Budget of the United States Government

Fiscal Year 1986

EXECUTIVE OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT
OFFICE OF MANAGEMENT AND BUDGET

THE BUDGET DOCUMENTS

Budget of the United States Government, 1986 contains the Budget Message of the President and presents an overview of the President's budget proposals. It includes explanations of spending programs in terms of national needs, agency missions, and basic programs, and an analysis of receipts, including a discussion of the President's tax program. This document also contains a description of the budget system and various summary tables on the budget as a whole.

United States Budget in Brief, 1986 is designed for use by the general public. It provides a more concise, less technical overview of the 1986 Budget than the above volume. Summary and historical tables on the Federal budget and debt are also provided, together with graphic displays.

Budget of the United States Government, 1986—Appendix contains detailed information on the various appropriations and funds that comprise the budget. The Appendix contains more detailed information than any of the other budget documents. It includes for each agency: the proposed text of appropriation language, budget schedules for each account, new legislative proposals, explanations of the work to be performed and the funds needed, proposed general provisions applicable to the appropriations of entire agencies or groups of agencies, and schedules of permanent positions. Supplementals and rescission proposals for the current year are presented separately. Information is also provided on certain activities whose outlays are not part of the budget-totals.

Special Analyses, Budget of the United States Government, 1986 contains analyses that are designed to highlight specified program areas or provide other significant presentations of Federal budget data. This document includes information about: alternative views of the budget, i.e., current services and national income accounts; economic and financial analyses of the budget covering Government finances and operations as a whole; and Government-wide program and financial information for Federal civil rights and research and development programs.

Historical Tables, Budget of the United States Government, 1986, is a new volume. It provides data on budget receipts, outlays, surpluses or deficits, and Federal debt covering extended time periods—in many cases from 1940–1990. These are much longer time periods than those covered by similar tables in other budget documents. The tables include various aggregations of budget components in current prices, constant prices, and as percentages of the budget totals and of the gross national product. The document includes, for example, data on receipts by major source from 1940 to 1990; and Federal debt from 1940 to 1990. The data for the years prior to 1986 have, where necessary, been restructured to be consistent with the concepts and presentation used in the 1986 Budget, so these data series are comparable over time.

Instructions for purchasing copies of any of these materials are on the last page of this volume.

GENERAL NOTES

1. All years referred to are fiscal years, unless otherwise noted.
2. Detail in the tables, text, and charts of this volume may not add to the totals because of rounding.

EXPLANATION OF ESTIMATES

Part I contains various tables and certain schedules in support of the budget, including explanatory statements of the work to be performed and the money needed, as well as the text of the language proposed for enactment by Congress on each item for which congressional action in an appropriation bill is required. It also contains the text of general provisions of appropriations acts, proposed for enactment by the Congress, that apply to entire agencies or groups of agencies.

ARRANGEMENT

The chapters of Part I reflect the branches of Government, and the cabinet departments, selected independent agencies, and other activities of the executive branch. Most of the smaller agencies in the executive branch are grouped in one chapter—"Other independent agencies."

Each chapter is organized by major subordinate organizations within the agency (usually bureaus) or by major program area. For each bureau or major program area, Federal funds, covering the funds that are not set aside in "trust," precede trust funds, covering moneys that are held by the Government in accounts established by law or by trust agreement for specific purposes. Within each fund group, accounts with new budget authority in 1986 generally will precede those without such an entry.

The proposed language for general provisions of appropriations acts that are applicable to the agency in that chapter appear in a separate section at the end of the chapter. General provisions that apply to specified groups of agencies are placed in the chapter covering the first agency that appears in the respective appropriations act. The general provisions that are Government-wide in scope (identified "Departments, Agencies, and Corporations"), normally contained in the Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government Appropriations Act, are placed at the end of the Executive Office of the President chapter.

An explanation of the types of funds included in the budget may be found in Part 7 of—The Budget of the United States Government, 1986.

FORM OF DETAILED MATERIAL

APPROPRIATIONS LANGUAGE

The language proposed for inclusion in the 1986 appropriations acts is printed following the account title. The language of the 1985 appropriations acts, printed in roman type, is used as a base. Brackets enclose material that is proposed for deletion; italic type indicates proposed new language. At the end of the final language paragraph, and printed in italics within parentheses, are citations to any relevant authorizing legislation and to the appropriations act from which the basic text of the 1985 language is taken. An illustration of proposed appropriations language for 1986 follows:

OPERATING EXPENSES

For necessary expenses of the Office of Climate Information, [$29,440,000] $28,920,000 of which [$150,000] $400,000 shall remain available until expended. (34 U.S.C. 218 et seq.; Department of Government Appropriation Act, 1985.)

BASIS FOR SCHEDULES

The 1984 column of this budget generally presents the actual transactions and balances for that year, as recorded in agency accounts.

For 1985, the regular schedules include enacted appropriations and also identify the amounts for supplemental appropriations requested to meet the increased costs of statutory and wage-board pay raises. When the annual appropriation has not been enacted, the regular schedules will include the amounts provided under the authority of a continuing resolution. Requests for supplemental appropriations to meet increased 1985 program costs (where costs other than for statutory pay raises are involved), or to finance proposed program expansions in 1985, are included in Part II. Also included in Part II, in addition to proposed appropriation language for both pay and program supplemental requests, are proposed rescissions, the language for which will be transmitted to the Congress in special messages.

The 1986 column of the regular schedules includes proposed appropriations for all existing programs, including those that require extension or renewal of expiring laws. Amounts for proposed new legislation, if any, are shown generally in separate schedules, following the regular schedules or in budget sequence in the respective bureau. These schedules are headed "Proposed for later transmittal under proposed legislation." Appropriation language is included with the regular schedules, but not with the separate schedules for proposed legislation. In some cases, when the amount requested in the budget is less than the amount required for the program level mandated in existing authorizing legislation (as in the case of entitlement programs), the reduced amount is reflected in the proposed appropriation language and the regular schedules. The proposed change in the authorizing legislation may be included in the appropriation language transmitted with the budget or in proposed legislation, to be transmitted separately.

PROGRAM AND FINANCING SCHEDULE

This schedule consists of three parts.

In the "Program by activities" section, obligations generally are shown for specific activities or projects. The activity structure is developed individually for each appropriation or fund account to provide a meaningful presentation of information for the program being financed. That structure is tailored to the individual account and is not uniform across the Government. When the amounts of obligations that are financed from collections credited to an account (reimbursements) are significant, "Reimbursable program" obligations are shown separately from "Direct program" obligations. When the amounts are significant, "Capital investments" are shown separately from "Operating expenses." The last entry "Total obligations," indicates the minimum amount of budgetary resources that must be available to the appropriation or fund account in that year.

The "Financing" section shows the budgetary resources available or estimated to be available to finance the total obligations. First are the amounts of offsetting collections credited to the account. Next are unobligated balances (that have not expired) brought forward from the end of the prior year. Finally, those amounts that were available for obligation during the year and were not used, but continue to be available, are shown as an unobligated balance available, end of year. That balance is carried forward and usually obligated in a subsequent year. Other adjusting entries may be included. The residual is the new budget authority required to finance the program. Where more than one kind of budget authority is provided, that information is shown. In some cases, the availability of budgetary resources may be restrained by legally binding limitations on obligations for direct loans or for other purposes.

The "Relation of obligations to outlays" section shows the difference between obligations, which may not be liquidated in the same year in which they are incurred, and outlays. The entry "obligations incurred, net," shows the amount of new obligations incurred in the year, less offsetting collections credited to the account. The amount of obligations that were incurred in previous years but not liquidated, are entered as an obligated balance, start of year. Similarly, an end of year obligated balance is entered. Certain adjusting entries may be included. The residual is the net amount of outlays resulting from the liquidation of obligations incurred in that year and previous years.

The account identification code, found at the head of the program and financing schedule, facilitates computer processing of budgetary information. The last three digits of this code represent the functional category to which the account is classified. Functional classification permits presentation of budget authority and outlays in terms of their purpose, rather than the organization administering the program or the account under which these funds are made available. For example, the 452 at the top of the following schedule indicates that the purpose of the program financed by this appropriation is Area and regional development—a subfunction within major function 450, Community and regional development. When the outlays from an account are split between two or more subfunctions within a single major function, the code of the major function is used. In those few cases where the outlays from an account are split between two or more functions, a code of 999 is used. A detailed discussion of how Federal programs are addressed to each identified national need is included in Part 5 of the budget. The individual functional categories are identified with each appropriation or fund account in the Budget Accounts Listing in Part 8 of the budget.

NARRATIVE STATEMENT OF PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Narrative statements present briefly the objectives of the program and the work to be financed primarily for 1986. Measures of expected performance may be included, and the relationship to the financial estimates is described.

SCHEDULE OF OBJECT CLASSIFICATION AND PERSONNEL SUMMARY

There is shown for each account a schedule of obligations, according to the following uniform list of object classifications:

10 PERSONAL SERVICES AND BENEFITS	25 Other services
11 Personnel compensation	26 Supplies and materials
12 Personnel benefits	30 ACQUISITION OF CAPITAL ASSETS
13 Benefits for former personnel	31 Equipment
20 CONTRACTUAL SERVICES AND SUPPLIES	32 Lands and structures
21 Travel and transportation of persons	33 Investments and loans
22 Transportation of things	40 GRANTS AND FIXED CHARGES
23.1 Standard level user charges	41 Grants, subsidies, and contributions
23.2 Communications, utilities, and other rent	42 Insurance claims and indemnities
24 Printing and reproduction	43 Interest and dividends
	44 Refunds

These object classes reflect the nature of the things or services purchased, regardless of the purpose of the program for which they are used.

Except for revolving funds, reimbursable obligations are aggregated in a single line and not identified by object class. Data, classified by object, are illustrated in the following schedule:

99.0	Reimbursable obligations.....	250	350	380
99.9	Total obligations.....	30,396	30,590	29,300

Several of the object classes are divided into subclasses—personnel compensation, for example, is shown separately for full-time permanent employees, for other than full-time employees, and for certain other payments. Standard level user charges are rental payments assessed by the General Services Administration for space (leased and Government-owned) and building services.

When obligations for personnel compensation are shown in the object classification schedule, a personnel summary generally will follow the object classification schedule, as illustrated below:

Personnel Summary
Direct:
	Total number of full-time permanent positions.....	813	785	741
	Total compensable workyears:
	Full-time equivalent employment.....	774	748	706

Reimbursable:
	Total number of full-time permanent positions.....	9	13	14
	Total compensable workyears: Full-time equivalent employment.....	8	12	13

Control of Federal civilian employment generally is on a full-time equivalent (FTE) or workyear basis for the executive branch.

BUSINESS-TYPE BUDGET STATEMENTS

Business-type budget statements are presented for activities specifically required by the Government Corporation Control Act or similar legislation and generally for other revolving and trust revolving funds conducting business with the public. They are not usually presented for funds conducting business within the Government.

Statement of Revenue and Expense

For many revolving funds there is a statement of revenue and expense that shows the resulting net income or loss for the year. This statement usually includes accrued revenue (e.g., revenue earned) and accrued expenditures (e.g., including cost incurred but not yet paid), whether funded or unfunded.

Revenue and Expense (in thousands of dollars)

Nonoperating income: Interest from U.S. securities...	8,092	9,874	12,791
Net income for the year.....	28,887	34,124	43,771

Statement of Financial Condition

The statement of financial condition shows assets, liabilities, and Government equity for the fund at the close of each fiscal year. In addition to this information, which is similar to commercial balance sheet data, budget needs also require additional information, shown in the equity section. A disclosure is made of obligations incurred that have not yet accrued into liabilities (undelivered orders) and of budgetary resources for which no funding has been received (unfinanced budgetary resources). Unfinanced budgetary resources include orders from Federal customers that have not been filled (unfilled orders), and unfinanced budget authority in the form of authority to borrow for which borrowing has not taken place, and contract authority for which liquidating cash has not been received. Orders received from the public must be accompanied by advance payment.

The last section of the balance sheet is an "Analysis of Changes in Government Equity." This section sets forth for paid-in capital and retained income, as appropriate, the beginning balance, transactions (changes) during the year, and the balance at the end of the year.

FEDERAL CREDIT SCHEDULES

As part of an effort to establish systematic control of the levels of Federal credit during any fiscal year, the budget appendix includes annual limitations on the amount of obligations for direct loans and commitments for guaranteed loans in appropriations language for appropriations or funds with credit activity. For those accounts under which Federal credit is extended, schedules for the status of direct loans and the status of guaranteed loans summarize activity for the years shown.

Status of Direct Loans

A direct loan is a disbursement of funds (not in exchange for goods or services) that is contracted to be repaid—with or without interest—or any of the following transactions:

- purchase of private loans through secondary market operations;
- acquisition of guaranteed private loans in satisfaction of default or other guarantee claims.

A direct loan is counted against the annual limitation when the principal amount is obligated. Gross obligations for direct loans means the amount obligated during a fiscal year, without reductions for such items as repayments, prepayments, sale of loan assets, defaults, or forgiveness.

For each appropriation or fund with direct loan activity, a schedule is displayed immediately following the program and financing schedule as follows:

Status of Guaranteed Loans

A guaranteed loan commitment is an agreement by which the Government pledges to pay part or all of the loan principal and interest to a lender or holder of a security, in the event of default by a third party borrower. For the purposes of credit control, the term includes agreements in the form of loan insurance; i.e., a program to pool risks, pledging the use of insurance premiums, and, under some circumstances, other resources to secure a lender against default by a borrower. The term also includes direct Federal loans that the Government has sold under guarantee or repurchase agreements.

A guaranteed loan is counted against the annual limitation when a firm commitment is made, i.e., when the Government enters into a guarantee agreement to become effective at such time as the lender meets stipulated pre-conditions. A commitment is reported for every guaranteed loan, even though the commitment and the actual loan guarantee may occur simultaneously. Amounts for limitations and in the schedules are the full principal amounts of loans guaranteed whether guaranteed in full or in part. The amount of the Government's contingent liability is shown as a memorandum entry in the schedule. Gross commitments for guaranteed loans means the amount committed during a fiscal year, without reductions for such items as repayments, prepayments, sale of guaranteed loans, or defaults.

For each appropriation or fund account with guaranteed loan activity, a schedule is displayed immediately following the program and financing schedule (or status of direct loans schedule, if there is one) as follows:

Personal services and necessary expenses to provide support for the basic operations of the Library are financed from this appropriation.

Purchase of books and library materials.—The Library's collections are acquired through purchase, gift, exchange, copyright deposit, and official deposit. This includes materials in all subjects, except medicine and agriculture, for the general collections of the Library and domestic and foreign law materials for the law library.

Preparation of books and library materials for use.—Library materials are cataloged for use and are classified for systematic arrangement on the shelves of the collection. Cataloging data is converted to machine-readable form for use by the Library of Congress, other libraries, and cataloging service agencies. The Network Development Office plans and coordinates the exchange of bibliographic information among major library cooperatives and research facilities.

Cataloging distribution service.—The Cataloging Distribution Service makes available copies of the Library's printed catalog cards, cataloging data in machine-readable form, book catalogs, technical publications, and select bibliographies from the automated data bases.

Research and reader services.—Books and other library materials are provided to readers inside and outside the Library, reference, referral and bibliographic assistance is rendered, and custody of the collections is maintained.

Preservation of library materials.—Library materials are preserved in their original format by being bound or rebound, or by a variety of conservation/restoration techniques. Materials are also preserved by converting them to a more durable form through such means as the microfilming of books and newspapers, by conversion of nitrate film to safety base film, and by the conversion of deteriorating sound recordings to polyester tape.

Automated systems support.—Central computer support to all operations of the Library is provided by the Automated Systems Office. This support consists of systems analysis, programming, and operation of central computers, minicomputers and data communication services.

Central support services.—This activity supports the executive staff of the Office of the Librarian; exhibit, information, and publication activities; personnel, budget and finance, procurement, buildings management, and other centralized services. It also includes rental of space off Capitol Hill.

American Folklife Center.—Public Law 94-201 established the American Folklife Center in the Library of Congress "to preserve and present American folklife" through field documentation, consultancies, research, publishing, exhibition and dissemination of information.

Deacidification facility.—Public Law 98-427 authorized the Library of Congress to construct a deacidification facility for the operation of the diethyl zinc preservation process. The funding for this project was provided under Public Law 98-392. The funds are to remain available until expended.

The Copyright Office is responsible for recording copyright claims, assignments, and renewals, for supplying copyright information to the public, for collecting and accounting for copyright fees, and for printing complete and indexed catalogs for each class of copyright entries. The Office is conducted for the most part on a self-sustaining basis. The amount requested is substantially counterbalanced by fees received for services rendered and the value of books and other library materials deposited in accordance with the Copyright Act and transferred to the Library of Congress. The income and obligations for 1984, and estimates for 1985 and 1986 are as follows:

Income:
Gross receipts.....	6,119,611	6,700,000	6,725,000
Estimated value of materials deposited and transferred to the Library of Congress.....	7,882,986	8,000,000	8,000,000
Total income.....	14,002,597	14,700,000	14,725,000
Obligations.....	16,210,377	17,501,000	18,081,000

The effort described under each of the activities are predicated on an estimated 500,000 copyright registrations during 1986, an estimated 500,000 during 1985, and registrations of 502,628 during 1984.

Receiving and accounting for applications, fees, and correspondence.—Materials received by the Copyright Office are assembled and routed; accounts are maintained for all moneys received; records relating to the registration of copyrights are filed; and materials are deposited in accordance with the Copyright Act.

Examining copyright applications.—All applications and deposits are examined before issuance of registration certificates or recordings of documents to determine whether the provisions of the Copyright Act have been satisfied.

Indexing and cataloging materials received.—The Register of Copyrights is required to print complete and indexed catalogs of all items registered. The catalog entries prepared by the Copyright Office are made available in part to the Library for its general operations. It is estimated that for 1986 the number of items to be cataloged will be 500,000.

Reference service.—The Copyright Office makes available to the public information concerning the provisions of the Copyright Act, including procedures, policies, and rulings. Information concerning registrations is furnished on a fee basis. Obtaining compliance with registration requirements is also part of this activity.

Printing the catalog of copyright entries and bulletins of decisions.—Catalogs for each class of copyright entries and bulletins of copyright decisions are printed and made available to the public.

Records management.—The Records Management Division is responsible for storing and maintaining records related to the copyright registrations process.

General supervision and legal services.—The work of the Copyright Office includes legal supervision and research into the present copyright law and international copyright relations. It also involves a study of improvement of the domestic law and our international copyright relations.

Licensing Division.—The Licensing Division performs the responsibilities connected with the registration of cable television stations and the licensing of jukeboxes.

Policy analysis and research.—The Congressional Research Service provides objective, nonpartisan analytical and consultative services to the Members and committees of Congress, assisting them in the analysis, appraisal, and evaluation of any subject matter of legislative concern, including recommendations submitted to the Congress by the Executive Branch. Research services are also provided to assist Congress with its oversight, representative, and other responsibilities. Support takes the form of background studies, in-depth policy analyses, consultations, briefings, legal research, continuous liaison with committees, assistance with committee hearings, public policy seminars for Members and congressional staff, and related data and materials. In order to respond most effectively to the broad range of congressional inquiries, the Service supplements individually tailored products with Issue Briefs, Reports, Committee Prints, and "Info Packs", which are collections of both CRS products and carefully selected materials from outside sources that provide background material on issues of very high congressional interest. Lists of subjects and policy areas that a committee might profitably pursue are periodically made available to each congressional committee. As provided by statute, the Service prepares decennially the Constitution of the United States—Analysis and Interpretation, and supplements at 2-year intervals, prepares compendiums for the annual national high school and college debate topics, and provides assistance to the Congressional Budget Office, the Office of Technology Assessment, and the General Accounting Office.

Documentation and status of legislation.—The Service prepares and publishes for distribution to the Congress the Digest of Public General Bills and Resolutions, including summaries of all public bills and resolutions introduced in Congress, the status of bills receiving action, and various pertinent indexes. Upon request, the Service prepares legislative history memorandums on bills for which hearings have been announced, and compiles and makes available to each committee reports on legislatively authorized programs and activities within that committee's jurisdiction that are scheduled to terminate during the current Congress.

Information and reference services.—The Congressional Research Service provides extensive information and reference assistance to Members and committees. Reference files containing clippings, pamphlets, and documents and automated information services are maintained for rapid information retrieval. Lists of selected reports, prepared by CRS staff on legislative issues, are regularly distributed to congressional offices. To provide faster responses and in-person services, the Service also maintains reference centers in congressional office buildings and the Congressional Reading Rooms in the Madison and Jefferson Buildings of the Library of Congress.

Executive direction and support.—Providing overall supervision and administrative support to the entire Congressional Research Service is the responsibility of the Office of the Director and the administrative personnel.

The Librarian of Congress may use foreign currencies to provide information of technical, scientific, cultural, or educational significance to the United States through the collection of foreign library materials and the distribution of copies thereof to libraries and research centers in the United States. The program is being carried on in two countries in 1985: India and Pakistan. In 1986, the program will be limited to support of the Pakistan office. It is requested that operations in India be continued on a smaller scale under the Salaries and Expenses, Library of Congress Appropriation. Of the total amount requested in 1986, $711,000 will be paid in foreign currencies, while $121,000 will provide U.S. dollar support.

Acquisition of books and other library materials.—Based upon the requirements of other Federal agencies and certain research libraries in the United States, publications and other library materials are purchased in multiple copies and distributed to selected libraries and research centers in the United States, including the Library of Congress.

Program support (U.S. dollars).—U.S. dollars are required to pay certain expenses which cannot be paid by foreign currencies, such as the salary of the field director, shared administrative support provided by the Department of State, travel in some instances, and equipment and supplies which cannot be procured abroad.

The Office of the Superintendent of Documents operates under a separate appropriation which provides funds for: (1) the mailing for Members of Congress and other Government agencies of certain Government publications, as authorized by law; (2) the distribution of Government publications to designated depository libraries; and (3) the compilation of catalogs and indexes of Government publications. These three functions are related to the publication activity of other agencies and to the demands of the public, Members of Congress, and depository libraries. Consequently, Documents can exercise little control over the volume of work which it may be called upon to perform. A description of these three functions follows:

Distribution for other Government agencies and Members of Congress.—The Office of Superintendent of Documents maintains mailing lists and mails, at the request of Government agencies and Members of Congress, certain publications specified by public law.

Depository library distribution.—As required, Government publications are supplied to libraries which are designated as depositories for Government publications.

Cataloging and indexing.—The Office of Superintendent of Documents is charged with preparing catalogs and indexes of all publications issued by the Federal Government. The principal publication is the "Monthly Catalog of U.S. Government Publications."

The Government Printing Office executes orders for printing, binding, and blankbook work, placed by Congress and the various agencies of the Federal Government, and furnishes on order, blank paper, inks, and similar supplies. The Government Printing Office also sells publications to the public through its sales of publications program.

All such work is financed through the Government Printing Office revolving fund (44 U.S.C. 309). The fund is reimbursed by the customer agencies, receipts from sales of publications to the general public, and, except for the excess of receipts over costs associated with the sale of publications to the public, net operating income is retained for reuse by the fund.

The U.S. Tax Court hears and decides cases involving Federal income, estate and gift tax deficiencies and excise taxes relating to public charities, private foundations, qualified pension plans, real estate investment trusts, and windfall profit tax on domestic crude oil. It also renders declaratory judgments regarding the qualification or continuing qualification (including revocations of rulings on the exemptions) of retirement plans.

The Tax Court has jurisdiction to render declaratory judgments with respect to exempt organization status determinations pursuant to section 501(c)(3), Internal Revenue Code, and to enter declaratory judgments on the tax treatment of interest on proposed issues of Government obligations. In addition, the court has jurisdiction over actions to restrain disclosure and to obtain additional disclosure with respect to public inspection of written determinations issued by the Internal Revenue Service, and actions to compel the disclosure of the identity of third-party contacts relating to written determinations made by the Internal Revenue Service.

For 1986, the court proposes a trial program of 798 weeks consisting of 587 weeks of regular trial sessions and 211 weeks of small tax case sessions. Trials are held in approximately 90 cities throughout the United States.

The actual and estimated work volume of the court is presented in the following tabulation:

The Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe was created to monitor compliance with that code of conduct, particularly in regard to what is called "Basket Three" of the Final Act, the Provisions on Cooperation in Humanitarian and Other Fields. The law establishing the Commission on Security and Cooperation in Europe also mandated it to monitor and encourage U.S. Government and private activities designed to expand East-West trade and the exchange of people and ideas. The Commission will receive semiannual reports from the President on the signatories' compliance with the Final Act and on U.S. activities in trade and cultural/humanitarian exchange and it will itself make advisory reports to the Congress on the progress of implementation.

The Commission is made up of six Senators, six Members of the House of Representatives and one Commissioner each from the Departments of State, Defense, and Commerce.

The United States Court of Appeals for the Federal Circuit has exclusive jurisdiction of appeals from final decisions of all Federal district courts in cases arising under 28 U.S.C. 1338; 35 U.S.C. sections 145 and 146; 28 U.S.C. 1346(a)(2); final decisions of the U.S. Court of International Trade; final decisions of the U.S. Claims Court; final determinations of the U.S. International Trade Commission relating to unfair practices in import trade made under 19 U.S.C. 1337; findings of the Secretary of Commerce under headnote 6 to schedule 8, part 4, of the Tariff Schedules of the United States relating to importation of educational or scientific instruments and apparatus; final orders or decisions of the Merit Systems Protection Board, and final decisions of all agency Boards of Contract Appeals; and exclusive jurisdiction over appeals from final decisions of the Patent and Trademark Office tribunals on patent applications and interferences, trademark applications and interferences, cancellations, concurrent uses, and oppositions; and appeals under section 71 of the Plant Variety Protection Act of 1970.

The Court also has exclusive jurisdiction of (1) appeals from interlocutory orders or decrees in cases where the court would have jurisdiction of the appeal; and (2) appeals from judgments in civil actions for patent infringement otherwise appealable to the court and final except for accounting. The court may, in its discretion, permit an appeal from an interlocutory order of a judge who certifies that there is a controlling question of law and a substantial ground for difference of opinion thereon, and an immediate appeal may materially advance the ultimate termination of the litigation.

The United States Court of International Trade, established under Article III of the Constitution of the United States, was created by the Act of October 10, 1980 (94 Stat. 1727), effective November 1, 1980, as successor to the former United States Customs Court. The court has original and exclusive jurisdiction of civil actions against the United States, its agencies and officers, and certain civil actions brought by the United States, arising out of import transactions and Federal statutes affecting international trade. The court possesses all the powers in law and equity of, or as conferred by statute upon, a district court of the United States, and is authorized to conduct jury trials. The geographical jurisdiction of the court is nationwide and trials before the court may be held at any place within the jurisdiction of the United States. The court also is authorized to hold hearings in foreign countries. The principal statutory provisions pertaining to the court are contained in the following sections of title 28 of the United States Code: Organization, sections 251 to 257; Jurisdiction, sections 1581 to 1585; and Procedures, sections 2631 to 2647.

This appropriation provides for the statutory fees and allowances of jurors, refreshments of jurors, fees of jury commissioners, and compensation of land commissioners appointed in condemnation cases pursuant to rule 71A(h) of the Federal Rules of Civil Procedure. Budgetary requirements depend largely on the volume and length of jury trials demanded by the parties to both civil and criminal actions and the number of grand juries being convened by the courts at the request of United States attorneys.

To resolve certain statutory deficiencies of the Bankruptcy Reform Act of 1978, Public Law 98-353 was enacted on July 10, 1984. This act amended title 28 of the United States Code by conferring upon the United States District Courts original and exclusive jurisdiction in all cases under title 11. Title 11 was also amended for the purpose of making certain changes regarding grain storage facilities and clarifying the circumstances which collective-bargaining agreements may be rejected in cases under Chapter 11. In addition, authority to appoint bankruptcy judges was conferred upon the United States court of appeals for each circuit. Bankruptcy judges appointed under this authority will serve as judicial officers of the district for a term of fourteen years.

The new law also established the bankruptcy courts as units of the district courts. Consequently, the Judiciary is requesting that funds formerly appropriated under this heading for the payment of salaries and expenses of bankruptcy judges, secretaries, law clerks and other supporting personnel be transferred to the appropriations "Salaries of judges", "Salaries of supporting personnel", and "Expenses of operation and maintenance of the courts" in 1986.

The International Bank for Reconstruction and Development (World Bank) finances development projects in less developed countries. By applying banking principles to the achievement of development goals, it promotes increased economic productivity and helps developing economies meet more of the basic needs of their peoples. Since its founding in 1945, the Bank has made loan commitments of approximately $103 billion.

The Bank's 1984 lending program included 129 loan commitments to 42 countries for a total of $11.9 billion. More than twice this amount was contributed to these projects by recipient countries, commercial lenders, and other multilateral or bilateral agencies. In 1985 the Bank is projected to lend between $12.0 and $12.6 billion.

The Administration's request for 1986 consists of: (1) $109.7 million in budget authority for paid-in capital subscriptions and $1,353.2 million in program limitations for callable capital subscriptions to provide the fifth of six equal installments for the $8.8 billion U.S. share of the $40.0 billion 1981 General Capital Increase (GCI); (2) $7.4 million for paid-in capital subscriptions and $66.9 million in program limitations for callable capital subscriptions to the 1970 Selective Capital Increase (SCI); and (3) $65.7 million for paid-in capital subscriptions and $685.4 million in program limitations for callable capital subscriptions to the 1984 SCI.

In addition, a 1985 supplemental for $30 million of budget authority for paid-in capital and $370 million in program limitation for callable capital is being requested to complete the fourth installment of the GCI.

The International Development Association (IDA) is the member of the World Bank Group which provides development financing on highly concessional terms to the world's poorest nations. IDA is the largest source of multilateral lending extended on concessional terms to developing countries. Projects have to meet the same economic and financial standards as other World Bank projects and there has never been a default on an IDA loan by any borrower.

By June 30, 1984, IDA had extended credits totaling $33.7 billion for development projects in 82 countries. IDA assistance is concentrated overwhelmingly in the poorest countries—mainly those with an annual per capita gross national product of less than $400 in 1983 dollars. In 1984, IDA's lending program included 106 credits to 44 countries for a total of $3.6 billion. The 1985 lending program is presently programmed at $3.0 billion.

The Seventh Replenishment of IDA resources, totaling $9 billion, was approved by the Executive Board on May 24, 1984. The United States has pledged $2.25 billion to the replenishment and the $750 million requested in 1986 is for the second installment on that contribution.

In 1983, the AFDB lent $574 million for development projects in 25 countries. The Bank expects to lend $610 million in 1984.

The 1986 request for the AFDB is for the fourth of five installments of $18 million of paid-in capital and $54 million of program limitations for callable capital subscriptions.

Functional development assistance.—Program provides economic resources to developing countries with the aim of bringing the benefits of development to the poor. Loans and grants under this program are concentrated in those areas in which the United States has special expertise and which promise the greatest opportunity for the poor to better their lives.

Funds are provided under eight separate activities:

Agriculture, rural development and nutrition.—Supports efforts to increase food production in the developing countries by improving the productivity and income of small farmers, creating greater rural employment opportunities, enhancing rural infrastructure and the environment, improving nutrition and removing impediments to equitable economic growth.

Population planning.—Supports efforts to reduce population growth rates in developing countries and to provide families with effective options in choosing the number and spacing of their children.

Health.—Assists developing countries to increase access to health care, family planning and nutrition services, to make safe water and adequate sanitation more widely available, to reduce the incidence of debilitating tropical diseases, malnutrition, diarrheal infections, measles and other preventable diseases, and to increase governmental capacity to plan and manage their health resources.

Child survival fund.—Provides funds for programs designed to deal directly with the special health needs of children and mothers. Includes oral rehydration therapy to combat diarrheal diseases, immunization and other primary health care efforts aimed at cutting in half infant and child mortality rates in developing countries. In 1986, these activities are budgeted under the health program within the functional account request.

Education and human resources.—Supports the efforts of developing countries to provide basic education for children, improve the fundamental life skills of adults, and improve the management skills and performance of managers of development programs.

Energy and selected development activities.—Provides assistance to developing countries to better contend with national energy problems, to cope with employment and income problems in urban areas, to mitigate the problems of rapid urban migration, and to improve environmental management and resource planning. This activity also facilitates the involvement of U.S. private voluntary organizations in development and helps improve access by developing countries to U.S. scientific and technical expertise.

Science and technology.—Supports new and innovative research on problems of development and assists developing countries in improving their scientific and technological capacities.

Sahel development program.—The Sahel program helps promote food self-sufficiency and self-sustaining economic growth in the Sahel region of Africa. Assistance is furnished in accordance with a long-term, multi-donor development plan based on equitable burden sharing with other donors and the assisted African countries. Beginning in 1986, the administration proposes merging the Sahel account with the functional development assistance program.

In addition, an estimated $10 million of funds proposed for this account will be used to pay cargo preference costs to support the U.S. maritime industry, as required by the Merchant Marine Act of 1936, as amended.

The Housing guaranty program extends guaranties to assist developing countries in formulating and executing sound housing and community development policies that meet the needs of lower income groups. Activities to be carried out will emphasize: (1) sites and services and core housing projects providing homesites and shelter for poor families; (2) slum upgrading projects designed to conserve and improve existing shelter; (3) low-income shelter projects designed for demonstration or institution building purposes; and (4) project-related community facilities and services. The Administration will not request guarantee authority for Housing and Other Credit Guaranty Programs after 1986. The 1986 authority allows the Housing Guaranty Program to fulfill existing treaty commitments.

The private sector revolving fund will expand the AID private sector initiative through new financing mechanisms and support of business activities heretofore not addressed. For example, loans will be made to local private sector firms and credit institutions in developing countries. A 3-year capitalization totaling $60 million is intended to make the fund totally self-sustaining. Repayments of appropriated funds will be made from fees, interest payments, and other reflows. Repayment of appropriated funds to the Treasury will begin once the revolving fund reaches $100 million in assets.

Section 608 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 created a revolving fund to finance the acquisition and rehabilitation at minimal cost of U.S. Government-owned excess property for purchase by friendly countries and eligible organizations, for use in conjunction with economic development programs. Excess property includes heavy construction equipment, vehicles, heavy machinery, electrical generating equipment, and medical equipment and supplies. The program is self-financed from service fees and reimbursements by equipment purchasers ultimately funded from development assistance appropriations to the Agency for International Development.

The International Security and Development Cooperation Act of 1980 established the African Development Foundation to promote nongovernmental small-scale indigenous development projects in Africa as a complement to other U.S. development assistance efforts.

In 1984 the African Development Foundation became operational when the Board of Directors was selected, confirmed by the Senate and appointed by the President. Program operations commenced in 1984 with several grants to various African community organizations prior to the close of the fiscal year. The 1986 request will provide funding for monitoring and evaluation of existing projects, program support costs, and additional development projects.

As of September 30, 1984 the current dollar value of the U.S. quota denominated in Special Drawing Rights (SDR), the IMF's unit of account, was $17,984 million. The increase over the level at the end of 1983 reflects an increase in the U.S. quota subscription as well as a decline in the dollar value of the SDR.

International negotiations on the increase in IMF quotas were concluded in early 1983. The IMF membership agreed to increase total quotas by 47.5 percent, from about SDR 61 billion to SDR 90 billion; of which the U.S. share of the increase amounted to SDR 5,310.8 million, approximately $5.3 billion at the September 30, 1984 exchange rate. Under established budget procedures, an increase in the U.S. quota in the IMF requires budget authorization and appropriation for the full amount of the increase. Legislation providing for U.S. participation in the augmentation of IMF resources was submitted to Congress in March 1983, and approved in November; the quota increase became effective in December 1983. Use by the IMF of the quota commitment does not result in net budget outlays because the United States receives an increase in its international monetary reserves corresponding to any transfer of dollars to the IMF under the U.S. quota subscription.

The Supplementary Financing Facility was created to augment temporarily the ability of the IMF to assist member countries with serious balance of payments problems, thereby allowing these countries time to implement required policy measures without resorting to abrupt and harmful restrictions on trade and payments. The United States and other countries agreed to finance the facility by making available to the IMF lines of credit totalling 7,784 Special Drawing Rights (about $7.7 billion at the September 30, 1984 exchange rate) of which the U.S. commitment was 1,450 million SDR (but not to exceed $1,831 million appropriated). Transfers of dollars to the IMF under the U.S. credit line do not result in net budget outlays since the United States receives a corresponding increase in its international monetary reserve assets which can be used automatically to meet a balance of payments financing need. The U.S. commitment was fully drawn. As of September 30, 1984, U.S. claims on the IMF under the Supplementary Financing Facility had declined to SDR 1,368 million

($1,366 million) as a consequence of repayments by the IMF.

The General Arrangements to Borrow (GAB) were established in 1962 by 10 industrial countries, including the United States, as a means of supplementing the IMF's resources when needed to forestall or cope with an impairment of the international monetary system. Each participant agreed to provide specific amounts of its currency to help finance drawings from the IMF by another GAB participant. GAB members agreed in early 1983 to increase their financial commitments to the GAB and to allow the IMF, in certain strictly defined circumstances, to activate the GAB to provide financing for any IMF member. Total GAB commitments were increased from SDR 6.3 billion to SDR 17 billion, with the U.S. share rising from $2.0 billion to SDR 4.250 billion, approximately $4.2 billion at the September 30, 1984 exchange rate. Legislation providing for the increased U.S. commitment to the GAB and approving the modification was submitted to Congress in March 1983 and approved in November 1983. The GAB increase does not result in any net budget outlays because the United States receives an increase in its international reserve assets corresponding to any transfer to the IMF under the U.S. credit line.

During 1984, no calls were made on the U.S. commitment under the GAB, and no U.S. loans were outstanding at the end of the fiscal year.

This revolving fund finances the acquisition of defense articles and defense services in anticipation of their transfer to foreign countries and international organizations. The fund enhances the ability of the United States to respond to urgent requirements of allied and friendly governments for military equipment while minimizing the adverse impact on U.S. forces due to diversions from production or U.S. military stocks. The account is capitalized by foreign military sales receipts from the use of United States Government assets and recoupment of nonrecurring research, development, and production costs. [SEC. 534. The Congress finds that progress on the peace process in the Middle East is vitally important to United States security interests in the region. The Congress recognizes that, in fulfilling its obligations under the Treaty of Peace Between the Arab Republic of Egypt and the State of Israel, done at Washington on March 26, 1979, Israel incurred severe economic burdens. Furthermore, the Congress recognizes that an economically and militarily secure Israel serves the security interests of the United States, for a secure Israel is an Israel which has the incentive and confidence to continue pursuing the peace process. Therefore, the Congress declares that it is the policy and the intention of the United States that the funds provided in annual appropriations for the Economic Support Fund which are allocated to Israel shall not be less than the annual debt repayment (interest and principal) from Israel to the United States Government in recognition that such a principle serves United States interests in the region.]

[SEC. 535. [SEC. 537. Notwithstanding any other provision of law, if at any time following the appropriation of funds herein the duly elected President of El Salvador should be deposed by military coup or decree all funds appropriated herein for El Salvador and not theretofore obligated or expended shall not thereafter be available for expenditure or obligation unless reappropriated by Congress.]

SEC. [538] 529. Ceilings and earmarks contained in this Act shall not be applicable to funds or authorities appropriated or otherwise made available by any subsequent act unless such act specifically so directs.

[SEC. 539. The Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of State are directed to submit to the Committees on Foreign Affairs and the Committees on Appropriations by February 1, 1985, a report on the domestic economic policies of those nations receiving economic assistance, either directly or indirectly from the United States including, where appropriate, an analysis of the foreign assistance programs conducted by these recipient nations.]

[SEC. 540 (a) To the maximum extent practicable, assistance for Haiti under chapter 1 of part I and under chapter 4 of part II of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 should be provided through private and voluntary organizations.]

[(b) Funds available for fiscal year 1985 to carry out chapter 1 of part I or chapter 4 or chapter 5 of part II of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 may be obligated for Haiti only if the President determines that the Government of Haiti—

- (1) is continuing to cooperate with the United States in halting illegal emigration to the United States from Haiti;
- (2) is cooperating fully in implementing United States development, food, and other economic assistance programs in Haiti (including programs for prior fiscal years); and
- (3) is making progress toward improving the human rights situation in Haiti and progress toward implementing political reforms which are essential to the development of democracy in Haiti, such as progress toward the establishment of political parties, free elections, and freedom of the press.]

[(e) Assistance may not be provided for Haiti for the fiscal year 1985 under chapter 2 of part II of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961 or under the Arms Export Control Act.]

[SEC. 541. (a) Sections 116, 303, 311, 312, 703, and 1011 of H.R. 5119 as passed by the House of Representatives on May 10, 1984, are hereby enacted.]

[(b) Section 102 of this joint resolution shall not apply with respect to the provisions enacted by this section and to those provisions of S. 2346, S. 2416, and S. 2582 enacted by this Act.]

The Agricultural Research Service conducts research to provide the means for a safer, more economical, and more abundant supply of agricultural products for the Nation. The Service uses coordinated, interdisciplinary approaches to perform basic and applied research in the fields of livestock; soil-air-water resources; plants; animals; commodity conversion and delivery; human nutrition and integrated agricultural systems.

Research on soil and water conservation.—Research is conducted to improve the management of natural resources, including investigations to improve soil and water management, irrigation, and conservation practices; to protect natural resources from harmful effects of soil, air, and water pollutants and to minimize certain agricultural pollution problems; and to determine the relation of soil types and water to plant, animal, and human nutrition. The program increases proposed in 1986 are for better understanding of chemical movement in ground water and improved technologies for resource inventories.

Research on plant productivity.—Research is conducted to improve plant productivity through improved varieties of food, feed, fiber, and other plants; develop new crop resources; and improve crop production practices, including methods to control plant diseases, nematodes, insects, and weeds. The program increases proposed in 1986 are for enhancement, acquisition and maintenance of germplasm resources; improved biotechnology techniques for plant gene transfer; and for increased agricultural productivity in the Caribbean Basin.

Research on animal productivity.—Research is conducted to improve livestock productivity (including poultry) through improved breeding, feeding, and management practices, and to develop methods for controlling diseases, parasites, and insect pests affecting them. The increase proposed in 1986 is for Action agency support of animal health and protection.

Research on commodity conversion and delivery.—Research is conducted to develop new and improved foods, feeds, fabrics, and industrial products and processes for agricultural commodities for domestic and foreign markets, including ways to minimize processing wastes as well as the processing, transportation, storage, wholesaling, and retailing of products. Research is also conducted on problems of human health and safety, including means to insure the safety of food and feed supplies; control insect pests of man and his belongings; and reduce the hazards to human life resulting from pesticide residues and other causes. The increase proposed in 1986 is for alternative quarantine treatments for export markets.

Human nutrition research.—Research is conducted on human nutritional requirements, composition and nutritive value of foods, dietary status, monitoring and surveillance, and nutrition education and methodology needs of Federal, State, and local agencies administering food and nutrition programs.

Integration of agricultural systems.—Research is conducted to develop integrated systems for efficiently producing, processing, and marketing agricultural products; and to develop alternative agricultural systems, including those of small scale, that are less dependent upon nonrenewable resources and that are productive, efficient, and sustainable in the long term.

Repair and maintenance of facilities.—Funds are used to restore, upgrade, and maintain Federal facilities to meet OSHA and EPA requirements, provide suitable workspace for in-house research programs, and to retrofit existing structures for better energy utilization.

Higher education grants.—In 1985, the Department will conduct three higher education grant programs—the Morrill-Nelson Permanent Appropriation, which provides $50,000 to every State and territory; Competitive Fellowship Grants, which will be administered by several institutions to attract future scientists and professionals to shortage areas in the food and agricultural sciences and a higher education grants program specifically targeted for the 1890 Colleges and Universities, Tuskegee Institute and the University of the District of Columbia.

Contingencies.—$1 million will be available to meet urgent needs that develop unexpectedly during the year when such needs cannot be met by redirection of resources from other projects.

Construction of facilities.—Amounts reflect obligations from prior balances. There is no funding request for this item.

Advances and reimbursements.—Agricultural Research Service performs program research activities and services for other USDA, Federal, and non-Federal agencies. These activities and services are paid for on a reimbursable basis.

Cooperative State Research Service participates in a nationwide system of agricultural research program planning and coordination between the State institutions and the U.S. Department of Agriculture. It encourages and assists in the establishment and maintenance of cooperation within and among these State institutions, and between the State institutions and their Federal research partners. This includes the administration of grants and payments to State institutions to supplement State and local funding for agricultural research.

Payments under the Hatch Act.—Funds under the Hatch Act are allocated to agricultural experiment stations of the land-grant colleges in the 50 States, District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, and American Samoa, for agricultural research including investigations and experiments to promote a permanent and efficient agricultural industry and improvements in the rural home and rural community.

Cooperative forestry research.—These funds are allocated to land-grant colleges or agricultural experiment stations in the 50 States, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and other State-supported colleges and universities offering graduate training in the sciences basic to forestry and having a forestry school.

Payments to 1890 colleges and Tuskegee Institute.—Funds support planning, coordinating and conducting agricultural research at the 1890 land-grant colleges including Tuskegee Institute. The eligible institutions plan and conduct agricultural research in cooperation with each other and such agencies, institutions, and individuals as may contribute to the solution of agricultural problems.

Special research grants.—This program concentrates on problems of national interest beyond the normal emphasis in the formula programs. No funding is proposed in 1986.

Competitive research grants.—This program emphasizes basic research critical to food production and human nutrition. In 1986, the following research areas are proposed for funding: $16.5 million to study serious problems relating to plant science research, $2 million for human nutrition research, $20 million for basic biotechnology research in the plant and animal sciences, $4.5 million for basic animal science research, and $3 million for pest science research.

Animal health and disease research.—Funds, distributed by legislated formula, support livestock and poultry disease research in colleges of veterinary medicine and in eligible agricultural experiment stations. Research on specified national and regional problems of joint USDA-State concern is conducted as agreed upon between the USDA and specific eligible institutions. Animal health and disease research can be implemented by the States using other formula research funds.

Federal administration (direct appropriation).—A research coordinating and review staff is maintained which encourages and assists in the establishment and maintenance of cooperation within and among the States and between the States and their Federal research partners, and which administers research grants and payments to States. Federal administration is funded from a combination of program set-asides from formula and grant programs and from direct appropriation for administration.

1890 research facilities.—Funds support the purchase of land and the construction, alteration or renovation of buildings necessary for the conduct of food and agricultural research at colleges eligible to receive funds under the Act of August 30, 1890, including Tuskegee Institute.

Higher Education.—In fiscal year 1985, the Department conducted three higher education programs: the Morrill-Nelson Permanent Appropriation which provides $50,000 to every State and territory; Strengthening Grants to support resident instruction programs at historically black land-grant institutions and Tuskegee Institute; and Graduate Fellowships awarded to colleges and universities to stimulate the development of food and agricultural scientific expertise in targeted national need areas. No funding is proposed for the Morrill-Nelson program or Graduate Fellowships in 1986.

Reimbursable program.—Funds support basic and applied agriculture research and activities performed for other USDA, Federal, and non-Federal agencies.

The primary function of the nationwide system of cooperative extension work is out-of-school applied education in agriculture, home economics, community development, 4-H youth programs, and related subjects.

Funds appropriated for payments to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, American Samoa, and Micronesia are distributed primarily on the basis of population and on the basis of special problems and needs. Funds are used primarily for the employment of State, area, and county extension workers and paraprofessionals who work with individuals, families, community organizations, marketing concerns, and others by providing advice and assistance in the application of improved methods for production, marketing, nutrition, family living, and community development. Work with youth is accomplished largely through the 4-H program. Most of these funds are matched by the States and provide the Federal share of State retirement and penalty mail costs associated with program activities specifically undertaken with these matched funds.

In fiscal year 1986 formula support to land-grant institutions, including maintenance of operations at the 1890 institutions, Tuskegee Institute, and the District of Columbia is proposed to remain at current levels. Specifically targetted activities, such as pest management, pesticide clearance, urban gardening, farm safety, financial management, renewable resources, and nutrition education are proposed for elimination.

The Extension Service provides leadership and assistance to States, Puerto Rico, Guam, the Virgin Islands, the District of Columbia, American Samoa, and Micronesia, in developing extension programs, improving teaching methods, efficient use of available resources, evaluation of programs, and administrative services. These responsibilities are funded from a combination of program set-asides for administering payments to States and from direct appropriations for the Federal Extension Administration.

Crop and livestock estimates.—The Service provides the official National and State estimates of acreage, yield, and production of crops, stocks and value of farm commodities, and numbers of inventory values of livestock items. Data on approximately 120 crops and 45 livestock products are covered in some 300 reports issued each year. Data collected and published on prices paid and received by farmers are basic to computation of parity prices.

The work under this activity is conducted through 44 State offices serving the 50 States; most of these offices are operated as joint State and Federal services. Cooperative arrangements with State agencies provide additional State and county data; Federal funds are not available for collection and publication of these additional data. The major program modification in 1986 is an increase of $1,860,000 for the Quarterly Farm Labor Survey.

Statistical research and service.—This activity is designed to improve crop and livestock estimating techniques by improving sample survey designs and procedures and by testing new forecasting and estimating techniques, such as the use of satellite data.

The 1986 estimate includes savings from 1986 budget management reforms.

The World Agricultural Outlook Board (WAOB) was established to provide a single focal point for the Nation's economic intelligence related to domestic and international food and agriculture.

The objectives of the WAOB are to improve the consistency, objectivity, and reliability of outlook and situation material being disseminated to the public and to integrate and coordinate USDA domestic and international economic information assistance.

The WAOB carries out these objectives through daily market surveillance and special analyses of international and domestic agricultural developments, direct participation in the planning of research programs supporting outlook and situation activities, and coordination of all departmental activities relating to weather and climate and remote sensing.

The 1986 budget includes funds for data processing improvements and reductions for LANDSAT and Governmentwide management savings programs.

The Foreign Agricultural Service mission is to help American farmers and traders take maximum advantage of increased opportunities to sell U.S. agricultural commodities abroad and to help increase U.S. farm income.

Activities are conducted within five program areas:

Foreign agricultural affairs.—The Service maintains agricultural counselors, attachés or trade officers at 76 foreign posts to assist overseas development of markets for U.S. farm commodities. They work closely with numerous U.S. agricultural trade groups and maintain significant contacts with foreign governments and traders to promote market access for U.S. farm products. They also file annually about 4,000 comprehensive reports regarding foreign agricultural production, supply, demand, marketing and trade policy developments to keep U.S. agriculture, industry, and Government currently informed.

PROGRAM STATISTICS

Number of trade and Government visitors .....	24,000	25,000	25,000

Foreign market information and access.—This program forges a link between the Foreign Agricultural Affairs program and the agency's analytical/informational and market development planning/services functions that serve the U.S. agricultural community and Government decisionmakers. The analysis and timely release of periodicals on world commodity conditions allow U.S. farm and trade groups to have ready access to information that can be used as reliable sources to assess short-term changes in world agricultural supply conditions by commodity.

The analyses of world commodity conditions provide the information necessary to develop export marketing strategies that can be used not only by the Department to gain market access but to enhance the long term market development plans for major U.S. commodities.

Foreign market development.—This program provides funding support to 49 commodity associations (cooperators), 24 contractors participating in the export incentive program, 4 regional groups (representing 47 State departments of agriculture) and the National Association of State Departments of Agriculture. Under FAS guidance and supervision, these organizations conduct an extensive worldwide market development program on behalf of the U.S. farm sector. In addition, the Service develops and operates a worldwide system of multi-commodity promotional programs utilizing product exhibits, trade teams, trade services, market information programs, and trade referral services to expand overseas markets.

Landsat imagery used to cover the Soviet Union will be purchased from funds made available by the Commodity Credit Corporation.

The mission of the Office of International Cooperation and Development (OICD) is to promote U.S. agriculture and to advance the agriculture of developing countries as parts of a complementary global agricultural system capable of providing ample food and fiber for all people.

International agricultural development.—OICD analyzes agricultural policy issues related to USDA's international agricultural development efforts and provides support for Cancun Presidential Agricultural Task Forces consulting with developing and middle-income nations on agricultural problems. The Agency also formulates and reviews food aid development activities supported by Public Law 480 Titles I and III agreements. The budget includes $200 thousand for an agricultural information center in OICD.

International scientific and technical cooperation.—OICD manages the Department's bilateral exchange and cooperative research programs with foreign governments and institutions in order to strengthen the role of science and technology in the ongoing effort to stabilize world food supplies and to increase the efficiency with which world resources are used. Priorities and criteria for these programs are based on domestic research priorities, potential benefits to U.S. agricultural production, and the availability of desired technologies. OICD coordinates USDA's and the U.S. Government's participation in approximately 30 international organizations concerned with food, agriculture and rural development.

Reimbursable program.—OICD, utilizing USDA and university expertise, provides technical assistance and training to developing countries at the request of AID and international organizations. OICD manages technical assistance projects in over 50 countries, focusing on land and water management, crop and livestock production and marketing, forestry, pest control, resource conservation and other areas. OICD offers a technical and management training program in agriculture and rural development to participants from foreign countries and designees of international organizations.

Financing the sale of agricultural commodities for foreign currencies and for dollars on credit terms (titles I and III).—The Corporation finances all sales made pursuant to agreements concluded under title I, and may serve as the purchasing or shipping agent, or both, if the purchaser so requests. Sales are made to friendly countries—as defined in section 103(d) of the act—and must not displace expected commercial sales for cash dollars (secs. 103 (c) and (n)).

Agreements may not be made under title I in any calendar year which call for an appropriation to reimburse the Corporation in excess of $1.9 billion, plus unused prior years' authorizations.

Whenever practicable, terms of agreements must require payment at time of delivery of not less than 5% of the purchase price in dollars or in currencies convertible to dollars. These initial payments are applied against costs to reduce appropriation requests.

When U.S.-flag vessels are required to ship commodities under this title, the Corporation will pay the differential between U.S.-flag rates and foreign-flag rates. In limited cases, full transportation costs to port of entry or point of entry abroad may be included along with the cost of the commodity in the amount financed by CCC in order to ensure that U.S. food aid would reach the most needy recipients.

Use of foreign currency (title I).—Certain U.S. uses of foreign currencies are subject to the appropriation process. The Corporation is reimbursed for the dollar value of currencies so used. Proceeds from sales of foreign currencies and from dollar repayments of foreign currency loans are applied as a reduction in appropriation requests.

Financing sales of agricultural commodities for dollars or convertible foreign currencies on credit terms (title I).—Agreements are made with friendly countries for delivery in annual installments for not more than 10 years from the date of the agreement subject to the availability of the commodity.

Credit terms are to be no less favorable than those required by section 122 of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1961, as amended, for loans made under that section.

Repayments under dollar credit agreements are not more than 20 years with a grace period of not more than 2 years on repayment of principal. Convertible foreign currency terms permit repayment of up to 40 years with deferral of principal payments for up to 10 years. As payments are received each year, they are applied against current costs to reduce appropriation requests.

Total title I agreements made since inception to September 30, 1984, amount to $14,052 million cost value, including ocean freight for shipment on U.S. ships. Major commodities are wheat, cotton, oils, rice, and feed grains. Payments received during the period amount to $3,484.8 million, of which $2,166.8 million was applied to principal and $1,318.0 million to interest.

The following table reflects the composition of the combined appropriations (in thousands of dollars):

Commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad (title II).—Under title II, agricultural commodities are furnished to developing countries to meet famine or other emergency relief needs and to combat malnutrition. They are furnished through friendly governments, private voluntary agencies, foreign nonprofit voluntary agencies if no such U.S. agency is available, and intergovernmental organizations such as the United Nations World Food Program.

The Corporation is authorized to pay the costs of acquisition, packaging, processing, enrichment, preservation, fortification, transportation, handling, and other incidental costs incurred up to the time of delivery to U.S. ports. The Corporation also pays ocean freight charges, and pays transportation costs to points of entry other than ports in the case of landlocked countries, where carriers to a specific country are unavailable, where ports cannot be used effectively, or where a substantial saving in costs or time can be obtained, and pays general average contributions arising from ocean transport. In addition, transportation costs from designated points of entry or ports of entry abroad to storage and distribution sites and associated storage and distribution costs may be paid for commodities made available to meet urgent and extraordinary relief requirements.

Up to $7.5 million each year may be used to buy foreign currencies accruing under title I of this act to meet costs directed to community and other self-help activities designed to alleviate the causes of the need for such aid. Such costs may not include personnel and administrative costs of cooperating sponsors, distributing agencies and recipient agencies.

Through December 31, 1984, appropriations totaling $15,850 million were authorized. Beginning in 1982, no programs of assistance shall be undertaken under this title during any calendar year which call for an appropriation of more than $1 billion to reimburse the Corporation. This limitation applies to costs incurred, including its investment in commodities (but only on the basis of a price not greater than the export market price of commodities acquired under a price support program), plus any amount by which programs of assistance undertaken under this title in the preceding calendar year have called or will call for appropriations in amounts less than authorized during the preceding year. Any incidental sales proceeds and proceeds from loss, damage, and other claims are applied against costs to reflect a reduction in appropriation requests.

This account includes funds to cover expenses of programs administered by, and functions assigned to, the Service. The funds consist of direct appropriation, transfers from the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC), user fees, and miscellaneous advances from other sources. This is a consolidated account for administrative expenses of national, commodity, State, and county offices.

Program formulation and appraisal.—The supply adjustment, conservation, and commodity support programs, and the management and merchandising of commodities acquired under the support program, have a tremendous impact on the national and (to a lesser extent) the international economy. This activity provides for constant review of the effectiveness of these programs. It also provides for the analysis of data to formulate more effective programs.

Operation of supply adjustment, conservation, and price support programs.—This activity includes all functions dealing with the administration of programs carried out through the farmer committee system, including: (a) developing program regulations and procedures;

(b) holding meetings with employees and producers to discuss new programs or changes in existing programs; (c) collecting and compiling basic data for individual farms; (d) establishing individual farm allotments, bases, and yields; (e) notifying producers of established allotments, bases, and yields; (f) determining farm marketing quotas; (g) handling appeals; (h) conducting referendums and certifying results; (i) accepting farmer certifications and checking compliance; (j) accepting producer applications for participation in commodity price stabilizing programs; (k) issuing marketing cards so that production from the allotted acreage can be marketed without penalty; (l) processing producer requests for conservation cost-sharing; (m) processing commodity loan and storage facility loan documents and issuing checks; and (n) processing deficiency and diversion payments and issuing checks.

Inventory management and merchandising.—This activity includes: (a) overall management of CCC-owned commodities; (b) selling commodities; (c) donating commodities; and (d) accounting for loans and commodities.

Warehouse examination.—This activity provides for the examination of warehouses licensed under the U.S. Warehouse Act and non-licensed warehouses storing CCC-owned or pledged commodities. ASCS examiners perform periodic examinations of the facilities and the warehouse records to ensure protection of depositors against potential losses of the stored commodities and to ensure compliance with the U.S. Warehouse Act and any CCC storage agreements.

Automated data processing.—ASCS is introducing a major new ADP and communications system in support of CCC operations. Most data processing and accounting for CCC programs are currently performed in a large centralized facility in Kansas City, to which county offices send copies of transaction documents for recordation. Most work in county and State offices is performed manually. For the past three years, tests have been conducted using equipment in county offices. A cost benefit analysis was completed showing significant savings and increased productivity from using automated equipment. All offices in three States will be equipped and the operational concepts and implementation plans will be validated prior to nationwide automation of State and county offices. Contract award for the automation equipment occurred in 1984, with delivery and system implementation targeted for early 1985 through mid-1986. This effort is an integral part of a broader Information Resources Management Plan. Another major facet of the plan is the establishment of a joint ASCS-FAS data base, which includes information on local production of, and foreign demand for, agricultural commodities. Equipment purchases for these new systems will represent capital investment under the statutory authority of the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act.

The fiscal year 1986 budget for salaries and expenses reflects the impact of zero funding for ASCS conservation programs and the proposed elimination of the direct appropriation component of the consolidated account. The budget also includes for fiscal year 1986 the establishment of user fees to partly support administrative funding for ASCS. Fees would be tied to functions performed in county offices that result in direct producer benefits such as loans and payments.

This experimental Rural Clean Water Program (RCWP), authorized by the Appropriation Acts of 1980 (Public Law 96-108) and 1981 (Public Law 96-528), is a cooperative endeavor among farmers, various USDA agencies and other organizations to develop and test means of controlling agricultural nonpoint source water pollution in rural areas. The RCWP provides long-term financial and technical assistance to landowners and operators to improve water quality and to meet water quality goals.

Recommended project areas were developed by local and State committees and approved by the Secretary of Agriculture in consultation with the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency. Full funding is provided for all approved projects.

RURAL CLEAN WATER PROGRAM—Continued

Technical assistance is provided by the Soil Conservation Service, Forest Service, Extension Service, and others.

Under the RCWP, participants agree to install and maintain Best Management Practices (BMP's) which reduce or control water pollution, as specified in an approved water quality plan.

The primary objectives of the program are: (1) to help assure a continued supply of food and fiber necessary for a strong and healthy economy and people, (2) to facilitate sound resource management systems through soil and water conservation, (3) to control erosion and sedimentation from agricultural land, (4) to control pollution from animal wastes, (5) to encourage voluntary compliance by agricultural producers with State and Federal requirements to solve point and nonpoint sources of pollution, (6) to improve water quality, (7) to help achieve national priorities in the National Environmental Policy Act, (8) to help achieve national priorities in the Federal Water Pollution Control Act, and (9) to encourage the energy conservation measures specified in the Energy Security Act of 1980.

The program is carried out in line with the National Program for Soil and Water Conservation (NCP), which emphasizes erosion control, water conservation, and upstream flood protection. Along with annual agreements, cost sharing is authorized for long-term agreements of 3-10 years, or shorter term agreements of 3-5 years. On the shorter term agreements, the conservation plan of operation (CPO) applies only to a portion of the farm rather than the entire farm. Annual payments are authorized for 10-year wetland agreements.

The program is administered in each county by the ASC county committee, with review and approval by State ASC committees and the Secretary, and in consultation with other agencies. For the 1985 ACP, county committees, in consultation with the county conservation review group and community committee persons, submitted their proposal for practices (including land, water, and related resource management practices having significant energy conserving effects) and changes from the previous year's program to State committees for review. The State committees, after reviewing county recommendations with the State conservation review group, sent State recommended changes to the national level for review by the Secretary. However, no changes in the national program or practices were provided to the State and county committees for their use in carrying out the 1985 program.

The 1985 program targets financial and technical assistance to areas with the most critical resource problems, while maintaining a base program throughout the country. In addition, it utilizes $20 million of ACP funding for long-term (5-10 years) conservation measures on highly erodible land. It also includes $6 million for special projects to control erosion and improve water quality.

The 1985 program is expected to serve 10.1 million acres. Practices identified specifically to abate soil erosion are expected to prevent approximately 85.9 million tons of erosion.

The fiscal year 1986 Budget proposes to terminate this program.

The objectives of the Water Bank Program are to conserve water; preserve, maintain, and improve the Nation's wetlands; increase waterfowl habitat in migratory waterfowl nesting, breeding, and feeding areas in the United States; and secure recreational and environmental benefits for the Nation. The program was authorized by the Water Bank Act, approved December 19, 1970, as amended by Public Law 96-182, approved January 2, 1980.

The Secretary of Agriculture, through designated ASCS county offices, uses program funds to enter into 10-year agreements with landowners and operators for the conservation of specified wetlands. Provisions exist to renew agreements for additional periods, to make annual payments on agreements, and under certain conditions to increase payment rates in the fifth year of a contract or at the time of renewal.

The 1985 program is expected to bring 52,270 acres under agreement. This would be accomplished through the signing of 485 agreements with landowners.

The 1986 budget proposes to terminate this program.

The Cropland Adjustment Program was authorized by the Food and Agriculture Act of 1965 which expired with the 1970 crop year. Under this program, agreements for periods of 5 and up to 10 years were approved only in 1966 and 1967. The last of these agreements expired in 1977. The 1984 activity represents restoration of funds to pay a previously denied claim ruled valid by the courts.

This program was authorized by the Agricultural Credit Act of 1978 (16 U.S.C. 2201-05). The appropriation provides special funds for sharing the cost of emergency measures to deal with cases of severe damage to farms and rangelands resulting from natural disasters.

Assistance is made available to treat new conservation problems which (1) if not treated will impair or endanger the land, (2) materially affect the productive capacity of the land, (3) represent damage which is unusual in character and, except for wind erosion, is not the type which would recur frequently in the same area, and (4) will be so costly to rehabilitate that Federal assistance is or will be required to return the land to productive agricultural use. Also, assistance is available for measures to provide for or conserve water to be used for agricultural purposes during periods of severe drought as determined by the Deputy Administrator, State and County Operations, ASCS.

Under the 1984 program, cost-sharing assistance was provided in 37 States to treat farmlands damaged by floods, tornadoes, hurricanes, and drought. The 1985 program is expected to rehabilitate approximately 303,500 acres of farmland damaged by natural disaster.

The fiscal year 1986 Budget proposes to terminate this program.

Under this program indemnification payments are made to dairy farmers and manufacturers of dairy products.

The Dairy Indemnity Program was authorized under 78 Stat. 508 in 1964, and has been extended through September 30, 1985, by the Agriculture and Food Act of 1981 (Public Law 97-98). Payments are made to farmers who are directed to remove their milk from commercial markets because the milk contains residues of chemicals which have been registered and approved for use by the Federal Government, of other chemicals, of nuclear radiation, or of nuclear fallout. The authority also provides that indemnification may be paid for cows producing such milk.

No funds are requested for 1986.

This program was authorized by the Cooperative Forestry Assistance Act of 1978 (16 U.S.C. 2101). The objectives of the program are to bring private nonindustrial forest land under intensified management, to increase timber production, to assure adequate supplies of timber products, and to enhance other forest resources.

The Forestry Incentives Program shares up to 65 percent of the cost of tree planting and timberstand improvement. The percentage cost-shared depends on the rate set in a particular State and county by the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation (ASC) Committee, after consulting with the State forester. The program is available in designated counties based on a Forest Service survey of total eligible private timberland available for production of timber products. The program is administered by ASCS with technical assistance from Forest Service.

Under the 1985 program, cost-sharing will be provided to farmers for planting trees on 142,200 acres and improving the timberstand on 58,300 acres of forest.

The fiscal year 1986 Budget proposes to terminate this program.

This appropriation finances the administrative and operating expenses of the Corporation to provide funds to establish and maintain rates and coverages for 19,100 county programs in over 3,000 counties and to continue development of sales policies. Crop insurance in force is estimated to increase from $8.6 billion in crop year 1985 to $10.1 billion in crop year 1986, and the estimated insured acres are expected to increase from 54 million in crop year 1985 to 63.1 million in crop year 1986.

The Corporation's long-term objective is to provide the maximum number of farm producers with crop insurance coverage, on an actuarially sound basis, as protection against essentially all risks and economic losses resulting from uncontrollable natural hazards.

For fiscal year 1986, the appropriation for administrative and operating expenses will enable the Corporation to provide for growth in the expanded crop insurance program to an estimated 23 percent farmers' participation, bringing the program closer to attaining its long-term objective. The 1986 appropriation is the first year of a 5-year phase-out of all Federal operating subsidies. The objective is to fully privatize the delivery of crop insurance by 1990.

The major portion of administrative and operating expenses is to support delivery systems which rely heavily on the private sector as provided by the Federal Crop Insurance Act of 1980 under section 507(c).

The delivery systems are:

Reinsured companies which enable insurance companies to provide the insurance marketing, distribution, servicing, training, quality control, and loss adjustment functions. The companies also share with Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, to a limited extent, in both profits and losses. It is estimated that reinsured companies will handle about 80 percent of the total premium during crop year 1986. For crop year 1985, approximately 50 companies or groups will be writing crop insurance with reinsurance from FCIC; and Agency sales and service agreement, also known as the "master marketing agreement." Under this type of agreement, private insurance companies and associations are offered the opportunity to contract with FCIC to provide insurance sales and services. They are compensated on a commission basis. It is estimated that these agreements will account for about 20 percent of the total premium for crop year 1986. FCIC anticipates that about 60 organizations will be involved in master marketing agreements with a total of about 8,000 agents for crop year 1986.

In addition, in areas where an adequate private sales and service force is not available, FCIC may ask other USDA agencies to sell and service all-risk crop insurance through existing county offices.

As the private sector becomes more involved in the all-risk crop insurance program, it is expected that the companies will be able to "risk" more of their funds thus reducing the cost to the Government and at the same time reach the Corporation's goal of providing all-risk crop insurance to as many farm producers as possible.

The 1986 estimate includes savings from consolidation of administrative support services as part of 1986 budget management reforms.

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation, a wholly owned Government corporation, was created on February 16, 1938 (7 U.S.C. 1501-1520), to carry out the provisions of the Federal Crop Insurance Act, as amended. The purpose of this act is to promote the national welfare by improving the economic stability of agriculture through a sound system of crop insurance, and to provide the means for the research and experience helpful in devising and establishing such insurance.

Crop insurance offered to agricultural producers by the Corporation provides protection from losses caused by natural hazards, such as insect and wildlife damage, plant diseases, fire, drought, flood, wind, and other weather conditions. It does not indemnify producers for losses resulting from negligence or failure to observe good farming practices.

The crop insurance programs are planned, developed, and monitored by the FCIC headquarters office located in Washington, DC and its national operations office located in Kansas City, MO. The program is administered in the field through 18 field operations offices and 11 field actuarial offices. Sales and servicing of contracts at the county level are performed primarily by agents operating under agency sales and service agreements (master marketing agreements) and agents of reinsured companies. In those areas where these delivery systems are not in place, other USDA agencies may be used to market and service the program. The adjustment of losses is performed by FCIC employees, adjusters under contract with FCIC, and reinsured companies under contract with FCIC. Also, ASCS will perform some loss adjustment support on a reimbursable basis for the Corporation. Detailed administrative accounting is performed by the National Finance Center in New Orleans, LA, and program accounting and statistical functions, as well as the underwriting and actuarial analysis work, are performed in Kansas City, MO.

Budget program.—The program for 1986 (crop year 1985) will provide crop insurance protection to farmers amounting to approximately $8.6 billion on the following commodities: Almonds, apples, barley, beans, citrus, combined crop, corn, cotton, cranberries, flax, forage production, forage seeding, grain sorghum, grapes, hybrid seeding, oats, peaches, peanuts, peas, peppers, potatoes, prevented planting, raisins, rice, rye, soybeans, stake tomatoes, sugar beets, sugarcane, sunflowers, sweet corn, tobacco, tomatoes, and wheat. The program for 1986 is the first year of a five-year phase-out of all Federal premium subsidies. The objective is to fully privatize the delivery of crop insurance by 1990.

The 1985 appropriation provides sufficient funding for crop year 1985 to insure 54 million acres with an estimated $540 million in total premium income, including $135 million in premium subsidy. However, in order to allow for the broadest possible participation in the crop insurance program, the Corporation will use $21 million from premium income to pay agents' commissions and request an appropriation for restoration in subsequent years.

The following table compares the scope of the insurance operations planned for 1985 and 1986, as compared with 1984. Amounts in the 1984 column are actual, and pertain to the 1983 crop year. The 1985 column pertains to the 1984 crop year, and reflects levels of participation that can be achieved with the 1985 appropriations. The 1986 column pertains to the 1985 crop year.

Financing.—The Corporation is authorized under the Federal Crop Insurance Act, as amended, to use funds from the issuance of capital stock which provides working capital for the Corporation.

Receipts which are for deposit to this fund come mainly from premiums paid by farmers. The principal payments from this fund are for indemnities to insured farmers, the direct cost of adjusting crop losses and agents' commissions. However, an appropriation will be requested in subsequent years for payments made from premium income used for loss adjustment costs and/or agents' commissions as provided by section 516(a) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act, as amended.

Premium subsidies are authorized by section 508(b) of the Federal Crop Insurance Act as amended. The purpose of the subsidy is to encourage the broadest possible participation of farm producers in the crop insurance program. Subsidies are paid by the Corporation based upon 30 percent of each producer's premium (reduced, where applicable, for hail and fire exclusion or State agency subsidy) on any coverage, under the Corporation's policy of insurance of up to a maximum of 65 percent of the recorded or appraised average yield, as adjusted.

The annual appropriation for the administrative and operating expenses of the Corporation is presented earlier in the budget.

Operating results and financial condition.—As of September 30, 1984, the Corporation reflected a deficit of $624.4 million. This compares with a deficit of $264.1 million at September 30, 1983.

For crop years 1948 through 1983, indemnities ($2,835.3 million) exceeded premium income ($2,290.6 million) by $544.7 million; the loss ratio for the period was 1.24. Indemnity costs exceeded premiums in 18 of the 36 years.

The Corporation was created to stabilize, support, and protect farm income and prices, to help maintain balanced and adequate supplies of agricultural commodities, their products, foods, feeds, and fibers, and to help in their orderly distribution (15 U.S.C. 714-714p). It may make available materials and facilities required in connection with the production and marketing of agricultural commodities and may be used to administer and to temporarily finance numerous special activities.

The Corporation's capital stock of $100 million is held by the United States. Under present law, up to $25 billion may be borrowed from the U.S. Treasury to finance operations.

The 1986 estimate includes savings from improving the control and timing of disbursements as part of 1985 budget management reforms. Permanent indefinite appropriation authority is requested to cover all net realized losses. The estimate for 1986 is zero, except for the National Wool Act, which already has permanent indefinite appropriation authority. Appropriations to CCC for net realized losses have no effect on budget authority.

Budget assumptions.—The following general assumptions form the basis for the Corporation's 1985 and 1986 budget estimates: (a) Production and national income will rise both in 1985 and 1986 from the present level; (b) generally, exports of agricultural commodities in 1986 will be higher than 1985 levels; (c) yields for the 1985 crops are based on recent averages adjusted for trend; (d) acreage allotments and marketing quotas will be in effect for the 1985 crops of certain kinds of tobacco; (e) poundage quotas will be in effect for the 1985 crop of peanuts; and (f) any 1985 farm bill legislation will cover 1986 and subsequent crops and will not significantly affect fiscal year 1986 outlays, except for dairy and wheat.

It is difficult to forecast with accuracy requirements for the year ending September 30, 1986, since the projections are subject to complex and unpredictable factors such as weather, other factors which affect the volume of production of crops not yet planted, feed and food needs here and overseas, and available dollar exchange.

PROGRAMS OF THE CORPORATION

The basic functions of the Corporation include the following programs for which appropriations are made for net realized losses sustained:

Total .....	20,369,525	10,421,868	9,810,288

Support and related stabilization programs.—The Corporation conducts programs to support farm income and prices and stabilize the market for agricultural commodities. Price support is provided to producers of agricultural commodities through loans, purchases, payments, and other means. This is done mainly under the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act, as amended (15 U.S.C. 714 et seq.), the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1421 et seq.), and the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1281 et seq.).

Support is mandatory for the basic commodities—corn, cotton, wheat, rice, peanuts, and tobacco. The Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, also requires support of the following nonbasic commodities: honey, milk, barley, oats, rye, grain sorghum, sugar, soybeans, and seed cotton. The National Wool Act of 1954, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1781–87), requires support for wool and mohair. Support for other nonbasic commodities is discretionary. The support program may also include operations to remove and dispose of surplus agricultural commodities in order to stabilize prices at levels not in excess of those permissible by law.

The principal methods of providing support are loans to and purchases from producers. With limited exceptions, loans made on commodities are nonrecourse. The commodities serve as collateral for the loan and on maturity the producer may deliver or forfeit such collateral to satisfy his obligation without further payment.

Direct purchases are also made from processors as well as producers, depending on the commodity involved. Also, special purchases are made under various laws for the removal of surpluses; for example, the Act of August 19, 1958, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1431 note), and section 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended (7 U.S.C. 1431).

Deficiency payments.—Producers may receive deficiency payments in addition to Commodity Credit Corporation loans and purchases for feed grains, rice and wheat; and in addition to loans for cotton. Producers of feed grains and wheat must comply with acreage limitation provisions or acreage set-aside provisions, and normal crop acreage (NCA) requirements, if in effect, in order to be eligible for loans, purchases, and payments. Producers of cotton and rice must comply with acreage limitation provisions, if in effect, in order to be eligible for loans, purchases, and payments. The total amount of payments, excluding disaster payments, which a person is entitled to receive under one or more of the annual programs for feed grains, wheat, upland cotton, ELS cotton, and rice for each of the 1984 and 1985 crops of these commodities shall not exceed $50 thousand. Since crop insurance is available in all 3,000 agricultural counties, no disaster payments are estimated for fiscal years 1985 and 1986.

The Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, establishes minimum target prices for the 1982 through 1985 crops of the following commodities—wheat, corn, upland cotton, rice, and, beginning with the 1984 crop of ELS cotton, and establishes minimum loan and purchase levels for wheat, feed grains, and rice, and establishes minimum loan levels for upland cotton and ELS cotton. Deficiency payments for each of the commodities are required when the target price for the commodity exceeds the national average market price or the loan rate, whichever is higher. The target prices for grain sorghum and oats and, if designated by the Secretary, barley, are established at a level which is fair and reasonable in relation to the target prices established for corn.

Dairy.—The Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended by the Dairy and Tobacco Adjustment Act of 1983, provides for a revised dairy price support program. For the period beginning December 1, 1983, and ending September 30, 1985, the support price is $12.60 per hundredweight. On April 1, 1985, the Secretary of Agriculture may reduce the support price in effect by 50 cents per hundredweight if estimates of CCC purchases of milk or milk products for the twelve-month period beginning on such date is in excess of six billion pounds milk equivalent. On July 1, 1985, the Secretary may reduce the support price in effect by 50 cents per hundredweight if estimates of CCC purchases of milk or milk products for the twelve-month period beginning on such date is in excess of five billion pounds milk equivalent. Also on July 1, 1985, the Secretary may increase the price support rate in effect by not less than 50 cents per hundredweight if the estimate of CCC purchases of milk or milk products for the twelve-month period beginning on such date is five billion pounds milk equivalent or less and the Secretary determines the increase to be necessary to assure an adequate supply of milk. In order to reduce the quantity of milk marketed for commercial use, a milk diversion program is in effect for the fifteen-month period beginning January 1, 1984, and ending March 31, 1985. Under this program, a milk producer who complies with a contract entered into with CCC to reduce milk production by 5 to 30 percent of the producer's established milk base will receive $10 per hundredweight for the milk not produced. To encourage the adjustment of milk production to levels consistent with national demand, the Secretary is required to provide for a reduction of 50 cents per hundredweight in the price received on all milk marketed for commercial use by producers to be made during the period December 1, 1983, through March 31, 1985. The funds represented by the reduction are to be remitted to CCC to offset the payments made to producers under the milk diversion programs.

Commodity export.—The Corporation promotes the export of agricultural commodities and products through sales for dollars or foreign currency, payments, extension of credit, assumption of certain risks, and conduct of other operations with respect to the exportation of commodities. Such commodities and products may be those held in private trade channels as well as those acquired by the Corporation. These programs are carried out under section 5(f) of the Corporation's charter. The 1986 estimates include increased revenues from administratively increasing loan fees to 5 percent.

Storage facilities.—Pursuant to sections 4(h) and 5(b) of the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act, the Corporation has authority to make secured loans for the purchase, construction, or remodeling of facilities for storage and care of commodities on the farm.

Supply and foreign purchase.—The Corporation can procure from domestic and foreign sources food, agricultural commodities, and products and related materials to supply the needs of Federal agencies, foreign governments, and private and international relief agencies, under section 5 (b) and (c) of the Commodity Credit Corporation Charter Act.

Set-aside program and acreage limitation program.—The Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, authorizes the Secretary to establish, through the Corporation, acreage limitation programs on the 1982 through 1985 crops of upland cotton, rice, and on ELS cotton beginning with the 1984 crop. In addition, the Secretary is authorized to implement a set-aside or acreage limitation program for the 1982 through 1985 crops of wheat and feed grains.

The Agricultural Programs Adjustment Act of 1984 requires that the Secretary establish an acreage limitation program for the 1984 and 1985 crops of wheat. The Secretary is also required to implement an acreage limitation program for the 1985 crop of rice if estimated ending stocks exceed a specified level.

Land diversion payments.—To assist in adjusting the acreage of commodities to desirable goals, the Secretary is authorized by the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, to make land diversion payments, through the Corporation, to producers of the 1982 through 1985 crops of wheat, feed grains, upland cotton, rice, and to producers of ELS cotton beginning with the 1984 crop who devote to approved conservation uses acreages of cropland in addition to those required to be so devoted under the set-aside programs.

The Agricultural Programs Adjustment Act of 1984 requires that the Secretary implement a land diversion program for the 1984 and 1985 crops of wheat. The Secretary is also required to implement a land diversion program for the 1985 crops of feed grains, upland cotton, and rice if estimated ending stocks of these commodities exceed specified levels.

Grain reserves.—A producer-owned grain reserve program for wheat and feed grains provides 3-year extended loans to producers. Producers receive annual storage payments under the contract. Program provisions establish when interest is charged and a market price level at which storage payments cease and producers may repay their loans.

Operating expenses.—The Corporation carries out its functions through utilization of employees and facilities of other Government agencies. Administrative expenses are incurred for the services of: the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, General Sales Manager, and other agencies of the Department engaged in the Corporation's activities; and the General Accounting Office for audit. Additional expenses are incurred for ASCS county offices for work related to programs of the Corporation, other ASCS expenses offset by revenue, custodian, and agency expenses of the Federal Reserve banks and lending agencies, and miscellaneous costs.

Expenses are incurred for acquisition, operation, maintenance, improvement, or disposition of property which the Corporation owns or in which it has an interest. These expenses are treated as program expenses. Such program expenses include inspection, classing, and grading work performed on a fee basis by Federal employees or Federal- or State-licensed inspectors; work relating to CCC programs performed on a contract or fee basis by Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service; and special services performed by other Federal agencies within and outside this Department. Most of these general expenses, including storage and handling, transportation, inspection, classing, and grading and producer storage payments, are included in program costs. They are shown in the program and financing schedule in the entries entitled "Storage, transportation, and other obligations not included above," and "Producer storage payments."

The Corporation receives reimbursement for grain requisitioned pursuant to Public Law 87-152 (7 U.S.C. 447-449) by the States from Corporation stocks to feed resident wildlife threatened with starvation, through the appropriation reimbursement for net realized losses. There have been no requisitions in recent years, however.

SPECIAL ACTIVITIES

These activities are carried out under authority of section 5(g) of the Corporation's charter act and specific statutory authorizations or directives with respect thereto which are currently in effect or which may subsequently be enacted.

A summary of such current activities not included under other designated activities is as follows (in thousands of dollars):

(3) National Wool Act .....	100,525	100,525
Total .....	1,780,525	1,407,525

Activities currently being carried out are as follows (see Foreign Assistance programs for details of items (1) and (2):

(1) Financing sales of agricultural commodities for convertible foreign currencies and for dollars on credit terms (titles I and III, Public Law 480).

(2) Commodities supplied in connection with dispositions abroad (title II, Public Law 480).

(3) National Wool Act.—Under the National Wool Act of 1954, as amended, support of prices of wool and mohair is mandatory. The Corporation makes payments to producers in order to bring the national average price received by all producers up to the support price required under the act.

FINANCING

Borrowing authority.—The Corporation has an authorized capital stock of $100 million held by the United States and authority to borrow up to $25 billion.

Funds are borrowed from Treasury and may also be borrowed from private lending agencies and others. The Corporation reserves a sufficient amount of its borrowing authority to purchase at any time all notes and other obligations evidencing loans made by such agencies and others. All bonds, notes, debentures, and similar obligations issued by the Corporation are subject to approval by the Secretary of the Treasury as required by the Act of March 8, 1938 (15 U.S.C. 713a-4).

Interest on borrowings from the Treasury (and on capital stock) is paid at a rate based upon the average interest rate of all outstanding marketable obligations (of comparable maturity date) of the United States as of the preceding month. Interest is also paid on other notes and obligations at a rate prescribed by the Commodity Credit Corporation and approved by the Secretary of Treasury.

The Department of Agriculture and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1966, made provision for terminating interest after June 30, 1964 on the portion of the Corporation's borrowings from the Treasury equal to the unreimbursed realized losses recorded on the books of the Corporation after the end of the fiscal year in which such losses are realized.

Contract authority.—Price support and other programs required by statute may result in the Corporation incurring obligations in excess of available funds and borrowing authority. Such obligations are liquidated from subsequent appropriations and other funds which may become available to the Corporation. Any increase in obligations in excess of available fund resources is reported as contract authority in the year involved; a decrease is reported as the application of appropriations and other funds to liquidate the authority.

Appropriations.—Under section 2 of Public Law 87-155 (15 U.S.C. 713a-11), annual appropriations are authorized for each fiscal year to reimburse the Corporation for net realized losses incurred as of the close of each year.

The special activities are financed as indicated in the program descriptions above. In addition to certain reimbursements from other agencies, appropriations are made for the National Wool Act (see above) and for foreign assistance programs.

The Rural Electrification Administration, under authority of the Rural Electrification Act of 1936, as amended, makes subsidized direct loans and guarantees loans made by other qualified lenders to rural electric and telephone systems for electric and telephone service in rural areas.

In order to protect the Government's loan security on over $57 billion of loans and guarantees made to borrowers, to assure that construction and operation projects conform to approved standards, REA furnishes business management and technical assistance on a regular basis to its borrowers. This objective is carried out through regulations, personal visits to the borrowers, and by training. REA has personnel in the Washington office and a field staff who have expertise in the electric or telephone industry and who are available to assist borrowers in specialized areas.

Since current and projected demand for new REA loans has declined, staff resources necessary to carry out these programs are being reduced.

This appropriation reimburses the rural electrification and telephone revolving fund for interest subsidies and losses which, by law, are not incurred by the revolving fund. In last year's budget, this appropriation was included in the off-budget revolving fund, even though the Rural Electrification Act of 1936, as amended, specifies that only loans and advances of the revolving fund be excluded from the budget totals of the U.S. Government. This account has been established to reflect the correct budget treatment for the appropriation.

This fund has not incurred a loss since its inception in 1973, because it is exempted by the Act from paying $307 million in annual interest costs to the Treasury on advances totaling $7.9 billion. Rural electric and telephone direct loans have actually cost the Federal Government over $1.5 billion in interest subsidies and losses since 1973. However, these costs have been sustained by the Treasury, not by the revolving fund. Therefore, no appropriation is requested for 1986, and a rescission is proposed for 1985.

PURCHASE OF RURAL TELEPHONE BANK CAPITAL STOCK*

*See Part II for additional information.

For the purchase of Class A stock of the Rural Telephone Bank, $30,000,000, to remain available until expended (7 U.S.C. 901-950(b)).]

The Rural Electrification Act of 1936, as amended, authorizes appropriations for the purchase of Class A stock in the Rural Telephone Bank by the U.S. Government. In previous budgets, such appropriations were included in the Bank's off-budget account, even though the Act specifies that only loans and advances of the Bank be excluded from the budget totals of the U.S. Government. This account has been established to reflect the correct budget treatment for the appropriation.

No appropriation is requested for 1986, because the Federal Government has already provided $420 million in low-cost capital to the Bank—$110 million over the amount called for in the original statute establishing the Bank. Avoiding further appropriations through 1991 when the current authorization expires would save the Treasury about $30 million in interest over the next five years and about $250 million in interest for the life of these capital loans. The Bank can instead borrow from private credit markets or from the Treasury at a rate of interest equivalent to Treasury's cost of borrowing. By contrast, this appropriation would provide capital to the Bank with a 2 percent rate of return, the difference between 2 percent and Treasury's rates being borne by the U.S. taxpayer. A rescission of this $30 million appropriation is proposed for 1985.

The Rural Communication Development Fund, an account under the Rural Development Insurance Fund authorities, was established pursuant to Secretary's Memorandum No. 1988 approved May 22, 1979. This memorandum transferred certain financing authorities under the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act (7 U.S.C. 1921 et seq.) from the Farmers Home Administration to the Rural Electrification Administration for the purpose of financing and administering community antenna television services or facilities in rural areas. Funding is required for losses from operation of the program.

<sup>1</sup> Sales of certificates of beneficial ownership (CBO's) are reflected as reductions of loans outstanding and corresponding increases in guaranteed loans. This treatment results from the provisions of 7 U.S.C. 1932(d)(6). These transactions are not reflected in the direct or guaranteed loan limitation levels.

The Rural Electrification Administration conducts two loan programs: (1) The rural electrification program and (2) the rural telephone program.

Direct electric and telephone loans from the Rural Electrification and Telephone Revolving Fund (RETRF) bear interest at a 5 percent rate. Some loans may be made at a lesser rate. RETRF loans must be repaid within a period not to exceed 35 years. REA also guarantees loans made directly by the Government through the Federal Financing Bank (FFB) or by other qualified lenders at rates agreed upon by the lender and the borrower.

Loans from the RETRF are financed from available receipts or, when necessary, by interim Treasury borrowings. Loans made from the RETRF are held in a pool as security for certificates of beneficial ownership (CBO's) which are sold to investors.

Rural electrification.—This loan program is financed through REA direct and guaranteed loans for the construction and operation of generating plants, electric transmission, and distribution lines or systems. Electric demand growth as well as demand for REA direct and guaranteed loans have dropped sharply over the past several years. The reduction in the 1986 loan level from 1985 reflects an expected continuation of decline in loan demand.

The Rural Telephone Bank (RTB) provides a supplemental source of financing for the REA telephone loan program. The bank charges an interest rate based on the average cost of money to the bank, but not less than 5 percent per annum. The weighted average interest rate on cumulative loans through September 30, 1984, was 9.60 percent. During the first quarter of 1985, loans were made at 9.50 percent interest.

Equity capital of the bank consists of class A stock purchased by the United States, classes B and C stock purchased by bank borrowers, organizations eligible to become borrowers and organizations controlled by borrowers, and retained earnings. The maximum borrowing authority of the bank by law is limited to 20 times its paid-in capital and retained earnings. Total available borrowing authority of the bank for 1985 is estimated at $11.4 billion. For 1986, it is estimated at $11.8 billion.

Administrative support for the general operations of the bank are provided on a part-time basis by REA employees and the Office of the General Counsel, without cost to the bank, as provided for in the enabling legislation. Certain administrative expenses, such as expenses of the elected members of the Board of Directors, postage fees and the audit by the General Accounting Office, must be borne by the bank.

Bank loans totaled $143 million in 1984. After almost 13 years in operation, loans to 527 borrowers have been approved, totaling over $1.993 billion. Telephone bank loans are estimated at $185 million for 1985 and $185 million for 1986.

RURAL WATER AND WASTE DISPOSAL GRANTS—Continued

Rural water and waste disposal grant program.—This grant program is authorized by subtitle A of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act, as amended. Grants are authorized to be made to associations, including nonprofit corporations, public and quasi-public agencies, and certain Indian tribes to finance storage, treatment, purification, or distribution of water or the collection, treatment, or disposal of waste in rural areas. The amount of any development grant may not exceed 75 percent of the eligible development cost of the project.

The major objectives of the rural water and waste disposal grant programs are: (1) to provide assistance to attain basic human amenities, (2) to alleviate health hazards, (3) to promote stability of rural areas by meeting the need for new and improved rural water and waste disposal systems, and (4) to meet national safe drinking water and clean water standards. In fiscal year 1986, funds will be limited to very low income communities experiencing exceptional health and safety problems. In subsequent years, communities will compete for funds for these purposes under programs provided through the Department of Housing and Urban Development's community development block grant program.

ants will contribute the higher of (1) 30 percent of monthly adjusted income, (2) 10 percent of monthly income, or (3) designated housing payment from a welfare agency. Payments are made to the project owner to make up the difference between the tenants' rent payments and the approved rental rates for the units.

This appropriation has been used to fund new rental assistance contracts. $50,000,000 annually will be provided through the rural housing insurance fund for 1986 and 1987 to review expiring contracts. Thereafter, the functions under this program will be provided through programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development. No program is proposed for 1986.

The Agricultural credit insurance fund is used to insure or guarantee farm ownership, soil and water, farm operating, and emergency loans to individuals. Associations, Indian tribes and tribal corporations are eligible for the following types of loans: Indian land acquisition, watershed protection, flood prevention, and resource conservation and development.

The following loans are financed through this fund:

Farm ownership loans are made to individuals, corporations, cooperatives and partnerships, who are or will be farmers and ranchers for acquiring, enlarging, or improving not larger than family farms, including dwellings and farm buildings; for financing land and water development, use, and conservation; for developing recreational and other nonfarm enterprises; for forestry development; for refinancing indebtedness; and for loan closing costs. The FmHA and private or cooperative lenders can make loans to the same borrowers on the same security. Loans are made for 40 years or less. Insured principal indebtedness of any borrower may not exceed $200,000 and guaranteed principal indebtedness of any borrower may not exceed $300,000. The borrower is charged not more than the cost of money interest rate for insured loans except for low-income, limited resource borrowers who currently are charged a lower interest rate. An additional 2 percent is added to the interest rate if the loan involves the use of prime farm land for nonfarm purposes. The interest on loans that are deferred, consolidated, rescheduled or reamortized is set at the original rate or the current rate whichever is lower. The interest rate for guaranteed loans is negotiated by the lender and the borrower. No program is proposed for 1986.

Soil and water loans are made to individuals, corporations, cooperatives or partnerships, who are owners or operators of farms and ranches, for developing and conserving land and water resources. These loans may be made on farms which are larger than family farms. Loans are made for 40 years or less. Insured principal indebtedness of any borrower may not exceed $200,000 and guaranteed principal indebtedness of any borrower may not exceed $300,000. The borrower is charged not more than the cost of money interest rate for insured loans. An additional 2 percent is added to the interest rate if the loan involves the use of prime farm land for nonfarm purposes. The interest rate for guaranteed loans is negotiated by the lender and the borrower. No program is proposed for 1986.

Resource conservation and development (RCD) loans are made to local sponsors of RCD projects approved for operation by the Soil Conservation Service. Loans are made to local organizations for conservation measures specified in approved project and works of improvement plans. These loans are repayable in not more than 30 years. Loans bear interest at a rate based on the average rate paid by the U.S. Treasury on obligations of similar maturity. No program is proposed for 1986.

Watershed protection and flood prevention loans are made to local sponsors of projects approved by the Soil Conservation Service. Loans are made to local organizations for installing, repairing, or improving water storage facilities, purchasing sites or rights-of-way and for related costs. These loans are repayable in not more than 50 years at an interest rate based on the average rate paid by the U.S. Treasury on obligations of similar maturity. Total loans outstanding on any one project may not exceed $10 million. No program is proposed for fiscal year 1986.

Indian tribe land acquisition loans are made to qualified Indian tribes or tribal corporations to acquire land or interest in land within the tribe's reservation or Alaskan Indian community, as determined by the Secretary of the Interior. Loans are made for 40 years or less. The tribe is charged not more than the cost of money interest rate except those tribes that are unable to pay the higher rate currently may be charged a lower interest rate. No program is proposed for 1986.

Farm operating loans are made to individuals, corporations, cooperatives or partnerships, who are or will be the operator of a farm or ranch, for paying costs incident to reorganizing a farming system for more profitable operation; purchasing livestock, poultry, and farm equipment; purchasing feed, seed, fertilizer, and other farm supplies; meeting other essential operating expenses; financing land and water development, use, and conservation; developing recreation and other nonfarm enterprises; providing other farm and home needs; refinancing indebtedness; complying with certain safety standards; financing modest farm and nonfarm projects for rural youths in connection with their participation in 4-H clubs, Future Farmers of America, and similar organizations; and loan closing costs.

Operating loans for farming operations are confined to operators of not larger than family farms. Individuals, partnerships, corporations, and cooperatives operating family-size farms may be eligible. The outstanding principal loan balance for operating loans to a borrower is limited to \$200,000 for insured loans and \$400,000 for guaranteed loans. The 1986 budget proposes to charge an interest rate to the borrower  $1\frac{1}{8}$  percent above Treasury obligations of comparable maturity and to terminate the limited resource subsidized loan program. The interest rate on loans that are deferred, consolidated, rescheduled or reamortized is set at the original rate or the current rate, whichever is lower. The interest rate for guaranteed loans is negotiated by the lender and the borrower. The 1986 budget proposes to raise the current FmHA up front guaranteed loan origination fee from 1 percent to 5 percent as part of a government-wide credit initiative. Funds advanced for operating expenses are usually repaid when the crops, livestock, or other farm products are sold. Funds advanced for other purposes may be repaid in 1 to 7 years. Loans are secured by crop and chattel liens and, when necessary, by real estate mortgages. It must be clearly established that the loan applicants are unable to obtain sufficient credit elsewhere to finance their needs. The 1986 budget proposes to phase out the direct farm operating loan program over a five-year period. The budget proposes to substitute loan guarantees in the amount of \$3 billion annually. The Federal guarantee will generally be limited to 70 percent of the principal amount of the privately originated loan.

Emergency disaster loans are made available in designated counties and in contiguous counties where property damage and/or severe production losses have occurred as a direct result of a natural disaster. Subsequent emergency loans for annual operating expenses are made to established eligible farmers, ranchers, and aquaculture operators at a market rate of interest as established periodically by the Secretary. Effective October 1, 1982, such subsequent annual production loans are available only to those borrowers who were indebted to FmHA for an emergency loan on December 15, 1979, and who have received an initial emergency annual production loan due to a disaster occurring prior to December 15, 1979.

Actual loss loans are made for physical losses to repair, restore, or replace damaged or destroyed farm property, livestock and livestock products, and supplies, and for production losses to compensate for loss of income based on reduced production of crops resulting from the disaster. Repayment terms vary according to the purposes of the loan and the projected repayment ability of the borrower. Loans for actual losses to crops, livestock, supplies, and equipment may be scheduled for repayment for up to 7 years. Under some conditions a longer repayment period may be authorized, but not to exceed 20 years. Generally, real estate will be needed as security when more than 7 years is authorized. Real estate loans will generally be scheduled for repayment within 30 years but may be scheduled for up to 40 years. Annual operating expenses usually will be scheduled for repayment each year when the principal income from the year's operations is received.

An actual loss loan may not exceed $500,000 or the calculated amount of the actual loss, whichever is less, for each disaster. The interest rate is 8 percent on loans for actual losses caused by disasters on and after October 1, 1981. The interest rate is 5 percent on loans for actual losses caused between September 30, 1978 and October 1, 1981. Loans are authorized for counties which are contiguous to counties already named as eligible for loans due to losses from natural disasters occurring after May 30, 1983.

A farmer who cannot obtain credit elsewhere is eligible for an actual loss loan of up to $500,000 per disaster at an interest rate of 5 percent on the first $100,000 borrowed. Amounts above $100,000, up to the limit of $500,000, will be subject to an interest rate of 8 percent. Annual production loans are made to borrowers who cannot obtain credit elsewhere at the rates prevailing in the private market for similar type loans, provided they were indebted in the program on December 15, 1979. The interest rate on loans that are deferred, consolidated, rescheduled or reamortized is set at the original rate or the current rate, whichever is lower. The Small Business Act of 1980, Public Law 96-302, made credit-worthy borrowers eligible for FmHA emergency disaster actual loss loans at a market rate of interest. No program is proposed for 1986. Legislation is being proposed to exclude disaster loans in counties where Federal crop insurance is available. Federal crop insurance is currently available for most crops in virtually all counties.

Economic emergency loans are made from December 22, 1983 through September 30, 1984. This program enabled the Secretary of Agriculture to insure or guarantee up to $600 million in loans to bona fide farmers and ranchers who are primarily and directly engaged in agricultural production. It allows them to continue their normal farming or ranching operations during the economic emergency which caused a serious lack of agricultural credit due to national or area-wide economic stress. No program was authorized in 1985 and no program is proposed in 1986.

The following table shows 1984 actual and estimated 1985 and 1986 number of loans and program levels. The guaranteed program levels reflect the full principal amount of the loan of which part is guaranteed by the U.S. Government.

The Self-help housing land development fund is authorized under Section 523(b)(1)(B) of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended. The fund provides qualified public or private nonprofit organizations with financing for the acquisition and development of building sites for homes to be constructed by the self-help method. Seven loans amounting to $2.7 million are expected to be obligated.

No program level is proposed for fiscal year 1986. Functions under this program for fiscal year 1986 and subsequent years will be funded through programs of the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

For an additional amount to reimburse the Rural Housing Insurance Fund for interest subsidies and losses sustained in prior years, but not previously reimbursed, in carrying out the provisions of title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended (42 U.S.C. 1483, 1487e, and 1490a(c)), including [$2,985,000] $2,757,000 as authorized by section 521(c) of the Act, [$1,843,927,000] $2,136,784,000, and for an additional amount as authorized by section 521(c) of the Act as may be necessary to reimburse the fund to carry out a rental assistance program under section 521(a)(2) of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended. In sum, during 1986, gross obligations for the principal amount of insured loans shall not exceed $30,000,000.

Note.—A regular 1985 appropriation for this account had not been enacted at the time this budget was prepared. A continuing resolution (Public Law 98-473) provides funds to the extent and in the manner provided for in the conference version of H.R. 5743, making appropriations for Agriculture, Rural Development, and Related Agencies, 1985.

Note.—Sales of certificates of beneficial ownership (CBO's) are reflected as reductions of loans outstanding and corresponding increases in guaranteed loans. This treatment results from the provisions of 7 U.S.C. 1932(d)(6). These transactions are not reflected in the direct or guaranteed loan limitation levels.

Rural housing insurance fund.—This fund was established in 1965 (Public Law 89-117) pursuant to section 517 of title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended.

This fund may be used to insure or guarantee rural housing loans for single family homes, rental and cooperative housing, farm labor housing, rural housing sites and to make rental assistance payments authorized by Section 521(a). Loan programs are limited to rural areas which include towns, villages, and other places which are not part of an urban area and which have a population not in excess of 2,500 inhabitants, or is in excess of 2,500 but not in excess of 10,000 if rural in character, or has a population in excess of 10,000 but not more than 20,000 and is not within a standard metropolitan statistical area and has a serious lack of mortgage credit for low- and moderate-income borrowers.

The 1986 budget proposes to terminate the sections 504, 514, 502 (except for repair purposes as explained below), 515, 521 (except for expiring contract renewals), and 524 rural housing programs. The functions under these programs are proposed to be transferred to the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

The major programs currently funded through the Rural Housing Insurance Fund are:

Section 504 very low-income housing repair loans.—Home repair loans for very low-income owner/occupants are made from amounts available in this fund. These loans are made to families and individuals to repair their dwellings in order to make them safe and to remove health hazards. The loans are made at 1 percent interest for a term of not more than 20 years and presently carry a maximum lifetime assistance level (loan or combination loan and grant) of $7,500. No program is proposed for 1986.

Section 502 very low and low to moderate income housing loans.—Individual home ownership loans are made to very low, low and moderate income individuals and families who are unable to obtain home ownership financing from conventional sources on terms they reasonably can be expected to meet. Loans may be made to eligible applicants to construct, improve, alter, repair, or replace dwellings, and may include funds to purchase a conventionally constructed or manufactured house and related building sites. These loans generally have a term of up to 33 years and currently bear a note rate based on the cost of Treasury borrowings. However, interest credits may reduce a borrower's effective interest rate to as low as 1 percent. For 1986, it is proposed that funding be limited to making essential repairs to existing housing occupied exclusively by borrowers qualifying for interest credits.

Section 514 domestic farm labor housing loans.—These loans are made to farm owners, public or private nonprofit organizations of farm workers to provide modest living quarters, basic household furnishings, and related facilities, including the land necessary for an adequate site for domestic farm labor or Indian tribe housing. Loans bear interest at 1 percent and in some cases may be made in conjunction with a domestic farm labor housing grant. No program is proposed for 1986.

Section 515 domestic rural rental housing loans.—Rural rental and cooperative housing loans are made to individuals, corporations, partnerships, Indian tribes and public bodies with the objective of providing low-rent housing and related facilities for elderly or handicapped persons or families of low or moderate income. These loans bear a note rate based on the cost of Treasury borrowings and may be subsidized to a rate as low as 1 percent through interest credits and terms up to 50 years. This subsidy permits rents to be adjusted to a level that lower income families can afford to pay. The Rural Rental Housing Program operates in tandem with the HUD section 8 Rental Assistance Program and the FmHA Rental Assistance Program which is discussed below. No program is proposed for 1986.

Section 521 rural rental assistance.—The objective of the rental assistance program is to reduce rents paid by low-income families living in FmHA financed rental projects and farm labor housing projects. Payments from the fund are made to the project owner to make up the difference between the tenant's payment and the approved rental rate established for the unit. The proposed 1986 budget will allow the extension of existing 5-year rental assistance contracts which will be expiring during the year and for servicing activities.

Section 524 rural housing site loans.—Site development loans are made for the purchase and development of land to be subdivided into building sites and sold on a nonprofit basis to low- and moderate-income families or to organizations for rental or cooperative housing. These loans have a term of 2 years and currently bear a note rate based on the cost of Treasury borrowing. No program is proposed for 1986.

The following table shows 1984 actual and estimated 1985 and 1986 number of units and program levels.

MEMORANDUM

2299	U.S. contingent liability for guaranteed loans outstanding, end of year .....	9,971,669	10,610,760	10,778,028
------	---	-----------	------------	------------

Note.—Sales of certificates of beneficial ownership (CBO's) are reflected as reductions of loans outstanding and corresponding increases in guaranteed loans. This treatment results from the provisions of 7 U.S.C. 1932(d)(6). These transactions are not reflected in the direct or guaranteed loan limitation levels.

The Rural development insurance fund was established on October 1, 1972, pursuant to section 116 of the Rural Development Act of 1972 (Public Law 92-419), approved August 30, 1972, which also provided for transfer of the assets and liabilities of the Agricultural credit insurance fund applicable to loans for water systems and waste disposal facilities to this fund.

The fund is used to insure or guarantee loans for water systems and waste disposal facilities, community facilities, and industrial development in rural areas.

The objective of the water and waste disposal loan program is to provide assistance to enable eligible borrowers (communities and others) to attain basic human amenities, to alleviate health hazards, to promote the orderly growth of rural areas by meeting the need for financing new and improved rural water and waste disposal systems and to meet National Clean Water

Standards and the requirements of the Safe Drinking Water Act.

Water and waste disposal development loans may be made to organizations including certain Indian tribes, corporations not operated for profit, and public and quasi-public agencies for the development, storage, treatment, purification, or distribution of water and/or the collection, treatment, or disposal of waste in rural areas. Loans are made for facilities which primarily serve farmers, ranchers, farm tenants, farm laborers, and other rural residents in rural areas which shall not include any areas in any city or town having a population in excess of 10,000 inhabitants according to the latest decennial census of the United States. These loans are repayable in terms not to exceed the useful life of the facility or 40 years, whichever is less. These loans bear interest not in excess of the current market yield for comparable term municipal obligations. Those loans made in areas where the median household income falls below the poverty level and the project is needed to meet health or sanitary standards bear interest not in excess of 5 percent. An intermediate rate, half way between the 5 percent and the market rate, applies when the median household income of the service area is not more than 85 percent of the nonmetropolitan median household income of the State. The 1986 budget proposes to transfer the functions of the water and waste disposal, community facility and guaranteed business and industry loan programs to the Department of Housing and Urban Development's Community Development block grant program. The 1986 budget proposal provides, for one year only, funding for the water and waste loan program. Funds would be limited to very low income communities experiencing health and safety problems. In subsequent years, communities will compete for funds for these purposes under programs provided by HUD.

The objective of the community facility loan program is to assist rural communities in developing or improving essential community facilities.

Community facility loans may be made to organizations including certain Indian tribes, corporations not operated for profit, and public and quasi-public agencies for the purposes of constructing, enlarging, extending, or otherwise improving community facilities which provide essential services to rural residents and contribute to the overall development of the community. Such facilities include those that provide fire and rescue services, health care, hydroelectric generation, and community, social, and cultural benefits. Loans are made for facilities which primarily serve farmers, ranchers, farm tenants, farm laborers, and other rural residents in rural areas which shall not include any area in any city or town having a population in excess of 20,000 inhabitants according to the latest decennial census of the United States. These loans are repayable in terms not to exceed the useful life of the facility or 40 years, whichever is less. These loans bear interest not in excess of the current market yield for comparable term municipal obligations. Those made in areas where the median household income falls below the poverty level and the project is needed to meet health or sanitary standards bear interest not in excess of 5 percent. An intermediate rate, half way between the 5 percent and the market rate, applies when the median household income of the service area is not more than 85 percent of the nonmetropolitan median family income of the state. An additional 2 percent is added to the interest rate for projects built on prime farmland when an optional site is available. No program is proposed for fiscal year 1986.

The objective of the guaranteed industrial development loan program is to facilitate the development or improvement of business and industry in rural areas, to stimulate economic growth, to create employment opportunities, and to improve the environmental climate. No program is proposed for fiscal year 1986.

The following table shows the number of loans and the program levels for 1984 actual and estimated for 1985 and 1986. The guaranteed program levels reflect the full principal amount of the loan of which part is guaranteed by the U.S. Government.

Technical assistance.—Technical assistance is provided through conservation districts to land users and decisionmakers, including individual landowners and operators, community groups, units of government, Indian tribes, and others for the planning of conservation programs and installation of needed conservation systems on the land, including design, layout, installation, and consultation services.

Combinations of needed soil and water conservation systems are planned in relation to each other to achieve well-balanced conservation programs. Since 1981, accelerated technical assistance has been provided to targeted geographic areas with severe erosion, water conservation and water quality problems. Under the reduced program proposed for fiscal year 1986, SCS will continue to emphasize work on critical resource problems caused by excessive soil erosion and inefficient use of limited water supplies. The fiscal year 1986 budget proposes to limit the Department of Agriculture's soil and water conservation assistance to the activities specified under this appropriation account which would continue beyond fiscal year 1986.

MAIN WORKLOAD FACTORS

	1984 actual	1985 estimate	1986 estimate
Conservation districts (number) .....	2,936	2,936	2,936

Acres improved through conservation technical assistance .....	42,860,958	50,000,000	12,500,000

Inventoring and monitoring.—Inventoring and monitoring provides soil, water, and related resource data. All activities under this program will be terminated by the end of fiscal year 1986.

Soil surveys.—Soil surveys and investigations are made of the Nation's soil resources, with interpretations and publications that provide physical land facts needed for program development, resource conservation planning, installation of planned practices, and for use by other Federal, State, and local agencies in making land-use decisions. This program is being continued in the fiscal year 1986 budget.

MAIN WORKLOAD FACTORS

Acres mapped annually .....	42,813,000	40,000,000	10,000,000
Soil surveys ready for publication (number) .....	61	80	20

Snow survey water forecasting.—Water supply forecasts prepared from snow surveys in western states are used in making efficient seasonal use of water for irrigation, flood control, fish and wildlife, recreation, power generation, municipal and industrial water supply, and water quality management. All activities under this program will be terminated by the end of fiscal year 1986.

Operation of plant materials centers.—The selection and evaluation of plant materials are made at 20 plant materials centers through field trials to determine their suitability for erosion control, conservation, and other environmental improvements. This program is being continued in the fiscal year 1986 budget.

Resource appraisal and program development.—The Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act of 1977 provides for a report to the public and Congress at 5-year intervals beginning January 1980. A report was developed and submitted in December 1982. All activities under this program will be terminated by the end of fiscal year 1986.

The Department makes surveys of proposed small watershed projects, and work plans are prepared in cooperation with local sponsors. These plans outline the soil and water management problems in the watershed, the steps that have been or are authorized to be taken to alleviate these problems, the proposed works of improvement to be installed, the estimated benefits and costs, cost sharing, and operation and maintenance arrangements, and other facts necessary to justify Federal participation in project development. All activities of this program will be terminated by the end of fiscal year 1986.

This program provides for cooperation between the Federal Government and States and their political subdivisions in installing works of improvement: to reduce damage from floodwater, sediment, and erosion; for the conservation, development, utilization, and disposal of water; and for the conservation and proper utilization of land. The fiscal year 1986 budget proposes to terminate all activities under these programs by the end of fiscal year 1986.

Watershed operations authorized by Public Law 534.—The Department cooperates with soil conservation districts and other local organizations in planning and installing works of improvement for flood prevention in 11 watersheds authorized by the Flood Control Act of 1944. The Federal Government shares the cost of works of improvement for flood prevention, agricultural water management, recreation, and fish and wildlife development.

Within the 11 authorized projects, 406 subwatershed areas have been identified for planning purposes. Installation progress in these subwatersheds is as follows:

MAIN WORKLOAD FACTORS

Projects in construction, start of year.....	83	88	85

Emergency watershed protection operations.—This program authorizes the Secretary of Agriculture to undertake such emergency measures for runoff retardation and soil erosion prevention as may be needed to safeguard life and property from floods and the products of erosion on any watershed whenever natural elements or force causes a sudden impairment of that watershed. An emergency is considered to exist when a watershed is suddenly impaired by flood, fire, wind, earthquake, or other natural cause and consequently life and property are endangered by floodwater, erosion, or sediment discharge. The emergency area need not be declared a national disaster area to be eligible for emergency watershed protection. Emergency watershed protection is applicable to small scale, localized disasters as well as large scale disasters. State environmental, natural resource, fish and game, and other agencies participate in planning and coordinating emergency work.

Small watershed operations authorized by Public Law 566.—The Department provides technical and financial assistance to local organizations to install measures for watershed protection, flood prevention, agricultural water management, recreation, and fish and wildlife enhancement.

Watershed work plans are prepared by sponsoring local organizations with the Department's assistance or through State and local resources. After work plans are approved by the Department or Congress (projects where the estimated Federal contribution will exceed $5 million require congressional approval), technical services and financial assistance are provided for specific works of improvements.

The following tabulation shows the status of Public Law 566 projects:

Loan services.—Loans are made to local sponsoring organizations to finance the local cost of installing works of improvement in Public Law 534 and approved Public Law 566 watershed projects. Repayment with interest is required within 50 years after the principal benefits of improvements first become available. Loans are made from funds available for this purpose from the Agricultural credit insurance fund of the Farmers Home Administration. Loan services related to processing and making loans are financed from this appropriation.

This program provides cost-share and technical services to participating landowners or operators in the Great Plains area in the development and installation of long-term conservation plans and practices for their land under contracts entered into in prior years. It is a voluntary program in 519 designated counties of 10 Great Plains States. Contracts with individual landowners range in time from 3 to 10 years.

Conservation plans made for each farm or ranch serve as a basis for cost sharing on approved practices. The fundamental purposes of this program are to achieve needed land use adjustments, conservation treatments, and economic stability of each unit. The planned work is installed under contract according to specific time schedules.

As of September 30, 1984, there were 5,995 active contracts on hand. Co-landowners or operators finance the entire cost of installing recurring management-type practices and pay a specified part of the cost-shared practices installed on their land. Program regulations provide that cost-share rates offered in any contract shall not exceed 80 percent of the cost of installing eligible practices within the designated county. There is a cost-sharing limitation of $35 thousand for any contract. The fiscal year 1986 budget proposed to terminate all activities under this program by the end of fiscal year 1986.

This program provides for the Department to assist States, local units of government, groups and individuals in developing area plans for resource conservation and development (RC&D).

RC&D areas are provided technical and financial assistance to help States and local units of government prepare plans for resource development and economic improvement and to plan and install community-type conservation projects or measures. Financial contributions, loans, and other Federal assistance are used to help carry out measures specified in RC&D area plans. Loans were made to qualified local organizations to help finance their share of the costs of installing the measures.

The RC&D program would be terminated by the end of 1986.

The following tabulation shows the status of RC&D areas authorized to receive technical and financial assistance.

The major objectives of the Service are to protect the animal and plant resources of the Nation from destructive pests and diseases.

Plant disease and pest control.—Through inspections at ports of entry, insects, plant diseases, nematodes, and animal pests and diseases harmful to agriculture are prevented from entering this country. Cooperative programs with the States are conducted to prevent the spread of and/or to eradicate certain plant pests already established in this country. The 1986 estimates propose increases for agricultural quarantine inspection, Medfly, and decreases for boll weevil, golden nematode, grasshopper, gypsy moth, imported fire ant, noxious weeds, pink bollworm, and witchweed programs. Legislation will be proposed to recover $1.8 million in fees for certifying the health of plant exports.

Animal disease and pest control.—Programs are conducted to keep communicable diseases of foreign origin from entering this country and to prevent the spread of diseases through interstate shipments of livestock or distribution of impure or impotent veterinary biologics. In cooperation with States, other programs are directed at the control and eradication of livestock diseases present in this country. Foreign animal diseases, should they enter this country, are rapidly diagnosed and outbreaks which are of economic significance and for which the Secretary of Agriculture declares a national emergency are controlled and eradicated. The animal care programs regulate the humane care and handling of commercial (pet) and laboratory animals, restrict animal fighting ventures and prohibit the soring of horses.

In 1986 estimates include funding for a phased-down, three-year brucellosis eradication program. Funds from 1985 will be used to begin the depopulation of infected cattle in selected states. After 1987, Federal participation in the program will be limited to disease surveillance activities.

Increases are proposed for animal disease detection, animal health compliance and enforcement, and import-export and a decrease for the screwworm program. The budget proposes elimination of the animal welfare program. Legislation will be proposed to recover an additional $0.4 million in fees for quarantining livestock entering the United States through animal quarantine facilities and $1.4 million in fees for export certificates for animals and animal semen. Legislation will also be proposed to put the entire veterinary biologics program on a user fee basis.

Construction of facilities.—In 1981, the Congress appropriated funds under a separate account to APHIS, Buildings and Facilities. The activity reflected shows obligations from prior year moneys.

Contingencies.—

The 1986 estimates propose to increase the contingency fund to $3.0 million.

The FGIS provides for the establishment of official United States standards for grain, promotes the uniform application thereof by official inspection personnel, provides for an official inspection system for grain, and regulates the weighing and certification of the weight of grain shipped in interstate or foreign commerce as authorized by the U.S. Grain Standards Act (USGSA), as amended, and the regulations thereof, and the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (AMA).

Standardization activities include establishing and updating U.S. grain standards and research; developing and improving methods to ensure the accurate and uniform application of the standards.

Compliance activities include the delegation, designation and review of the official performance of State and private inspection agencies, licensing of personnel and investigation of technical violations.

The International Monitoring Staff will brief foreign buyers, assess foreign inspection and weighing techniques, and respond to foreign quality and quantity complaints.

An advisory committee consisting of members from the grain industry was established to advise the agency regarding efficient and economical implementations of the USGSA.

The Federal Grain Inspection Service provides a uniform system for the inspection and weighing of grain. Services provided under this system are financed through a fee supported revolving fund.

Fee supported programs include direct services, supervision activities and administrative functions. Direct services include official grain inspection and weighing by FGIS employees at certain export ports as well as the inspection of U.S. grain shipped through Canada. FGIS supervises the inspection and weighing activities performed by its own employees. The agency also oversees the inspection and weighing of grain performed by employees of 8 delegated States and 82 designated State and private agencies. FGIS provides an appeal service of original grain inspections and a registration system for grain exporting firms. Through support from the Association of American Railroads and user fees, FGIS conducts a railroad track scale testing program. In addition, the agency provides grading services on request for rice and grain related products under the authority of the Agricultural Marketing Act of 1946 (AMA).

Legislation will be submitted to the Congress authorizing collection of user fees for standardization and compliance activities. This proposal will be implemented over a 3-year period.

AMS activities assist producers and handlers of agricultural commodities by providing a variety of marketing services. These services continue to become more complex as the volume of agricultural commodities increases, as a greater number of new processed commodities are developed, and as the agricultural market structure undergoes extensive changes. Marketing changes include increased concentration in food retailing, direct buying, decentralization of processing, growth of interregional competition, vertical integration, and contract farming. The individual activities include:

Market news service.—The market news program provides the agricultural community with information pertaining to the movement of agricultural products. This nationwide service provides reports daily on the supply, demand and price of over 400 commodities throughout the country.

AMS will be contracting for a more cost-effective alternative to the current system for disseminating market news as the result of an analysis conducted through an inter-agency agreement with the General Services Administration.

Inspection, grading and standardization.—Nationally uniform standards of quality for agricultural products are established and applied to specific lots of products to: promote confidence between buyers and sellers; reduce hazards in marketing due to misunderstandings and disputes arising from the use of nonstandard descriptions; encourage better preparation of uniform quality products for market; and furnish consumers with more definite information on the quality of products they buy. Grading services are provided for cotton, tobacco and naval stores. On May 13, 1984, the responsibility for warehouse examination services for warehouses licensed under the U.S. Warehouse Act and those storing CCC-pledged or owned commodities was transferred from AMS to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Continuous in-plant inspection of all plants manufacturing liquid, frozen or dried egg products is provided with quarterly inspection of egg handlers and hatcheries to ensure the proper disposition of shell eggs unfit for human consumption. Imported egg products are controlled to make certain that the inspection systems in exporting countries are equal to United States' standards.

A uniform government food specification system is maintained to provide a more efficient Federal food procurement service.

Market protection and promotion.—This program consists of: (1) the research and promotion programs which are designed to improve the competitive position and expand markets for cotton, eggs, wheat, milk and dairy products, wool, mohair, and potatoes; (2) the Federal Seed Act, Plant Variety Protection Act, and the Export Fruit Acts; and (3) the administration of the Capper-Volstead Act and the Agricultural Fair Practices Act.

The Dairy and Tobacco Adjustment Act of 1983 provided for a mandatory 15 cents per hundred weight assessment on all milk marketed by producers in the 48 contiguous States to fund a national dairy product research, promotion and education program. Continuation of the assessment must be approved by dairy farmers in a referendum which will be conducted during August and September 1985.

Federal seed inspectors conduct tests on samples to help assure truthful labeling of agricultural and vegetable seeds sold in interstate commerce. Plant variety protection provides for the issuance of certificates to assure that developers of novel varieties of sexually reproduced plants have exclusive rights to sell, reproduce, import and export such varieties for a period of 18 years.

The Export Fruit Acts promote U.S. foreign trade of various fruits to protect the reputation of U.S. grown fruit in foreign markets and to prevent deception as to the quality of such products moving in foreign commerce.

The Capper-Volstead Act and the Agricultural Fair Practices Act protect producers against discriminatory practices by handlers, permits producers to engage in cooperative efforts, and assures that such cooperatives do not engage in practices that monopolize or restrain trade.

Studies and projects completed.....	12	12

For 1986, legislation will be proposed to finance the market news activity; the standardization activity; the Federal Seed Act program; and the Export Fruit Act; Plant Variety Protection Act; and Market Development and Assistance program on a user fee basis. These proposals are designed to align program demand with willingness to pay for these specialized services. In addition, legislation is proposed to amend the Egg Products Inspection Act to provide more effective inspection of egg processing operations and to reduce required shell egg surveillance visits from four times a year to once annually.

License fees are deposited in this special fund and are used to meet the costs of administering the Perishable Agricultural Commodities and the Produce Agency Acts (7 U.S.C. 491-497, 499a-499s). The current annual license fee is set at $180 plus $72 for each additional business facility operated by the applicant in excess of nine facilities, up to a maximum of $1,200.

The Acts are intended to assure equitable treatment to farmers and others in the marketing of fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables. Commission merchants, dealers, and brokers handling these products in interstate and foreign commerce are licensed. Complaints of violations are investigated and violations dealt with by (a) informal agreements between the two parties, (b) formal decisions involving payment of reparation awards, and/or (c) suspension or revocation of license and/or publication of the facts. Payments in connection with informal settlements to producers are estimated to amount to $10 million in 1986.

An amount equal to 30 percent of receipts collected on fishery products is transferred to the Department of Commerce. Most of the funds are transferred to the Food and Nutrition Service and are dedicated to commodity distribution activities under section 6 of the National School Lunch Act and other authorities specified in the child nutrition appropriation. If commodity surpluses not now foreseen should develop, the reserves not currently programmed (unobligated balances) are available for surplus removal.

1. Expenses and refunds, inspection and grading of farm products.—The commodity inspection and grading programs provide grading, examination, and certification services for a wide variety of fresh and processed food commodities using federally approved grade standards and purchase specifications. Commodities graded include poultry, livestock, meat, dairy products, and fresh and processed fruits and vegetables. These programs use official grade standards which reflect the relative quality of a particular food commodity based on laboratory testing and characteristics such as taste, color, weight and physical condition. Producers voluntarily request the grading and certification service and it is provided on a fee for service basis.

Note.—The administration fund totals are comprised of 45 separate independent order accounts in 1984. The Marketing Service fund totals are comprised of 36 separate independent order accounts in 1984.

The Secretary of Agriculture is authorized by the Agricultural Marketing Agreement Act of 1937, as amended—under certain conditions—to issue Federal milk marketing orders establishing minimum prices which handlers are required to pay for milk purchased from producers.

Market administrators are appointed by the Secretary and are responsible for carrying out the terms of specific marketing orders. Their operating expenses, partly financed by assessments on regulated handlers and partly by deductions from producers, are reported in these schedules. These funds are collected locally, deposited in local banks, and disbursed directly by the market administrator.

The expenses of each local office are met from an administrative fund and a marketing service fund which are prescribed in each order. The administrative fund is derived from prorated handler assessments. The marketing service fund of the individual order provides for the expense of disseminating market information to producers who are not members of a qualified cooperative. It also provides for the verification of the weights, sampling, and testing of milk from these producers. The cost of these services is borne by such producers.

The maximum rates for administrative assessment and for marketing services are set forth in each order and adjustments below these rates are made from time to time upon recommendations by the market administrator and upon approval of the Agricultural Marketing Service to provide reserves at about a 6-month operating level. Upon termination of any order, the statute provides for distributing the proceeds from net assets pro rata to contributing handlers or producers as the case may be.

Until March 31, 1985, as required by title I of the Dairy and Tobacco Adjustment Act, market administrators will collect 50 cents per hundredweight on all milk produced in the forty-eight contiguous States and marketed by producers for commercial use. These funds will be used to partially offset the costs of the dairy price support paid diversion program.

Milk sold by regulated handlers supplied almost 171 million persons in calendar year 1983.

The principal purpose of the Office of Transportation is to facilitate an efficient domestic and international transportation system for U.S. agricultural products. This is done by providing assistance to exporters and firms by helping to solve international transportation problems relating to agriculture; assisting agricultural shippers and carriers in the new deregulation environment; and providing technical assistance to producers, producer groups, and rural communities to help them solve specific transport problems. A general program decrease is proposed in 1986.

The major objectives of the Food Safety and Inspection Service are to assure that meat and poultry products are wholesome, unadulterated, and properly labeled and packaged, as required by the Federal Meat Inspection Act and the Poultry Products Inspection Act.

The Meat and Poultry Inspection program of the Food Safety and Inspection Service provides continuous inplant inspection of all domestic plants preparing meat or poultry products for sale or distribution; reviews foreign inspection systems and establishments that prepare meat or poultry products for export to the United States; and provides technical and financial assistance to States which maintain meat and poultry inspection programs.

Legislative changes which will permit collection of user fees to fund FSIS programs are included in the 1986 FSIS budget proposal. Implementation of the user fees would occur over a three year period, with fees funding one-third of program costs in 1986. Fees will be deposited directly to the Treasury; therefore, an annual appropriation will be required to fully fund program operations.

The child nutrition programs provide cash and commodity meal subsidies through the school lunch, school breakfast, summer food service and child care food programs. Federal funds are also made available for nutrition studies and State administrative expenses. Proposed legislation will better target nutrition benefits to needy children by discontinuing subsidies to high income students, moderate meal subsidy increases and enhance the use of commodities.

The goal of this program is to assure the integrity of the livestock, meat, and poultry markets and the marketplace in order to protect producers against unfair, deceptive, or discriminatory practices as well as those that are predatory or monopolistic in nature. Consumers and members of the livestock, poultry, and meat industries are also protected against unfair business practices in the marketing of meat and poultry, and from restrictions on competition which could unduly affect meat and poultry prices.

For 1986, legislation will be proposed to finance 50 percent of this activity on a user-charge basis by requiring an annual license fee. The 1986 estimate includes savings from a 5-percent pay reduction as part of governmentwide management savings initiative.

The Agricultural Cooperative Service serves as the national focal point and storehouse for information about farmer cooperatives. The major missions of the agency include research on cooperative problems and issues, provisions of technical assistance and advice to existing and newly emerging cooperative associations, collection and dissemination of cooperative statistics, and preparation and distribution of educational materials on cooperatives.

The agency's research program includes studies of economic, financial, organizational, managerial, legal, social, and policy related issues that affect cooperatives.

Technical assistance will be provided on a user fee basis in response to requests, usually from cooperative boards of directors or steering committees representing groups of farmers interested in organizing new cooperatives. They may represent a small group up to thousands of farmers, and includes feasibility analyses, merger and other organizational studies, strategic as-essment and planning, and review of operations and performance of the range of cooperative activities.

Data on numbers of cooperatives, memberships, business volumes, and financial condition are collected and analyzed to detect changes in structure, operations, and growth trends of cooperatives. Educational materials are prepared by ACS to promote the knowledge of cooperative principles and practices as a self-help means to increase family farm income.

The 1986 estimates propose reductions for the marketing programs, and reductions in cooperative research efforts. ACS will render technical assistance to cooperatives and provide research and educational publications on a user fee basis in 1986.

Research is conducted and disseminated through eight regional forest experiment stations and the Forest Products Laboratory and includes both in-house and extramural programs.

Fire and atmospheric sciences research.—Research is conducted to develop improved methods to prevent and control wildfires; reduce loss of life, property, and forest resources; reduce wind and weather-related losses; and use fire to achieve forest and range objectives.

Forest insect and disease research.—Research is conducted to provide technology to optimize productivity, value, and land resource usefulness and to protect wood in use and in storage.

Forest inventory and analysis research.—Research is conducted to provide comprehensive, continuing information about forest land resources of the United States.

Renewable resources economics research.—Research is conducted to provide economic methodology and analyses for forest and rangeland activities and for related forest product distributed system.

Trees and timber management research.—Research is conducted to develop improved silvicultural alternatives and management guidelines to increase the productivity and multiple-use benefits of forest lands, maximize tree growth and quality, and maintain land productivity.

Watershed management and rehabilitation research.—Research is conducted to provide and test methods for protecting, managing, and improving forest and rangeland watersheds and to rehabilitate lands disturbed by mining.

Wildlife, range, and fish habitat research.—Research is conducted to maintain or improve wildlife and fish habitat; increase forage production; improve soil stability and vegetation cover; and integrate wildlife, fish, and livestock with other uses.

Forest recreation research.—Research is conducted to provide land managers with the technology for increasing and improving outdoor recreation experiences; and to develop knowledge to manage urban vegetation to obtain optimum benefits.

Forest products and harvesting research.—Research is conducted to provide technology to harvest and utilize timber more efficiently and in ways that are environmentally acceptable, to improve the performance of wood products, and to expand opportunities for wood products exports.

The 155 national forests, 19 national grasslands, and 18 land utilization projects located in 44 States, Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands are managed under multiple use and sustained yield principles. The natural resources of range, timber, watershed, wildlife and outdoor recreation are utilized in a planned combination that will best meet the needs of the Nation, without impairing productivity of the land and will be environmentally acceptable. These management and utilization principles are recognized in the Multiple-Use Sustained-Yield Act of June 12, 1960 (74 Stat. 215). Work programs and budget estimates are related to meeting the increased demands for specific National Forest resource needs through 1986 and for long-term objectives for the year 2020. Increases are provided in the budget for further attainment of these program objectives.

Land and resource protection.—Provides for the protection and/or maintenance of National Forest System users, resources, lands and facilities, including roads and trails, and for program administration to acquire, through exchange, those lands within National Forest boundaries that meet the criteria for inclusion in the National Forest System.

Renewable resource management and utilization.—Provides for the management and utilization of the timber, wildlife and fish, range, recreation, watershed, and soil resources on National Forest System lands.

Construction of facilities.—

Recreation facilities.—To provide facilities necessary to safely meet increased recreation demand without sacrificing environmental values and without unduly impinging upon other resource uses of the National Forests. Emphasis will be in areas of higher populations to assist in the conservation of energy.

Other facilities.—To provide for construction and acquisition of fire, administrative, and other improvements and related facilities necessary to carry out National Forest and State and private forestry programs. Includes fire lookouts, offices, dwellings and barracks for employee housing, service, and storage buildings, insectories, tree nursery buildings, dams, and other forest resource management projects. Efforts to make buildings more energy efficient (retrofit) will be continued.

Research construction.—To provide for construction, alteration, and improvement of research laboratories and related facilities, and for procurement and installation of necessary initial equipment needed to put the facility into operating condition. Efforts to make research facilities more energy efficient (retrofit) will be continued.

Road and trail construction.—

Road and trail construction.—Roads and trails are essential to the protection and management of the National Forest Systems, as well as providing access to National Forest System areas for recreation and utilization of their resources. Of the revenues received annually from National Forest activities, 10 percent is being transferred to the General Fund with a comparable amount appropriated to the construction program for road and trail construction activities.

Timber purchaser construction.—Roads may be constructed and/or reconstructed by a timber purchaser who in turn receives credit against timber value as reimbursement. These roads are those required within a timber sale area specifically for the removal of the timber, but which will remain on the National Forest development road system for resource management purposes after the timber sale contract is completed. (16 U.S.C. 535, item (2); section 9 of Public Law 93-378; and section 3(a) of Public Law 93-344.)

Twenty-five percent of the amounts allowed any timber purchaser for the construction of roads are paid to the States under provisions of 16 U.S.C. 500 and Public Law 98-175.

Outlays.....	203,331	238,842	67,247

Payment to Minnesota.—At the close of each fiscal year the State of Minnesota is paid 0.75 percent of the appraised value of certain Superior National Forest lands in the counties of Cook, Lake, and St. Louis for distribution to these counties (16 U.S.C. 577g).

Payments to counties, National Grasslands.—Of the revenues received from the use of National Grasslands, 25 percent is paid to the counties in which such land is situated for school and road purposes (7 U.S.C. 1012).

Payments to States, National Forests fund.—With minor exceptions, 25 percent of the money received from the national forests, including all the collections under 16 U.S.C. 576b, and all amounts allowed any timber purchaser for construction of roads, is paid to the States for public schools and roads of the county in which such forests are situated (16 U.S.C. 500 and Public Law 98-175).

The budget assumes proposed legislation that would make these payments more rational by computing them on the basis of net receipts.

Payments to Coos and Douglas Counties, OR from receipts, Coos Bay Wagon Road grant lands.—Out of receipts from the Coos Bay Wagon Road grant lands in Oregon, payments in lieu of taxes are made to Coos and Douglas Counties for schools, roads, highways, bridges, and port districts (53 Stat. 753-754).

Payments to counties, Oregon and California grant lands.—Fifty percent of the receipts of Oregon and California land-grant funds are paid to the counties in which the lands are situated, to be used as other county funds (39 Stat. 218; 50 Stat. 876).

Legislation is proposed to change the method of calculating the annual payment to the States from National Forest receipts. Under existing legislation, 25 percent of all money received from the National Forests during any fiscal year is paid to the States in which the forests are located, for the benefit of public schools and public roads of the county or counties in which such National Forests are situated. This proposed legislation would make these payments more rational by computing them on the basis of net receipts, after considering relevant program costs.

The Working capital fund was established by the act of August 3, 1956 (16 U.S.C. 579b), as amended by the act of October 23, 1962 (16 U.S.C. 579b). It is a self-sustaining revolving fund which provides services to national forests, research experiment stations, and when necessary, to other Federal agencies, and as provided by law, to State and private agencies and persons who cooperate with the Forest Service in fire control and other authorized programs.

The forestry related supply and support services provided by the Working capital fund in 1984 included:

Equipment service which owns, operates, maintains, replaces, and repairs common use motor driven and similar equipment. This equipment is rented to administrative units, that is, national forests, research experiment stations, and other units, and in some cases to the other agencies, at rates which recover the cost of operation, repair and maintenance, management, and depreciation. The rates also include an increment which provides additional cash which, when added to depreciation earnings and the residual value of equipment, provides sufficient funds to replace the equipment.

Aircraft service which operates, maintains, and repairs Forest Service owned aircraft used in fire surveillance and suppression and in other Forest Service programs. The aircraft are rented to national forests, research experiment stations, and in some cases to other agencies, at rates which recover the cost of depreciation, operation, maintenance, repair, and improvements in the airworthiness of the aircraft. Aircraft replacement costs are financed from either appropriated funds or the Forest Service Working capital fund, or a combination of both.

Supply service operates the following common services:

Photo reproduction laboratories which store, reproduce, and supply aerial photographs, aerial maps, and other photographs of national forest lands. The photographic reproductions are sold to national forests, experiment stations, and others at cost.

Sign shops which manufacture and supply special signs for the national forests for use in regulating traffic and as information to the public and other users of the national forests. The signs are sold to national forests and experiment stations at cost.

Subsistence which prepares and serves meals to Forest Service crews working in areas where adequate public restaurant facilities are not available.

Nurseries which operate forest tree nurseries and cold storage facilities for storage of tree and seed stock and a seed extractory. Tree seed is procured, cleaned, bagged, and stored in refrigerated facilities. Tree and seed stock is sold to national forests, States, and other Federal agencies at cost.

Economic statistics programs.—

Economic censuses.—The economic censuses provide data on manufactures, mineral industries, retail and wholesale trade and service industries, construction, and transportation. The censuses are taken every fifth year, covering calendar years ending in two and seven.

The 1986 budget provides for planning and preparatory work which will establish the scope, content, coverage, and methodologies that will be employed in the collection, processing, and publication of the censuses.

Census of governments.—This census collects State and local government data on taxes, tax valuations, governmental receipts, expenditures, indebtedness, and number of employees. This census is taken every fifth year for calendar years ending in two and seven.

The 1986 budget provides for initiation of the governmental organization survey, which identifies the universe of local governments needed to conduct the three remaining phases of the census. The budget also provides for overall planning and research that are essential for the later phases.

Census of agriculture.—This census covers the agricultural sector of the economy and includes the census of irrigation. The census of drainage is proposed for elimination. Legislation will be submitted in 1985.

The 1986 budget provides for continued work with data users to identify necessary changes in the content and methodology of the census. A second test of the census will be conducted. Planning activities for the census mail list will begin, along with development of the edit and tabulation systems.

Demographic statistics programs.—

Intercensal demographic estimates.—This program provides updated population and per capita income estimates for general purpose governmental units for use in the equitable allocation of funds under the General Revenue Sharing Act and for other purposes.

Decennial census.—The decennial census of population and housing involves the enumeration of the total population of the 50 States, the District of Columbia, Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, Guam, Canal Zone, and other areas of U.S. sovereignty or jurisdiction.

The 1986 budget provides for continued planning, testing, and evaluation of techniques and methodologies identified as feasible approaches to the 1990 census.

Geographic support.—This activity provides for the geographic requirements of the various periodic programs and involves accurate identification of both political and statistical areas, preparation of maps, and maintenance of geographic base files.

The 1986 budget provides for continued work on the conversion to a new automated geographic support system.

Data processing systems.—This program provides the resources necessary to improve the data processing installation of the Bureau of the Census.

The activities of the International Trade Administration in the Department of Commerce are designed to promote an improved trade posture for U.S. industry in a manner consistent with national security and foreign and economic policy.

Trade development.—The trade development program analyzes competitiveness of U.S. industries in support of industry programs and trade policy, which strengthens planning and implementation of trade policy and promotion programs directed toward industry sectors. Trade Adjustment Assistance to firms, including grants and loans, is proposed for termination in 1986.

International economic policy.—This program develops regional and multilateral economic policies; provides marketing services directly and through the Foreign Commercial Service which will assist U.S. industries to expand exports; identifies long range trade and investment problems and develops remedial strategies.

Trade administration.—Through administration of the Export Administration Act, the trade administration program assures that export activity is consistent with national security, foreign policy objectives, and U.S. material and commodity requirements; enforces the law against participation in foreign boycotts; assures the availability of industrial resources for national defense and other priority programs under the authority of the Defense Production Act; investigates anti-dumping and countervailing duty cases to ensure compliance with applicable U.S. statutes; and administers certain other statutory programs relating to imports and foreign trade zones.

In 1986, an increase of 34 positions and $6,722,000 in Export Administration are requested to consolidate Multiple Licensing Program improvements; implement interagency review of West-West export license applications; provide Commodity Control List reform; and design, develop, and implement an integrated and comprehensive automated support system for the export control program. An increase of 74 positions and $4,087,000 in Export Enforcement is requested to strengthen existing field operations and the headquarters intelligence division and to open new field offices. Also, an increase of 37 positions and $1,810,000 in Import Administration is requested to fulfill investigation and annual review statutory obligations under the antidumping and countervailing duty laws; administer the U.S.-EC Steel Agreement; assist in current steel investigations and suspension agreement discussions; and provide steel trade policy advice.

U.S. and foreign commercial services.—The U.S. and foreign commercial services counsel U.S. businessmen on exporting through 48 U.S. Commercial Service District Offices in the United States and Foreign Commercial Service Offices in 66 countries overseas. The program's goals are to increase the number of U.S. firms that export and the number of foreign markets to which they export, to provide business with information on U.S. and foreign government procurements through the Commerce Business Daily; to provide export market information; to promote and facilitate participation of U.S. firms in trade shows; and to encourage and sponsor additional involvement by the private sector and the States in export promotion efforts.

Reimbursable program.—This account includes activities that were previously financed through "Special studies, services, and projects" and "Contributions, educational and cultural exchange," International Trade Administration. A portion of the cost of overseas trade promotions and export information services is offset by user fees.

In its leadership role of developing private sector market opportunities and coordinating Federal minority and small business development programs, the Administration for Enterprise Development and Opportunity (AEDO) assists citizens in becoming involved in the American business system. In 1986, AEDO's goals are designed to increase business opportunities and encourage the creation and expansion of competitive minority and small businesses. AEDO will support higher business participation rates through increased cooperation with State and local governments and private sector organizations in support of enterprise development. AEDO will consist of the minority business programs currently within the Department of Commerce (discussed below) and the programs proposed for transfer from the Small Business Administration (discussed later in this section).

Enterprise development.—Within this activity is AEDO's primary service delivery system—the Minority Business Development Centers (MBDC). The MBDC component is designed to coordinate, within approximately 100 Metropolitan Statistical Areas (MSA's), all resources available for minority business assistance and to provide client firms with direct management and technical assistance. AEDO also funds nine minority export development centers which provide consultant services to minority business clients in generating new export sales. The MBDC's can refer any client to an AEDO-funded Technology Commercialization Lab for assistance in developing and commercializing new technologies.

Resource development.—AEDO's private sector component assists minority firms in taking advantage of expanded market, capital, and management opportunities available through private corporations. Trade associations provide support to minority firms by facilitating access to information and services. Another component of the Resource Development activity is the public sector program. AEDO provides funding to state and local Offices of Minority Business Enterprise which promote and mobilize government resources in behalf of minority business and coordinate their activities with local MBDC's. The Public Sector program also coordinates all Federal activities regarding procurement and other goals for minority business assistance and works with local Minority Business Opportunity Committees.

Advocacy, research, and information.—Within this activity, AEDO provides advocacy efforts, a research program, and information systems for formulating policy decisions and for reducing information barriers to improve the participation rate of minority-owned businesses in the U.S. economy.

The following small business assistance activities will be transferred from the Small Business Administration.

Advocacy.—This activity represents the views and interests of small business before other Federal agencies whose policies and activities may affect small business. It encourages government policies, procedures, and activities to reflect small business interests.

Procurement and technical assistance and innovation, research and technology.—The programs under this activity are aimed at assuring that small business receives a fair share of Government procurements and research innovation funds. In addition, a Procurement Automated Source System is maintained for use by Federal agencies and prime contractors to identify small businesses for contract opportunities.

Minority small business and capital ownership development.—This activity provides assistance to minority small business concerns—primarily in the area of Federal procurement—and evaluates overall Government performance in promoting minority business development. The business development program assists in the establishment or expansion of firms that are owned by minority or other disadvantaged business persons and that have the potential to develop into viable competitive businesses in a reasonable period of time. In addition, section 7(j) (1) through (10) of the Small Business Act, as amended, provides authority to contract for professional management training and support to assist the socially and economically disadvantaged entrepreneur.

Service corps of retired executives.—Through the service corps of retired executives, counseling services and

Ocean and coastal programs.—These programs provide for the management and development of the marine environment and its resources; the conservation, rational use, and charting of the Nation's coastal regions; production of aeronautical and nautical charts; and geodetic surveys. The administration will submit a proposal to increase the price of aeronautical and nautical charts to the public to reflect production costs and market value. This change will increase receipts by $4,300,000 in 1986. Termination is proposed for ocean thermal energy conversion regulatory activities, the undersea research program, the Sea Grant program, the Great Lakes Environmental Research Laboratory, and Coastal Zone Management grants.

Marine fishery resource programs.—These programs provide for the management and conservation of the Nation's living marine resources, marine mammals, and endangered species stocks; and encourages the increased use of the resources through fishery product quality and safety research. Decreases will reduce information collection and analyses and related research; regulatory and management operations, including environmental impact analysis, and regional councils; and the fishery development and research program. The aquaculture research, salmon vessel buy-back, and fisheries grant programs will be terminated.

Atmospheric programs.—These programs provide timely and accurate meteorologic, hydrologic, and oceanographic warnings, forecasts, and planning information to ensure the safety of the population, mitigate property losses, and improve the economic efficiency of the Nation. NOAA conducts research in atmospheric and hydrologic processes and conditions to improve short-term and long-term predictions of environmental changes. Additional funding in 1986 provides for increased radiatively important trace species research and the deployment and operation of wind profilers.

Specialized weather services which can be conducted by the private sector will be reduced or eliminated. Other decreases propose to consolidate several regional headquarters and terminate weather modification and solar terrestrial research.

Satellite and environmental data and information services.—These programs provide for the operation of a LANDSAT system, and polar-orbiting and geostationary satellites; provide global environmental data and information products and services to users in commerce, industry, agriculture, science and engineering, the general public and Federal, State, and local agencies. Proposed increases will provide for the upgrade of geostationary satellites and ground systems; and for an augmented procurement of replacement satellites that will assure continuity of service. Proposed decreases will eliminate support of a two-polar satellite system.

Program support.—These programs provide for overall NOAA management, NOAA's share of the Regional Administrative Support Centers, and the operational and logistics support of ships, marine centers, and aircraft to support NOAA missions. Proposed decreases in 1986 include reduction of administrative support activities, the number of ships and days at sea, and savings resulting from the substitution of charters for the fisheries research fleet and from management efficiency reviews (OMB circular A-76). Funding for the National Advisory Committee on Oceans and Atmosphere will be terminated.

The "Land Remote Sensing Commercialization Act of 1984" (Public Law 98-365) authorizes subsidies for a privately constructed and operated land remote sensing system, commonly called LANDSAT. A 1986 request for appropriation for LANDSAT will not be transmitted unless a fixed price contract is accepted that provides, at a minimum, the development, manufacture, launch and operation of 2 satellites that together provide at least 6 years of service for no more than $250 million in subsidy. In addition, Federal agency data purchases will not be guaranteed.

The "Land Remote Sensing Commercialization Act of 1984" (Public Law 98-365) authorizes subsidies for a privately constructed and operated land remote sensing system, commonly called LANDSAT. A 1985 supplemental request for LANDSAT will not be transmitted unless a fixed price contract is accepted that provides, at a minimum, the development, manufacture, launch and operation of 2 satellites that together provide at least 6 years of service for no more than $250 million in subsidy. In addition, Federal agency data purchases will not be guaranteed.

This fund provides compensation to fishing vessel owners who sustain losses or damage to their gear or vessels while engaged in any fishery subject to the exclusive fishery management authority of the United States under the Fishery Conservation and Management Act of 1976, provided that the loss is attributable to a foreign vessel or its crew or fishing gear, or a natural disaster. An appropriation will not be required in 1986 because a sufficient unobligated balance will be available to cover anticipated claims.

This Fund is financed through collections from foreign vessel owners who fish within the U.S. Fishery Conservation Zone. Collections to the Fund are used by the Secretary of Commerce to pay the salaries of observers and program support personnel, and the costs of data management and analysis of the observer program. The observers collect scientific information on the foreign catch, and monitor compliance with the provisions of the Fishery Conservation and Management Act (FCMA) of 1976. In 1985, foreign fishermen began to contract directly for observers certified by the Secretary of Commerce.

This fund provides for payment to vessel owners and crews to compensate for certain financial losses sustained as a result of foreign seizures of American fishing vessels found within 200 miles of their coasts. Through 1977, funds in this account were derived from Federal appropriations and fees from vessel owners. Beginning in 1978, the basic annual appropriation was discontinued, although appropriated funds can be requested if the fund's balance is depleted.

The Office administers laws governing the granting of patents for inventions and the registration of trademarks.

Public Law 97-247 provides for a portion of Office operating costs to be recovered through user fee revenues. Since 1983, all fees are retained in the PTO appropriation and are available along with appropriated funds. Collections were $98.8 million in 1984 and are estimated to be $102.7 million in 1985 and $118.5 million in 1986.

An Automation Master Plan provides for the automation of the majority of the functions and operations of the Office by the 1990's. The Plan proposes a three stage approach to complete the progressive development and installation of system capabilities. The 1986 increases will provide for the initiation of Stage 2 expansion of the Automated Patent System and the Data Input/Output System. Automation resources are distributed among the four activities of the Office.

Patent process.—Applications are examined to determine inventor entitlements to a patent for the claimed invention. Patent application examination also includes quasi-judicial review in appeal and interference proceedings, and the publication of issued patents.

The 1986 increases support programs to reduce patent application pendency time to 18 months by 1987; to improve patent search quality through access to automated commercial data bases; to acquire space for automated patent system equipment; to prepare the examiner work space for automation; and to support the automated patent system and the automated data input/output system.

Key patent application workload and performance data are:

	1983 actual	1984 actual	1985 estimate	1986 estimate

Trademark process.—This activity provides for the examination of applications to determine whether the statutory criteria for the Federal registration of the trademark or service mark have been met. When the criteria are met, a registration is printed and issued to the applicant. Examination also includes inter partes proceedings involving oppositions, cancellations, and interferences. The 1986 funding maintains the reduced pendencies in trademark examination, and the automated trademark system.

Information dissemination.—Materials and services which assist in the examination of patent and trademark applications and in the transfer of technological information are provided in this activity. The National Bureau of Standards (NBS) is responsible for the development and maintenance of a system of measurements required to support the Nation's economy. NBS efforts are organized into the following program activities:

Measurement and Engineering Research and Standards.—

Measurement research and standards.—This subactivity includes programs in the areas of fundamental physical measurements and standards, radiation measurements and standards, analytical chemical measurements and standards, chemical properties and processes, and measurement technology transfer. The 1986 increase will fund the development of primary standards and measurement methods to improve industrial productivity through improved process and quality control, and the development of measurements and standards for the use of biotechnology in the chemical and allied industries.

Materials science and engineering.—This subactivity includes programs in the areas of materials characterization, metallurgy and metals processing, and polymer and ceramic science. The 1986 increase will fund the development of key measurement methods and data pertaining to the use and manufacture of advanced ceramics.

Engineering measurements and standards.—This subactivity includes programs in the areas of building research, electronic and electrical measurements, chemical engineering metrology, engineering and product standards, mathematical sciences, and automated manufacturing research. In 1986, the building research program will be terminated.

Computer sciences and technology.—This subactivity provides for the establishment of government-wide automated data processing (ADP) standards and technical support for U.S. interests in international standards development. This program will be reduced by $5 million in 1986.

Fire research.—This subactivity provides scientific and technical information used in fire hazard assessment. This program will be terminated in 1986.

Competence and Central Technical Support.—

Technical competence fund.—This subactivity supports long-term experimental and/or theoretical efforts in science and technology.

Central technical support.—This subactivity includes the research associate program, computing support, resources transferred to the working capital fund, and facilities construction and maintenance. In 1986, a major capital investment for the construction of a Cold Neutron Research Facility will be made. This facility will permit scientists to research critical measurement properties and performance of materials and chemicals.

National Technical Information Service.—Since 1984 this activity has been included in the Economic and Statistical Analysis appropriation.

ue its efforts in the identification and analysis of issues affecting emergency communications planning.

International policies.—In 1986, NTIA will continue to develop and advocate policies for the advancement of U.S. interests in the international telecommunications area. In coordination with the Department of State, the agency will continue to discharge the Presidential responsibility for oversight of the Communications Satellite Corporation (COMSAT).

Spectrum management.

Spectrum plans and policies.—In 1986, NTIA will continue to prepare for, participate in, and implement the results of international, regional, and national conferences addressing spectrum allocation and utilization. Also, NTIA will formulate, in coordination with the FCC, plans and policies for efficient use of the spectrum.

Spectrum management, analysis and operations.—In 1986, NTIA will continue to authorize frequency assignments, review proposed Federal telecommunications systems, conduct frequency band studies and compliance activities.

Telecommunication sciences research.

Spectrum research and analysis.—In 1986, NTIA will continue to conduct applied research and analysis as a basis for improving the efficiency of spectrum use.

Systems and networks research and analysis.—In 1986, NTIA will assess and develop domestic and international technical performance standards to facilitate competition in telecommunications products and services. Additionally, analytical methods and automated models will be employed to assist in the development of credible and defensible positions before international conferences and committees.

The public telecommunications facilities program has provided grants for planning and construction of non-commercial telecommunications facilities in areas not previously served by public television and radio. Since over 95% of the United States currently receives public broadcast programming, funding for this grant program is not requested in 1986.

MILITARY PERSONNEL

ACTIVE FORCES

These appropriations finance the personnel costs of the active duty forces of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force. Changes in financial requirements are primarily related to military personnel strengths. In addition, these appropriations finance for the first time in 1985, the future retirement benefits of the current active forces. While most of the entitlements financed by these appropriations are set by statute, the estimates reflect continuing efforts to improve management including implementation of audit recommendations, improved management of military travel, and prudent use of subsistence, bonus programs, and other pay programs.

The numbers of active duty military personnel provided for are shown in the following table:

These appropriations finance the personnel costs of the National Guard and Reserve forces, including for the first time in 1985, the future retirement benefits of the current reserve forces. The estimates reflect continuing efforts to improve management efficiency including, for example, more economical use of training and recruiting resources as well as the undertaking of active missions at lower costs.

The number of National Guard and Reserve personnel estimated to participate in the paid training programs and the number of full-time active duty military personnel provided for are summarized in the following table:

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps program provides training for reserve and regular officer candidates who have enrolled in the course while attending a college at which an ROTC unit has been established. College graduates who satisfactorily complete the advanced course of the program are commissioned and are ordinarily ordered to active duty for a minimum of 3 years.

The Reserve Officers' Training Corps Vitalization Act of 1964, as amended, authorizes a limited number of scholarships for ROTC students on a competitive basis. Successful candidates for the scholarships generally serve a minimum period of 4 years on active duty upon graduation and appointment as a commissioned officer.

A number of scholarship recipients will fulfill their entire obligation in the Reserve components.

The Armed Forces health professions scholarship program provides a source of commissioned officers for the various health professions.

The numbers of commissioned officers graduated from these programs are summarized below:

[RETIRED MILITARY PERSONNEL]

[RETIRED PAY, DEFENSE]

Note.—The activities included in this account are reflected in the Retired Pay account, Department of Defense—Civil.

OPERATION AND MAINTENANCE

These appropriations finance the costs of operating and maintaining the Armed Forces, including the Reserve components and related support activities of the Department of Defense, except military personnel costs. Included are amounts for pay of civilians, contract services for maintenance of equipment and facilities, fuel, supplies, and repair parts for weapons and equipment. Financial requirements are influenced by many factors, including the number of aircraft squadrons, Army and Marine Corps divisions, installations, military strength and deployments, rates of operational activity, and quantity and complexity of major equipment (aircraft, ships, missiles, tanks, et cetera) in operation.

Procurement continues for the Army's Patriot and Stinger air defense missile systems, Tow and Hellfire antitank missiles, M-1 main battle tank, Infantry Fighting Vehicle System, Multiple Launch Rocket System, AH-64 attack helicopter, and improved conventional munitions.

Modernization of our naval forces in 1986 includes continued procurement of the F-18 air combat fighter and the F-14 fleet air defense fighter. Procurement of the Trident strategic missile and submarine continues. General purpose ships to be acquired include SSN-688 nuclear attack submarines, CG-47 cruisers and an LHD amphibious assault ship.

Significant Air Force programs include procurement of the Peacekeeper ballistic missile, the B-1 bomber, ground launched cruise missile, F-15 and F-16 air combat fighters, KC-10 tankers, C-5B transports and precision guided munitions.

The 1986 budget continues emphasis on the DoD Acquisition Initiatives which include multiyear procurement, economic production rates, and productivity improvements.

The budget plan for each appropriation is shown as a separate table immediately following the program and financing schedules for those appropriations that are available for obligation for more than one year. In 1986, it presents, by budget activity, the value of the program requested for the life of these multiple-year appropriations, with comparable amounts in 1984 and 1985.

The appropriations for procurement depend upon the enactment of authorizing legislation.

[The foregoing prior year unobligated balances shall remain available only for obligation for transfers or reprogrammings or for the procurement of twenty-one additional operational MX missiles. These prior year unobligated balances may not be obligated or become available for the procurement of twenty-one additional operational MX missiles unless after March 1, 1985—

(a) the President submits to Congress a report described under section 110(e) of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1985;

(b) a joint resolution approving authorization of obligation of funds for additional MX missiles is enacted as provided in section 110(d)(1) of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1985; and

(c) a joint resolution further approving the obligation and availability of those prior year unobligated balances is enacted as provided for in this proviso:

(1) For the purposes of clause (c), "joint resolution" means only a joint resolution introduced after the date on which the report of the President described under section 110(e) of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1985, is received by Congress, the matter after the resolving clause of which is as follows: "That the Congress approves the obligation and availability of prior year unobligated balances made available for fiscal year 1985 for the procurement of additional operational MX missiles."

(2) A resolution described in paragraph (1) introduced in the House of Representatives shall be referred to the Committee on Appropriations of the House of Representatives. A resolution described in paragraph (1) introduced in the Senate shall be referred to the Committee on Appropriations of the Senate.

(3) The committee to which is referred a resolution described in paragraph (1) may not report such resolution in less than eight calendar days after its introduction. If a committee to which is referred a resolution described in paragraph (1) has not reported such resolution (or an identical resolution) at the end of fifteen calendar days after its introduction or at the end of the second day after the House involved has voted on final passage of a joint resolution approving the further obligation of funds for the procurement of operational MX missiles as provided for in section

110(d)(1) of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1985, whichever is earlier, such committee shall be deemed to be discharged from further consideration of such resolution and such resolution shall be placed on the appropriate calendar of the House involved.

(4)(A) Subject to subparagraph (B), when the committee to which a resolution is referred has reported, or has been deemed to be discharged (under paragraph (3)) from further consideration of, a resolution described in paragraph (1), it is at any time thereafter in order (even though a previous motion to the same effect has been disagreed to) for any Member of the respective House to move to proceed to the consideration of the resolution, and all points of order against the resolution (and against consideration of the resolution) are waived. The motion is highly privileged in the House of Representatives and is privileged in the Senate and is not debatable. The motion is not subject to amendment, or to a motion to postpone, or to a motion to proceed to the consideration of other business. A motion to reconsider the vote by which the motion is agreed to or disagreed to shall not be in order. If a motion to proceed to the consideration of the resolution is agreed to, the resolution shall remain the unfinished business of the respective House until disposed of.

(B) Notwithstanding subparagraph (A), it is not in order to consider a resolution described in paragraph (1) unless a resolution has been agreed to in the House involved as provided in section 110(d)(1) of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1985.

(C) Debate on the resolution, and on all debatable motions and appeals in connection therewith, shall be limited to not more than ten hours, which shall be divided equally between those favoring and those opposing the resolution. A motion further to limit debate is in order and not debatable but such motion shall not be in order in the Senate until after five hours of debate. An amendment to, or a motion to postpone, or a motion to proceed to the consideration of other business, or a motion to recommit the resolution is not in order. A motion to reconsider the vote by which the resolution is agreed to or disagreed to is not in order.

(D) Immediately following the conclusion of the debate on a resolution described in paragraph (1), and a single quorum call at the conclusion of the debate if requested in accordance with the rules of the appropriate House, the vote on final passage of the resolution shall occur.

(E) Appeals from the decisions of the Chair relating to the application of the rules of the Senate or the House of Representatives, as the case may be, to the procedure relating to a resolution described in paragraph (1) shall be decided without debate.

(5) If, before the passage by the Senate of a resolution of the Senate described in paragraph (1), the Senate receives from the House of Representatives a resolution described in paragraph (1), then the following procedures shall apply:

(A) The resolution of the House of Representatives shall not be referred to a committee.

(B) With respect to a resolution described in paragraph (1) of the Senate—

(i) the procedure in the Senate shall be the same as if no resolution had been received from the House; but

(ii) the vote on final passage shall be on the resolution of the House.

(C) Upon disposition of the resolution received from the House, it shall no longer be in order to consider the resolution originated in the Senate.

(6) If the Senate receives from the House of Representatives, a resolution described in paragraph (1) after the Senate has disposed of a Senate originated resolution, the action of the Senate with regard to the disposition of the Senate originated resolution shall be deemed to be the action of the Senate with regard to the House originated resolution.

(7) This proviso is enacted by Congress—

(A) as an exercise of the rulemaking power of the Senate and House of Representatives, respectively, and as such it is deemed a part of the rules of each House, respectively, but applicable only with respect to the procedure to be followed in that House in the case of a resolution described in paragraph (1), and it supersedes other rules only to the extent that it is inconsistent with such rules; and

(B) with full recognition of the constitutional right of either House to change the rules (so far as relating to the procedure of that House) at any time, in the same manner and to the same extent as in the case of any other rule of that House.

(8) Section 110(d)(3) of the Department of Defense Authorization Act, 1985, as approved by Congress on September 27, 1984, is amended by deleting the word "appropriated" and inserting in lieu thereof the word "available". (10 U.S.C. 1905, 2271-79, 2363, 2386, 2653, 2672, 2672a, 8012, 8062, 9501-02, 9531-32, 9741-42; 50 U.S.C. 451, 453, 455; Department of Defense Appropriations Act, 1985, as included in Public Law 98-473; additional authorizing legislation to be proposed.)

RESEARCH, DEVELOPMENT, TEST, AND EVALUATION

Programs in this title support modernization through development and testing of full-scale, preproduction hardware, development of prototypes, fabrication of technology-demonstration devices and support of military research and exploratory development. This work is performed by industrial contractors, Government laboratories and facilities, universities and nonprofit organizations.

Research and development programs are funded to cover annual needs. The following table shows RDT&E funding by activity:

The budget plan for each appropriation is shown as a separate table immediately following the program and financing schedules for those appropriations that are available for obligation for more than one year. In 1986, it presents, by budget activity, the value of the program requested for the life of these multiple-year appropriations, with comparable amounts in 1984 and 1985.

During the development of weapon systems, special management emphasis is placed on achieving savings through increased testing, increased competition, and developing realistic budgets.

The 1986 program provides for increased development efforts on the Small Intercontinental Ballistic Missile and hardened mobile launcher, the Trident II strategic missile, the Advanced Tactical Bomber, the MILSTAR Communications Satellite System and the Strategic Defense Initiative as well as an advanced Anti-Tank Weapon, a rotary wing aircraft (JVX), a light helicopter (LHX), an advanced tactical fighter, a complementary expendable launch vehicle, the next generation airlifter (C-17), and the new nuclear attack submarine. Funds are also requested for product improvement to systems which have already been fielded or are in production; such as TRI-TAC Joint Service Communications, F/A-18, A-6 Upgrade, F-14D, F-15 and the M1E1 Tank.

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION

The budget plan for each appropriation is shown as a separate table immediately following the program and financing schedules for those appropriations that are available for obligation for more than one year. In 1986, it presents, by budget activity, the value of the program requested for the life of these multiple-year appropriations, with comparable amounts in 1984 and 1985.

The direct military construction programs for the Armed Forces, both Active and Reserve, shown in the individual schedules of this title are summarized in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

MILITARY CONSTRUCTION PROGRAM

	1984 actual	1985 estimate	1986 estimate
Active Forces.....	3,966,650	4,700,384	6,188,100
Reserve Forces.....	303,013	407,709	428,600
Interservice activities.....	576,205	424,398	460,600
Total.....	4,845,868	5,532,491	7,077,300

The 1986 military construction program will support new construction needed to improve living and working conditions, as well as for the introduction of new weapon systems. Weapon systems entering the inventory that require new construction include naval vessels, the Ground Launched Cruise Missile, the Multiple Launch Rocket system, the Trident II Weapon System, and the B-1 bomber. The program continues initiatives to reduce operating costs, increase productivity, and conserve energy by upgrading or replacing facilities which have become functionally obsolete or can be made more efficient through relatively modest investments in improvements.

The 1986 program includes $33.0 million for a new program entitled, "Defense Facilities Replacement." This fund will finance relocation of facilities and functions now sited on valuable real estate, and will permit the eventual sale of the vacated property at a net profit to the Federal government. Profits from such transactions will be applied to reduce the national debt.

FAMILY HOUSING, DEFENSE

These appropriations finance all costs associated with construction, improvements, operations, maintenance and leasing of all military family housing. The family housing indebtedness information schedules show the status of indebtedness assumed by each military department to acquire family housing for assignment as public quarters. The program contains initiatives to reduce operating costs and conserve energy by upgrading or replacing facilities which can be made more efficient through relatively modest investments in improvements.

The budget plan for each appropriation is shown as a separate table immediately following the program and financing schedules for those appropriations that are available for obligation for more than one year. In 1986, it presents, by budget activity, the value of the program requested for the life of these multiple-year appropriations, with comparable amounts in 1984 and 1985.

DEPARTMENT OF DEFENSE STOCK FUNDS

Department of Defense stock funds finance the purchase of materials for resale to the military services and other authorized customers (10 U.S.C. 2208). These inventories are stocked at various Defense activities. Mobilization reserve materials are also purchased through the stock funds.

Budget program.—Obligations increase in 1986 over 1985 for increased non-fuel inventory levels to support an expanding force structure, the modernization of the existing force, and other logistics initiatives. Efforts continue to achieve efficiencies in spare parts procurement through acquisition reform. The following table shows the stock fund inventories (in millions of dollars) resulting from the budget program. Reduced inventory levels in 1986 reflect revised fuel prices.

Financing the budget program.—The budget program is financed primarily from sales to customers. Gross expenditures in 1986 are projected to be higher than in 1985 to support an expanding force. Estimated expenditures are shown below (in millions of dollars):

Gross outlays
Army stock fund.....	6,550	7,164	7,320

Total Department of Defense stock funds ...	38,172	41,326	43,521

Procurement leadtime for material acquisition is greater than the time required to fill and collect customers' orders. As a result, Department of Defense stock funds are authorized to incur obligations in anticipation of future years' sales (10 U.S.C. 2210(b)). Pursuant to this authority, contract authority of $6,450 million was available at the end of 1984, estimated to remain at $6,450 million in 1985 and 1986.

Operating results and financial conditions.—Revenue and expenses for 1985 and 1986 are projected on a break-even basis. It is estimated that by the end of 1986, investment (equity) of the U.S. Government will be $51,684 million, including $42,680 million in inventory and other assets capitalized, and a cumulative retained income of $9,004 million.

INDUSTRIAL FUNDS

Department of Defense industrial funds finance various Defense activities that perform industrial or commercial type functions on a reimbursable basis (10 U.S.C. 2208). Workload at these activities is generated by orders from various customers who provide reimbursement through progress payments for the full cost of the work performed. This enables the industrial funds to maintain the level of working capital needed for continued operations.

Budget program.—The policy of stabilizing the rates charged to customers will continue. Estimated total obligations in 1986 are projected to decrease by over $806 million, reflecting changes in customer workload requirements and price growth. Yearend totals are shown in the following table (in thousands of dollars):

It also provides for emergency supplies of clean drinking water where the source has been contaminated and, in drought distressed areas, provision of adequate supplies of water for human and livestock consumption. In the event of a major flood or coastal emergency, additional funds will be requested.

The fund provides for the acquisition, operation, and maintenance of plant and equipment used in civil works functions; for temporary financing of services chargeable to civil appropriations; and for furnishing facilities and services for military functions of the Department of the Army, other governmental agencies and private persons (33 U.S.C. 576).

Budget program.—

Operating costs.—Operating costs include plant operations, warehousing, shops and facilities performing common services, and general administrative support including payrolls. Operating costs will increase about 3 percent in 1986.

Capital investment.—The 1986 program contains $12 million for the design, rehabilitation, and construction of structures; $9.8 million for the design, construction and rehabilitation of dredges, including $2 million in requested new budget authority to initiate construction of a dustpan dredge; $10.8 million for the design, rehabilitation and construction of floating plant other than dredges; $38.4 million for the design and procurement of various land based equipment, including $5 million in requested new budget authority for the Corps of Engineers Automation Plan; and $10 million for a variety of relatively small tools, office furniture, and equipment.

Financial condition.—Capital Government equity of the fund amounted to $678.5 million on September 30, 1984. Capital was increased by net earnings of $35.1 million in 1984. Increases are principally due to earnings reserved for plant replacement which are wholly reinvested in assets. A transfer of $3.2 million was made from unobligated balances to the National Council on Public Works Improvement.

The Inland Waterways Trust Fund was established in accordance with the Inland Waterways Revenue Act of 1978. Under existing law, revenue is derived from receipts from taxes imposed on fuel in vessels in commercial waterway transportation.

Legislation is being proposed that would provide and permanently appropriate additional receipts based on waterway user fees. The legislation would authorize the use of the trust funds for the prosecution of inland waterway projects authorized by laws, and for the expenses necessary for the preservation, operation and maintenance and care of existing inland waterway projects, including such sums as may be required for detailed studies, and plans and specifications, of projects authorized or made eligible for selection by law (but such studies shall not constitute a commitment of the Government to construction). Of the $196 million budget authority, it is proposed that $3 million would be used for the Construction, general program, $33 million for the Flood control, Mississippi River and tributaries program, and $160 million for the Operation and maintenance, general program.

Legislation will be proposed to provide funds for the Military Retirement Fund to finance certain benefits to surviving spouses and children of members of the Armed Forces, formerly payable under the Social Security Act and restored by section 156 of the Joint Resolution providing Continuing Appropriations for 1983 (Public Law 97-377). Legislation will also be proposed to delay the Federal retirement cost-of-living increase until January 1987. This will have the automatic effect of delaying the military retirement cost-of-living adjustment until that date.

Improving school programs.—

State block grants.—States and outlying areas receive grants according to a statutory formula based on school-age population to improve the quality of elementary and secondary education for children in public and private schools.

Of the total allotted to each State, the State may reserve up to 20 percent for State use. It distributes the remainder to local educational agencies according to State-devised criteria that take into account public and private school enrollment and the number of children whose education imposes a higher than average cost.

Secretary's discretionary fund.—The Secretary supports programs of national or regional significance. Science and mathematics education.—

State grants.—Funds available for this activity are used by States and local educational agencies to carry out programs to train teachers and improve instruction in mathematics, science, computer learning, and foreign languages. Of the total allotted to each State, 70 percent supports elementary and secondary education programs and 30 percent supports higher education programs.

Secretary's discretionary fund.—The Secretary uses these funds to support programs of national significance. At least 25 percent of the funds will be used to improve and expand instruction in critical foreign languages.

Special programs for Indian adults.—Competitive grants are made to Indian tribes, institutions, and organizations for programs to improve educational opportunities for Indian adults.

NOTES

The end of year obligated balances include $2,222 thousand contingently obligated under court order. These obligations were made as follows: 1983, $725 thousand; 1984, $1,497 thousand.

Excludes $30 thousand in 1985 and in 1986 for activities transferred to Department of Education, Departmental Management, Salaries and expenses. Comparable amounts for 1984 ($45 thousand) are included above.

State grants.—

State grant program.—This formula grant program assists States in providing a free appropriate public education and related services to all handicapped children. In order to participate in the program, States must provide services to handicapped children aged 6 through 17. Handicapped children aged 3 through 5, and 18 through 21 must also be served, except when such services would be inconsistent with State law or practice, or the order of any court. To be eligible for grants, each State is required to submit an acceptable State plan which requires the development and use of individualized education programs for each handicapped student, the establishment of procedural safeguards for all handicapped children and their parents, and the training of personnel for these special education programs.

Preschool incentive grants.—Grants are made to States based on the number of handicapped children aged 3 through 5 served. States may use funds to provide services to children from birth through age 5.

Departmental review and approval of State plans resulted in delayed funding of some school year 1984-1985 State grant program and preschool incentive grant awards until early 1985. As a result, some moneys for the 1984-1985 school year were not obligated until 1985. The change in timing of obligations does not affect program level. The actual new funding for each school year is as follows:

BUDGET AUTHORITY

(In thousands of dollars)

	1984 actual	1985 estimate	1986 estimate
State grant program .....	1,068,875	1,135,145	1,135,145
Preschool incentive grants .....	26,330	29,000	29,000
Total .....	1,095,205	1,164,145	1,164,145

Special purpose funds.—

Deaf-blind centers.—Deaf-blind centers primarily provide technical assistance to States to develop the capacity to educate this severely handicapped population, and direct services to very young and older deaf-blind children whom States are not required to serve under the State grant program or other authorities. Demonstration projects are also supported.

Severely handicapped projects.—Grants are awarded principally for demonstration projects designed to meet the educational and training needs of severely handicapped children and youth. Projects emphasize areas such as independent living, parental involvement and placement in least restrictive environments.

Early childhood education.—Projects are supported to develop, demonstrate, and disseminate a variety of models incorporating educational and therapeutic services for preschool handicapped children and their parents. In addition, at least 30 percent of the funds appropriated for this activity must be used to provide assistance to States in planning, developing and implementing services for all preschool handicapped children.

Secondary and transitional services.—Awards are made to improve educational services provided to handicapped children in secondary school and to assist them in making the transition from secondary school to work or further education.

Postsecondary programs.—Grants are awarded to develop and operate special programs for handicapped persons at institutions of higher education, vocational and technical institutions, and other appropriate agencies. Of the funds appropriated, not less than $2,000,000 must be used to support four institutions serving deaf students.

Innovation and development.—Grants and contracts are awarded for research, development and demonstrations.

Media services and captioned films.—Funds provide specialized educational materials for handicapped persons with emphasis on the development and operation of a system to caption films and TV programs for the hearing impaired.

Regional resource centers.—Centers provide technical assistance to aid States, and through them local educational agencies, to help them meet their responsibilities to educate handicapped children.

Recruitment and information.—This program supports distribution of information about educational services and resources for the handicapped. In addition, material to encourage students and professional personnel to enter the career field of special education is disseminated to institutions of higher education and the media.

Special education personnel development.—Grants are awarded to address identified shortages of personnel in fields related to the education of the handicapped. Awards will continue to focus on preservice training in 1986. In addition, at least 10 percent of the funds appropriated must be used for awards to provide training and information to parents and volunteers who work with parents.

Special studies.—Studies are conducted to provide information on the effectiveness of education programs for handicapped children.

Architectural barriers removal.—These funds for the removal of architectural barriers in schools will be awarded through State grants in 1985.

Services provided include counseling, vocational evaluation, work adjustment, mental and physical restoration, education and vocational training, job placement, and post-employment services. Priority is given to serving those with the most severe disabilities.

The first table below presents estimates of the number of persons served and rehabilitated nationally. The second table shows relative State performance in rehabilitating severely disabled persons. During 1985 and 1986 the Department of Education will investigate various caseload and performance trends.

Client assistance.—Formula grants are made to States to provide assistance in informing and advising clients and applicants of benefits available under the Rehabilitation Act and, if requested, to pursue legal or administrative remedies to ensure the protection of the rights of individuals.

Service projects.—Grants are made for projects to expand services to disability groups who have been underserved in the past, to develop new and innovative approaches to meeting the needs of the severely disabled, and to provide disabled individuals special training and job opportunities in private industry.

Helen Keller Center.—The Center provides services to deaf-blind youths and adults and conducts research and training programs.

Independent living.—Project grants are awarded to support a network of nonresidential, community-based centers for individuals whose disabilities are so severe that they generally are ineligible for vocational rehabilitation. The centers teach these persons how to live and function more independently.

Training.—Project grants are made to States and public or nonprofit agencies and organizations, including institutions of higher education, to increase the number of skilled personnel available for employment in rehabilitation settings. The Department is developing a system to assess personnel shortages and allocate training funds to address those shortages.

National Institute of Handicapped Research.—The Institute carries out a comprehensive and coordinated program of rehabilitation research. Through grants and contracts, it supports research and training centers, rehabilitation engineering centers, research and demonstration projects, and information utilization projects. In the reimbursable program, the National Institute of Mental Health cosponsors research and training centers for rehabilitating persons disabled by mental illness.

Evaluation.—Studies are conducted to evaluate the impact and effectiveness of various programs authorized under the Rehabilitation Act.

State programs.—

Basic grants.—This program provides State grants for vocational education expansion, innovation, and improvement and for providing greater access to voational education for underserved populations. Under the new Carl D. Perkins Vocational Education Act, States are required to use a portion of their funds to serve the handicapped, the disadvantaged, adults in need of training and retraining, single parents and homemakers, participants in programs designed to eliminate sex bias and stereotyping, and criminal offenders in correctional institutions. Other mandatory uses of funds include career counseling and guidance, in-service and pre-service teacher training, and employment by each State of a full-time sex equity coordinator.

State councils.—Councils are funded for the purpose of advising on and evaluating State vocational education programs. Each council is composed of 13 individuals, 7 of whom represent the private sector.

National programs.—

Research.—Funds are awarded on a competitive basis for research activities which contribute to improved access to vocational education for underserved populations and to improved vocational education in the Nation. Activities include a national center for research in vocational education and a program of discretionary research projects.

Data systems.—Funds are allocated annually to the Department of Labor for joint support of the National Occupational Information Coordinating Committee and 57 State occupational information coordinating committees.

The Smith-Hughes Act of 1917 (Public Law 64-347), as amended, provides a permanent appropriation for vocational education basic grants and national programs.

Adult education grants to States.—Formula grants are made to States to eliminate functional illiteracy among the Nation's adults and to assist adults in obtaining a high school diploma or its equivalent. Under the new amendments to the Adult Education Act, funds may be used to increase the involvement of the private sector in the delivery of adult education services.

NOTES

<sup>1</sup> 1984-86 Loans assigned to the Education Department by postsecondary institutions. Reflects funds transferred to Guaranteed student loans ($19,634 thousand) from 1968 advances for reserve funds.

This account finances several programs of aid to students in postsecondary education.

For 1986, the budget includes substantial policy changes affecting award amounts and eligibility for awards for all the programs to be funded. Major reforms include: all recipients of grants and loans would be required to contribute at least $800 each year to their own education; funds would be available only for students from families with less than $25,000 adjusted gross income; and students could receive no more than $4,000 in Federal aid per year, including regular guaranteed student loans.

Pell grants.—Undergraduate students establish eligibility for these grants through application to a federally managed system of assessment of need, including individual and family ability to contribute. In general, awards are made through schools under Federal rules.

Supplemental opportunity grants.—Funds are allocated by formula among States and distributed to participating schools which use them at their discretion to award grants to undergraduates with demonstrated need.

Work study.—Funds are allocated by formula among States and distributed to participating schools. Schools must partially match the funds. The resulting amount is used to subsidize jobs with non-profit employers (including the schools themselves) for students with demonstrated need. Awards are made at the school's discretion.

Work study/grants.—In 1986, under proposed policy, schools would receive a single distribution instead of the current separate supplemental and work study distributions. Up to 50 percent of the funds could be used to provide supplemental grants at the school's discretion.

Direct student loans.—Under the National Direct Student Loan (NDSL) program, schools operate revolving loan funds capitalized in part with Federal contributions allocated among States by formula and distributed to participating schools. Loans are made at the school's discretion to students with demonstrated need. Most loans are currently financed by repayments and other income in the funds. The current interest rate is 5 percent, with repayment generally beginning after leaving school. Certain deferments to delay repayment are available. For 1986, under proposed policy, the interest rate would be set at the average 91-day Treasury bill rate as calculated for the quarter ending on the March 31 preceding the school year of award. This rate is consistent with the rate proposed in the Guaranteed student loans (GSL) account. No new capital contribution funds are requested for 1986.

Funds requested under the NDSL loan cancellation authority reimburse school revolving funds for indebtedness cancelled as a result of the borrower engaging in certain military service or specified types of teaching.

State student incentive grants.—States receive formula grants which they match and use to provide grants to undergraduates based on a determination of need. No funds are requested for 1986.

The chart below displays total aid available, including aid under the GSL program, based on policies proposed in the budget. For work study and direct loans, the chart includes the effect of matching funds. Direct loan amounts are all loans from revolving funds, regardless of source of capital. Guaranteed loan amounts are loan capital, not the Federal costs of those loans.

The guaranteed student loan (GSL) program is designed to promote the availability of loans from banks and other lenders to students and their parents to help meet the costs of attending participating universities, colleges, and other postsecondary institutions after taking into consideration family financial resources, student self-help, and other student financial assistance. This is accomplished through the provision of Federal reinsurance against borrower default as well as through substantial Federal subsidy payments. In general, the program is administered by State and private nonprofit guarantee agencies which serve as intermediate loan insurers, defaulted loan collectors, and providers of various services to lenders. Through July 1984, the Federal Government also provided direct loan insurance and, in such cases, is responsible for defaulted loan collection and providing assistance to lenders. Two types of guaranteed loans are currently available through the program: under the regular loan component, students may borrow highly subsidized loans; under the PLUS (Parent Loans to Undergraduate Students/Auxiliary Loans) loan component, certain students and parents can borrow less-subsidized loans. Each program has both annual and cumulative limits on loan amounts. All loans can be used only to meet educational expenses.

Since 1981, evidence of financial need has been required for a student to receive a regular student loan when family adjusted gross income is over $30,000. It is proposed that each recipient of a regular loan made for academic year 1986–87 have a family adjusted gross income of not more than $32,500 and demonstrate financial need. In addition, it is proposed that all students be limited to total annual Federal subsidized job, loan, and grant assistance under title IV of the Higher Education Act of $4,000. It is also proposed that they be expected to contribute at least $800 toward their costs of education. Additional proposals include changing the definition of independent student status to eliminate program abuse and requiring that borrowers have completed a high school education or its equivalent.

The Federal Government is currently liable for up to 100 percent of costs related to borrower default, death, disability and bankruptcy. It is proposed that the Federal Government's reinsurance of guarantee agency default activity be limited to 90 percent of any claim on a regular or PLUS loan made for academic year 1986–87, with reinsurance to drop to 70 percent or 50 percent depending on the level of each agency's cumulative net defaults relative to loans in repayment.

The Federal Government pays the interest obligation (generally 8 percent on new loans) of eligible regular loan borrowers while they are in school and during certain grace and deferment periods under the regular program. Federal interest benefit costs are offset by an origination fee of 5 percent of loan principal which is charged to regular loan borrowers. It is proposed that the interest rate for regular loans made for academic year 1986-87 be set at the average of the 91-day Treasury bill rates for the quarter ending March 31, 1986, rounded to the nearest whole percent.

The Federal Government also pays lenders a quarterly special allowance throughout the life of each loan. By statute this allowance assures lenders a total yield equal to the current 91-day Treasury bill rate plus 3½ percent or the interest rate to the borrower, whichever is higher. It is proposed that the interest and special allowance structure be revised for regular loans made for academic year 1986-87 to assure lenders a total yield equal to the 91-day Treasury bill rate average, determined at the time the loan is made, as described above, plus 1½ percent while loans are in in-school, grace, and deferment status and plus 3 percent while loans are in in-repayment status. There would be no special allowance for PLUS loans. In addition, lenders would be required to disburse regular loan funds throughout the school year rather than in a single lump sum at the beginning of the year.

Under the PLUS loan component, graduate students, independent undergraduate students, and parents of dependent undergraduate students may borrow to meet the student's educational expenses. It is proposed that eligibility be broadened to include all postsecondary students, regardless of their dependency status or year in school, and their spouses (the sum of all PLUS borrowing by or on behalf of a student could not exceed PLUS limits). Unlike the regular loan program, the borrower's interest obligation during in-school, grace, and deferment periods (12 percent) is not paid by the Federal Government. It is proposed that PLUS borrower rates on loans made for academic year 1986-87 be lender-determined, subject to a cap of the current 91-day Treasury bill rate plus 3 percent.

Finally, the Federal Government has paid administrative cost allowances to guarantee agencies and provided them with reserve fund advances. No funds are requested for these activities. Furthermore, it is proposed that guarantee agencies be required to return all outstanding reserve fund advances by October 1, 1986.

Federal receipts primarily include collections on defaulted loans and reimbursements from guarantee agencies for their default collections. It is proposed that all borrowers of PLUS loans made for academic year 1986-87 be charged a guarantee fee of 1 percent payable to the Federal Government, sufficient to cover the total estimated default and other direct program costs associated with PLUS borrowing, thus rendering the program self-financing.

Total loan volume insured is expected to be $7,547 million in 1986, resulting in outstanding loans at the end of 1986 of $39,745 million.

Costs to the Federal Government related to a particular loan accrue throughout the period the loan is outstanding, which can be extended up to 15 years. Federal costs on new regular loans are significantly reduced during the year of disbursement through the origination fees which are used to offset interest subsidy costs for that year. Costs in the budget year are, therefore, largely determined by the cost of loans outstanding at the start of the year.

Increased efforts are being made to collect outstanding defaults and to reduce the incidence of default. These efforts include: expanding collection activities by referring both insured and reinsured defaulted loans to private collection agencies, sharing information on defaulted loans with consumer credit bureaus, computer matches to locate defaulters, increased litigation, increased lender due diligence requirements, and closer monitoring of collection activity. Outstanding defaults in 1984-86 are as follows:

Program development.—

Aid to developing institutions.—This activity provides support for developing institutions to help them strengthen their management and fiscal operations. For 1986, legislation will be proposed to consolidate the current four programs into two—the strengthening institutions and endowment programs. Funds will be targeted on institutions that enroll substantial numbers of needy students, and of that group, only private institutions will be eligible for endowment grants. In 1986, funding for historically black colleges and universities will be maintained at the 1985 level.

Student support services.—

Special programs for the disadvantaged.—This program is intended to increase admission to and graduation from college of individuals from disadvantaged backgrounds. In 1986, funds will support grants to postsecondary institutions that participate in the special services and upward bound programs. Proposed legislation will require participating institutions to share the costs of their projects.

Minority institutions science improvement program.—This program is designed to effect long-range improvement in science education at predominantly minority institutions.

Academic facilities.—

Interest subsidy grants.—Funds will meet mandatory interest subsidy costs of construction loan commitments made prior to 1974.

Reimbursable program.—

Cuban and law enforcement education loan collection costs.—A portion of loan recoveries and repayments in these two programs will be used to offset the costs of private debt collection agencies. Outstanding defaults, as well as delinquent loans, are as follows:

Program operations.—Title VII of the Higher Education Act of 1965 authorizes direct loans at 4 percent interest, repayable within 50 years, to colleges, universities, and higher education building agencies for the construction, reconstruction, or renovation of academic facilities. No new loan commitments have been made since 1981 nor are any planned in 1986.

Financing.—Loan capital for this program has been provided both through appropriations and the sale of participation certificates which are backed by pools of existing higher education facilities loans held by the Federal Government.

Interest is payable to Treasury on the amount of appropriations paid out for loan capital and remaining outstanding, less the average undisbursed cash balance in the fund during the year. The interest rate certified by Treasury for payment from the account was 11½ percent in 1984 and is expected to be 12½ percent in 1985 and 1986.

Sales of participation certificates by the Government National Mortgage Association (GNMA) were provided for under the Participation Sales Act of 1966, and were authorized specifically for higher education facilities loans under appropriation acts in 1967 and 1968. The participation certificates outstanding held by this account total $108,049 thousand as of September 30, 1984, and are expected to remain at this level during 1985 and 1986.

Insufficiencies appropriations may be used to finance any deficit resulting from the interest rate payable on participation certificates being higher than the interest rate paid by institutions on pledged loans. The budget authority required for insufficiencies is computed as follows:

PARTICIPATION INSUFFICIENCIES

Note.—Excludes additional amounts required to fund interest payments due to Treasury.

The program appropriation, along with repayments on outstanding loans, interest revenue, and other income will be used to pay operating expenses and to amortize the outstanding debt on participation certificates. It is anticipated that $16 million will be transferred to GNMA in 1986.

The budget provides $100 thousand to fund facilities management and property disposition expenses related to loan collection action in 1986.

A total of $1.9 million was collected in 1984 from institutions in default. The status of defaulted loans is shown in the table below.
