Mr. Marriner S. Eccles, Chairman
 Board of Governors
 Federal Reserve System
 Washington, D. C.

My dear Chairman:

Through the courtesy of Mr. R. M. Evans, there has been delivered to my desk a copy of your book entitled "Economic Balance and a Balanced Budget". Mr. Evans advises me further that the book is sent with your compliments.

I am very grateful to you and to him for this thoughtful courtesy. I shall, I am sure, be well repaid in reading the book, and I am looking forward to an opportunity of a visit with you at some early mutually convenient date.

Very sincerely,

Guy M. Gillette

My dear Senator:

Your note, acknowledging receipt from Governor Evans of the book containing various speeches and statements which I have made in the past, was on my desk upon my return from a visit in the West, and I very much welcome your suggestion for a visit at a mutually convenient time.

We have a private dining room here in the Federal Reserve Building and I am wondering if you could not come to luncheon with Governor Evans and me sometime during the latter part of next week or the week following. If you would telephone to me or drop me a note as to what day would be most convenient for you, I would very much appreciate it.

Let me say in passing that I am reluctant to inflict that book upon you in these busy times, particularly because so much of it relates to problems of the past. However, the introductory credo, in case you have an opportunity to look into the book, summarizes a viewpoint which I think is as valid for the post-war world as I considered it for the decade preceding our entry into the war.

Sincerely yours,

Honorable Guy M. Gillette,

Mr. Marriner S. Eccles, Chairman
Board of Governors
Federal Reserve System
Washington, D. C.

My dear Chairman:

I was very much pleased to receive your letter of a few days ago suggesting that a luncheon might be arranged at some mutually convenient time in the private room of the Federal Reserve Building where Governor Evans, you and I could lunch and discuss some of the problems in which we are greatly interested. Your letter suggests the possibility of a meeting arranged for this week or next.

I do not believe it is going to be possible for me to come during the period comprising the remainder of this month. An unusually large number of obligations requiring my attendance here would seem to prevent. I should be glad indeed to come at any time after the first of November when it would be convenient for you.

Thanking you sincerely and with expressions of high regard, I am

Very sincerely,

GUY M. GILLETTE
