which are the direct responsibility of the Department. These include decent housing, adequate and efficient local public facilities and services, the physical and social environment of urban communities, and the management of governmental activities in community development. Studies will also test and demonstrate innovations which promise cost reductions and more systematic ways of solving problems of housing and community development, as well as encourage and promote the acceptance and application of new and improved techniques and methods of constructing, rehabilitating, and maintaining housing and advancing the state of urban technology.

1. Contracts, studies, and performance of research.—The program for studies and research is carried out primarily through contracts with other Federal agencies, educational institutions, nonprofit private research organizations, and private corporations. When economy and effectiveness would be served, studies may be carried out by staff of the Department or by a combination of staff and contract work, as best suits the problem.

2. Housing and urban data services.—Statistical data series reflecting current conditions and changes in the housing and mortgage markets of the country are necessary to help in policy formation by the Secretary and top officials of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. They also help builders, lenders, and materials producers to gear production to the areas of effective demand in the market and thus to act as an influence toward stability in the housing segment of the economy.

Title XVI of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 makes mandatory an annual report by the President to Congress starting with 1969. The report will deal with progress toward the goal of providing, during the next decade, by construction or rehabilitation, 26 million housing units, including 6 million for low and moderate income families. The report must indicate the number of new or rehabilitated housing units which will have to be provided, with or without Government assistance, in order to achieve objectives of the plan; indicate the reduction in the number of occupied substandard housing units that will have to occur each year; provide an estimate of the cost of carrying out the plan for the various programs; and make a projection of mortgage market needs and prospects during the coming year, including an estimate of the requirements with respect to the availability, need, and flow of mortgage funds.

3. Administrative expenses.—This activity covers the costs of the Office of Urban Technology and Research in connection with the general planning, supervision, and direction of the research program. The office must develop, review, and evaluate specific research proposals, monitor and evaluate research activities, and other activities related to the direct performance of research. The activity includes costs in connection with administering related research activities, such as under the low income housing demonstration grant program, urban renewal demonstrations, urban planning research and demonstrations, surveys of public works planning, and studies and publications under the open space land program. In addition, the activity includes a related share of certain overall supporting expenses of the Department.

LOW INCOME HOUSING DEMONSTRATION PROGRAMS

1. Study of housing and building codes, zoning, tax policies, and development standards.—The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (42 U.S.C. 1456) required a study of housing and building codes and zoning and tax policies, which was conducted by a Commission selected by the President. The study, completed December 16, 1968, includes review of: (1) State and local urban and suburban housing and building laws, standards, codes, and regulations and their impact on building costs; (2) State and local zoning and land use laws, codes, and regulations; and (3) Federal, State, and local tax policies with respect to their effect on land and property cost and on incentives to build new housing and make improvements in existing structures.

2. Natural disaster study.—Section 5 of the Southeast Hurricane Disaster Relief Act of 1965 (79 Stat. 1301) authorized a study of alternative programs which may help provide financial assistance to those suffering property losses in flood and other natural disasters. The study reviews possible alternative methods of Federal disaster insurance. Recommendations on a flood insurance study were submitted during 1967. Findings on earthquake insurance are due by June 30, 1969.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (12 U.S.C. 1701s) authorizes rent supplement payments to owners of certain private housing on behalf of qualified low-income tenants. Housing owners eligible for contracts with a maximum term of 40 years are private nonprofit groups, cooperative, or limited dividend owners who provide housing financed primarily with market interest rate mortgages insured by FHA under the program for low- or moderate-income families. In an experimental program under section 101(j) of the act contracts are made with a limited number of owners of projects financed with below-market interest rate mortgages. Such mortgages are held by the Government National Mortgage Association with respect to housing for low- and moderate-income families and by the Housing Assistance Administration with respect to housing for the elderly or handicapped.

To be eligible for rent supplements, a tenant cannot have an income higher than the maximum limits that can be established for occupancy of federally aided low-rent public housing in the same area. In addition, the tenant must be either elderly, physically handicapped, displaced from his home by governmental action, living in substandard housing, or an occupant or former occupant of a dwelling damaged or destroyed by a natural disaster.

These tenants are required to pay 25 percent of their income for rent. Rent supplements making up the difference between this amount and full economic rent will be paid to the project owner on behalf of the tenant. As the tenant's income rises, the supplement payments will be reduced.

Budget program.—The maximum annual rent supplement payments which may be provided for in rent supplement contracts are limited to the aggregate amounts approved in annual appropriation acts. The limit on the amount of contracts for annual payments was increased by $30 million for 1969 providing a total limit of $72 million. Approval of an additional $100 million increase is proposed for 1970 to support about 96,700 units. New construction and rehabilitation starts are expected to total 21,000 and 20,400 in 1969 and 1970, respectively, compared with 11,800 in 1968. Payments made under approved contracts are expected to total $12 million in 1969 on behalf of 19,400 tenants and $30 million on behalf of 45,100 tenants in 1970.

Administrative expenses of the Rent Supplement program, previously shown in this account, are now included in the account "Salaries and Expenses, Federal Housing Administration."

HOMEOWNERSHIP AND RENTAL HOUSING ASSISTANCE

For homeownership assistance payments, authorized by section 235, and for interest reduction payments as authorized by section 236 of the National Housing Act, as amended (82 Stat. 477 and 498), [$7,000,000] $69,000,000: Provided, That the limitation on total payments that may be required in any fiscal year by all contracts entered into under section 235 [shall not exceed $25,000,000] is increased by $100,000,000, and [by] the limitation on total payments under those entered into under section 236 [shall not exceed $25,000,000] is increased by $100,000,000. (Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1969.)

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorizes interest reduction payments to assist low or moderate income families in purchasing or renting new or existing housing which they could not otherwise afford. Under the homeownership assistance program, payments will be made to mortgagees on behalf of families purchasing their own homes to reduce the mortgage interest to as low as 1%. The homeowner will be required to make monthly payments totaling 20% of family income toward mortgage principal, interest, taxes, insurance, and mortgage insurance premium. Eligibility to participate in the program is generally limited to families whose incomes do not exceed 135% of the limits set for admission to low-rent public housing in the area. Family incomes are recertified at least every 2 years.

The rental housing assistance program provides comparable assistance for families in rental housing. Payments to the mortgagee reduce the monthly payment which the owner is required to pay for principal, interest, and mortgage insurance premiums to that which would amortize a mortgage with a 1% interest rate. Families are required to make rent payments amounting to 25% of income. In those cases where 25% of the tenant's income exceeds the amount needed to pay costs and amortize a 1% mortgage, the excess collections are to be returned by the project owner to the Secretary for deposit in a revolving fund for use for future assistance payments. No collections of excess rents are anticipated in 1970.

Budget program.—The maximum annual payments which may be provided under homeownership and rental housing assistance contracts are limited to amounts approved in annual appropriation acts. Contracts for annual payments of up to $25 million for each program were authorized in the Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1969. An additional $50 million for each program is proposed for separate transmittal during the current fiscal year. Approval of an additional $100 million for each program is requested for 1970. These authorizations would support a total of about 215,000 dwelling units in 1969 and 287,000 in 1970. New construction and rehabilitation starts are expected to total 16,100 and 177,200 in 1969 and 1970, respectively.

Payments under approved contracts are expected to total about $5 million in 1969, on behalf of about 29,700 homeowners and tenants. In 1970, about 156,600 families will be participating in the programs, and payments on their behalf are expected to total about $69 million.

This appropriation provides for costs of programs of mortgage credit which are not recovered through fees and other charges. This includes the following programs:

1. Counseling services to homeowners.—The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorizes budget and related counseling services for families of low and moderate income who cannot qualify under the usual FHA mortgage insurance underwriting standards because of a poor credit history, outstanding debt, or irregular income patterns, but would be reasonably satisfactory credit risks if they received counseling.

2. Assistance to nonprofit housing sponsors.—The new legislation also authorizes technical assistance to nonprofit organizations for the production and operation of low- and moderate-income housing, and provides for interest-free loans, not to exceed 80% of the reasonable costs expected to be incurred in planning the project. Funds for the loans are included in the "Low and Moderate Income Sponsor Fund."

3. Regulation of interstate land sales.—The Interstate Land Sales Full Disclosure Act provides protection to the public in buying or leasing subdivision lots. Basic information must be filed with the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development regarding any subdivision containing 50 or more lots before starting a sales program in interstate commerce. Examination of documents, property inspection, and enforcement activities will be required to assure compliance.

4. Administration of rent supplement program.—The administrative expenses of the rent supplement program include the negotiation of rent supplement contracts, certification of tenant eligibility, and disbursement of funds. Prior to 1970 these costs were covered by a separate appropriation included in the rent supplement program schedule.

Budget program.—The requirements for salaries and expenses to support the above activities in 1970 is $9,000,000.

The community disposition program was established by the Atomic Energy Community Act of 1955 (42 U.S.C. 2301) to dispose of federally owned properties at Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Richland, Wash. Los Alamos, N. Mex., was included by amendment in 1963 (76 Stat. 644). All property has been disposed of at Oak Ridge and Richland.

Budget program.—Disposal activity began at Los Alamos in 1966; it is expected that the remaining 50 properties will be sold in 1970. It is estimated that $1.7 million of purchase money mortgages will be written in connection with these sales. Sales of mortgages previously written are expected to total $7.2 million in 1970.

Operating results.—The deficit in the fund is expected to decrease from $14.9 million at the end of 1969 to $14.5 million at the end of 1970. Funds recovered and transferred to the Treasury are estimated to aggregate $77.5 million by the end of the budget year.

Assistance to nonprofit sponsors of low- and moderate-income housing is authorized by the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968. In addition to technical assistance, the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development is authorized to make interest-free loans to nonprofit organizations to cover 80% of preconstruction costs in connection with federally assisted low- and moderate-income housing. Such costs include reasonable expenses to be incurred in planning the project, including preliminary surveys, market analyses, preliminary site engineering and architectural fees, site acquisition, application and mortgage commitment fees, and construction loan fees and discounts. The loans will be repaid out of the first funds available from the insured mortgage.

Budget program.—It is estimated that loans totaling $5.4 million will be made in 1970 to 120 sponsors, to assist in planning 12,000 housing units. Of the total, $5 million will require new appropriation; the remainder will be available from repayments of previous loans.

Note.—Schedules for the following funds are presented in accordance with the requirements of the Government Corporation Control Act. The first paragraph of title III of the Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1969, relating to corporations, is shown in the other Independent Agencies chapter, p. 921.

The Federal Housing Administration, created by the National Housing Act of 1934, is a noncorporate business-type agency, subject to the Government Corporation Control Act. The principal purposes of FHA are to improve home financing practices, to encourage improved housing standards and conditions, to further homeownership, and to stabilize the mortgage market. These objectives are achieved through the insurance of loans for financing the production, purchase, repair, and improvement of residential properties.

FHA loan insurance was administered through 30 different active programs during 1968. The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 added insurance programs under four additional sections of the National Housing Act. In addition, maintenance and settlement work continues under nine programs for which the authority to insure additional loans has expired. The accompanying table identifies the various programs and shows the amount of insurance written and the amount in force at the end of 1968 under the individual programs.

For financial purposes, FHA programs are grouped under four separate insurance funds and accounts established by statute. Income from fees, premiums, and investments are credited to the funds; operating expenses and other expenses and losses connected with foreclosed property and defaulted notes and mortgages are charged to the funds. Through June 30, 1968, income had amounted to $4,451.5 million, and expenses, losses, and distributive share payments to $3,191.2 million, leaving a reserve of $1,260.3 million for the payment of future expenses and losses. Of the four insurance funds, the largest is the Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund covering home mortgages insured under section 203. The General Insurance Fund covers the insurance of loans on property repairs and improvements; multifamily housing, including cooperatives (except management-type cooperatives), condominiums, housing for the elderly, and nursing homes; on urban renewal and middle-income housing; on Armed Forces housing; and on war and defense housing. The Cooperative Management Housing Insurance Fund covers mortgages on management-type cooperatives insured under section 213. The Special Risk Insurance Fund was created by the Housing Act of 1968 to provide for mortgage insurance in certain special circumstances. This includes insurance written under relaxed requirements in certain urban neighborhoods; on behalf of a mortgagor who has not been eligible for FHA mortgage insurance but who, with counseling, is considered an acceptable credit risk; on behalf of a mortgagor receiving homeownership or rental housing assistance payments, and on a mortgage covering experimental housing where strict adherence to State or local building regulations is not observed. The Mutual Mortgage Insurance Fund and the Cooperative Housing Management Insurance Fund allow mortgagors, at termination of their mortgages, to share in a rebate of premiums paid into the fund which are not required for expenses or losses. Through June 30, 1968, participation payments had amounted to $196.7 million with $124.1 million reserved for future payments or losses.

Budget program.—Budget requirements for mortgage and loan insurance operations are embodied in (1) an administrative expense limitation covering those expenses of the central office related to the general direction of operations, the establishment of policies and procedures, and the provision of administrative management and services for the agency, and (2) a nonadministrative expense limitation covering the operating expenses of both the central office and the field related to the initiation of insurance, the maintenance of insurance on the books, and the settlement activities associated with the payment of claims; the acquisition, management, and disposition of mortgages and properties acquired under mortgage insurance contracts; and the liquidation of notes acquired in connection with claims under property improvement loan insurance contracts. Anticipated program developments for 1970 are summarized in the accompanying table, Program Highlights, along with estimates for 1969 and actual data for 1968.

Summary of operating expense estimates.—Operating expenses are paid out of operating income, subject to congressional limitation. Expenses for 1969 are estimated at $12.5 million for administrative operations and $100.3 million for nonadministrative operations. The 1970 estimate is $12.6 million for administrative expenses and $118.8 million for nonadministrative expenses.

Financing.—Insurance claims are paid either in cash or by the issuance of debentures. In 1968, $111.9 million of debentures were issued, and $55.5 million were redeemed. In 1969, $114.7 million of debentures will be issued and $51.6 million redeemed. Debenture issuances are expected to total $101.2 million in 1970, and redemptions will total $49.4 million. Home mortgage claims and multifamily housing claims under sections 220, 221, and 233 are now being paid in cash. Such payments are estimated at $512.1 million in 1969 and $607.6 million in 1970, compared with $461.4 million in 1968. Borrowings from the Treasury to finance cash payments are expected to total $20 million in 1969 and $38 million in 1970. No borrowings were necessary in 1968 and $15 million of prior borrowings were repaid.

Retained earnings.—Insurance reserves, available for the payment of future expenses and losses, amounted to $1,260.3 million at the end of 1968 and are expected to be $1,324.9 million by the end of 1969 and $1,440.9 million by the end of 1970.

Insurance authority.—Authorizations for active insurance programs expire October 1, 1969. In general, these authorizations are without dollar limitation, except as indicated in the following table:

Through September 30, 1968, this fund purchased and sold preferred stock in the Secondary market operations of the Federal National Mortgage Association and made loans to it as needed to support its operations involving the purchase of federally insured or guaranteed mortgages. On that date, the Association redeemed all preferred stock and became a private corporation owned by its common stockholders. All authority for investment in preferred stock of that corporation lapsed.

The fund is still authorized to make loans to the Association. Such loans have been made in the first few months of the Association's existence as a private corporation while it arranged lines of credit with commercial banks. After 1969 the loan authority will be used only in emergency situations.

The details of the conversion to a private corporation and the effect of conversion transactions on the budget are discussed in connection with the Secondary market operations fund on page 539. Since the loans outstanding to the Association at the time of conversion were not recorded as outlays to a nongovernmental institution, the repayment of such loans ($294 million) is not recorded as a receipt reducing budget expenditures.

All loans made to the private corporation after September 30, 1968 will be repaid in full prior to the end of 1969, resulting in no net outlays.

Note.—Schedules for the following funds are presented in accordance with the requirements of the Government Corporation Control Act. The first paragraph of title III of the Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1969, relating to corporations, is shown in the Other Independent Agencies chapter, p. 921.

The Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) may, when the President determines it is in the public interest, provide special assistance for the financing of: (1) selected types of home mortgages pending establishment of their marketability; and (2) home mortgages generally as a means of stabilizing homebuilding activities and hence of contributing to overall economic stability.

The Association is authorized under presidential authority to make commitments to purchase and to purchase FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgages totaling $3,504.9 million outstanding at any one time. At the end of 1968, the amount of special assistance authority for these purposes aggregated $2,974.6 million.

Changes in this authority in 1969 result from a transfer, pursuant to Public Law 89-117, approved August 10, 1965, of $5.3 million to the presidential authorization from the congressional authorization applicable to mortgages insured under title VIII of the National Housing Act; the transfer of an additional $5.3 million to the presidential authorization from the congressional authorization is estimated for 1970. Public Law 89-117 also provided an increase in authority, subject to presidential determination, of $100 million in 1966, $450 million in 1967, $550 million in 1968, and $525 million in 1969, but the 1967 authority was canceled by Public Law 89-429, approved May 24, 1966. The budget assumes the enactment of legislation which will defer from 1970 to 1971 the additional $500 million of special assistance functions authority provided in the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968.

The Congress has also authorized GNMA, without prior presidential determination, to issue commitments to purchase and to purchase specific types of mortgages. One of these congressional programs is for $225 million of cooperative housing mortgages insured under section 213 of the National Housing Act, as amended. Another congressional program provided authority for $500 million of mortgages insured under title VIII of that act, covering housing for military personnel and civilian employees. Public Law 89-117 authorized the transfer from this authority to the presidential authority of all but $58.75 million, which is reserved for mortgages on owner-occupied homes insured under section 809 of the National Housing Act. Public Law 89-566, approved September 10, 1966, authorized GNMA under its special assistance functions to purchase $1 billion of FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgages on low-cost single family homes. Mortgages purchased under this authority are confined by law to new construction and may not exceed $15 thousand in original principal amount ($17,500 in high-cost areas, and $22,500 in Alaska, Guam, and Hawaii). Funds needed to implement the program were provided by a transfer of $500 million from the President's authority and by $500 million in new obligational authority. An earlier congressional program for FHA-insured and VA-guaranteed mortgages of $13,500 or less, covering low- and moderate-priced housing on which construction had not commenced at the time application was made for Government National Mortgage Association's commitment, was terminated by Public Law 87-70. Of the $1 billion authorized for this earlier program, the unused portion of $207.2 million was transferred to the presidential authority, and the remainder is rescinded as purchased mortgages are liquidated.

Budget program.—Commitments to purchase mortgages are estimated to total $784.6 million in 1969 and $715 million in 1970. Purchases, which lag well behind commitments, are estimated to total $580 million and $525 million in 1969 and 1970, respectively. Commitments and purchases in both years are primarily for below-market interest rate mortgages on rental and cooperative housing for moderate-income families. Purchases in 1969 also include substantial amounts for low-cost housing mortgages on which commitments were made in 1968.

In addition, in order to assure sponsors that funds will be available for purchase of certain mortgages upon completion of the related housing projects, the FHA reserves or makes preliminary allocations of amounts not in excess of GNMA's authorization for purchases. In 1969 and 1970, this reservation procedure will be used for below-market interest rate mortgages covering housing for moderate-income families or financing the purchase and rehabilitation by nonprofit organizations of deteriorating or substandard housing for subsequent resale to low-income home purchasers.

The new rental housing assistance program will provide housing with lower rents than this below-market interest rate mortgage purchase program without requiring the Federal Government to finance the full capital cost. During 1969, the new program will begin to replace the mortgage purchase program. However, to assure that planning for new housing continues without interruption so that future year housing starts can meet established goals—$500 million of commitment authority, plus amounts recovered from cancellations of reservations, including cancellations by sponsors converting their projects to the new program, will be used in 1969 for reservations for below-market interest rate mortgage purchases. If Congress provides enough rental assistance program authority sufficiently before the end of the year, the full $500 million of additional commitment authority will not be used. In 1970, reservations will be limited to amounts recovered from cancellations. These reservations in turn may be converted to the new program as additional authority is provided in future years. At June 30, 1968, reservations which had not been converted to GNMA commitments to purchase amounted to $1,014.7 million, and are expected to decrease to $814.7 million in 1969 and to $174.7 million by 1970.

Sales of $1.3 million were made directly from portfolio in 1968. No sales are estimated during the years 1969 and 1970.

Mortgage purchase prices under these functions are set by the Association; they currently range from 99½ to 100.

Participations.—Under the program of liquidating the mortgage portfolio through the sale of beneficial interests or participations in mortgages, the Association sold $200 million in 1965, $475 million in 1966, $300 million in 1967, and $250 million in 1968 of participations involving the portfolio of its special assistance functions. No such sales are projected for 1969 or 1970. This program is more fully explained under the Participation sales fund.

Under the law (sec. 302c of the National Housing Act, as amended by Public Law 89-429, approved May 24, 1966) receipts from these sales are treated as proceeds from sales of loans and thus restore the Association's authority to purchase additional mortgages. For the purposes of budget presentation, such sales are treated as increases in authority to purchase mortgages.

Financing.—Net borrowings from the Treasury were $351.9 million in 1968 and are estimated at $566 million in 1969 and $517 million in 1970.

Operating results.—Previously, earnings were retained and paid into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury following the year earned. A payment of $188.8 thousand was made in 1957, and another payment of $2,444.7 thousand was made in 1958. In order to protect the Association against losses inherent in a portfolio of this size, earnings will be retained and accumulated for so long as may be warranted. The following table shows the cumulative amounts at the end of the years covered by these estimates (in thousands of dollars):

Earnings to June 1968.....	117,820
Dividends paid Treasury (1957-58).....	-2,634

The losses projected for 1969 and 1970 result primarily from insufficiencies with respect to outstanding certificates of participation. These insufficiencies represent primarily the excess of interest due on the certificates over the interest earned on the underlying mortgages. The following table shows the derivation and financing of the insufficiencies (in thousands of dollars):

The Association, under its management and liquidating functions, is required by law to manage and liquidate its initial mortgage portfolio and those other mortgages, loans, or obligations that have been or may be acquired from authorized sources (Public Law 89-117, approved Aug. 10, 1965). Such liquidation is to be conducted in an orderly manner, with a minimum of adverse effect upon the home mortgage market and minimum loss to the Federal Government. Liquidation of the portfolio is accomplished through regular principal repayments according to their amortization schedules, by sales of mortgages as rapidly as they can be absorbed by private investors without serious disruption of normal market conditions, and as the result of other principal credits arising from prepayments and foreclosures.

The initial mortgage portfolio in this activity consisted of mortgages on hand at, or purchased under contracts made before, November 1, 1954. Certain additional mortgages, loans, and other obligations may be acquired for this portfolio from the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development, and residential housing mortgages may also be acquired from any Federal instrumentality from time to time, pursuant to the provisions of Public Law 89-117.

Budget program.—Purchases of mortgages under contracts made prior to November 1, 1954, for this portfolio, were completed during 1958.

In 1968, GNMA purchased $512.8 million of mortgages from the Federal Housing Administration under these functions. During 1968 and 1969, purchases of these mortgages are estimated at $250 million and $60 million, respectively.

No direct sales of mortgages were made during 1968 and none are estimated for 1969. Sales of $312.5 million of mortgages are projected for 1970.

Financing.—These functions are financed principally by Treasury borrowings, portfolio liquidations, and sales of participations in mortgage pools. Net borrowings from the Treasury were $212.9 million in 1968 and are estimated at $45 million in 1969. In 1970, $300 million of borrowings will be repaid to the Treasury.

The Association sold $215 million in 1968 and $140 million in 1969 of beneficial interests, or participations, in pooled mortgages of this portfolio. No sales are estimated for 1970. Principal repayments on pooled mortgages were used to redeem certificates of participation on maturity in the amount of $8.7 million in 1968, and redemption of $58.7 million and $112.7 million are expected in 1969 and 1970, respectively. This method of financing is more fully explained under the participation sales fund.

Operating results.—Net income amounted to $8.2 million in 1968. It is estimated that a net loss of $1.9 million will occur in 1969 primarily because of the insufficiencies resulting from interest on outstanding participation certificates in excess of interest on the underlying pooled mortgages. A loss of $3.5 million is estimated for 1970, resulting from $4.7 million in discounts on mortgages sold.

The following tables shows the financing of insufficiencies on participation certificates (in thousands of dollars):

Retained earnings reserved for insufficiencies and other losses and contingencies amounted to $114.7 million at the end of 1968 and are estimated at $112.8 million and $109.3 million, respectively, for 1969 and 1970. Reductions in the amount of retained earnings at the end of 1962, 1963, 1964, and 1965 resulted from payments from earnings of $40 million, $25 million, $15 million, and $15 million, respectively, to the U.S. Treasury, amounts which were considered to be in excess of the Association's needs for losses and contingencies. No payment to the Treasury out of earnings is projected for 1969 and 1970.

The Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968 authorizes the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) to guarantee the timely payment of principal and interest on trust certificates or other securities issued by the Federal National Mortgage Association, or other financial institution approved for this purpose, and based on and backed by a trust or pool composed of FHA-insured or VA-guaranteed mortgages.

Budget program.—During 1969 it is estimated that GNMA will issue guarantees on securities totaling $500 million. Guarantees of mortgage-backed securities are estimated at $2.5 billion in 1970.

Financing.—Fees and other charges will be assessed insurers of guaranteed securities to cover costs incurred by GNMA in connection with the guarantees and to establish a reserve against possible future payments of claims under the guarantee. Fees are initially expected to be set at about 0.1% per annum of the principal amount of securities issued, to be paid at the time of guarantee. The Association may borrow from the Treasury as necessary to meet requirements of the guarantees.

Operating results.—No claims are anticipated during the budget period. Fee collections are expected to exceed expenses by $1.5 million by the end of 1970. This amount will be retained to cover future year expenses and as a reserve against losses.

Title III of the National Housing Act, as amended by the Housing Act of 1964, the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965, and the Participations Sales Act of 1966, authorizes the Association, under its management and liquidating functions, to create trust or other fiduciary undertakings to facilitate the financing of mortgages and other loan obligations owned by Government agencies. Under this authority, the Association creates trusts providing for pools of these loan obligations and sells to private investors participations in the interest and principal collections on such obligations, in principal amounts not exceeding the unpaid principal amounts of the obligations placed in the pools.

Sales of certificates of participation in these pools are shown in the budget schedules of the trustor agencies originally owning the loan obligations as borrowing from the public for the purpose of financing loan portfolios. Collections on the pooled obligations are transferred to the Association as trustee and retained in the participation sales fund and invested until distributed to the holders of participation certificates in accordance with the terms of the trust agreement. At that time, they are redistributed to trustor agencies for payment of interest and retirement of the certificates. Interest is paid semiannually, and principal on the certificate maturity dates.

Under the 1964 legislation there was created the Government Mortgage Liquidation Trust, holding mortgages from the portfolios of the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) and the Veterans Administration and issuing participation certificates amounting to $1,790 million. Under the 1965 legislation, there was created the Small Business Obligations Trust which issued certificates totaling $350 million against loans of the Small Business Administration. Under the 1966 legislation, there was created in 1967 the Federal Assets Liquidation Trust, and there were sold in 1967 and 1968 certificates amounting to $3.23 billion against loans from the Department of Housing and Urban Development (including GNMA), the Veterans Administration, the Small Business Administration, the Farmers Home Administration and the Office of Education. In 1968, there was created the Federal Assets Financing Trust, holding loans from the same five agencies plus the Public Health Service, and selling certificates in 1968 and 1969 totaling $4.25 billion. No additional sales are projected in 1969 or 1970. The operations of all the trusts are combined into a single set of schedules for budget presentation.

In connection with sales of participations made since June 30, 1966, the law provides that in the event collections on the pooled obligations are insufficient to cover required distributions, the trustor agencies shall pay to the Association, as trustee, amounts equal to the insufficiencies. Such insufficiencies result principally from interest rates on obligations placed in the pools which are lower than the interest rates specified on participation certificates, and from administrative and other costs, net of investment income from the trusts. Appropriations for such insufficiencies are authorized as described in the accounts of the trustor agencies in their respective portions of this document.

The sales of participations in pools of loan obligations and the retirement of participation certificates are summarized in the following table (in millions of dollars):

The Federal National Mortgage Association under its secondary market operations was established to provide limited liquidity for Government insured and guaranteed mortgages and improve the distribution of investment capital available for home mortgage financing. This assistance to the secondary market for mortgages is provided by the purchase and sale of mortgages that are insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans' Administration, or rural housing loans that are insured by the Farmers Home Administration of the Department of Agriculture, including participation therein, that are of such quality, type, and class as meet, generally, the purchase standards imposed by private institutional mortgage investors. Purchases and sales are made at such prices and on such terms that reasonably prevent excessive use of the Association's facilities and permit the Association to operate on a fully self-supporting basis.

The Association is authorized by the National Housing Act to make short-term loans secured by these Government insured and guaranteed mortgages and loans. Such short-term loans are intended to further home construction by providing a degree of liquidity for mortgage investments and, generally, to provide supplementary assistance to the home mortgage market.

The secondary market operations of the Federal National Mortgage Association were initially capitalized by the issuance of $92.8 million in preferred stock to the Secretary of the Treasury. Subsequently, additional preferred stock subscriptions by the Secretary of the Treasury were authorized, amounting to $50 million (Public Law 85-10, approved March 27, 1957), $65 million (Public Law 85-104, approved July 12, 1957), and $110 million (Public Law 89-566, approved September 10, 1966). As at September 30, 1968, $163.8 million of preferred stock was outstanding.

Private capitalization for these operations was accumulated pursuant to the statutory requirement that sellers of mortgages or loans to the Association were required to make payments into capital in the form of subscriptions for common stock equal to not more than 2% nor less than 1% of the unpaid principal amounts of the mortgages and loans involved, as determined from time to time by the Association, taking into consideration conditions in the mortgage market and the general economy. Borrowers from the Association were required to make capital contributions equal to not more than one-half of 1% of the amounts borrowed.

Financing.—The Association was authorized to finance its secondary market operations in part through borrowing from the public on the security of nonguaranteed debentures and short-term discount notes. Such obligations could not exceed the lesser of: (a) 15 times the sum of the capital and surplus applicable to these operations; or (b) the sum of the following assets (free from any liens or encumbrances): cash, mortgages, loans, other security holdings and obligations of the United States or guaranteed thereby, and obligations, participations, or other instruments which are lawful investments for fiduciary, trust, or public funds. The Secretary of the Treasury was authorized to purchase such obligations in an amount not exceeding $2.25 billion outstanding at any one time.

Budget program.—During the first 3 months of 1969, while it was partly owned by the Government, the Association purchased $298 million of mortgages. Cash receipts partly offset disbursements for the purchase of mortgages and other costs, resulting in net outlays of $148 million for this period.

Conversion to private ownership.—The authorizing statute originally contemplated that the secondary market operations would ultimately be completely owned and financed by private participants. To that end, the Association's secondary market operations were converted during 1969 into a Government-sponsored privately owned corporation with the retirement, on September 30, 1968, of preferred stock held by the Secretary of the Treasury, having a par value of $163.8 million. The retained earnings, amounting to $54 million, considered to have been earned on the Government's investment in the secondary market operations, were paid to the Treasury on that date. As a privately owned corporation, these operations will be able to raise money in the private capital markets and support the secondary mortgage market unconstrained by considerations which control the Federal budget.

The conversion to private ownership significantly reduced both the loans outstanding and the agency debt outstanding in the Government's central accounts. Under ordinary circumstances, such transactions would be recorded as a reduction in budget outlays. However, only a sum equal to the amounts paid to the Treasury to redeem Government held preferred stock and to return retained earnings attributable to the Government's investment has been so credited in the budget accounts; the remainder of the conversion credits have been reported as items outside the budget totals (applied primarily to reducing the outstanding Federal debt), as follows:

The Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968 (title XI of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968) added to the National Housing Act, as a new title XII, the National Insurance Development Program. This program provides reasonable access to basic and essential property insurance in urban areas, especially those believed to be subject to the risk of riot and civil disorder.

The program encompasses cooperative action by insurance companies, State governments, and the Federal Government. First, private insurers, working together and with the State insurance authority, will establish in each State a statewide plan to provide property owners in urban areas an opportunity to obtain basic property insurance; such a plan is usually referred to as a FAIR (Fair Access to Insurance Requirements) plan. Second, each State, if the benefits of Federal assistance are to be made available, must enact legislation providing for a sharing of the insured losses resulting from riots and civil disorders. Third, the Federal Government provides an opportunity to spread the risk on a Nation-wide basis through reinsurance to private carriers backed by authority for borrowing or appropriations from the Federal Treasury. The National Insurance Development Fund is credited with all premium and other receipts and is available for payment of claims and administrative expenses. A borrowing authorization of $250 million is provided through title V of the National Housing Act, and provision is also made for the appropriation of funds if necessary. The fund is subject to the provisions of the Government Corporation Control Act applicable to wholly owned Government corporations.

For 1970, claims have been provisionally estimated to equal premium receipts.

Note.—This statement excludes unfunded contingent liabilities under the insurance program as follows: 1969, $112,500 thousand; 1970, $337,500 thousand.

The National Flood Insurance Act of 1968 (title XIII of the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968) authorizes a cooperative program by the Federal Government and the private insurance industry to provide flood insurance on a national basis. Coverage will be available first for 1-4 family residential property in areas which have been surveyed and for which the risks have been estimated. Coverage may subsequently be extended to small businesses and to other types of property. Additional areas will be added as surveys are completed and risks estimated. The face amount of flood insurance outstanding at any given time may not exceed $2.5 billion.

Private insurance companies will sell and service flood insurance policies. Those which wish to participate as risk-bearers will commit risk capital to an industry pool, which will cover a share of operating expenses and of losses. Companies participating in a non-risk-bearing capacity will act as fiscal agents for the pool.

To make flood insurance available at reasonable rates to property owners in flood-prone areas, a reduced premium (currently estimated at about 25% of the full risk premium) will be charged to those now owning property in such areas. This reduced premium will be available only for existing property. Subsequent construction or improvements will be covered only at the full actuarial cost. To the extent necessary to pay claims, the Federal Government will cover that proportion of the losses represented by the difference between the reduced premium and the full cost of insurance through premium equalization payments. The occurrence of flood damage resulting in claims is unpredictable; therefore, no payments are estimated for either 1969 or 1970. The Government will also cover a share of the operating expenses of the pool, and in return for a premium, will provide reinsurance coverage to the industry pool as a protection against catastrophic losses.

Budget program.—1. Insurance underwriting expense.—This represents the Federal Government's share of the costs to the flood insurance pool of initiating insurance on 10,000 and 30,000 dwelling units in 1969 and 1970, respectively.

2. Administration.—This represents the administrative expenses of the Federal Government.

3. Special studies.—In 1970, this represents primarily the costs of surveying and mapping flood hazard zones in 80 areas and conducting risk estimating studies in 40 areas.

Financing.—The Secretary is authorized to borrow up to $250 million from the Treasury to carry out the insurance program. No borrowings are estimated to occur in either 1969 or 1970. Administrative expenses, including the cost of special studies, are paid from appropriated funds.

The total amount included an appropriation to the Secretary of $575 thousand, and transfers of $25 thousand from amounts available for administering the low-rent public housing program and $100 thousand from the limitation on administrative and nonadministrative expenses of the Federal Housing Administration. In addition, $19 thousand in reimbursements were available from the Federal National Mortgage Association. Work is expected to be completed in 1969.

The Housing Act of 1964, as amended by the Participation Sales Act of 1966, authorizes the pooling of mortgages or other types of obligations of certain Government departments or agencies and the sale by the Government National Mortgage Association, as trustee, of beneficial interests, or participations, in such pools. The Participation Sales Act of 1966 provided that the aggregate amount of participations issued for the account of any trustor may not exceed the amount authorized for that trustor in an appropriation act. In 1967 and 1968, appropriation acts for the Department of Housing and Urban Development authorized sales of $1,420 million and $2,385 million, respectively. Sales of $1,420 million were made in 1967 and $1,605 million in 1968. The $780 million unused balance of the 1968 authorization was used for sales early in 1969.

The Participation Sales Act of 1966 also authorized the establishment of appropriations to cover payments for insufficiencies in the amounts required to be paid by the trustors on account of outstanding participations. These insufficiencies are comprised primarily of the excess of interest payments to holders of participation certificates over the interest payments received from the pooled mortgages or other obligations. For sales authorized in 1967, the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1967, established a permanent, indefinite appropriation to cover insufficiencies. For sales authorized in 1968, the Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Acts for 1968 and 1969 established annual, definite appropriations for the payment of insufficiencies. The 1970 budget continues the practice of providing a definite appropriation for the insufficiencies authorized in the 1968 act.

Sales of participations and use of the indefinite and definite insufficiency appropriations are reflected in the following trustor accounts: Housing for the elderly or handicapped fund; College housing loans; Public facility loans; and Government National Mortgage Association, Special assistance functions and Management and liquidating functions fund.

A supplemental appropriation for 1969 is anticipated for payments required by the Government National Mortgage Association, as trustee, to meet insufficiencies of interest on participation certificates sold for the account of the Department of Housing and Urban Development under the authority of the Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Act, 1968. Amounts already appropriated, and other sums available to meet insufficiencies, will not be sufficient to cover the difference between the interest on the certificates and interest collections on the underlying loans. For the purposes of budget presentation, the full supplemental requirement is shown in the schedule for the College housing fund.

This fund finances on a reimbursable basis administrative type services which can be performed more advantageously on a centralized basis. The fund, authorized by section 7(f) of the Department of Housing and Urban Development Act of 1965 (79 Stat. 670), was established in June 1968.

Budget program.—The main activities are printing and reproduction, central supply, communication services, data processing, graphic services, and training. The printing and reproduction activity handles all printing including in-plant, GPO, and private contract work. Central supply handles all procurement for the Department, develops programs for storage of supplies and equipment, and manages personal property. Communication includes telecommunications and the correspondence and mail function, primarily. Data processing includes complete ADP services to program operations and to such administrative functions as departmental payroll, personnel, finance and accounting, budgeting, nonexpendable property inventories, and related common services. Graphics provides photographic and design services along with preparation of visual presentations, displays, exhibits, illustrated visual aids, and administrative management graphics (charts, maps, diagrams, etc.). Training encompasses the major training areas of executive development, middle management and professional, program training orientation, career/occupational, office skills, and other training such as the urban intern annual conference and urban intern training materials.

Financing.—As authorized in the Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1968 (Public Law 90-121), $1,500 thousand was transferred in 1968 from the unobligated balance of the Revolving Fund for liquidating programs to provide capital for the Working Capital Fund. An appropriation of $5,750 thousand is requested in 1970. About $5 million is for replacement of the main large scale computer currently in use. The balance of the request is for related data processing equipment.

Legislation is proposed to defer until 1971 the $500 million increase in authority to purchase mortgages which otherwise would automatically become available in 1970 under the Housing and Urban Development Act of 1968, but which is not needed to support program operations budgeted for 1970.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 102. Where appropriations in [this title] titles I and II of this Act are expendable for travel expenses of employees and no specific limitation has been placed thereon, the expenditures for such travel expenses may not exceed the amounts set forth therefor in the budget estimates submitted for the appropriations: Provided, That this section shall not apply to travel performed by uncompensated officials of local boards and appeal boards of the Selective Service System; to travel performed in connection with the investigation of aircraft accidents by the Civil Aeronautics Board; to travel performed directly in connection with care and treatment of medical beneficiaries of the Veterans Administration; or to payments to interagency motor pool where separately set forth in the budget schedules.

SEC. 103. No part of any appropriation contained in [this title] titles I and II of this Act shall be available to pay the salary of any person filling a position, other than a temporary position, formerly held by an employee who has left to enter the Armed Forces of the United States and has satisfactorily completed his period of active military or naval service and has within ninety days after his release from such service or from hospitalization continuing after discharge for a period of not more than one year made application for restoration to his former position and has been certified by the Civil Service Commission as still qualified to perform the duties of his former position and has not been restored thereto.

Sec. 104. No part of any appropriation made available by the provisions of [this title] titles I and II of this Act shall be used for the purchase or sale of real estate or for the purpose of establishing new offices outside the District of Columbia: Provided, That this limitation shall not apply to programs which have been approved by the Congress and appropriations made therefor. (Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1969.)

Sec. [301] 401. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act, or of the funds available for expenditure by any corporation or agency included in this Act, shall be used for publicity or propaganda purposes designed to support or defeat legislation pending before the Congress.

Sec. [302] 402. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act, or of the funds available for expenditure by any corporation or agency included in this Act, shall be used to pay the compensation of any employee engaged in personnel work in excess of the number that would be provided by a ratio of one such employee to one hundred and thirty-five, or a part thereof, full-time, part-time, and intermittent employees of the corporation or agency concerned: Provided, That for purposes of this section employees shall be considered as engaged in personnel work if they spend half-time or more in personnel administration consisting of direction and administration of the personnel program; employment, placement, and separation; job evaluation and classification; employee relations and services; wage administration; and processing, recording, and reporting.

Sec. [303] 403. Appropriations and funds available for the administrative expenses of the Department of Housing and Urban Development shall be available in the current fiscal year for purchase of uniforms, or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902); hire of passenger motor vehicles; and services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109.

Sec. [304] 404. Funds made available for the Department of Housing and Urban Development under title III of this Act shall be available, without regard to the limitations on administrative expenses, for legal services on a contract or fee basis, and for utilizing and making payment for services and facilities of Federal National Mortgage Association or Government National Mortgage Association, Federal Reserve banks or any member thereof, Federal home-loan banks, and any insured bank within the meaning of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Act, as amended (12 U.S.C. 1811-1831).

Sec. [305] 405. None of the funds provided herein shall be used to pay any recipient of a grant for the conduct of a research project an amount equal to as much as the entire cost of such project.

Sec. [306] 406. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

Sec. [307] 407. None of the funds in this Act shall be available to finance interdepartmental boards, commissions, councils, committees, or similar groups under sec. 214 of the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1946 (31 U.S.C. 691) which do not have prior and specific Congressional approval of such method of financial support [ , except that during the fiscal year 1969, appropriations of interested departments and agencies made in this and other appropriation Acts shall be available, in aggregate amounts not to exceed those listed herein, for contributions toward expenses of the following committees: President's Council on Youth Opportunity, $357,000; Interagency Committee on Mexican-American Affairs, $485,000; U.S.—Mexico Commission for Border Development and Friendship, $300,000; National Council on Indian Opportunity, $100,000].

[Sec. 308. No part of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be used to pay the salary of any Federal employee who is convicted in any Federal, State, or local court of competent jurisdiction, of inciting, promoting, or carrying on a riot, or any group activity resulting in material damage to property or injury to persons, found to be in violation of Federal, State, or local laws designed to protect persons or property in the community concerned.] (Independent Offices and Department of Housing and Urban Development Appropriation Act, 1969.)

DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

PUBLIC LAND MANAGEMENT

Federal Funds

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

The Bureau of Land Management is responsible for the conservation, management, and development of some 453 million acres of the Nation's public lands. This includes some 278 million acres of federally owned lands, which are located in Alaska.

In addition, the Bureau administers mining and mineral leasing on other federally owned lands, on former Federal lands where minerals have been reserved in public ownership, and on the submerged lands of the Outer Continental Shelf.

The work of the Bureau produces revenue from various sources which is distributed as follows (in millions of dollars):

Total.....	6,125	6,747	7,217

Title, lease, and records service.—Provides realty, leasing, and records services necessary: (1) to support Federal programs, (2) to meet obligations to the general public under existing legislation, (3) to support the land classification effort, and (4) to conduct the mineral leasing program for onshore lands and the Outer Continental Shelf (OCS). Included are increased efforts for the oil shale title clearance program and for economic evaluation of mineral resources leased on the OCS.

Records improvement.—The modernized records system will be completed for Oregon; efforts are underway for Idaho; and work has started for the northern land district of California.

Land classification and mineral examination.—Provides realty services to the public and field examination and classification for lands petitions-applications, realty transactions, mining and mineral leasing activity, classification for multiple-use or disposal, lands inventory and analysis, and prevention and detection of trespass. Increases are included for additional effort in oil shale title clearance and to improve land appraisals.

Range management.—Provides efforts to improve utilization of rangelands available for grazing by livestock and wildlife and constituting the watersheds of western river basins. Efforts to develop and implement allotment management plans, which incorporate advanced grazing systems, will be continued.

Forestry.—Forest management provides a sustained yield of timber to meet national and regional demands for wood products and to contribute to the economy of timber dependent communities. Reforestation and stand improvement are undertaken to maintain the production base and improve quality of yields. In 1970 timber volume of 1.5 billion board feet will be offered in western Oregon and other public domain areas. Receipts from timber sales are estimated to be $60.5 million. Increases are included for accelerated forest resource inventory and trespass control work in western Oregon.

Soil and watershed conservation.—Public lands constitute major watershed areas of western river basins. This subactivity provides efforts to halt deterioration from erosion, to hold soil on-site, to improve vegetative cover, to augment water penetration into groundwater storage reserves, to improve water quality by reducing pollution and sediment runoff, and to reduce destructive flood runoff.

Fire protection.—Provides contract and force account protection of public land resources and improvements from the risk of loss by wildfires. Increases will permit additional replacement of obsolete firefighting equipment and improvement of the operation and maintenance of the radio communications system, as well as equipping and operating the new facilities of the Boise Interagency Fire Center at Boise, Idaho.

Recreation and wildlife.—Provides for fish and wildlife habitat management studies and planning; fish and wildlife development and improvement; and recreation management, planning, and site investigations on Bureau-administered lands.

Alaska.—Surveys are performed of lands selected by the State for transfer under the Alaska Statehood Act, for native townsites, for native allotments, and for other special purposes.

Other States.—Surveys are performed to obtain positive land identification as a prerequisite to resource management and improvement. Resurveys are often required to reestablish lost corners.

4. Firefighting and rehabilitation.—Provides for the suppression of fires on or threatening the resources of the public lands under Bureau jurisdiction. Rehabilitation of burned over areas is accomplished to restore land productivity and preserve watersheds. A supplemental appropriation for 1969 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

5. General administration.—Provides executive direction and general administrative services, such as financial management, personnel management, management analysis, procurement, and property management to support

Bureau activities. The increase will provide for the additional services required by the increased 1970 program.

1. Construction.—Buildings.—The necessary buildings and appurtenant facilities, such as office buildings, warehouses, equipment storage buildings, fire stations and lookouts, district yards, parking areas, and housing in isolated areas, are constructed to carry out Bureau programs. The 1970 program provides for construction of the third phase of the Boise Interagency Fire Center at Boise, Idaho. Survey and design work is also included.

Recreation facilities.—Recreation facilities for family camping, picnicking, and other outdoor recreational activities are constructed on public land sites receiving heavy public recreational use as campsites, picnic areas, hunter camps, fishing spots, etc. These facilities provide safe and attractive camping and picnicking units, potable water, and sanitary facilities to protect public health and safety as well as to prevent stream pollution and fire damage to resources. The 1970 program will provide 55 family units at two sites.

2. Maintenance.—Buildings.—Provides for maintenance of physical facilities such as buildings, warehouses, equipment shelters, fire stations, and lookouts.

Recreation facility operation and maintenance.—Provides for the operation and maintenance of developed recreation facilities, the Johnny Horizon antilitter campaign, and the cleanup of litter and trash from undeveloped recreation sites. Increases will provide additional operation and maintenance of new facilities, and an expanded Johnny Horizon antilittering campaign, and cleanup program at undeveloped recreation sites and at unauthorized dump sites, and to enlist the help of local groups in litter prevention and cleanup.

Road maintenance.—Provides for preventative and corrective maintenance on the public lands access roads under Bureau jurisdiction.

1. Expenses, sale of timber, etc., reclamation lands.—A portion of the receipts from timber sales on public lands set aside for reclamation purposes is used to cover the cost of sales (41 Stat. 202; 53 Stat. 1196).

2. Leasing of grazing lands.—State, county, and privately owned grazing lands that are intermingled with public grazing lands are managed on a leased basis within the limits of receipts from such arrangements (43 U.S.C. 315m).

3. Payments to Oklahoma (royalties).—The State of Oklahoma is paid 37½% of the Red River oil and gas royalties in lieu of State and local taxes on Kiowa, Comanche, and Apache tribal funds to be used for construction and maintenance of public roads and support of public schools (44 Stat. 740).

4. Payments to Coos and Douglas Counties, Oreg., from receipts, Coos Bay Wagon Road grant lands.—Out of receipts from the Coos Bay Wagon Road grant lands in Oregon, payments in lieu of taxes are made to Coos and Douglas Counties for schools, roads, highways, bridges, and port districts (53 Stat. 753, 754).

5. Payments to counties, Oregon and California grant lands.—A portion of the receipts of Oregon and California land-grant funds is paid the counties in which the lands are situated, to be used as other county funds (39 Stat. 218; 50 Stat. 876).

6. Payments to States (grazing fees).—The States are paid 33⅓% of the fees from each grazing district on Indian lands ceded to the United States within the States' boundaries (43 U.S.C. 315j).

7. Payments to States (proceeds of sales).—The States are paid 5% of the net proceeds from sale of public land and public land products (31 U.S.C. 711).

8. Payments to States from grazing receipts, etc., public lands outside grazing districts.—The States are paid 50% of the grazing fee receipts from public domain lands outside grazing districts (43 U.S.C. 315i, 315m).

9. Payments to States from grazing receipts, etc., public lands within grazing districts.—The States are paid 12½% of grazing fee receipts from grazing district lands within their boundaries (43 U.S.C. 315b, 315i).

10. Payments to States from grazing receipts, etc., public lands within grazing districts, miscellaneous.—The States are paid specifically determined amounts from grazing fee receipts from miscellaneous lands within grazing districts when payment is not feasible on a percentage basis (43 U.S.C. 315).

11. Payments to States from receipts under Mineral Leasing Act.—Alaska is paid 90% and other States 37½% of the receipts from bonuses, royalties, and rentals resulting from development of mineral resources under the Mineral Leasing Act (30 U.S.C. 191), and from leases of potash deposits (30 U.S.C. 285), on public lands.

12. Payments to counties, national grasslands.—Of the revenues received from the use of submarginal lands, 25% is paid to the counties in which such land is situated, for school and road purposes (7 U.S.C. 1012).

13. Expenses, Public Land Administration Act.—Public Law 86-649, approved July 14, 1960, permanently appropriated certain moneys to the Secretary of the Interior. Timber purchasers or permittees provide bond or deposit to assure fulfillment of contracts. Users of roads under jurisdiction of the Bureau of Land Management may make deposits for maintenance purposes. Moneys received in forfeiture of such bonds or for road maintenance are available for necessary forest improvement, protection, and rehabilitation and for road maintenance. Moneys

BUREAU OF INDIAN AFFAIRS

The Government of the United States in fulfilling its responsibilities to the American Indians provides equal opportunities for developing and utilizing the Indians' complete potentials and capabilities. The President of the United States outlined to Congress, March 6, 1968, the needs of the Indians and the actions required to fulfill the Nation's obligation to these citizens. The objectives are:

—A standard of living equal to that of the country as a whole.

—An opportunity to remain in their homeland, if desired, without surrendering their dignity, or to move to the towns and cities of America equipped and trained with skills to live in equality and dignity.

—Full participation in modern American life with a full share of economic opportunity and social justice.

The Bureau of Indian Affairs provides guidance and leadership for achieving these objectives. This effort requires close collaboration and cooperation with the Indian communities, other local communities, the States, and other Federal agencies.

1. Educational assistance, facilities, and services.—The Bureau operates Federal school facilities where public schools are not available or cannot meet the special needs of Indian children. Financial assistance is extended to public schools enrolling Indian children where tax-free Indian lands result in financial problems for the local districts and where other special problems exist that are not covered by Federal impact legislation, administered by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare. Grants are also made to Indian students attending college. In 1970 kindergartens will be established and operated for reservation Indian children by both the public and the Federal school systems. Federal school plans for 1970 include provisions for increased boarding school enrollment, additional kindergartens, upgrading the quality of programs designed to meet the special educational needs of these children, school boards, expanded summer program activities, and initiation of a research and evaluation program. The numbers of children enrolled in the Federal schools and those receiving college aid are as follows:

4. Soil and moisture conservation.—Land-use practices based on land inventories and soil conservation plans are introduced to control erosion and promote more effective utilization of soil and water resources.

5. Maintenance of roads.—The Bureau of Indian Affairs maintains a system of roads on 155 reservations in 21 States totaling 18,054 miles.

6. Development of Indian arts and crafts.—Production and marketing of the products of Indian crafts are fostered through formation of production groups, establishing standards, and improving markets, designs, and production methods.

7. Management of Indian trust property.—Banking services are provided for Indians; land is purchased, sold, exchanged, and leased; and Indian property and money rights are safeguarded. Consolidation or disposal of fractionated land holdings, especially in those areas affected by readjustment legislation, is accomplished.

8. Repair and maintenance of buildings and utilities.—Bureau physical plant facilities and their related utility and communication systems located throughout the United States including Alaska are maintained.

9. Operation, repair, and maintenance of Indian irrigation systems.—Approximately 300 irrigation systems serving about 833,000 acres of Indian and mixed-ownership lands are operated and maintained. About 59% of the cost is financed from collections from water users, leaving approximately 41% to be met from funds appropriated under this activity.

This fund and miscellaneous tribal funds provide the only source of financing for those Indians who cannot borrow from other Government credit agencies or from ordinary commercial lenders because of their low-economic status, isolated geographic location, lack of bankable security, or for other reasons (25 U.S.C. 70n-1; 443; 470; 470a; 473a; 482, 506, and 931). Loans are made to tribes and other Indian organizations for relending to individual members and groups of members, to finance tribal business enterprises; and to help tribes attract industries to operate in localities that will promote the economic development of the Indians. Loans are also made to tribes for use by them in obtaining expert assistance for the preparation and trial of claims pending before the Indian Claims Commission. Direct loans are made to cooperative associations and individual Indians for any purpose that will promote the economic development of the borrower, including loans for educational purposes.

The 1970 budget request for administration of Territories finances general administration costs as well as costs of operating the Office of the Governor of the Virgin Islands, the Office of the Governor of Guam, and the Office of the Governor, Legislature, and Judiciary of American Samoa.

In addition, the appropriation request includes $7.5 million to continue the Guam Rehabilitation Program, authorized by Public Law 90-511, approved September 24, 1968.

Also requested are grant funds in the amount of $6.5 million for the Government of American Samoa. The most significant programs in the budget year include those for education and medical services, and public works.

Public Law 90-497 established a new office of Comptroller for Guam, and Public Law 90-496 changed the source of funding for the Comptroller for the Virgin Islands, whose salaries and expenses are to be paid, respectively, from funds which would otherwise be covered into the Treasury of Guam and grants which would otherwise be paid to the Virgin Islands.

Under the terms of the Trusteeship Agreement between the United States and the Security Council of the United Nations, the United States exercises full jurisdiction over the territory and is obligated to promote the political, economic, and educational advancement of the inhabitants. These responsibilities are carried out through the Department of the Interior.

The Trust Territory, with a population of about 92,000 persons, comprises 2,141 islands scattered over 3 million square miles of ocean in three major archipelagos, the Mariana, Caroline and Marshall Islands. The land area totals 700 square miles.

1. High Commissioner's office.—This office provides executive direction for the development programs and the administration of all the territory.

2. Judiciary.—Provision is made for the high court of the Trust Territory, the court of appeals, and the lesser courts of the territory.

3. Grants.—The cost of operating the government of the territory is provided by Federal grant appropriations and local revenue. These costs are distributed as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Geological Survey provides basic scientific data concerning water, land, and mineral resources, and supervises the prospecting, development and production of minerals and mineral fuels on leased Federal, Indian and Outer Continental Shelf lands.

1. Topographic surveys and mapping.—Topographic maps portray the elevation, shape, and position of the natural and manmade features of the earth's surface. These maps, at various scales, are a fundamental part of the background information required to inventory, develop, and manage the natural resources of the country. They also have numerous other uses such as the location and development of highways and lines of communications, urban planning, and military and civil defense. It is estimated that topographic surveys and mapping completed during 1969, added to surveys already available, will result in a total of about 2,852,000 square miles of coverage (about 80.3% of the United States) in either the 7½- or 15-minute standard map series. In addition, it is expected that about 22,000 square miles of existing coverage in the 15-minute series will be resurveyed for the 7½-minute series. During 1970, mapping of about 90,000 square miles of previously unsurveyed or inadequately surveyed areas in the United States will be started. In addition, about 40,000 square miles of revision will be added to the program and about 135 special maps at various scales will be published. In fiscal year 1970 increased emphasis will be placed on mapping the urban and urbanizing portions of the standard metropolitan statistical areas, especially the larger cities of over 250,000 population.

2. Geologic and mineral resource surveys and mapping.—The continuing national program of geologic research and investigations produces: (a) new or improved methods, techniques, and instruments for mineral exploration on land and on the submerged continental margins; (b) geologic, geophysical, and geochemical maps that show the distribution, age, composition, structure, and physical properties of the rocks and mineral deposits at and beneath the surface of the earth including the Nation's continental shelves and slopes; (c) information on the chemistry and physics of the earth and the geologic processes by which it was formed and is being continually modified; and (d) geologic data that are directly applicable to urban development, land utilization, and the solution of land construction problems. The diverse studies underway and planned in this activity provide knowledge essential to intelligent exploration and utilization of our natural resources. The 1970 program provides increases for appraisal of oil shale and associated mineral resources, and for analysis and planning of an earthquake hazards reduction program.

3. Minerals discovery loan program.—In order to help find new sources of many of our essential minerals that are in short supply, the Federal Government is continuing to provide financial assistance to private industry for promising exploration projects.

4. Water resources investigations.—The program includes determinations of the flow and sediment discharge of rivers, location and amount of underground waters, chemical quality and temperature of waters, changes caused by nature and by man, availability and suitability of water supplies for present and future demands—all of which provide water data essential to planning and water management. Research is conducted to increase our understanding of fundamental principles of water occurrence, movement, and interaction with its environment, and also to increase the accuracy and usefulness of water data by improvements in technology. Funds requested for 1970 will be used to accelerate the Geological Survey's activities under Bureau of the Budget guidelines for coordination of Federal activities in acquisition and dissemination of water data; strengthen the nationwide effort in basic-data collection and analysis; continue the automation of data services to provide better service to users, and the development and application of instruments and techniques for improved data; conduct research on basic principles, especially in the fields of geochemistry, geophysics, limnology, glaciology, geomorphology, sedimentology, ground-water hydrology; continue support of education and training in hydrology, and timely publication of water data and results of investigations. Increased funds are requested in 1970 for expanding the Federal-State program in data-deficient segments of the national water-data system; for flood-plain delineation in urban areas vulnerable to flooding; for planning for water-use data acquisition; for accelerated implementation of the national plan for coordinating data acquisition; for research and experimentation in artificial recharge; for evaluation of ground-water potential in broad regions; and for studies in urban hydrology.

5. Soil and moisture conservation.—This program provides land management agencies of the Department of the Interior with basic hydrologic and geologic data needed for maintenance and improvement of the productive value of public lands.

6. Conservation of lands and minerals.—This program provides for (a) the classification of Federally owned lands for the leasable minerals and sites for development of water resources and (b) the supervision of prospecting, development, and production of minerals and fuels from leased Federal, Indian, and Outer Continental Shelf lands. Mineral classification complements leasing and supervision by determining whether leases which issue shall be competitive or noncompetitive, thus in effect ascertaining the legally applicable royalty rates. Classification also identifies the areas of mineral rich public land which, as such, are available for competitive lease, and it retains the ownership of leasable minerals in the Government in event of surface disposal of public mineral lands. Supervision of oil and gas and mining operations insures the safe and orderly development and optimum recovery of the Nation's leasable mineral resources and an equitable royalty return to the United States and the Indians from mineral development of leased lands. The marine mineral resource evaluation program provides information for improving the management of the Outer Continental Shelf through good business practices. It incorporates evaluation of geologic data from drilling on leased lands with geophysical data from exploration on all lands to provide definitive scientific knowledge on which to base minimum acceptable bids for new offshore lease tracts offered for sale. The program also provides basic geologic and engineering data essential to good conservation practices and efficient utilization of offshore oil and gas resources. Federal and Indian mineral leases are expected to produce minerals valued at about $2.6 billion in 1969 and $2.8 billion in 1970. Royalties in those years are expected to amount to $330 million and $360 million, respectively. Demands for land classification services by other executive agencies are expected to average about 40,000 reports per year through 1970.

lead-time processing equipment, necessary for experimentation to determine efficient methods of analysis and correlation of satellite-acquired data to meet development and management needs of resource programs.

Reimbursable obligations.—Reimbursements from non-Federal sources are from States and municipalities for making cooperative topographic and geologic surveys and water resources investigations (44 Stat. 963), proceeds from sale to the public of copies of photographs and records (43 U.S.C. 45), proceeds from sale of personal property (40 U.S.C. 481(c)), reimbursements from permittees and licensees of the Federal Power Commission (16 U.S.C. 797), and reimbursements from friendly countries and international organizations for technical assistance (22 U.S.C. 2357). Reimbursements from other Federal agencies (31 U.S.C. 686) are for special-purpose mapping, investigations, and computer services performed at the request of the financing agency, much of which contributes to the basic objectives of the Geological Survey.

An unobligated balance of $400 thousand is carried forward each year to pay the expenses of reimbursable work pending collection from cooperating agencies. This advance is not available for obligations.

Lead and zinc stabilization.—This program provides for payments on lead and zinc ores and concentrates in order to stabilize the mining of lead and zinc by small domestic producers. Present legislation for the program expires December 31, 1969 (Public Law 89-238).

Payments are computed for lead at 75% of the difference between 14½ cents per pound and the average market price for the month in which the sale occurs, and for zinc at 55% of the difference between 14½ cents per pound and the average market price for the month in which the sale occurs. The total amount of payments which may be made in each calendar year of the program is limited as are the tons of lead and zinc on which payments may be made.

Payments from proceeds, sale of water.—When lessees or operators drilling for oil and gas on public lands strike water, water wells may be developed by the Department from proceeds from the sale of water from existing wells (30 U.S.C. 221-229). No obligations are anticipated in 1970.

Provision is made for conserving, evaluating, and developing mineral resources.

1. Research.—(a) Coal.—Scientific research is carried out on the chemical and physical properties of coal and lignite and their preparation, combustion, carbonization, and gasification. Research is emphasized on the development of methods for reducing or eliminating industrial air pollution caused by sulfur oxides released to the atmosphere during combustion of fossil fuels. The 1970 estimate provides for scaling up research on a new coal hydrogenation process. Funding will be provided by elimination of certain research work on coal preparation and utilization.

(b) Petroleum.—Research is conducted to conserve petroleum and natural gas resources by improving the processes of recovery and utilization and to promote improved efficiency in processing and use of raw materials produced from these resources. Research will be continued on fuel combustion and utilization as related to air pollution by automotive emissions. The work is carried out in cooperation with Federal and State agencies and with industry associations and is partially supported financially by many of these agencies and associations.

(c) Oil shale.—Research is carried out on oil shale to determine the composition of the various products obtainable, to test the applicability of those products to different uses, and to determine the basic chemistry and physics essential to the development and evaluation of new retorting concepts. The 1970 estimate provides for an expansion of research on extraction of minerals associated with oil shale and an increase in oil shale processing and waste disposal research.

(d) Metallurgy.—Research is carried out seeking improved processes for extracting metals and nonmetals from their ores and for reducing and recovering mineral wastes. Multidiscipline investigations develop better methods to recover metals by physical, chemical, and electrical techniques and find means to produce superpure materials. A parallel effort integrates the structure of metals, alloys, and ceramic compounds with optimum preparation and utilization. Basic to all investigations is fundamental research to delineate the physical and thermodynamic properties of materials and to analyze the rates and mechanics of high-temperature chemical and metallurgical reactions. The 1970 estimate provides for a slight reduction in this activity.

(e) Mining.—Research effort applies physics and mining engineering principles to all phases of mineral mining. Fundamental studies range from the physical nature of rock structures through the application of rock mechanics to exploration, development, and operational problems of mining. Highly specialized research is conducted on the mechanisms of penetrating and breaking rock. The problem of ground control which is attacked by developing methods of stabilizing underground openings and techniques for designing efficient open-pit slopes is of prime importance. Work will continue on extension of applied rock mechanics studies into coal mines to develop engineering principles required for safe economic physical design of modern coal mining systems, engineering application of results of previous studies in underground metal mines, and studies of nature and behavior of rock and rock masses in relation to the mining processes. A research program will be initiated to develop a technology necessary for abating the hazards from mining in a methane environment.

(f) Marine mineral mining.—Research is devoted to the conception, development, testing, and evaluation of instruments and hardware of undersea mining. Investigations are concerned with the nature and extent of oceanic deposits and the mining and processing of materials recoverable from such deposits. The 1970 estimate provides for a 40% reduction in the marine mineral mining program.

(g) Explosives.—Research is conducted to provide information and guidance to industry, other Federal agencies, and State and local governments on safe handling and use of commercial explosives and blasting agents; the safety characteristics of explosives certified for use in underground coal mines; the hazards of gas and vapor explosives from flammable liquids and/or gases; and the means of controlling fires in mineral fuels and their products.

2. Resource development.—(a) Statistics.—Mineral statistical programs and systems are carried out. Reports on mineral production and consumption are issued for use of Federal, State, and local government agencies, the press, professional and technical publications, and industry. Modernization of data collection and processing will be continued by electronic automation of selected statistical surveys.

(b) Economic analysis.—Economic information concerning mineral supply and demand, tariffs, taxes, trade, and other economic matter is furnished to Government and industry to aid in planning industry and Government research efforts, and industry expansion and investment.

(c) Bituminous coal.—Comprehensive technical and economic information is provided for guidance in the optimum recovery, processing, and utilization of coal reserves; and for maximizing efficiencies in the production, transportation, and utilization of coal and related products. Guidance is provided for technological and economic research as related to methods of extraction and preparation, to methods and problems of marketing, and to techniques of combustion and utilization.

(d) Anthracite.—Resource investigations are directed to the development of engineering and economic data on anthracite required by Government, industry, and the general public to assist in promoting the economic well-being of the Pennsylvania anthracite industry; to increase the safety of mining operations through proper control and drainage of anthracite mine water; and to find efficient methods to eliminate hazards to public health and safety such as obnoxious burning and nonburning waste deposits and other problems brought about by past mining practices.

(e) Petroleum.—Technical and economic studies are designed to provide the accurate and complete picture of the location, extent, and utilization of energy resources contained in petroleum, natural gas, and marginal bituminous substances. Present and possible future trends in production, technology, and practices and their effects on various sectors of the petroleum and natural gas industries will be considered and evaluated on a continuing basis.

(f) Minerals.—Resource investigations are made of mineral deposits to gain better knowledge of the location, quantity, quality, and recoverability of specific mineral resources. Investigations of marginal or submarginal mineral deposits are aimed at determining possible future utilization. Economic forecasting is undertaken, with special attention to the generally growing but shifting demand for mineral commodities, to help guide industrial, business, and Government planning and assistance in the direction of mineral research. During 1970, the Bureau will initiate a small mine-mapping project of past mined areas in order to safeguard against future subsidence damage.

(g) International activities.—Technical and economic data on foreign mineral resources, production and consumption, and international trade are compiled and analyzed for Government use in coping with problems of mineral supply and to assist industry in planning domestic and foreign minerals ventures.

1. Inspections, investigations, and rescue work.—The objectives for 1970 are to: (a) Inspect, at least once annually, every active underground coal mine, take action in accordance with Federal Coal Mine Safety Act to require compliances with its mandatory provisions, and exert special effort to gain compliance with safety recommendations; (b) inspect annually, or as necessary, all strip and auger coal mines and report on observed hazards with appropriate corrective recommendations; (c) inspect metal and nonmetallic mines in accordance with the Federal Metal and Nonmetallic Mine Safety Act; and (d) conduct investigations of serious accidents in coal, metal, and nonmetallic mines and make recommendations to reduce working hazards, safeguard the health of workers, and promote efficiency in the mineral industries. The Bureau encourages accident-prevention education through safety organizations, exhibits, safety film production, demonstrations, instructions by Bureau personnel in accident prevention, and first aid and mine rescue methods. Grants are made to States to assist them to promulgate safety programs in coal mines.

2. Control of fires in coal deposits.—Fires in inactive or abandoned coal deposits are controlled or extinguished. Expenditures in connection with fires in active coal mines are limited to investigations and research.

3. Health and safety research.—Research is conducted on the support of mine roof and control of overburden, ventilation of mines, methods of allaying harmful and combustible airborne dusts, preventing accumulations of combustible dusts, preventing underground fires, safe blasting practices, and safe electrical installations. Other research is directed toward developing mining procedures and devices to avoid, detect, or control those aspects of mining and the working environment which involve potential personal hazards to mine workmen and physical hazards to mine operations. Various machines and devices are tested for use in mines and plants where explosive or harmful gas or dust may be liberated or encountered. The 1970 estimate provides for expansion of the Bureau's health research activities in order to combat the debilitat-

Funds appropriated in 1956 (69 Stat. 460) will be expended in 1969 on a matched-fund basis with the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania for the conservation of anthracite coal resources and the prevention of flooding and damage to surface lands or structures through flood control and anthracite mine drainage. The Act of July 15, 1955, was amended by the Act of October 15, 1962 (76 Stat. 934), to further provide for the filling of voids in abandoned coal mines in the interest of public health and safety.

Funds for Appalachian Region Mining Area Restoration were transferred out in 1968.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Appropriations and funds available to the Bureau of Mines may be expended for purchase of not to exceed [forty-nine] forty-eight passenger motor vehicles for replacement only; purchase and bestowal of certificates and trophies in connection with mine rescue and first-aid work: Provided, That the Secretary is authorized to accept lands, buildings, equipment, and other contributions from public and private sources and to prosecute projects in cooperation with other agencies, Federal, State, or private: Provided further, That the Bureau of Mines is authorized during the current fiscal year, to sell directly or through any Government agency, including corporations, any metal or mineral product that may be manufactured in pilot plants operated by the Bureau of Mines, and the proceeds of such sales shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

ALLOCATIONS RECEIVED FROM OTHER APPROPRIATION ACCOUNTS

Note.—Obligations incurred under allocations from other accounts are included in the schedules of parent appropriations as follows:
"Appalachian Regional Development Program, FAP," transfer to Interior, Mines.
"Construction and Rehabilitation," Bureau of Reclamation.
"U.S. Dollars Advanced from Foreign Governments," U.S. Educational Exchange Program, State.

The objective of the Government's helium program is to obtain maximum beneficial use of the helium resources of the United States. To accomplish the stated objective, the helium fund is used for (a) the production and sale of helium for current beneficial use, (b) the acquisition and storage of helium that would otherwise be wasted, and (c) research and development on helium so that it can be used more beneficially now and in the future.

Acquisition and storage of helium represents about 80% of the total helium program expenditures. Funds to carry out the authorized program are obtained from two sources. About $27.4 million of the funds required will be obtained from income from helium sales and about $26.2 million by borrowings from the U.S. Treasury. Approximately 85% of the helium sales are to the Federal agencies, such as Department of Defense, NASA, and AEC.

Budget program.—Production of helium from the three Government-owned plants operated by the Bureau of Mines is estimated at 682 million cubic feet.

Sales of helium are estimated at 700 million cubic feet. The excess demand of 18 million cubic feet over pure helium production from Government-owned plants will be met by withdrawal and purification of about 18 million cubic feet of crude helium from storage.

Installation of the following items of processing equipment, contracted for in 1969, will be completed in 1970: (1) Helium purification equipment designed to reduce cost, increase efficiency, and meet the need for increased sales; (2) Gas processing facilities to remove most of the nitrogen from crude helium purchased for underground storage to reduce the total volume of mixture to be stored, thus increasing the net amount of helium that can be stored in the Cliffside gasfield; (3) Facilities to process gas from the Cliffside gasfield to insure suitable operation thereof and provide adequate storage space for crude helium.

Under existing long-term contracts, the Bureau of Mines will purchase an estimated 3.7 billion cubic feet of crude helium at a cost of $44.3 million from four private companies. The crude helium will be transported through the Bureau's pipeline to Government-owned underground storage near Amarillo.

The Helium Research Center will continue its program in basic and applied research at essentially the same level as in 1969. Emphasis will be placed on improvements in processes, production methods, purification, liquefaction, and utilization, in order to increase technical literature and knowledge of helium and helium-bearing gas mixtures.

Financing the budget program.—The entire program of production, sales, conservation, and research is financed from the Helium Fund. The sales price of helium has been set at an amount which is estimated to provide sufficient funds for payment of all expenses and repayment of an incurred debt, including interest, in carrying out the helium program. Total expenditures for 1970 are estimated at $53.6 million. Borrowings of approximately $26.2 million are needed to supplement the $27.4 million income from the sales of helium and related services to finance the overall program.

The 1969 estimate does not include $10 million in Government commitments for contract purchases of helium. It is anticipated that this amount will be provided by a supplemental appropriation which is proposed for separate transmittal.

Operating results and financial condition.—As of June 30, 1968, the Government's net investment in the helium program was $102.6 million ($250.5 million invested in plants, facilities, and stored helium, less $147.9 million owed to the U.S. Treasury in accordance with the Helium Act Amendments of 1960).

On June 30, 1970, the Government's net investment will be $135.7 million—an increase of $33.1 million since June 30, 1968, resulting from retained earnings accrued during 1969 and 1970.

The Office of Coal Research develops, through research, new and more efficient methods of mining, preparing, and utilizing coal and contracts for, sponsors, cosponsors, and promotes the coordination of, research with recognized interested groups (including, but not limited to, coal trade associations, educational institutions, and agencies of States and political subdivisions).

The Office of Coal Research is responsible for developing the full potentiality and versatility of coal as the Nation's largest energy resource to the maximum benefit of the United States. The Office is devoting its efforts to expand the use of coal through development of new uses as well as within presently known fields of utilization. The scientific and technical aspects of the program are performed through a program of contract research.

1. Administration and contract supervision.—This portion of the program performs all necessary functions relating to contracts. This includes drafting, negotiation, and execution of the contracts, together with review and monitoring of technical and administrative phases of the contract work. Proposals are evaluated to ascertain technical and economic feasibility and eliminate possible duplication with other work.

2. Contract research.—The entire research activity cited above as the responsibility of OCR is represented in the contract aspect of the OCR operation. Proposals received from, or discussions with, potential contractors relate to the prospective area of activity in which they have expressed interest and whether a project would be potentially duplicative, or would offer insufficient potential. Contract research activities are conducted with profit and nonprofit research organizations. Contracts vary from complete Government funding to joint funding. Only applied research and development projects are undertaken. Several have now reached the pilot plant phase of their development. No basic research or grant research programs are entered into.

1. Coordination of oil and gas activities.—This Office coordinates the implementation of Federal oil and gas policies, provides leadership and coordination for petroleum statistics within the Federal establishment, provides advice and assistance to Federal agencies and international organizations on all phases of petroleum and gas, and serves as the principal channel of communication between the Federal Government and the petroleum, gas, petrochemical, and allied industries. Studies, domestic and worldwide, are made to maintain data on adequacy of petroleum and gas, to define deficient areas or elements, and to develop ways to alleviate actual or potential deficiencies. The Department's program for emergency planning and readiness for the oil and gas industries and the recruitment, training, and assignment of 508 executive reservists for the Emergency Petroleum and Gas Administration are assigned responsibilities of this Office.

2. Administration of oil import program.—This appropriation finances the Oil Import Administration established March 13, 1959, pursuant to Presidential Proclamation No. 3279 as amended. The Administration establishes quotas for importers of crude oil and oil products under the mandatory quota system.

3. Oil Import Appeals Board.—The Oil Import Appeals Board has been established to conduct hearings on appeals from importers who request a change in their quota or who do not qualify for a quota.

1. Management.—This activity covers administration and enforcement of international agreements pertaining to fish and whales.

2. Marketing and technology.—This includes: (a) collecting and disseminating economic data on the fishing industry, including business trends and foreign trade; (b) exploring for fish and improving fishing gear and methods; (c) operation of market news offices; (d) compiling and publishing commercial fishery statistics; and (e) developing and demonstrating more efficient means of handling, processing, storing, and marketing fishery products.

3. Research.—Research is conducted: (a) on variations in abundance of important commercial food fishes and other aquatic animals; (b) on declining species and fishery resources; (c) on cultivation of aquatic animals, including shellfish; and (d) in the design of fish protective devices.

4. Research on fish migration over dams.—Investigations are conducted to determine factors influencing direction and rate of movement of anadromous fish over dams, for consideration in designing future dams.

5. Fishing vessel mortgage insurance.—This activity provides for administration of the fishing vessel mortgage insurance program, which aids financing of construction of fishing vessels.

6. Columbia River fishery development.—This activity covers costs of operation, maintenance, and alteration of hatcheries, fish screens, and fishways under the Columbia River fishery development program; and provides for management studies related to the program.

Funds for three of the above activities are supplemented from the permanent appropriation, promote and develop fishery products and research pertaining to American fisheries, and from the special foreign currency appropriation. These supplementary amounts are as follows (in thousands of dollars):

This fund is used for making loans to segments of the fishing industry unable to obtain commercial loans on reasonable terms for financing or refinancing the cost of purchasing, constructing, equipping, maintaining, repairing, or operating new or used commercial fishing vessels or gear. Loans now being made bear interest at 6% annually and mature in not more than 10 years. The act of July 24, 1965, Public Law 89-85, authorized extension and broadening of the program.

Budget program—Loans made.—As of October 31, 1968, a total of 2,152 applications amounting to $58.8 million had been received. Of these, 1,123 loans totaling $27.0 million had been approved and 523 applications amounting to $12.4 million had been declined.

Financing.—Appropriations of $13 million provide capital for the fund. Additional financing is provided from repayments and interest on outstanding loans.

1. Fish hatcheries.—Fish from 90 hatcheries help support inland fishery resources, principally on Federal lands and on Federal water development projects; four development centers and three training schools improve fish-cultural practice and technology; public visitor facilities and on-site recreation programs are provided on hatchery areas; and planning and research is provided for construction of a National Fisheries Center and Aquarium. An additional amount of $0.5 million is provided for this activity from the Corps of Engineers and $0.8 million from the Bureau of Commercial Fisheries.

2. Wildlife refuges.—In the 48 contiguous States, the Bureau manages 285 migratory bird refuges consisting of 3.8 million acres, 17 refuges established primarily for rare and endangered species of wildlife totaling 4.2 million acres, and two wildlife ranges containing nearly 1 million acres. This includes two new migratory bird refuges which will be put under management in 1970. In addition, there are nine migratory bird refuges, three rare and endangered species refuges, and five wildlife ranges in Alaska and a rare and endangered species refuge in Hawaii totaling 18.7 million acres. The national wildlife refuge system also includes nearly 180,000 acres in small tracts acquired under the Duck Stamp Act.

3. Soil and moisture conservation.—The program consists of the planning, application, and maintenance of conservation measures for the protection, stabilization, rehabilitation, control, and use of the soil, water, and vegetative resources on 150 national wildlife refuges comprising over 10 million acres.

4. Management and enforcement.—The Bureau enforces the Migratory Bird Treaty and Lacey Acts for protection of migratory birds and regulation of interstate and foreign shipments of game; conducts migratory game bird surveys and banding activities; and administers the Black Bass Act regulating shipment of fish across State boundaries.

5. Fishery research.—Research is conducted to provide information needed for improved methods of sport fishery management. The program includes: studies of the factors governing sport fish productivity in the natural environment, both marine and freshwater; studies of how hatchery fish can be produced more efficiently and used more effectively; studies of the effects of pesticides on fish and to develop methods of controlling fish that are pests. Results are used by Federal, State, and private fishery managers.

6. Wildlife research.—Research is conducted on game and nongame, resident, and migratory forms of wildlife. Results are used by the Bureau as well as cooperating Federal, State, and private agencies to improve wildlife management and conservation practices. Wildlife units are also maintained at 18 locations to give technical training in wildlife management, conduct research, and demonstrate improved management practices.

7. Fishery services.—Technical assistance is provided to Federal, State, Indian, and other public or private entities in management of sport fishing and fish propagation; 23 cooperative fishery units are operated at universities.

8. Wildlife services.—Operational and supervisory control programs are conducted where needed to alleviate damage caused by wildlife; and technical assistance is provided to Federal, State, Indian, and other public or private entities for enhancement of wildlife resources potential. State and local cooperator funds are expected to total $5.3 million in 1970.

9. River basin studies.—This activity covers studies of the effects on fish and wildlife resources of water-use projects of Federal agencies and licensees. Recommendations are made for measures to protect and improve these resources. A national inventory and survey of estuaries and Great Lakes is being conducted. Additional funds, totaling $2 million in 1970, are provided for this activity from the Bureau of Reclamation, Alaska Power Administration, and the Corps of Engineers for water-use studies.

10. Pesticide review.—Pesticidal formulations are reviewed to determine the actual or potential hazards to fish and wildlife from the proposed use of chemicals and recommendations for labeling are made. An automatic data processing system is maintained for retrieving pesticide research data. The activity includes monitoring of residues, field appraisals to evaluate potential hazards, and extension of information on fish and wildlife resources.

Funds for four of the above activities are supplemented by moneys appropriated under the permanent accounts,

Federal aid in fish restoration and management, Federal aid in wildlife restoration, and national wildlife refuge fund, as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Assistance is given to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, and the Virgin Islands by appropriation of funds for fish restoration and management equal to the revenue of the 10% excise tax on sport-fishing tackle and for wildlife restoration equal to the 11% excise tax on the manufacture of firearms and ammunition.

1. Federal aid in fish restoration and management.—States are reimbursed up to 75% of the cost of approved fish restoration and management projects, including research into fish culture, formulation of restocking plans, and acquisition and improvement of fish habitat (16 U.S.C. 777a-k).

2. Federal aid in wildlife restoration.—States are reimbursed up to 75% of the cost of approved wildlife restoration projects, including acquisition and development of land and water areas, and for wildlife management research (16 U.S.C. 669-669i).

The Refuge Revenue Sharing Act (16 U.S.C. 715s) authorizes the expenditure of revenues from the sale of products from the National Wildlife Refuge System.

3. National wildlife refuge fund.—After deduction of expenses, the net proceeds from sales of refuge products the larger of either 25% or 0.75% of the value of lands acquired in fee in case of each refuge is paid to counties in which refuges are located for benefit of public schools and roads. The remainder of the revenue is available for management of the refuge system and for enforcement of the Migratory Bird Treaty Act.

1. Management of park and other areas.—The estimate contemplates the administration of 270 park areas comprising about 27 million acres of federally owned land located in 45 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. The increase proposed is to provide for (a) administration of eight park areas and initial funding for the National Visitor Center project for which no funds (or only small token amounts) have heretofore been provided, (b) to improve law enforcement in existing park areas and in the National Capital Region, (c) to expand the program to promote domestic travel, and (d) payment to the Bureau of Employee's Compensation. Department of Labor, as required by Public Law 86-767, approved September 13, 1960.

The following tabulation shows the actual and estimated visitors, and general and special fund revenues collected by the National Park Service, including recreation fee revenues deposited in the Land and Water Conservation Fund:

	Fiscal year visitors	Fiscal year receipts
1968 actual.....	145,342,200	8,970,519
1969 estimate.....	158,310,800	9,513,687
1970 estimate.....	171,688,000	11,659,541

2. Forestry and fire control.—Vegetation such as forests, grasslands, desert shrubs, and tundra, totaling approximately 13.5 million acres, is protected from fire, destructive insects, diseases, and other preventable damage. The increase proposed will provide for fire protection in recently activated areas and improved fire protection in the older areas.

3. Park and recreation programs.—Studies are conducted to determine the significance and suitability of natural, historical, and recreational areas proposed for inclusion in the National Park System; to determine the boundaries of proposed areas; to recommend changes in existing park area boundaries as needed; and to make recommendations concerning the designation of wilderness areas within the parks. Assistance is provided other Federal agencies, the States, and their political subdivisions upon request, in general development planning, site planning, consultation on design, construction, operational matters and interpretive planning, and guidance in protection and preservation of historical and archeological values on lands involved. Staff direction and coordination is provided for the interpretive programs of all units of the National Park System. Studies and investigations are carried out leading to establishment and acquisition of rights to sources of water supply, and technical assistance is provided in acquiring lands and in solving problems relating to both normal and adverse uses made of the park lands. The Service participates in the negotiation of agreements with State and local government agencies for recreation administration on lands developed with Federal funds, conducts archeological investigations and salvage programs primarily in areas threatened by inundation through reservoir construction, and administers a program which gives formal recognition to natural landmarks of national significance.

1. Buildings, utilities, and other facilities.—The 1970 program is designed to continue the provision of essential facilities to meet visitor requirements in the older park areas and to initiate minimum development in newly authorized areas. A summary of the 1970 program by major type of construction follows (in thousands of dollars):

Camping and picnicking facilities.....	466
Public service and administrative units.....	3,524
Utilities.....	4,051
Employee housing.....	40
Miscellaneous.....	1,599
Total.....	9,680

2. Acquisition of lands and water rights.—Performance for 1969 contemplates completion of land acquisition authorized under this item in 1965 and prior fiscal year appropriations. The current land acquisition program is included in the budget of the Bureau of Outdoor Recreation under authority of the Land and Water Conservation Fund Act of 1965.

Rights to water must be obtained, frequently by purchase in many areas, for use of visitors and employees, and for fire protection.

4. Parkways and 5. Roads and trails.—The costs scheduled under these activities are against carryover balances of prior appropriations. The program authorized by title 23, United States Code, is obligated against the contract authority provided by that title and is shown under the Parkway and road construction (liquidation of contract authorization) appropriation.

6. Undistributed costs.—These costs represent end-of-year variations in clearing accounts involving operations such as automotive shops, corrals, and facilitating services. The costs are distributed to the various activities served based on predetermined rates. Such rates are studied and adjusted at least once annually to provide for adequate operations.

1. National Park Service, donations.—The Secretary of the Interior accepts and uses donated moneys for purposes of the National Park and Monument System (16 U.S.C. 6).

Donations amounting to $767,384 were received from 65 contributors during 1968. It is estimated that $500 thousand will be received during each of the years 1969 and 1970.

2. Advances from District of Columbia, National Park Service.—The National Park Service develops, administers, operates, and maintains the portion of the National Capital Parks system within the District of Columbia; it provides protection for the system through the enforcement of laws and regulations by the U.S. Park Police.

3. Preservation, birthplace of Abraham Lincoln, National Park Service.—This fund consists of an endowment given by the Lincoln Farm Association, and the interest thereon is available for preservation of the Abraham Lincoln Birthplace National Historical Site, Ky. (16 U.S.C. 211, 212). The amount of $2,540 was appropriated in 1968.

5. Jefferson National Expansion Memorial, contributions.—Pursuant to the act of May 17, 1954 (68 Stat. 98-100), as amended, the Secretary of the Interior is authorized to construct upon the Jefferson National Expansion Memorial National Historic Site, St. Louis, Mo., an appropriate national memorial to those persons who made possible the territorial expansion of the United States. Contributions are accepted from the city of St. Louis or other non-Federal sources in the ratio of $1 to each $3 of Federal appropriations.

WATER AND POWER DEVELOPMENT*BUREAU OF RECLAMATION

The Bureau plans, constructs, and operates facilities to irrigate lands, furnish municipal and industrial or other water supplies, and develop related hydroelectric power and flood control in the 17 Western States and Hawaii.

Appropriations to the Bureau are made from the general fund and special funds. The special funds are (a) the Reclamation fund, largely derived from certain irrigation and power revenue; receipts from the sale, lease, and rental of public lands; and certain oil and mineral revenue; and

(b) the Colorado River Dam fund, derived from the revenue of the Boulder Canyon project. The 1970 estimates are summarized by source, as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Federal Funds

General and special funds:

For carrying out the functions of the Bureau of Reclamation as provided in the Federal reclamation laws (Act of June 17, 1902, 32 Stat. 388, and Acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto) and other Acts applicable to that Bureau, as follows:

GENERAL INVESTIGATIONS

For engineering and economic investigations of proposed Federal reclamation projects and studies of water conservation and development plans and activities preliminary to the reconstruction, rehabilitation and betterment, financial adjustment, or extension of existing projects, to remain available until expended, [$15,948,500] $18,400,000, of which [$14,423,000] $14,900,000 shall be derived from the reclamation fund [and $500,000 shall be derived from the Colorado River development fund]: Provided, That none of this appropriation shall be used for more than one-half of the cost of an investigation requested by a State, municipality, or other interest: Provided further, That [$354,000] $375,000 of this appropriation shall be transferred to the Bureau of [Sports] Sport Fisheries and Wildlife for studies, investigations, and reports thereon as required by the Fish and Wildlife Coordination Act of 1958 (72 Stat. 563-565) to provide that wildlife conservation shall receive equal consideration and be coordinated with other features of water-resource development programs of the Bureau of Reclamation. (Public Works for Water and Power Resources Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1969.)

1. Plan formulation investigations.—These include reconnaissance, basin surveys, feasibility investigations, and special investigations throughout the 17 Western States to formulate resource development plans for basins and specific projects leading to authorization, including studies relating to the rehabilitation, financial adjustment, or water conservation on existing Federal reclamation projects.

2. General engineering and research.—Studies directed toward improvements in planning procedures and in engineering methods and materials. Included are studies of atmospheric water resources and suppression of losses due to evaporation as a means of increasing project water supplies.

3. Fish and wildlife studies.—These funds are transferred to the Fish and Wildlife Service for studies of the fish and wildlife aspects of reclamation projects in the planning stage, authorized for construction or under construction, exclusive of the Missouri River Basin.

CONSTRUCTION AND REHABILITATION

For construction and rehabilitation of authorized reclamation projects or parts thereof (including power transmission facilities) and for other related activities, as authorized by law, to remain available until expended, [$166,915,000] $167,900,000, of which $115,000,-

000 shall be derived from the reclamation fund: Provided, That no part of this appropriation shall be used to initiate the construction of transmission facilities within those areas covered by power wheeling service contracts which include provision for service to Federal establishments and preferred customers, except those transmission facilities for which construction funds have been heretofore appropriated, those facilities which are necessary to carry out the terms of such contracts or those facilities for which the Secretary of the Interior finds the wheeling agency is unable or unwilling to provide for the integration of Federal projects or for service to a Federal establishment or preferred customer: Provided further, That the final point of discharge for the interceptor drain for the San Luis unit shall not be determined until development by the Secretary of the Interior and the State of California of a plan, which shall conform with the water quality standards of the State of California as approved by the Secretary of the Interior, to minimize any detrimental effect of the San Luis drainage waters: [Provided further, That of the amount appropriated herein for the Washoe Project, not to exceed $600,000, representing the cost of providing water service on national forest lands under the administration of the United States Forest Service, shall be nonreimbursable] Provided further, That not to exceed $200,000 of this appropriation shall be available for replacement of cast-in-place concrete pipe in the South Gila Unit, Yuma Mesa Division, Gila Project, Arizona, which shall be nonreimbursable. (Public Works for Water and Power Resources Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1969; authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

The Bureau operates and maintains the power-generation and transmission facilities, and generally the storage dams and reservoirs, of completed projects. Where necessary, irrigation works are operated and maintained until the water users are able to undertake the responsibilities. In 1970, a total of 37 projects, project areas or divisions of projects will be operated and maintained for irrigation, power, municipal and industrial water supplies, and other benefits with funds made available under this appropriation. The Fort Peck project revolving fund finances the operation and maintenance of project power facilities physically integrated with the Missouri River Basin project.

Provision is also made for flood control operations on certain projects, soil and moisture conservation operations on public lands under jurisdiction of the Bureau, the Colorado River front work and levee system program, negotiation and administration of water marketing contracts on Corps of Engineers' projects in California, marketing of power from the Corps of Engineers' powerplants on the Missouri River Basin project and from the International Boundary and Water Commission's powerplant in Texas, examination of existing structures, and for purchase power and wheeling.

Energy sales resulting from Bureau power operations financed from above sources are as follows:

Fiscal year:	Energy sales (millions of kw. hrs.)	Income from energy sales (thousands)
1968 (actual).....	39,710	$118,985
1970 (estimate).....	39,456	118,513

The above sales data for 1968 includes $23.7 million in revenues associated with 15.1 billion kilowatt-hours of energy from Reclamation powerplants for which Bonneville Power Administration is the marketing agent. Sales data for the Upper Colorado River storage project are not included in this statement.

Commercial power is sold to wholesale customers such as municipalities, Rural Electrification Administration-financed cooperatives, private utilities, and other Government agencies. These revenues are deposited in the reclamation fund, the Colorado River Dam fund, the general fund and the Fort Peck revolving fund.

The programs include $7,177 thousand in 1970 for the purchase of power and wheeling. A net billing procedure for certain of these power transactions between the Federal Government and non-Federal utilities precludes the need for an additional $3,820 thousand for this purpose in 1970.

SPECIAL FUNDS

Sums herein referred to as being derived from the reclamation fund, the Colorado River Dam fund, or the Colorado River development fund, are appropriated from the special funds in the Treasury created by the Act of June 17, 1902 (43 U.S.C. 391), the Act of December 21, 1928 (43 U.S.C. 617a), and the Act of July 19, 1940 (43 U.S.C. 618a), respectively. Such sums shall be transferred, upon request of the Secretary, to be merged with and expended under the heads herein specified; and the unexpended balances of sums transferred for expenditure under the heads "Operation and Maintenance" and "General Administrative Expenses" shall revert and be credited to the special fund from which derived. (Public Works for Water and Power Resources Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1969.)

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Appropriations to the Bureau of Reclamation shall be available for purchase of not to exceed [forty-five] forty passenger motor vehicles for replacement only; [purchase of two aircraft;] payment of claims for damage to or loss of property, personal injury, or death arising out of activities of the Bureau of Reclamation; payment, except as otherwise provided for, of compensation and expenses of persons on the rolls of the Bureau of Reclamation appointed as authorized by law to represent the United States in the negotiation and administration of interstate compacts without reimbursement or return under the reclamation laws; rewards for information or evidence concerning violations of law involving property under the jurisdiction of the Bureau of Reclamation; performance of the functions specified under the head "Operation and Maintenance Administration", Bureau of Reclamation, in the Interior Department Appropriation Act, 1945; preparation and dissemination of useful information including recordings, photographs, and photographic prints; and studies of recreational uses of reservoir areas, and investigation and recovery of archeological and paleontological remains in such areas in the same manner as provided for in the Act of August 21, 1935 (16 U.S.C. 461-467): Provided, That no part of any appropriation made herein shall be available pursuant to the Act of April 19, 1945 (43 U.S.C. 377), for expenses other than those incurred on behalf of specific reclamation projects except "General Administrative Expenses" and amounts provided for reconnaissance, basin surveys, and general engineering and research under the head "General Investigations".

Allotments to the Missouri River Basin project from the appropriation under the head "Construction and rehabilitation" shall be available additionally for said project for those functions of the Bureau of Reclamation provided for under the head "General Investigations" (but this authorization shall not preclude use of the appropriation under said head within that area), and for the continuation of investigations by agencies of the Department on a general plan for the development of the Missouri River Basin. Such allotments may be expended through or in cooperation with State and other Federal agencies, and advances to such agencies are hereby authorized.

Sums appropriated herein which are expended in the performance of reimbursable functions of the Bureau of Reclamation shall be returnable to the extent and in the manner provided by law: Provided, That net revenues of not to exceed $50,000 arising from the lease of grazing and agricultural lands within the Tule Lake and Lower Klamath Lake Divisions, as determined by the Secretary, may be credited to the cost heretofore and hereafter incurred for the Klamath project water rights program, notwithstanding the provisions of section 2(c) of the Act of June 17, 1944, and sections 2(a), 2(b), and 2(c) of the Act of August 1, 1956.

No part of any appropriation for the Bureau of Reclamation, contained in this Act or in any prior Act, which represents amounts earned under the terms of a contract but remaining unpaid, shall be obligated for any other purpose, regardless of when such amounts are to be paid: Provided, That the incurring of any obligation prohibited by this paragraph shall be deemed a violation of section 3679 of the Revised Statutes, as amended (31 U.S.C. 665).

No funds appropriated to the Bureau of Reclamation for operation and maintenance, except those derived from advances by water users, shall be used for the particular benefits of lands (a) within the boundaries of an irrigation district, (b) of any member of a water users' organization, or (c) of any individual when such district, organization, or individual is in arrears for more than twelve months in the payment of charges due under a contract entered into with the United States pursuant to laws administered by the Bureau of Reclamation.

Not to exceed $225,000 may be expended from the appropriation "Construction and rehabilitation" for work by force account on any one project or Missouri River Basin unit and then only when such work is unsuitable for contract or no acceptable bid has been received and, other than otherwise provided in this paragraph or as may be necessary to meet local emergencies, not to exceed 12 per centum of the construction allotment for any project from the appropriation "Construction and rehabilitation" contained in this Act shall be available for construction work by force account: Provided, That this paragraph shall not apply to work performed under the Rehabilitation and Betterment Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 724).

The fund defrays the cost of advance planning, construction, operation, and maintenance of the Colorado River storage project and participating projects, a comprehensive basinwide development which will make possible the control and utilization of the water resources of the Upper Colorado River Basin. The storage project will regulate and conserve the flows of the Colorado River and its major tributaries through holdover storage in large reservoirs, permitting increased consumptive use of water in the upper basin as well as the production of hydroelectric power. Excess revenue from the sale of power will be applied to repayment of costs allocated to irrigation which are beyond the ability of the water users to repay. The participating projects consist of power, irrigation, and municipal and industrial water supply developments.

Construction costs of the storage project and participating projects are financed through appropriations to the fund. Project revenue will be credited to the fund and without further appropriation will be available to cover costs of operation, maintenance, replacements of, and emergency expenditures for, all facilities of the project and with certain limitations, of the participating projects. Revenue in excess of these costs will be utilized to repay project costs allocated to power, municipal and industrial water supply, and irrigation.

Budget program.—1. Advance planning.—Funds for this activity in 1970 will provide for the continuation of studies on the Central Utah, Fruitland Mesa, and Savery-Pot Hook participating projects.

2. Colorado River storage project.—Construction will be underway on one unit and on the Transmission division.

3. Participating projects.—Work will continue in 1970 on four participating projects.

4. Drainage and minor construction.—This activity will fund work in 1970 on six participating projects and two units of the Colorado River storage project which have been substantially completed, but which require additional funds for miscellaneous finishing activities and drainage construction. Of the above, construction is scheduled to be completed on the Navajo unit of the storage project and on the Paonia participating project.

Operation and maintenance program.—The Bureau of Reclamation operates and maintains four units of the Colorado River storage project and the power generation and transmission facilities, including the Seedskaadee participating project power operations, with revenues from the sale of energy and water. The Emery County participating project is operated and maintained with funds advanced by the water users. Quality of water studies and flood control studies of the Florida participating project will be financed from operating revenues.

Financing.—The 1970 programs for advance planning and construction of the storage and participating projects will be financed by appropriations to the fund. The operation and maintenance program in 1970 will be financed from project revenues and by funds advanced by the water users. Nonreimbursable operation and maintenance will be financed by revenues, and the repayable debt of the storage project and participating projects will be reduced by this amount.

Operating results and financial condition.—Budget outlays will decrease to $27.0 million in 1970 from $34.7 million in 1969. The total equity of the Government in the fund is expected to reach $796 million by the end of 1970.

The increase in estimated net operating income in 1970 arises almost entirely from increasing revenues partially offset by increases in operating expenses and in interest on the investment payable to the U.S. Treasury.

Sales of kilowatt-hours of energy are as follows:

Fiscal year:	Kilowatt-hours of energy (millions)
1968 (actual)	3,042
1969 (estimate)	3,500

COLORADO RIVER BASIN PROJECT—continued

The fund defrays the cost of advance planning, construction, operation, and maintenance of the Central Arizona project and Dixie project for the purposes of furnishing irrigation, municipal, and industrial water supplies; for conservation and development of fish and wildlife resources; for enhancement of recreation opportunities; and for the other purposes as set forth in the Colorado River Basin Project Act.

Advance planning and construction costs are financed through appropriations to the fund. Project revenue and certain other revenues as provided by the Act will be credited to the fund and be available without further appropriation for defraying the costs of operation, maintenance, replacements, and emergency expenditures for all facilities of the projects, within such separate limitations as may be included in annual appropriation acts. Revenue in excess of these costs will be utilized to make annual payments to the general fund to return project costs allocated to irrigation, power, and municipal and industrial water.

The program for 1970 will consist entirely of advance planning on the Central Arizona project and Dixie project.

This fund defrays the expense of operating the power-generation and transmission facilities of the Fort Peck project, Corps of Engineers—Civil, and emergency expenses to insure continuous operation (16 U.S.C. 833).

Budget program.—Funded program costs in 1970 are at the same level as in 1969.

Financing.—The operation of the Fort Peck project power and transmission facilities is financed by this fund. The capital outlays for transmission facilities by advances from the appropriation Construction and rehabilitation have been completed.

Operating results.—Net income is estimated at $1,140 thousand for 1970, an increase over the current year. Earnings in excess of current operating needs are retained so as to maintain a continuing emergency fund of $500 thousand. The balance is paid into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts toward amortizing with interest that part of the Government investment allocated to power generation and transmission. Such payments totaled $3 million in 1968 and are estimated at $1.6 million in 1969 and $1.5 million in 1970.

The Administration markets electric power produced at 31 Federal hydroelectric generating plants in service or under construction, and wheels and exchanges power for certain non-Federal utilities in the Pacific Northwest.

Projects in operation have an installed capacity of 8,057,150 kilowatts. Eight projects and five additions to projects which are under construction will have a total installed capacity of 8,751 thousand kilowatts.

The transmission facilities program also will enable the Administration to wheel and exchange power over the Federal grid from the non-Federal Rocky Reach Dam and from new non-Federal thermal generating plants. The estimated amounts of peak generating capacity on the Federal system are as follows (in thousands of kilowatts):

	July 1, 1969	July 1, 1979
Federal projects.....	9,341	18,847
Power wheeled and exchanged for non-Federal utilities.....	5,301	13,221
Total.....	14,642	32,068

System construction.—The 1970 estimates will allow continued work on transmission facilities initiated in prior years and will provide for a start of construction on new increments of transmission and substation capacity. These facilities are needed to carry power to load centers from power generating installations scheduled to be in operation by June 1976.

This program provides for the operation and maintenance of the Administration's high-voltage electric grid system, and for administrative expenses in marketing wholesale electric power from Federal dams, and in wheeling power from non-Federal generating facilities in the Pacific Northwest and over interregional tie lines.

1. System operation and maintenance.—This activity consists of the scheduling and dispatching of power; the operation of substations; the maintenance of transmission lines, substations, and other facilities; power requirements and marketing studies; planning and integration of power resources; and system engineering.

Transmission facilities of the Administration are expanded as increased generating capacity becomes available. The system will be operated and maintained at a level which will insure safe operation and provide a reliable grade of service to customers.

The following table shows the rising trend of several of the more important indexes of the operation and maintenance activity:

3. Power contracts and rates.—This activity provides for the negotiation of power sales and wheeling contracts, the billing and servicing of these contracts, the review of resale rates, the development of service plans, and the establishment of wholesale rate schedules. Receipts which are deposited in the Treasury amounted to $105 million in 1968, and are estimated at $116.7 and $137.8 million for 1969 and 1970, respectively.

Appropriations of the Bonneville Power Administration shall be available to carry out all the duties imposed upon the Administrator pursuant to law. Appropriations made herein to the Bonneville Power Administration shall be available in one fund, except that the appropriation herein made for operation and maintenance shall be available only for the service of the current fiscal year.

Other than as may be necessary to meet local emergencies, not to exceed 12 per centum of the appropriation for construction herein made for the Bonneville Power Administration shall be available for construction work by force account or on a hired-labor basis. (16 U.S.C. 832-832i; Executive Order 8526; 43 U.S.C. 593a; 16 U.S.C. 825s; 59 Stat. 10, 21-22; 62 Stat. 382; 43 U.S.C. 389, 485h; Public Works for Water and Power Resources Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1969.)

1. Construction.—Various public and private utilities advance funds to provide facilities which are not provided by the Administration under its customer service policy. These facilities are of benefit to the Government as well as to the customers and serve to promote greater efficiency on the system, reduce loads on existing facilities, and improve service to customers. Also, non-Federal groups advance funds for relocating facilities of the Administration as required for highway construction and other purposes (50 Stat. 736).

The Administration markets power generated at Corps of Engineers—Civil hydroelectric generating plants in a 10-State area of the Southeast. Deliveries are made by means of transmission facilities owned by others. There are 14 projects now in operation. Projects in operation have an installed capacity of 1,807,000 kilowatts, and seven projects are under construction with a total installed capacity of 905,375 kilowatts.

1. System operation and maintenance.—Provision is made for the investigation and planning of proposed water resources projects, scheduling and dispatching power generation, scheduling storage and release of water, administering contractual operation requirements, and determining methods of operating generating plants individually and in coordination with others to obtain maximum utilization of resources.

2. Purchase of power and wheeling charges.—Provision is made for the payment of wheeling fees and for the purchase of firming energy in connection with disposal of power under contracts with utility companies.

3. Power contracts and rates.—Provision is made for negotiation and administration of power contracts, collection of revenue, development of wholesale power rates, and determination of adequate provisions for the amortization of the power investment. Receipts which were deposited in the Treasury amounted to $29,464,991 in 1968 and are estimated at $27,300 thousand for 1969 and $28,500 thousand for 1970.

4. General administration.—Provision is made for the agency's executive direction and administrative services.

CONSTRUCTION

For construction and acquisition of transmission lines, substations, and appurtenant facilities, and for administrative expenses connected therewith, in carrying out the provisions of section 5 of the Flood Control Act of 1944 (16 U.S.C. 825s), as applied to the southwestern power area, [$4,020,000] $3,360,000, to remain available until expended. (Public Works for Water and Power Resources Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1969.) lines unnecessary. In connection with the proposed line from Neosho, Mo., to a point near Kansas City, Kans., negotiations are still underway. In connection with a line through central and southwestern Arkansas and southeastern Oklahoma, negotiations between the department and eight power companies have terminated because agreement could not be reached. Funds to initiate planning for construction of these lines are included in this budget.

Should satisfactory contracts with non-Federal entities in each area be worked out, funds so appropriated would not be used.

The Administration is responsible for marketing of power produced at 16 Corps of Engineers—Civil hydroelectric generating plants in the Southwest. Projects in operation have an installed capacity of 1,533,500 kilowatts and seven projects are under construction with a total installed capacity of 597,200 kilowatts.

This fund, accumulated from power receipts, is available permanently for emergency expenses necessary to insure continuity of service. It is also available in such amounts as may be approved annually in appropriation acts to cover costs in connection with the purchase of electric power and rentals for use of facilities for transmission and distribution of power. Electric power is purchased from private utilities and generating and transmission cooperatives. Power is transmitted to customers through wheeling arrangements with private utilities, and through use of transmission capacity in facilities owned by the generating and transmission cooperatives (16 U.S.C. 825s-1).

This program finances the research on and development of low-cost processes for converting saline water to fresh water in quality suitable for municipal, industrial, and agricultural uses.

1. Research and development.—Both basic and applied research, engineering and development, and evaluation work are accomplished by means of contracts or grants to Federal or non-Federal agencies, institutions, commercial organizations, and consultants.

2. Construction, operation, and maintenance.—This activity provides for the design, construction, acquisition, operation, maintenance, and modification of saline water conversion test bed plants, facilities, and modules to determine the practical application of the conversion processes under development.

3. Administration and coordination.—This activity provides for the necessary planning, supervision, and administration of the saline water conversion program.

1. Water pollution control and water quality standards laboratories.—Four water pollution control laboratories and one fresh water quality research facility have been constructed and are now operational. Planning for and/or development of plans and specifications have been started for laboratories to be located in Stevens Point, Wis., Columbia, Mo., and in the Middle Atlantic area. No new funds are requested. However, unobligated balances available from prior years' appropriations are proposed to be used for starting the development of plans and specifications for a multipurpose regional facility to facilitate carrying out water pollution control activities in the Pacific Southwest area which includes the Colorado River Basin, California, Great Basin, and Hawaii. These funds would also provide for repairs, alterations and improvements needed for existing facilities.

2. Field evaluations.—A demonstration program for abating and controlling acid mine drainage pollution from mines in Elkins, W. Va., is in process. All planned control measures have been installed and an evaluation of the effectiveness of the measures is underway. No new funds are requested.

1. Research, development, and demonstration.—Grants and contracts are made to public and private agencies, institutions, and individuals for research and for field investigations and studies of an applied nature. Their purpose is to test and illustrate the applicability of research findings and newly developed techniques to problems of water pollution and particularly those related to industrial waste pollution problems; combined sewer problems; advanced waste treatment; water purification and joint treatment of municipal and industrial wastes problems. Over 70% of the total estimate for this activity is for these purposes. The balance of the estimate is to carry out activities in the Federal Water Pollution Control Administration laboratories, to conduct field studies and demonstrations, and to provide technical management for the grants and contract programs.

2. Planning, assistance, and training activities.—The 1970 increase generally provides for accelerating support to State and local river basin planning agencies and to colleges, universities, and other institutions for training. It also provides for strengthening or expanding Federal efforts for controlling pollution from Federal activities; providing technical support to Federal agencies, State and interstate agencies, local communities and industry; monitoring to insure compliance with established water quality standards; training; and administering the waste treatment works construction program. The estimate also provides for continuing support for State and interstate agency water pollution programs, Federal river basin planning and estuarine studies and water quality standards compliance.

3. Enforcement.—The 1970 increase provides for additional enforcement capability to carry out enforcement activities and action, as needed.

1. Departmental direction.—The Office of the Secretary, Under Secretary, and the Office of Information provide top departmental direction and contact with the public. The Office for Equal Opportunity administers the equal opportunity program. Also provided under this activity is leadership for the Department's scientific programs, contract appeals, program analysis, and the coordination of functions that concern the Water Resources Council.

2. Program direction and coordination.—Five assistant secretaries, the Program Support Staff and the Office of Marine Resources advise and assist the Secretary on matters of policy for promoting the domestic welfare and the conservation and development of the country's resources.

3. Administrative management.—Under the direction of the Assistant Secretary for Administration, financial management, budget, management improvement, property management, personnel, administrative services, inspection, investigation, internal audit, and security operations are carried on.

4. Commissioner of Fish and Wildlife.—The Office of the Commissioner is responsible for general supervision and coordination of Fish and Wildlife Service activities.

5. Lower Colorado River Land Use Office.—Administers functions and programs of the Lower Colorado River land-use plan with respect to lands (exclusive of refuges administered by the Fish and Wildlife Service and project operation, protection, and security zones around dams and reclamation construction areas administered by the Bureau of Reclamation) bordering on the Lower Colorado River from Davis Dam to the International Boundary which have been acquired or withdrawn for reclamation purposes or otherwise fall within the area encompassed by the plan. This involves negotiation, execution, and administration of leases, the administration of recreation activities prior to leasing, the special permit program on the lands and coordination with plans, programs, or activities of bureaus that relate to or affect the plan. This function was transferred to the Bureau of Land Management December 11, 1968, and will be administered by that activity subsequent thereto.

The objective of this program is to stimulate, sponsor, provide for, and supplement present programs for the conduct of research, investigations, experiments, and the training of scientists in the fields of water and of resources which affect water, in order to assist in assuring the Nation at all times of a supply of water sufficient in quantity and quality to meet the requirements of its expanding population.

1. Assistance to States for institutes.—This activity provides for specific grants to all 50 States and Puerto Rico for assistance in carrying on the work of a competent and qualified water resources research institute at one college or university in each State. The function of such institute is to conduct research, investigations, and experiments of either a basic or practical nature, or both, in relation to water resources and to provide for the training of scientists through such research, investigations, and experiments. States may elect to use their grants in support of regional institutes in which several States participate.

2. Matching grants to institutes.—This activity provides for grants to match, on a dollar-for-dollar basis, funds made available to institutes by States or other non-Federal sources to meet the necessary expenses of specific water resources research projects which could not otherwise be undertaken.

3. Additional water research.—This activity provides for grants to and contracts and matching or other arrangements with educational institutions, private foundations or other institutions, with private firms and individuals whose training, experience, and qualifications are adequate for the conduct of water research projects, and with local, State, and Federal Government agencies, to undertake research into any aspects of water problems related to the mission of the Department of the Interior which are deemed desirable and which are not otherwise being studied.

4. Scientific information center.—This activity provides for the operation of a water resources scientific information center. The objectives of center operations are to be responsive to the water resources scientific information needs of Federal water resources organizations, to avoid replication of research, and to improve communications and coordination of efforts among all those engaged in federally sponsored water-related research.

5. Administration.—This activity provides for the administration of the Water Resources Research Act including the prescribing of rules and regulations; review and appraisal of institute programs and research proposals, making of allotments, contracts, and grants; establishment and maintenance of cooperation and coordination among the centers and between the centers and Federal and other organizations concerned with water resources.

Operating results and financial condition.—In 1969 the corporation will liquidate through GSA its remaining properties on the island of St. Croix, totaling 860 acres. About 403 acres of this land will likely be transferred to the Virgin Islands Government under the provisions of the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 377) as amended, permitting up to 100% public benefit allowance for which only partial and, in some cases, no credit will accrue to the corporation. If the value of this donated land were to be credited to the corporation, the total retained earnings would be in the vicinity of $5 million. The balance of the 860 acres, approximately 457 acres, will probably be purchased by the Virgin Islands Government at the GSA appraised value. These proceeds will be applied against the indebtedness of the corporation.

The retained earnings of $3 million has been written off in accordance with the provisions of the Virgin Islands Corporation Act (72 Stat. 1759).

All current receivables, mortgages and long-term accounts totaling $13.6 million will be transferred by June 30, 1969 to a single agency, possibly the Administrator of GSA, for collection for deposit in the Treasury in accordance with the provisions of the Virgin Islands Corporation Act (72 Stat. 1759). The analysis of the receivables is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

Current accounts.....	1,034
Mortgages receivable.....	12,471
Long-term accounts.....	84
Total.....	13,589

A cash balance of $297 thousand will also be returned to the Treasury.

These transfers of receivables and the cash balance, aggregating $13.9 million will offset the Government's equity and completely terminate all activities of the corporation by June 30, 1969.

GENERAL PROVISIONS, DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR

SEC. 101. Appropriations made in this title shall be available for expenditure or transfer [(within each bureau or office)], with the approval of the Secretary, for the emergency reconstruction, replacement, or repair of aircraft, buildings, utilities, or other facilities or equipment damaged or destroyed by fire, flood, storm, or other unavoidable causes: Provided, That no funds shall be made available under this authority until funds specifically made available to the Department of the Interior for emergencies shall have been exhausted.

SEC. 102. The Secretary may authorize the expenditure or transfer [(within each bureau or office)] of any appropriation in this title, in addition to the amounts included in the budget programs of the several agencies, for the suppression or emergency prevention of forest or range fires on or threatening lands under jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior: Provided, That appropriations made in this title for fire suppression purposes shall be available for the payment of obligations incurred during the preceding fiscal year, and for reimbursement to other Federal agencies for destruction of vehicles, aircraft or other equipment in connection with their use for fire suppression purposes, such reimbursement to be credited to appropriations currently available at the time of receipt thereof.

SEC. 103. Appropriations made in this title shall be available for operation of warehouses, garages, shops, and similar facilities, wherever consolidation of activities will contribute to efficiency or economy, and said appropriations shall be reimbursed for services rendered to any other activity in the same manner as authorized by the Act of June 30, 1932 (31 U.S.C. 686): Provided, That reimbursements for costs of supplies, materials and equipment, and for services rendered may be credited to the appropriation current at the time such reimbursements are received.

SEC. 104. Appropriations made to the Department of the Interior in this title or in the Public Works for Water and Power Resources Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, [1969] 1970, shall be available for services as authorized by 5 U.S.C. 3109, when authorized by the Secretary, in total amount not to exceed $300,000; hire, maintenance and operation of aircraft; hire of passenger motor vehicles; purchase of reprints; payment for telephone service in private residences in the field, when authorized under regulations approved by the Secretary; and the payment of dues, when authorized by the Secretary, for library membership in societies or associations which issue publications to members only or at a price to members lower than to subscribers who are not members.

SEC. 105. Appropriations available to the Department of the Interior for salaries and expenses shall be available for uniforms or allowances therefor, as authorized by law (5 U.S.C. 5901-5902 and D.C. Code 4-204). (Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1969.)

SEC. 201. Appropriations in this title shall be available for expenditure or transfer (within each bureau or office), with the approval of the Secretary, for the emergency reconstruction, replacement or repair of aircraft, buildings, utilities, or other facilities or equipment damaged or destroyed by fire, flood, storm, or other unavoidable causes: Provided, That no funds shall be made available under this authority until funds specifically made available to the Department of the Interior for emergencies shall have been exhausted.

SEC. 202. The Secretary may authorize the expenditure or transfer [(within each bureau or office)] of any appropriation in this title, in addition to the amounts included in the budget programs of the several agencies, for the suppression or emergency prevention of forest or range fires on or threatening lands under jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior.

SEC. 203. Appropriations in this title shall be available for operation of warehouses, garages, shops, and similar facilities, wherever consolidation of activities will contribute to efficiency or economy, and said appropriations shall be reimbursed for services rendered to any other activity in the same manner as authorized by the Act of June 30, 1932 (31 U.S.C. 686): Provided, That reimbursements for costs of supplies, materials, and equipment, and for services rendered may be credited to the appropriation current at the time such reimbursements are received.

SEC. 204. No part of any funds made available by this Act to the Southwestern Power Administration may be made available to any other agency, bureau, or office for any purposes other than for services rendered pursuant to law to the Southwestern Power Administration. (Public Works for Water and Power Resources Development and Atomic Energy Commission Appropriation Act, 1969.)

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 301. No part of any appropriation contained in this Act shall remain available for obligation beyond the current fiscal year unless expressly so provided herein.

SEC. 302. None of the funds in this Act shall be available to finance interdepartmental boards, commissions, councils, committees, or similar groups under section 214 of the Independent Offices Appropriation Act, 1946 (31 U.S.C. 691) which do not have prior and specific congressional approval of such method of financial support.]

SEC. 303. No part of the funds appropriated by this Act shall be used to pay the salary of any Federal employee who is convicted in any Federal, State, or local court of competent jurisdiction, of inciting, promoting, or carrying on a riot, or any group activity resulting in material damage to property or injury to persons, found to be in violation of Federal, State, or local laws designed to protect persons or property in the community concerned.] (Department of the Interior and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1969.)

The Service was established by title X of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, to provide assistance to communities in resolving disputes, disagreements and difficulties arising from discriminatory practices which disrupt or threaten to disrupt peaceful relations among citizens, and also where efforts are being made to eliminate disparities between groups, to achieve compliance with the Act and to reduce and prevent racial disorders.

By law, the Service may assist communities upon request of local citizens or officials, or upon its own motion; Federal courts may also refer public accommodations cases arising under title II of the act to the Service.

In endeavoring to create a climate of compliance and orderly progress, the Service seeks, encourages, and utilizes the cooperation of appropriate Federal, State, and local agencies, private and public groups or institutions, and individuals working to develop methods and programs for the peaceful resolution of racial disputes. Vital to this effort, is the CRS National Citizens Committee, appointed by the President, whose membership is pledged to equal opportunities and who work in close cooperation with the Service.

In carrying out the mandate of Congress, the Service must conduct its activities in confidence and without publicity, and the staff must hold confidential any information so acquired.

The Federal Bureau of Investigation is the investigative branch of the Department of Justice and obtains evidence for use in civil litigation and prosecution of criminal violations of Federal law. It has primary responsibility for the internal security of the Nation. It assists all law enforcement agencies in training, identification, and technical matters.

The appropriation request for 1970 totals $224,040,000. This will provide an additional 175 full-year employees (110 agents and 65 clerks) when compared with the full-year employees to be provided by the Bureau's 1969 requirements. Of the 175 additional full-year employees 124 are for assignment to the field to assist in the handling of the growing volume of investigative work. The remaining 51 full-year employees, also for the field, result from the continuation on a full-year basis in 1970 of an additional 215 employees placed on the rolls during 1969 to carry out the expanded training responsibilities under the Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968, these employees being on the rolls only part of 1969.

1. Security and criminal investigations.—This activity includes the Bureau's investigative responsibilities, the coordination and maintenance of the data gathered, and the maintenance of the Bureau's communications system. Data are disseminated to other Government agencies having an official interest in them. During 1968, the Bureau received 2,802,010 names for search through its files. An increase in name searches is anticipated.

Estimate:
1969.....	830,000
1970.....	840,000

2. Identification by fingerprints.—The Identification Division is the national repository of identification data based on fingerprint records. Fingerprints are acquired, classified, preserved, and exchanged with other duly authorized law enforcement agencies and 6,974,334 sets of fingerprints were received for handling during 1968, exceeding the 1967 volume and a new high for any fiscal year since the time of World War II. The heavy volume of fingerprint work is expected to increase further. Sets of fingerprints on file on July 1, 1968, totaled 188,396,701.

3. Criminal and scientific laboratory.—The Laboratory provides technical and scientific assistance to the FBI and all duly constituted law enforcement agencies and other Federal agencies which desire to avail themselves of the service. During 1968 scientific examinations totaled 342,690, a new alltime high and an increase of 4% over the 1967 volume. The upward trend is expected to continue.

4. Training.—A Bureau-wide personnel training program is provided. The Bureau, upon request, assists in providing various types of training to State and local law enforcement agencies, a service greatly expanded by the recently enacted Omnibus Crime Control and Safe Streets Act of 1968.

5. General administration.—This activity encompasses all functions of an administrative character bearing upon Bureau operations, including a Bureau-wide inspectional service.

This appropriation will provide for the custody and care of an average of 21,500 prisoners and the maintenance and operation of 37 institutions and the central office. The medical care of prisoners is provided by the U.S. Public Health Service.

1. Custody, care, and treatment of prisoners in Federal institutions.—This covers the direct care costs of all prisoners in the Federal Prison System. These include the costs of all food, clothing, education, custodial requirements, welfare services, release transportation, and related personal services. The funds required, exclusive of salary costs, are in direct relation to the estimated number of prisoners expected to be maintained in 1970, which is 21,500, at an estimated cost per man per day of $1.11. The average daily population for 1968 was 19,677 as compared to 19,543 in 1967.

2. Maintenance and operation of institutions.—This activity includes administrative expenses, all utility services, operation of motor vehicles, the repair and maintenance of all buildings and facilities, and equipment replacements. The cost of personal services attributable to these activities is also included.

3. Medical services.—Funds are allocated to the Public Health Service for the cost of medical, psychiatric, and technical services.

A supplemental appropriation for 1969 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

Additional funds in the amount of $564 thousand are needed for the custody, care, and treatment of prisoners in Federal institutions during 1969.

The original estimate for 1969 was based on an average daily population of 19,000. There had been a 5-year decline in prison population at the time the estimate was made, and a further decline was anticipated. The downward trend was reversed during September 1967 and the population has been rising steadily since then.

Statistics available through August 1968 indicate slightly more than a 4% increase in the number of prisoners confined. It is now estimated that there will be an average population of 20,500 during 1969. The computation of the additional fund requirement is based on 1,500 prisoners at $1.03 per day for 365 days.

1. Construction.—The final phase of the Leavenworth multiyear renewal program and the final phase of the Texarkana youth conversion will be started. Boiler replacements will be made at Terre Haute and El Reno. Major deficiencies in the primary electrical system at Englewood will be corrected. Water pollution abatement measures will be undertaken at various locations. The request includes funds for facility expansion at Allenwood, Lompoc, and Marion, and for advance planning of two new facilities, a Chicago corrections center, and a medical facility.

2. Repairs and improvements.—The amount requested will accomplish major plant repairs. A substantial portion of the work will be performed by inmate labor.

The Bureau of Prisons contracts with some 750 to 800 approved State and local jails to board Federal prisoners for short periods of time. Such periods occur before and during trial, during commitments for short sentences, and while awaiting transfer to Federal institutions after conviction. An average of 3,438 prisoners was boarded at an average cost of $4.61 per man-day in 1968. A supplemental appropriation for 1969 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

Additional funds in the amount of $2 million are needed for support of prisoners in local institutions during 1969.

The original estimate for 1969 was based on an average daily cost of $4.90 and a total of 1,000,000 man-days. At the time the estimate was made, 1968 average daily cost was expected to be $4.50 and total man-days, 1,000,000. Actual 1968 cost was $4.61 per man-day and the actual number of man-days was 1,258,377.

There has been a steady increase in jail days starting in February 1967. A continuation of this trend will result in total jail days approximating 1,400,000 during 1969. Based on experience in 1968 it now appears that the average cost per man-day originally projected for 1969 is understated.

This is a wholly owned Government corporation. A board of six directors appointed by the President controls its policies. Supervision is by the Director of the Bureau of Prisons who has jurisdiction over all industrial enterprises and vocational training programs in all Federal penal and correctional institutions. Products manufactured by inmates are sold only to the penal institutions and to other Government agencies. Earnings, in excess of operating requirements, are paid as dividends into the U.S. Treasury.

The corporation is authorized, under the Attorney General, to establish and operate industries in Federal penal and correctional institutions and disciplinary barracks (18 U.S.C. 4121-4128). Its purposes are to provide employment for inmates, provide maximum vocational training for qualified inmates in connection with regular institutional and industrial activities; and to operate a placement service to assist released inmates to secure jobs. Earnings from the sale of products pay expenses of the corporation and have permitted payment of $72 million in dividends into the Treasury since January 1, 1935. The corporation anticipates paying a dividend of $5 million during 1969 and a dividend of $5 million in 1970, for a total of $82 million by June 30, 1970.

Budget program.—During 1968, the corporation operated 48 shops and factories at 22 locations. The print shop at Leavenworth, and the clothing factory at Terminal Island were closed out.

During 1969, a new metal furniture factory will start operations at Marion, Ill. A sign shop will be started at Atlanta. This will bring the total shops and factories to 48 at 22 locations.

A vocational training expense limitation of $2,457 thousand was requested for 1969, while an additional limitation of $575 thousand is requested for 1970, for a total of $3,032 thousand. This increase of $575 thousand consists of $129 thousand for pay increase, Public Law 90-206; $56 thousand for maintenance of the 1968 level of employment; $60 thousand for expansion of training program throughout the service, thus providing financing for 10 positions for full year. Increase of $100 thousand for rent, communications and utilities; $20 thousand for travel and transportation; $25 thousand for printing and reproduction; $50 thousand for consultant contract fees; and an increase of $135 thousand for supplies and materials for the expanding training program.

An administrative expense limitation of $780 thousand was requested for 1969, while $817 thousand is requested for 1970. For 1970, $22 thousand is for pay increase, Public Law 90-206; $15 thousand is requested to maintain the 1967 employment level. The total of $817 thousand is only 1.62% of estimated sales of $51 million. This limitation covers the cost of the procurement, inmate training, and personnel for all industrial activities. It is also responsible for research work in industrial lines and product design in connection with the installation for new industries, and the operation and conversion of existing industries. The central office conducts field audits and program examinations; prepares and keeps up-to-date the schedule of products manufactured and determines selling prices.

Financing.—The corporation has sufficient funds to carry out its budget program. It has always operated at a profit. Accumulated earnings as of June 30, 1968, were $118.6 million, of which $72 million had been paid as dividends into the U.S. Treasury, while the remaining $46.6 million has been reinvested in the form of operating cash, inventories, machinery, and buildings.

By June 30, 1970, accumulated earnings are estimated at $136.9 million, dividends of $82 million will have been paid into the U.S. Treasury and retained capital should be $55 million. The limitations on general administrative and vocational training expenses are paid out of the earnings of the corporation.

Operations.—Sales of products and services to other Government agencies during 1968 were approximately $48 million and are estimated at $51 million for each of the years 1969 and 1970. Net earnings after paying all expenses including the limitation expenses, were $9.7 million for 1968 and are estimated at $9.5 million for 1969 and $8.8 million for 1970.

The Bureau of Narcotics and Dangerous Drugs, established April 8, 1968, has as its mission control and elimination of illicit trafficking and abuse of narcotics and dangerous drugs. To accomplish its mission, the Bureau plans to enhance its enforcement capability by applying 23% more resources than in 1969 and 53% above the 1968 level; an increase of 50% and 88% in education, research, and identification programs over 1969 and 1968, respectively; and a 112% increase over 1969 in law enforcement assistance to State and local agencies.

1. Identification of dangerous drugs.—Characteristics and potentials of substances are explored to determine their susceptibility to abuse by the public. In the years preceding 1969 a total of over 5,000 drugs was reviewed to determine their abuse potential. In both 1969 and 1970, an estimated 1,000 drugs will be subjected to an extensive review and at least four in-depth studies will be undertaken on new compounds to determine their chemical structure and pharmacology. Resulting from this effort, an estimated 200 drugs in the abuse category will be brought under control in each of the years 1969 and 1970.

2. Control of traffic in narcotics and dangerous drugs.—Although a combination of interrelated and coordinated program efforts are required to control and eliminate illicit trafficking in, and abuse of, narcotics and dangerous drugs, the enforcement program exerts the most direct and immediate force on the abusers and traffickers. Enforcement objectives are accomplished by undercover penetration of the illicit supply channels and periodic overt investigations of legal sources of supply and distribution. In 1968, almost 6,000 investigations were completed, 3,900 arrests made, leading to 1,711 convictions, 69 clandestine laboratories seized and eliminated, and the following seizures effected: over 38 million dosage units of dangerous drugs, almost 5,400 kilos of marihuana and over 200 kilos of narcotics. The 1970 plan provides resources sufficient to increase program outputs by about 27% above the 1968 level, development of field laboratory facilities which were not included in the 1968 cost base, an increase in the agent training program, and further automation.

3. Law enforcement assistance.—To be fully effective in the war on illicit narcotic and drug trafficking, the entire law enforcement network must be adequately trained and constantly informed in the ways and means of coping with the trafficking problem. The Bureau conducts a program of specialized courses in investigation and handling of drug cases for State and local enforcement officials and for State and local chemists, military groups, and security officers and personnel of the pharmaceutical industry and colleges and universities. The number of personnel who received training in 1968 and 1969 totaled about 11,000 in each year. In 1970, a total of 189 course sessions of varying lengths and sizes are planned to reach about 22,000 trainees.

4. Public education.—The purpose of the education program is to reach influence groups and individuals and provide them with information and materials so that they can establish contact with drug abusers and those who are potentially susceptible to becoming abusers. The influence groups and persons through which information will be channeled are: (1) The manufacturers and distributors of the Nation's drug supply; (2) The professionals and others who deal with people and influence their actions and lives; (3) Persons who use, misuse or abuse drugs; and (4) Persons and their families who may be inclined to use, misuse or abuse drugs. They will be reached each year through the distribution of printed matter; debate kits; films; speeches to educational and civic groups; radio and TV appearances; letters to over 50,000 pharmacists, and bulletins to over 27,000 law enforcement officers and organizations.

In 1970, the number of publications will be doubled and the emphasis on use of mass media, radio and TV will be significantly increased. Paralleling this effort will be studies to determine the most effective ways of reaching and influencing the several audiences and the gathering of statistical data reflecting the value of the program effort.

5. Research.—The objective of the research program is to determine how drug abuse can be prevented. Studies are made to ascertain the most effective means of eliminating or reducing the illicit supplies of narcotics and dangerous drugs, and to explore the sociological and psychological factors which motivate the abuser, with a view toward learning how to neutralize or redirect these drives.

6. General support.—This activity includes the cost of developing overall Bureau policy and plans, and providing executive direction and control.

1. Training and allowance payments.—Direct program costs for occupational and basic education training programs are provided to equip the Nation's unemployed and underemployed workers with skills that will enable them to participate in productive employment. Institutional training projects are conducted by State and local vocational education agencies and on-the-job training projects are conducted by employers and other organizations. This activity provides for the costs of conducting the training and for the payment of trainee allowances to those trainees who are heads of households or who meet other provisions of the Act. In 1970 projects are estimated to be approved for 340,600 persons of which 48,800 will be in the Concentrated Employment Program (CEP) and 80 thousand in the Job Opportunities in the Business Sector program (JOBS). An additional 60,000 JOBS opportunities will be funded with $180 million from the Economic Opportunity Act (EOA). The CEP concentrates manpower resources in 82 selected target areas and is designed to insure that disadvantaged individuals receive proper training and manpower supportive services, enabling them to obtain permanent employment, with total MDTA and EOA funding $238 million. The JOBS program is operated in conjunction with the promotional efforts of the National Alliance of Businessmen (NAB) and is a cooperative business-Government venture to hire and train disadvantaged individuals.

The following table reflects program workload for MDTA activities:

2. Program services.—This activity provides for service provided by the State employment security agencies in the overall development and administration of employment service activities including the identification of occupations in which shortages or potential demand exists, the selection, referral, and placement of trainees and the paying of trainee allowances. Overall supervision of the institutional program is provided by the State vocational education agencies. On-the-job project promotion, development, and supervision are also provided by cooperating State agencies and by employers, associations, and other organizations. Manpower Development and Training Activities and other manpower programs are coordinated by utilizing the interagency Cooperative Area Manpower Planning System (CAMPS). This activity also provides technical assistance for all manpower programs and furnishes training for all personnel involved in the administration, direction, and performance of these programs. It likewise provides for a comprehensive system of labor market information and a job matching program on a national, State, local, or other appropriate basis.

3. Federal institutional training services.—This activity provides for the program development and administration of the institutional training programs by the Department of Health, Education, and Welfare.

1. Experimental, demonstration, and research programs.—Financial support for experimental and demonstration training projects is authorized under title I of the Manpower Development and Training Act, as amended.

Such projects are conducted through contracts and/or grants with public or private nonprofit organizations. They are intended to improve techniques and demonstrate effectiveness of specialized methods in meeting manpower, employment, and training problems of worker groups, such as long-term unemployed, disadvantaged youth, displaced older workers, handicapped, minority groups, and others. The program provides for labor mobility demonstration and placement assistance (bonding).

Contracts executed	122	108	75	100

Totals for 1967, 1968, and 1970 include all regular experimental and demonstration plus bonding and labor mobility projects. A supplemental appropriation for 1969 is anticipated for separate transmittal to provide funds for mobility and bonding.

A wide-range manpower research program is carried on to investigate and study programs which give promise of furthering activities under the Manpower Development and Training Act and its amendments. Areas of study include appraisal of manpower requirements and resources, unemployment resulting from automation and technological advances, mobility of workers, adequacy of manpower development efforts, and manpower utilization.

2. Planning, research, and evaluation.—The Office of the Manpower Administrator is responsible for the planning, research, and evaluation necessary to develop and implement a comprehensive manpower program. It provides leadership, coordination, and direction to the manpower research program. It provides continuing review and appraisal of operating programs. It identifies, through experimental and demonstration programs, special needs and problems of various groups of potential trainees and develops methods of solving the problems.

3. Federal on-the-job training services.—A program of on-the-job-training is administered through employers, associations, community and civic groups, and unions, under provisions of section 204, title II of the Manpower Development and Training Act. Assistance is provided in the operation of inplant training programs intended to facilitate hiring of disadvantaged job applicants and to upgrade skills. Contracts are negotiated with employers to partially reimburse them for training costs, as is provided under the Manpower Development and Training Act. State apprenticeship agencies are called on to assist in the programs, and in turn are reimbursed for expenses incurred in developing and administering training programs.

Training opportunities approved.....	152,700	104,600	96,900	163,200

During 1969 and 1970, private enterprise will be encouraged to assist residents of ghettos. Firms located in ghetto areas will be offered on-the-job training contracts, and efforts will be made through the Concentrated Employment Program to place ghetto residents in the on-the-job training programs.

4. Federal employment security services.—The Manpower Administration furnishes guidance and assistance to the States in developing, administering, and evaluating a manpower program which provides: (1) payment of relocation assistance allowances to workers who must move to new areas to find employment; (2) payment of training, travel, and subsistence training allowances to persons found to need such assistance during their training under the Manpower Development and Training Act; (3) giving basic educational and occupational training to unemployed and underemployed persons; (4) counseling and testing services to such persons before, during, and after their training, whenever needed; (5) specialized services to jobseekers who have especially difficult placement problems, such as youth, older workers, handicapped, minority groups, hardcore unemployed, and workers displaced by automation or technological change; (6) improvement in mobility of labor by providing guidance when workers must shift between geographical areas and across occupational lines; (7) surveys of characteristics of jobs to determine types of training programs needed; (8) placement services that will satisfy the need of both trainees and employers; (9) active participation in community affairs to stimulate and support expanded educational and job opportunities.

In 1970, workers and employers will continue to be served through activities under the Manpower Development and Training Act.

5. Executive direction.—(a) Office of the Administrator.—This activity provides for the executive direction, supervision, and coordination of the manpower programs of the Department of Labor.

(b) Financial and management services.—This office furnishes the Manpower Administrator with administrative staff support. It provides budgetary, fiscal management, audit, administrative and management services, personnel, and contract services for all organizations of the Manpower Administration.

(c) Manpower management data systems.—Designs, maintains, and operates all data systems for the work and training programs of the Manpower Administration, including (in partnership with the Office of Financial and Management Services) combined reports on finances and performance. Develops a central data bank for all Manpower Administration work-training programs; determines standards and procedures for and functional supervision of all Manpower Administration data reporting systems; and provides statistical and technical services to the Manpower Administration.

(d) Reports to the public on manpower programs.—This office, working with the Office of Information, Publications and Reports in the Office of the Secretary, prepares and disseminates all news of Manpower Administration activities. It fills requests for publications and provides other information concerning manpower programs. It also is the headquarters for a manpower community relations program.

A supplemental appropriation for 1969 is anticipated for separate transmittal.

1. Training promotion and service to industry.—Industrial management and labor organizations are encouraged and aided to conduct apprenticeship, training and retraining programs which will help individual workers attain and improve skill, competence, and adaptability. Apprenticeship and training programs are promoted by direct contact at national and local levels with employers and unions by use of informational media and by cooperation with State and community agencies. Approximately 4,000 apprenticeship and other training programs are initiated annually to provide, on a nondiscriminatory basis, employee development opportunities for new labor market entrants and workers who need greater skills. Technical assistance is provided annually to about 120,000 employers directly or through labor management committees. More than 280,000 apprentices and 24,000 journeymen participate annually. Skill requirements and training needs within particular industries are identified. Information is provided on training methods, apprenticeship labor standards and basic principles applicable to training in the apprenticeable and nonapprenticeable occupations. Training programs are evaluated and pamphlets, articles and reprints are published annually to call attention to skill needs, to indicate trends, and to describe superior apprenticeship and training programs.

Funds are allocated to the States for payment of unemployment compensation to eligible Federal employees and ex-servicemen.

Weeks compensated under the unemployment compensation for Federal employees program were 1,086,354 in 1968 and are now estimated at 1,086,000 in 1969. Weeks compensated under the unemployment compensation program for ex-servicemen were 1,357,733 in 1968 and are now estimated at 1,372,000 in 1969. The same number of weeks compensated for both Federal civilian employees and ex-servicemen in 1970 results from the assumption that the separations for both programs will be the same as in 1969.

1. Unemployment Insurance Service.—This Service has responsibilities concerning State unemployment insurance laws and related wage loss compensation plans, including unemployment compensation for Federal employees and ex-servicemen. The Service determines whether State plans and their administration conform to Federal law requirements; reviews State estimates of funds needed to administer the unemployment insurance program; and provides leadership and assistance to the States in improving legal structures, administration, and the financial soundness of State reserves.

2. U.S. Employment Service.—This Service assists and guides State agencies in the management of their employment service in order to provide an effective and efficient manpower service for all workers and employers by: (1) furnishing all activities related to identifying and reaching out to disadvantaged individuals not readily employable and providing the kinds of assistance necessary for them to become productive members of the work force and of our society; (2) giving specialized counseling and providing job development, and placement services to youth, older workers, handicapped, minority groups and workers displaced by automation and technological change; (3) offering counseling and placement services to veterans and stimulating employers to hire veterans; (4) counseling and testing services to assist both ready-to-work jobseekers and employers in meeting their employment needs; and (5) improving mobility of labor by guiding necessary shifts of workers between geographical areas and across occupational and industrial lines.

The Employment Service also provides occupational information and support services such as: (1) the development of various forms of foreign language and culturally unbiased occupational tests; (2) labor area information analyses; (3) estimates of area employment and the occupational characteristics of job opportunities; (4) occupational analyses for employers and unions; and (5) stimulation and support for community action to develop expanded job opportunities and to stabilize employment.

Special assistance is furnished to the Nation's agricultural workers and employers by: (1) implementing special recruitment and farm placement programs to help unemployed and underemployed farmworkers achieve maximum employment and to meet agriculture's needs for year-round and seasonal workers; (2) providing greater job continuity by maintaining and expanding interstate migratory routes; (3) providing assistance to local migratory committees for the extension of community services to migratory farmworkers and their families; and (4) investigating farm and nonfarm employment offered aliens seeking permanent entry into the United States under the Immigration and Nationality Act.

3. Administration and Management Service.—This Service provides or coordinates leadership and assistance in administrative management functions within the Bureau and with affiliated employment security agencies. Assigned responsibilities include budgeting, allocating, and fiscal reporting activities. The Service conducts evaluations of overall administration in affiliated agencies and assists in efforts to improve their management functions; provides assistance to them in personnel administration and staff training; monitors their compliance with Federal merit system standards; and assists them in the application and utilization of automatic data processing facilities. For the Bureau, the activity provides overall planning, coordination, and general administration. Responsibilities include the direction and coordination of program and budget planning; issuance of policies and internal management procedures; review of budgetary needs and financial aspects of program and legislative proposals; budget allocation, execution and control; and establishment and maintenance of effective working relations within the Department, with other Federal agencies, and with affiliated State employment security agencies. This activity also provides centralized services and assistance in such functions as management studies, organization control, procedural coordination, automatic data processing, office services, and general business management.

4. Farm labor contractor registration activities.—The Farm Labor Service provides policy, administrative directions and procedures for implementation of the Farm Labor Contractor Registration Act and the Secretary's regulations; issues interpretative bulletins and operating procedures; conducts field investigations to insure compliance with the provisions of the act and regulations; and, when necessary, initiates cases against alleged violators of the provisions and regulations.

6. Admission and employment of immigrant aliens.—Under the provisions of the Immigration and Nationality Act, immigrants wishing to work will not be allowed to enter the country unless the Secretary of Labor has certified that "there are not sufficient workers in the United States who are able, willing, qualified, and available (to do the particular work), and the employment of such aliens will not adversely affect wages and working conditions of the workers in the United States similarly employed." In order to implement the Department's responsibilities, the Bureau of Employment Security makes recommendations and issues or denies certifications to all petitioners coming under his authority, to visa applicants in nonpreference cases, and those from the Western Hemisphere who are not screened out by the consulates or Immigration and Naturalization Service Offices. Department of Labor authority under the law will be used to stimulate full utilization of unemployed U.S. resident workers.

This fund established by the Employment Security Act of 1960 (74 Stat. 970) makes advances without fiscal year limitation to the Employment Security Administration Account in the Unemployment Trust Fund. The purpose of this fund is to finance the Federal and State administrative costs of the employment security programs on a repayable basis from the beginning of the fiscal year until the Federal unemployment tax receipts become available in February of the same fiscal year.

During 1968, the eighth year of operations, $264,696 thousand was advanced to the Employment Security Account and was repaid. During 1969, about $311,912 thousand of the fund will be used to finance the program until the Federal unemployment tax receipts are received during February 1969.

Estimated requirements for a given fiscal year are generally based on seven-twelfths of the total Trust Fund Administration estimate. Based on the 1970 Trust Fund estimate of $665,000 thousand this would indicate a requirement of $387,912 thousand for the fund in 1970. However, the $340,912 thousand in the fund is deemed sufficient to meet estimated needs for the first 7 months of the fiscal year on the basis of past experience. In past years some tax receipts have been realized prior to February 1, so that less than seven-twelfths of the yearly estimate has been required. In 1970, this will be the case again. Early tax receipts will supply $47,000 thousand the difference between Revolving Fund availability and seven-twelfths of the 1970 estimate.

The fund will be needed until the Employment Security Administration Account to which the advances are made, accumulates a carryover balance of $250 million. Earnings (mainly comprised of interest) are retained in the fund to meet future requirements.

1. Unemployment insurance service.—State employment security agencies pay unemployment compensation to unemployed workers eligible under State unemployment insurance laws and collect unemployment taxes from employers who are subject to State unemployment insurance laws. Unemployment benefits are also paid to unemployed Federal workers and ex-servicemen from funds provided under a separate Federal appropriation. Federal grants in 1968 provided State administrative funds to collect over $2.6 billion in taxes to pay State benefits totaling over $2 billion to approximately 4.3 million beneficiaries, and to pay $105.8 million in benefits to unemployed Federal employees and ex-servicemen.

2. Employment service.—The Federal-State employment service system is a nationwide network of more than 2,100 local employment offices financed by Federal grants and administered by the State employment security agencies. The local offices provide a community manpower service for the areas served by developing the employability of disadvantaged persons; obtaining jobs for those who are job-ready; providing workers for employers having jobs to offer; developing or carrying out programs designed to resolve the employment, unemployment, and manpower utilization problems of an area; and providing special services to employers, individuals, and community agencies or groups requiring or seeking them. These functions are supplemented by counseling and testing services to assist applicants to obtain suitable jobs or to upgrade their skills through further training; by assisting employers in analyzing their skill requirements by solving problems of recruitment and turnover; and through development of labor area information. Specialized services are offered the disadvantaged and others who are presently unsuited for available employment. These specialized services are grouped together under the Human Resources Development concept.

Programs are carried on to aid communities in developing employment opportunities and to provide necessary employment services to workers and employers in areas where the establishment of full-time offices is not economically feasible. Statistical and survey operations are carried out to assist employers, local offices, and other government agencies in their considerations of manpower needs. The services outlined above are provided for both farm and nonfarm workers.

4. Contingency fund.—This fund is provided to meet increases in administrative costs due to unforeseen increases in the number of claims filed for unemployment compensation, changes in State unemployment compensation laws, and for additional costs due to changes in State employee salary rates brought about by changes in State compensation plans embracing employees of the States.

The financial transactions of the Federal-State and railroad unemployment insurance systems are made through the Unemployment trust fund. In the Federal-State system, benefit payments are made by each State, financed by special State payroll taxes. These tax receipts are deposited in the Unemployment trust fund and are invested in Government securities until needed for benefit payments. The expenses of State and Federal administration (including those of the Federal-State employment service), are paid from the fund out of revenue from the Federal unemployment tax, assessed on employers, of 0.4% of the first $3 thousand of wages.

Both the benefit payments and administrative expenses of the separate unemployment insurance program for railroad employees are paid from the Unemployment trust fund and receipts from the tax on wages of railroad employees are deposited in the fund to meet expenses.

On June 30, 1968, the preliminary fund balance of $11,619,980 thousand was distributed as follows among the various accounts maintained in the fund (in thousands of dollars):

This appropriation covers activities necessary to the administration and enforcement of the Labor-Management Reporting and Disclosure Act of 1959 (LMRDA); the Welfare and Pension Plans Disclosure Act (WPPDA) as amended, the several provisions of law respecting reemployment rights of veterans, reservists, and National Guardsmen on training duty, and to other functions required to sustain and carry out responsibilities of the Secretary of Labor in labor-management relations matters.

1. Labor-management relations services.—Assistance is provided to unions, employers, employees, and Federal agencies, in meeting long-range, complex, and critical labor-management problems. Included are arrangements for special studies and analyses, guidance in identifying and utilizing available public and private services, and technical assistance in estimating and planning for economic and work force adjustments as they will affect labor-management relations. Federal action with regard to particular labor-management disputes is coordinated; requests of agencies and employee organization for nominations of arbitrators are processed; and the departments' responsibilities under Executive Order 10988, Employee-Management Cooperation in the Federal Service, and the Urban Mass Transportation Act of 1964, are carried out.

2. Labor-management policy development.—Recommendations are developed for the Administrator and the Secretary with respect to appropriate policy for labor-management relations legislation, Executive orders, objectives for Federal programs affecting collective bargaining, and matters before the President's Advisory Committee on Labor-Management Policy. Studies are made of private policies affecting collective bargaining and of the performance of collective bargaining in relation to meeting current and prospective economic and social needs; labor-management relations research functions in the Department of Labor are coordinated and special studies are made of particular situations. Research programs pertaining to the LMRDA and the WPPDA are developed and executed.

3. Administration of reporting and disclosure laws.—This activity covers the administration and enforcement of the LMRDA and WPPDA. Reporting forms and instructions are devised and reports from labor organizations, union officers and employees, employers and labor relations consultants and welfare and pension plan administrators are examined for compliance with the acts with comprehensive analysis made of selected reports. Reports are made available for disclosure to the public. Interpretations and regulations pertaining to the acts are developed and promulgated, as are policies and standards for the conduct of elections. Technical assistance to further voluntary compliance, including clinics and workshops, publications and visual aids, is provided to those affected by the acts. Under the provisions of the acts, complaints alleging violations of the law are investigated and special investigations are conducted in areas where evidence exists of persistent or willful violations. Supervision is provided for the conduct of rerun elections of union officials held under court order or waiver.

4. Promotion of compliance and assistance to veterans.—Assistance is provided veterans, reservists, and National Guardsmen on training duty to secure reinstatement with their preservice employers and other employment advantages to which they may be entitled, based on seniority accrued while in military service. Compliance is advanced by informing employers and labor organizations of their reemployment responsibilities. Specific complaints of ex-servicemen are investigated and if violation of law is apparent, litigation is recommended when voluntary compliance cannot be achieved.

1. Executive direction, planning, and evaluation.—The Office of the Administrator directs, supervises, and coordinates the Department's wage and labor standards program. It also coordinates the planning, research, evaluation, and budget activities of the Wage and Labor Standards Administration in developing and implementing a comprehensive wage and labor standards program. It is also responsible for the coordination of program plans for wage and labor standards programs of the Wage Hour and Public Contracts Division and the wage determinations program of the Office of the Solicitor.

2. Appeals from determinations of Federal employee claims.—The Employees' Compensation Appeals Board hears and decides appeals from decisions of the Bureau of Employees' Compensation and the Governor of the Canal Zone in cases arising under the Federal Employees' Compensation Act. The Board closed out 262 cases in 1968, held 36 hearings, and rendered 199 opinions.

3. Improving safety and other working conditions of wage earners.—The Bureau of Labor Standards administers the safety provisions of the Public Contracts and Service Contracts Acts, other Federal procurement acts, and the Maritime Safety Act. The Public Contracts and Safety Contracts Acts presently cover some 35 million workers. In its activities under the Public Contracts and Service Contracts Acts, the Bureau concentrates on high-hazard industries and industries having high injury and injury severity rates.

In addition, the Bureau provides educational and promotional assistance, engineering consultation and technical advice in all phases of occupational accident prevention to maritime and special industries, labor unions, and Federal agencies. During 1968, the Bureau conducted over 30 thousand safety inspections and surveys, took over 47 thousand corrective actions and trained almost 21 thousand workers in safety programs.

The Bureau also assists and advises States on labor law administration and their adoption of appropriate legislation or codes. The Bureau is emphasizing studies on workmen's compensation standards, benefits, and coverage as a major focus of concern. Occupational safety and health legislation will be proposed to initiate a comprehensive Federal-State safety program. User charge legislation will be proposed to recover the cost of the maritime safety program.

4. Promoting employment of the handicapped.—The President's Committee on Employment of the Handicapped conducts a continuing program of public information and education to advance employment of the handicapped citizen and cooperates with all national groups interested in this field, including the Governor's Committees and 1,500 local committees.

5. Advancing opportunities and status of women.—The Women's Bureau seeks to enlarge economic, civil and political rights and opportunities for women through its educational and promotional activities and its technical and advisory services, its staff work for the Interdepartmental Committee on the Status of Women and the Citizens' Advisory Council on the Status of Women, and its services to Governors' Commissions on the Status of Women, to other Government agencies and to National, State, and local groups. Its programs are designed to advance the position of the 29.5 million women in the labor force, with special attention to the disadvantaged. In 1968, the Bureau provided more than 15 thousand technical and advisory services to women's organizations, State commissions, and a wide variety of government and private agencies.

6. Providing compensation for employees of the Federal Government and other persons covered by Federal workmen's compensation laws.—The Bureau of Employees' Compensation administers the Federal Employees' Compensation Act, the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, the Defense Bases Act, the War Risk Hazards Act, certain provisions of the War Claims Act, the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act, and the Nonappropriated Fund Instrumentalities Act. During 1968, 125,341 new injuries were reported under the Federal Employees' Compensation Act and 94,578 under the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act. User charge legislation will be proposed to recover the administrative cost of the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act.

The Wage and Hour and Public Contracts Divisions are responsible for obtaining compliance with the standards set by law respecting wages, hours, equal pay, child labor, age discrimination, and other conditions of employment in establishments subject to the provisions of the following: the Fair Labor Standards Act, the McNamara-O'Hara Service Contract Act, the Walsh-Healey Public Contracts Act, the Davis-Bacon and related acts, the Contract Work Hours Standards Act, and the Age Discrimination in Employment Act.

1. Enforcement.—Information efforts are directed towards appraising employees and employers of their rights and responsibilities under the acts administered. In 1968, radio and TV scripts, slides, and tapes, together with press releases and cooperative agreements with outside organizations, were used to promote compliance, particularly with the higher standards provided by the 1966 Fair Labor Standards Act amendments and the newly enacted Age Discrimination Act. In all, some 9,000,000 pieces of informational material were distributed to the public in 1968, and 1,250 groups of employees, employers, and others were addressed. Activity at this level is expected to continue through 1970. Investigations are made to ensure that employees receive the benefits to which they are entitled and to aid employers in complying with the provisions of the acts. During 1968, under new investigative procedures, more than 75,000 investigations were completed. No increase in the rate of investigations is anticipated during 1969 and 1970 because of the greater responsibilities under the Fair Labor Standards Act, the Age Discrimination Act, and the Davis-Bacon and related acts, together with the increasing number of complaints and the seriousness of the violations being disclosed. Violations disclosed are corrected either by obtaining voluntary agreements to comply or through litigation.

2. Wage determinations and regulations.—During 1968, over 1,000 wage determinations setting wage and fringe benefits standards were issued under the Service Contract Act. Wage determinations in effect applied to some 5,000 service contracts. With the issuance of revised and amplified regulations in 1969 and other improvements, it is anticipated that 1,250 determinations will be issued in 1969, and 1,400 in 1970. In order to prevent the curtailment of job opportunities for certain categories of workers, about 25,000 certificates authorizing the employment of students, trainees, the handicapped, and others at special minimum wage rates were issued under the Fair Labor Standards Act in 1968. This is more than 4,000 over the number issued in 1967. Increases are expected to continue in 1969 and 1970 with an estimated 32,000 certificates being issued in 1970. Wage orders applicable to all of the covered industry groups in Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and American Samoa will be reviewed by industry committees in either 1969 or 1970. The development of new regulations and interpretations, particularly to give effect to the 1966 Fair Labor Standards Act amendments and the Age Discrimination Act, will continue through 1970. Regulations will also be issued in 1970 covering the wage garnishment provisions (title III) of the Consumer Credit Protection Act, effective July 1, 1970.

3. Research and legislative analysis.—Research is conducted on the effects of the provisions dealing with wages, hours, age, equal pay, and child labor in the acts administered. About eight major studies are published each year. This involves gathering meaningful data on the socioeconomic characteristics of employees for use in making new legislative proposals and developing programs that will achieve the social and economic goals and objectives of the acts administered. This information is used to assess appropriate minimum wage standards, the relationship of wage standards to youth employment, and the problems resulting from age discrimination. Data is also collected and analyzed for use in the development of administrative policies and in support of litigation activities.

The trust funds consist of amounts received from employers for the death of an employee where no person is entitled to compensation for such death and for fines and penalty payments. In 1968 receipts were $20 thousand and interest was $8 thousand (33 U.S.C. 908; 31 U.S.C. 725; 33 U.S.C. 944).

The trust funds are available for payments of additional compensation for second injuries. When a second injury results in a permanent partial disability combined with a previous disability, the employer provides compensation only for the disability caused by the subsequent injury. Compensation to supplement the employer's payment is provided from this fund. Payments are made for maintenance for employees undergoing vocational rehabilitation to enable them to return to remunerative occupations. Payments are made in cases where judgment against employers cannot be satisfied by reason of insolvency or other circumstances precluding payment and to provide medical, surgical, and other treatment in disability cases where there has been a default by insolvency of the employer. In addition, under the subactivity Administration of Rehabilitation, provision is made for the costs of necessary rehabilitation services not otherwise available to disabled longshoremen and harbor workers.

The amount of securities reflected on the program and financing schedule are for the Workmen's Compensation Act, within the District of Columbia and all available cash for the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act, as amended, will be expended in 1969 and the fund will be insolvent. Temporary funding for the activities in this area has been provided by direct appropriation to Wage and Labor Standards Administration, salaries and expenses.

1. Manpower and employment.—Comprehensive data are collected and analyzed to measure the activity and health of the economy. Monthly estimates of the U.S. labor force, employment and unemployment, and studies of selected characteristics of the labor force are made. Monthly data on employment, hours of work, and earnings by industry for the United States and for each State are prepared and published. Projections of manpower requirements and supply and special studies on manpower problems are prepared. Detailed studies of the outlook for specific occupations are carried out.

2. Prices and cost of living.—The “Consumer Price Index” is compiled and published monthly covering urban wage earners and clerical families for the Nation as a whole and for large metropolitan areas. The “Wholesale Price Index” is issued monthly covering more than 2,000 industrial and agricultural products in primary markets. Special analytical studies of price changes are undertaken and standard family budgets are prepared and priced.

3. Wages and industrial relations.—Data on wages and salaries in major labor markets and industries are collected and analyzed. Monthly information is compiled on work stoppages and wage developments, and reports on employer expenditures on fringe benefits are issued. Studies are made of collective bargaining agreement provisions, trade union organization, and private welfare and pension plans.

WORKLOAD STATISTICS (MAJOR ITEMS)

Wages and industrial relations:	1968 actual	1969 estimate	1970 estimate
1. Occupational wages (separate studies for 85 metropolitan areas, 70 industries, and 75 occupational categories, mail and interviews); number of establishments reporting annually....	18,900	18,900	18,900

5. Work stoppages (mail questionnaires); number of employers and unions reporting annually..	7,500	7,500	7,500

4. Productivity, technology, and growth.—Measures of output per man-hour and analyses of productivity trend are prepared for the total economy, for major sectors and for selected industries. Studies are conducted on developments in automation and other technological changes with analysis of adjustments to such changes. Studies are made of labor requirements for selected types of construction. Research is conducted into problems of economic growth.

5. Foreign labor and trade.—Information, reports and advisory services for policy and program work are provided on labor conditions in foreign countries. Analyses and international comparisons of prices, wages, employment, unemployment, unit labor costs, labor law, and labor standards are made. Research is conducted on the effects of international trade on U.S. employment.

6. Program staff services.—Policies are established for the maintenance of statistical standards and improvements of statistical methodology. Special economic reports are prepared for the Commissioner, the Secretary, the Council of Economic Advisers, and other Government agencies. The Bureau's research and report activities are coordinated; publications and releases are planned and edited; and a central inquiry service is maintained.

7. Administration and management services.—Responsible for the development of plans, policies, and the overall operation of the Bureau statistical and management programs.

8. Revision of the Consumer Price Index.—The Consumer Price Index measures average changes in the retail prices of selected goods, rents, and services, weighted by quantities bought by families of wage earners and moderate income workers. A revision of the index based on current patterns of consumer expenditures will modernize the index to meet the demands for its use in present day domestic, economic, and industrial planning.

This activity utilizes foreign currencies available under title I of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, declared by the Treasury Department to be excess to the normal requirements of the United States for labor attaché conferences overseas. Regional labor attaché conferences benefit the United States in providing a forum for discussion of regional problems among the attending labor officers and Washington officials; provide for the coordination and implementation of U.S. objectives in the labor and manpower areas; provide a forum for informing labor officers overseas of new developments in the United States; and provide opportunities for officials of the Departments of State and Labor to discuss general and specific reporting needs.

This fund is available without fiscal year limitation and provides services on a centralized basis for the following Department activities (5 U.S.C. 622a): (1) Communications, (2) supply service, (3) duplicating service, (4) visual exhibits, (5) accounting and payrolling, and (6) tabulating.

Budget program.—1. Communication services.—Consists of switchboard, telecommunications and mail and messenger services.

2. Central supply.—Consists of supply storage and issuance, property accountability, preparation and issuance of purchase orders, maintenance of supply inventory records, and space management.

3. Duplicating services.—Consists of offset printing including composing and layout, mimeographing, collating, and addressograph service. This activity also includes procurement of printing from the Government Printing Office and the procurement and distribution of congressional material.

4. Visual exhibits.—Consists of preparing displays for public information and furnishing photographic services to the various bureaus.

5. Accounts and payroll.—Consists of centralizing payrolling, accounting and financial reporting for the Department.

6. Central tabulating services.—Provides tabulating service for payroll and accounting functions, personnel and other statistical operations.

Operating results and financial conditions.—Services rendered are charged for at rates which return in full all expenses of operation, including a normal reserve for accrued annual leave and depreciation of equipment. The fund is reimbursed in advance by bureaus, offices, and agencies served.

GENERAL PROVISIONS

SEC. 101. Appropriations in this Act available for salaries and expenses shall be available for supplies, services, and rental of conference space within the District of Columbia, as the Secretary of Labor shall deem necessary for settlement of labor-management disputes. (Department of Labor Appropriation Act, 1969.)

POST OFFICE DEPARTMENT

Federal Funds

Mail volume.—The budget estimates for 1970 are based on expected volume of 84.8 billion pieces of mail, compared to 82.3 billion anticipated for 1969 and 79.8 billion in 1968.

The 1970 forecast includes 48 billion first-class letters and cards; 1.9 billion airmail items; 9.1 billion magazines, newspapers, and other publications; 21.3 billion pieces of printed matter and small parcels; and 1 billion zone-rate parcels, catalogs, and other fourth-class matter. Comparisons of these and other items of postal workload and related 1970 revenues with corresponding 1969 estimates and 1968 results appear in the table on page 700.

Financing.—Eight separate limitations are enacted for the Post Office Department for operation of the postal service and other assigned responsibilities. The limitations apply to the postal fund which is financed by the deposit therein of postal revenues and other receipts and by an appropriation from the general fund of the Treasury for the balance.

The estimates for 1970 include, in the overall summary tables and in the statement of revenue and expense, anticipated revenue increases aggregating $519.4 million, based on proposed rate legislation to consolidate airmail and first-class into one rate.

Only the appropriation from the general fund to the postal fund (being equal to the excess of obligational authority over revenues) is considered new obligational authority for purposes of the Federal budget. Further, only the excess of the Department's disbursements over its receipts (exclusive of the general fund appropriation) is considered as budget expenditures.

The eight individual limitations control obligations incurred by the Department and are therefore requested and accounted for in terms of obligations. However, the program and financing schedules show funded accrued costs for each principal activity reconciled in total to obligations.

The schedule of revenue and expense shows operating costs on a full accrual basis including provision for employees' accrued annual leave and costs funded by other agencies. Costs attributable to public services as defined by 39 U.S.C. 2303 and amended by Public Law 87-793 are shown in total on the revenue and expense statement.

The Postal Policy Act of 1958 (Public Law 85-426), as amended by the Postal Service and Federal Employees' Salary Act of 1962 (Public Law 87-793), provides that postal rates and fees be adjusted as required to produce the amount of revenue approximately equal to the total cost of operating the Postal Establishment, less the amount determined to be attributable to the performance of public services.

Following is a summary of financial transactions and estimated revenue deficiency (in millions of dollars):

CONTRIBUTION TO THE POSTAL FUND—Continued

Revenue from mail and other services of the Post Office Department is placed in the postal fund, which was established as a revolving fund in 1950 (39 U.S.C. 2202). In addition to the obligations and expenditures under limitations enacted in annual appropriations acts, the fund is also used without annual action by Congress for the purchase of stamp-embossed envelopes and for the payment of certain indemnities, claims, and judgments.

Postal revenue comes primarily from private postal patrons. It also includes receipts from various Federal agencies for the handling of official mail and the payment by the Congress for franked mail. Reimbursements received for nonpostal services and other recoveries are likewise deposited in the postal fund.

The aggregate of postal revenues is less than the obligations authorized for payment from the postal fund. An indefinite appropriation is made from the general fund of the Treasury to make up the difference. After taking into account anticipated changes in funded working capital, and the additional revenue in 1970 from proposed rate increase legislation, the net budget expenditures for the postal service for 1970 are estimated to be $552 million, compared to $929 million for 1969, and $1,080 million for 1968. The additional amount projected to be received from the proposed rate increase has been included in the final summary table and in the statement of revenue and expense.

paid money orders. The biennial fidelity bond premium for all employees is included in 1968 and 1970.

2. Field inspection service.—This activity provides for the postal inspection and internal audit services. Postal inspection includes all field investigation and inspection functions pertaining to the violation of postal laws; prevention and detection of loss and mistreatment of mail, and losses of Government funds and property; field audit of postmasters' accounts; personnel security and suitability investigations; and special studies and investigations. The internal audit program includes comprehensive reviews and financial audits of activities at the departmental level, regional offices, data centers, and other selected field installations.

3. Regional operation.—This activity provides for direction and administration of postal field activities under authority delegated by Washington headquarters. There are 15 regional administration offices that are responsible for administration of programs, controlling and reporting of operating costs, and management of postal operations. The six postal data centers provide staff services of accounting, disbursing, and data processing for headquarters and regional operation offices. Each data center covers a geographical area of two or three regional offices.

This no-year appropriation funds the administration and conduct of the headquarters research and development and engineering programs. The estimated fund requirement for 1970 is $51.8 million, an increase of $16.3 million over 1969 and an increase of $28.7 million over 1968.

1. Direct operation.—This activity includes funds for headquarters personnel, compensation of the Research and Engineering Advisory Council and related costs required to administer departmental research and development and engineering programs. It also includes the conduct of research and development and engineering activities not performed under contract. Work performed includes the development of preliminary designs for new major facilities and mechanized mail handling equipment and modifications to existing facilities, and systems; the development, test and evaluation of new equipment, systems and techniques for postal applications and the conduct of an industrial engineering program.

2. Engineering support.—This activity provides materials and services to support postal research and development and engineering programs. Work funded under this activity includes technical support in the development of designs for facilities and equipment, professional services to support the conduct of an industrial engineering program, and the development of models and aids used in the planning, design and phase-in of new major facilities and mechanized systems.

3. Contract research and development.—This activity includes funds for the design, development, test and evaluation of new postal equipment, materials and techniques required to reduce costs, improve service and improve employee working conditions. The work is primarily performed by other Government agencies or by private industry under contract. Funds are also included for supplies, materials and equipment used in testing and evaluating equipment at postal laboratory facilities.

At times the scope of work performed is of such magnitude as to require several years for completion. Therefore, obligations incurred in any one year are not necessarily indicative of the level of work actually performed. In order to provide flexibility required in programming research projects, funds in this appropriation are available until expended.

Funds provided in this limitation pay the personal services and related expenses required to perform the primary function of the Post Office Department—collecting, sorting, and delivering the mail. The employees paid with these funds include postmasters, who administer the operation of the postal installations; supervisors and clerks, who direct and process the handling of mail along with providing window services to patrons; city carriers, special delivery messengers, and rural carriers, who collect and deliver the mail; maintenance personnel, who keep the buildings and equipment in operating condition; and the vehicle maintenance employees, who service the Government-owned trucks used in hauling mail.

Funds requested for 1970 total $6,166 million, an increase of $201 million over the estimate for 1969. The additional funds will provide the manpower and cover the related expenses necessary to handle the estimated increase of 2.5 billion pieces of mail in 1970, provide delivery service to the additional area and patrons, and improve existing services.

1. Administration of postal installations.—Services are performed under this activity by postmasters, assistant postmasters, supervisors, and technical personnel. These employees are engaged in the local management, supervision, labor relations and related fields at all postal units. Technical personnel under this activity include accounting, finance examiner, medical, safety, and personnel employees.

post offices. It also includes rendering of window service to patrons, payment for the operation of contract stations, dispatch control of trucks hauling mail, and reimbursements to the Federal Reserve banks for handling deposits made by postmasters.

It is expected that continued benefits from the efforts to improve operating procedures and cooperation of the mailing public in the preparation of its mailings along with the continued mechanization and employee incentive programs will enable the increase of 3.1% in mail volume to be handled with an increase of 2.3% in clerical manpower. This compares with a 2.6% increase in manpower to handle a 2.5% increase in mail volume experienced in 1968 and 2.4% increase in manpower to handle a 3.1% increase in mail volume and other programs planned in 1969.

CLERKS AND MAIL HANDLERS

3. Collection and delivery service.—This service provides for delivery of mail to residences and business places in cities and their suburbs; collection of mail from over 321,040 street letterboxes and 14,798 building mail chutes in these areas; delivery of mail on rural routes; and delivery of special delivery articles. This service also includes the local pickup and delivery of mail between stations and the post office and other installations. In some instances drivers transport mail between cities. Possible city deliveries in 1970 are estimated to increase approximately 2.2%. The estimated increase in number of possible deliveries results from the continuous growth in housing. The number of rural routes to be established in 1970 will be offset by conversions of rural routes to city delivery service and the consolidation of rural routes for economic reasons.

4. Maintenance service.—The services under this activity relate to the maintenance of equipment and buildings and protection and cleaning of buildings used by the postal service. The employees under this activity include, among others, guards, mail handling elevator operators, janitors, and mechanics to service mechanical and electronic mail handling and office equipment.

5. Vehicle service.—This activity provides for the maintenance and operating cost of vehicles used for the local collection and delivery of mail and, in some instances, the transport of mail between cities. This includes employment of vehicle mechanics; the purchase of parts, gasoline, oil, tires, and contract maintenance; and the cost of hired vehicles used in lieu of Government-owned vehicles when it is economically advantageous.

This limitation provides for rental of postal facilities; cost of communications, fuel, utilities, and moving expenses; one-time payments for improvements to leased buildings; and installments on lease-purchase contracts. Increased rental costs result from (a) the acquisition of additional postal space, (b) increased rental rates, and (c) replacement of inadequate or substandard space in Government buildings.

This limitation provides for procurement of supplies and services necessary for the support of the Postal Establishment. Included are postal supplies and services; supplies and services for the maintenance of buildings occupied by the Post Office Department; the rental of equipment; supplies and services and the rental of equipment to support the automatic data processing program; the manufacture, storage and repair of mailbags and other specialized mail equipment items; stamps and accountable paper; printing and reproduction; and the costs of field personnel engaged directly in these services. Increased costs are due to increased mail volume, additional space occupied and expanding requirements for data processing services.

This limitation provides funds to alter and improve Federal buildings used for postal purposes; for procurement of vehicles and garage equipment for the Post Office Department vehicle fleet; for mail processing machines to include installation; for self-service vending units and other customer service equipment; and for postal support equipment to include data processing machines. The program and financing schedule shows, in addition to obligations, the extent to which yearly costs are expected to be incurred with the corresponding increase in the amount of assets on order, which is indicated by changes in selected resources applied to the program.

1. Federal buildings improvement.—This activity provides for modernizing and extending Government-owned buildings to make them adequate and efficient for postal purposes. Air conditioning, heating plant improvements, and the purchase of additional land adjacent to Federal buildings are included in this activity.

2. Vehicle program.—This activity provides for replacement of wornout vehicles, for additions to the fleet required by growth of postal service, for vehicles to augment the carrier mechanization program, and for the purchase of garage equipment. The estimate provides for the purchase of 20,990 vehicles of which 14,209 are for carrier mechanization, 6,563 are for bulk transfer of mail, and 218 are other types. All vehicles are of one-half-ton capacity and over. The purchase of vehicles is for replacement of obsolete vehicles and for new service.

3. Mail processing equipment.—This activity provides for the installation of major mail processing machinery and equipment in large postal facilities designed for such installations. It also provides for modification of existing installations to adapt them to changing concepts of mail handling. This mechanization consists of three major categories of equipment; fixed mechanized systems, nonfixed mechanized mail-handling systems, and other mail-handling equipment. Examples of fixed or non-severable mechanization are transport conveyors, belt conveyor storage systems, sack, pouch and parcel sorting systems, monorail conveyors, and related slides and chutes. Nonfixed mechanization, a type of equipment that is made in identical models and can be moved within a postal plant as necessary, includes facer-cancelers, edger-stackers, letter sorters, and mechanized support equipment. The latter includes such examples as canceling, sack and pouch label, wire and string tying machines and culling and facing conveyors. Included in other mail-handling equipment are material transport items, work-room furniture, and city delivery service equipment. In 1970, 12 new fixed mechanized projects are scheduled.

4. Customer service equipment.—This activity provides for the procurement of that equipment which is designed and utilized specifically to render service to window, lobby, and self-service unit patrons. The equipment is designed and employed to increase hours of service to the public at less expense to the Post Office Department. In 1970, 345 self-service postal units and 500 additional vending machines are proposed.

5. Postal support equipment.—This activity provides for the purchase of the support equipment required by the postal service. It includes the investment in information processing and accounting equipment for the Department data processing and office activities; equipment for the maintenance of buildings, grounds, vehicles, and other equipment; office equipment and furniture; protective equipment; and equipment for the mail equipment shop, mail bag repair units and depositories.

This limitation provides for preliminary planning of postal public buildings, acquisition of sites, preparation of drawings and specifications, construction, supervision of construction, purchase of leased buildings, and other related costs incident to projects approved under the Public Buildings Act of 1959. Also included is the acquisition and resale of sites and design services, the recoveries from which are shown under Advances and reimbursements and are applied to the purchase of additional sites for resale or design services. Costs for site, survey, and selection, onsite supervision and administration of projects are financed from administration and regional operation and Research, development, and engineering. The 1970 estimate of $174,223 thousand provides funds for:

1. Site, design, and expenses.—Acquisition of sites, including costs of appraisals; preparation of drawings and specifications, by contract or otherwise; technical services; soil survey and tests; reproduction of plans and specifications; and supervision of construction, by contract or otherwise.

2. Construction.—Construction of 13 new projects.

3. Project planning and development.—Expenses of initial project study and planning associated with a new project.

The reimbursements from foreign air transportation and sale of sites amount to 94.6% of the total reimbursements estimated to be received in 1970.

5. Foreign air transportation: Transportation of military mail (Department of Defense).—The Department of Defense pays for the oversea portion of the transportation of mail moving to and from military post offices in foreign countries. Because it is set up to do so, the Post Office Department makes the arrangements with and pays the bills of commercial air carriers who haul this mail overseas. The Department of Defense makes a reimbursement to the Transportation limitation for the costs thus incurred by the Post Office Department. The trend in volume growth is expected to continue through 1970.

10. Postal public buildings: Sale of sites and related costs to prospective lessors.—This program provides for purchase of sites for construction of postal facilities and payments of architect-engineering fees for the design of such buildings. The sites are resold to the builder, and the proceeds reimbursed to the postal public buildings limitation.

90 Outlays.....			-519,400

These additional revenues are based on the enactment of proposed legislation establishing one rate scale for all first-class mail, including mail currently dispatched at premium airmail rates, and increasing third-class single-piece rates. Specifically, the proposed legislation would:

1. Terminate present domestic airmail rates of 10 cents per ounce for letters weighing up to 7 ounces and 8 cents for airmail post cards and postal cards.

2. Provide an increase of 1 cent per ounce for letter mail (from 6 cents to 7 cents) and 1 cent per piece (from 5 cents to 6 cents) for cards.

Such mail would be subject to a single uniform transportation standard requiring utilization of the most efficient arrangements available to the Department.

3. Increase third-class single-piece postage rates by 1 cent per piece (from 6 cents to 7 cents for the first 2 ounces).

The proposed rates would become effective July 1, 1969. The additional amount of $519.4 million projected to be received from the proposed rate increase legislation has been included in the overall summary table and in the statement of revenue and expense.
