DIGEST OF DECISIONS RELATING TO NATIONAL BANKS.

[The following Federal cases were reported in vol. 246–248, United States Reports, and vols. 251 to 258, Federal Reporter. One State case from North Carolina is also given.]

COLLECTIONS.

Sale of stock for customer—Liability for fraud of customer.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) A bank held not liable in tort for the sale, for account of a customer, of shares of stock owned by plaintiff, where plaintiff had indorsed the certificates in blank and forwarded them to the customer as a broker for sale, and there was no evidence that the bank had knowledge or notice of his ownership. (Snowden v. Marine Natl. Bank of Pittsburgh, 256 Fed. Rep., 350.)

DEPOSITS.

Deposits in court—Public moneys of United States.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) Moneys in court deposited in a designated depositary of the United States are not public moneys of the United States. (Chatham & Phenix Natl. Bank of the City of New York v. Guaranty Trust Co. of New York, 256 Fed. Rep., 90.)

Deposits in court—Deposits of money by Federal court—Interest.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) An order by the Secretary of the Treasury requiring depositary banks to pay interest on daily balances on all deposits by government agencies, including courts, does not authorize a court to order a bank to pay interest on a deposit by its clerk to a party to a suit. (Ib.)

EXTENSION OF CHARTER.

Renewing charter of national banks—Withdrawal of stockholder—Notice.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) Under Act July 12, 1882, § 5, providing that a stockholder, not assenting to amendment of articles of a national banking association, extending its existence, may give notice to directors of desire to withdraw, whereupon he shall be entitled to receive the value of his shares, ascertained by appraisers selected by him and the directors, notice to the president, unless shown to have been communicated to the directors, is insufficient. (Conway v. First National Bank of Rome, Ga., 256 Fed. Rep., 277.)

Renewing charter of national banks—Withdrawal of stockholder—Notice.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) Resolution of directors of national bank, authorizing president to apply to Comptroller of Currency for approval of amendment of its charter extending its existence, did not authorize him to receive or waive notice for them, under Act July 12, 1882, § 5, from a nonassenting stockholder, of desire to withdraw. (Ib.)

Renewing charter of national banks—Withdrawal of stockholder—Notice.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) Under Act July 2, 1882, § 5, as to notice of desire to withdraw, which a stockholder, not assenting to amendment of articles of national banking association extending existence, is authorized to give "within 30 days from date of the certificate of approval," notice can be given only when and after the amendment has been approved by the Comptroller. (Ib.)

Renewing charter of national banks—Withdrawal of stockholder—Notice.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) That letter of stockholder, in answer to request of president for consent to disposition of certain assets, preparatory to examination by Comptroller, as preliminary to renewal of charter, stating that he had bought his stock with intention to liquidate it, and was not in position to carry it permanently, was not intended as the formal notice of desire to withdraw, required by Act July 12, 1882, § 5, to be given by stockholder not assenting to extension of existence of national banking association, is apparent from the language used. (Ib.)

Renewing charter of national banks—Withdrawal of stockholder—Notice.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) That letter by stockholder to president of national banking association, relative to disposition of certain assets preliminary to extension of existence, was not intended to be treated, even by the stockholder, as a substitute for the formal notice of desire to withdraw, required by Act July 12, 1882, § 5, is apparent from subsequent efforts of stockholder to ascertain when the notice must be given, and his actual attempt to give it. (Ib.)

Renewing charter of national banks—Withdrawal of stockholder—Notice—Estoppel.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) Want of authority of president of national banking association to represent it in respect to notice of desire to withdraw, which stockholder not assenting to renewal of its charter must, under Act July 12, 1882, § 5, give to the directors, prevents the bank being estopped to deny sufficiency of notice too late under the statute, but within the time that the president is claimed to have told the stockholder's representative that it could be given, especially when this was in a casual conversation, and the president did not assume to act for the bank, and had no reason to believe he was talking to a representative of the stockholder. (Ib.)

Renewing charter of national banks—Withdrawal of member—Notice—Information as to time.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) The directors of a national banking association, to whom, within 30 days after approval by Comptroller of Currency of amendment of its articles extending its existence, a nonassenting stockholder must give notice of desire to withdraw, entitling him to receive from the bank the appraised value of his shares, are under no duty to give information of the approval, in the absence of request. (Ib.)

INSOLVENCY AND RECEIVERS.

Insolvency—Claims.

(U. S. D. C., 1918.) On insolvency of national bank and appointment of receiver, creditor becomes equitable cestui que trust in assets in proportion that his claim bears to total amount, and his right to participate may not be diminished by claims arising subsequently to insolvency; right to participate being determined as of date of insolvency. (In re United Grocery Co., 253 Fed. Rep., 267.)

General deposit—Relationship of "Debtor and creditor."

(U. S. D. C., 1918.) A general deposit of money in a checking account with a bank created simply the relation of "debtor and creditor" between the bank and the depositor. (Ib.)

Liability of Receivers Under Sec. 5209.

Section 5209 Revised Statutes does not apply to receivers of national banks appointed by the Comptroller of the Currency under Revised Statutes, section 5234.

(U. S. Sup. Ct., 1918.) Receiver of national bank appointed by Comptroller of the Currency is officer of the United States, not agent of the bank. (U. S. v. Weitzel, 246 U. S., 533.)

Statutes not to be extended by intendment.

(U. S. Sup. Ct., 1918.) Statutes creating and defining crimes are not to be extended by intendment upon the ground that they should have been made more comprehensive. (Ib.)

Note.—Sec. 5209 was amended on Sept. 26, 1918, making receiver liable for all violations of this section.

INSURANCE.

Insurance—Burglary insurance—Risks insured.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) A bank's burglary insurance policy, covering loss (a) by abstraction from its locked safe by force; (b) by damage to money, securities, safe, and furniture caused by forcible entry or attempted entry into the safe or premises; and (c) loss by robbery (1) from within the banking inclosure; (2) from an officer or employé transferring money between the inclosure and safe; and (3) from within the safe, by compelling an officer or employé to unlock the safe, held to cover losses from safe only when the safe is closed and locked and entrance is effected by either "cracking" the safe or forcibly compelling an officer or employé to open it, and not to cover loss where money was taken from an open safe. (Franklin State Bank v. Maryland Casualty Co. Same v. United States Fidelity and Guaranty Co., 256 Fed. Rep., 356.)

Insurance—Burglary insurance—Breach of warranty—Error in description of equipment.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) Although false statement in schedul of bank's burglary insurance policy that insured's safe was locked by both combination and time lock might be deemed merely an "error in description of equipment," which would reduce the indemnity, in case of loss, yet the statement, "All combination and time locks will be continued to be regularly used during the currency of the policy," was a promissory warranty, breach of which avoided the policy. (Ib.)

Insurance—Breach of warranty—Effect—Contributing to loss.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) Breach of insured's warranty will avoid his policy, though such breach does not contribute to the loss. (Ib.)

INTEREST AND USURY.

Holding back part of loan as deposit is usury.

(N. C. Sup. Ct., 1919.) Where a national bank loans money at the highest rate of interest and holds back 20 per cent of the amount loaned on general deposit and not subject to the borrower's check, charging interest on the entire amount, the transaction is usurious. In an action by the bank on the notes given by the borrower, it was held that the bank could recover only the principal amount of the loan and not the interest agreed upon by the parties. It was also held that the borrower was not entitled to counterclaim in this action for the penalty of twice the amount of the usurious interest paid and that this could be recovered only by a separate and independent action against the bank. (Planters' National Bank of Virginia v. Wysong & Miles Co., 99 S. E. Rep., 199.)

LIQUIDATION.

Liquidation of national banks—Suit against stockholders.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) Contract for consolidation between two national banks by which one agreed to voluntary liquidate and transfer all its assets to the other, which agreed to act as its liquidating agent and to pay all claims against it, construed, and, as acted upon by the parties, held to create the relation of debtor and creditor between them, which would support a suit against the stockholders of the liquidating bank on the insufficiency of its assets to pay its debts. (American Nat. Bank of Macon v. Commercial Nat. Bank of Macon et al., 254 Fed. Rep., 249.)

OFFICERS.

Bonds of Officers.

Principal and surety—Fidelity bonds—Renewals—Avoidance for breach of warranties.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) A surety company, which executed a bond, insuring the fidelity of a bank cashier, and annual renewals thereof, each "subject to all the covenants and conditions" of the original bond, and made in consideration of a written statement by the bank that the cashier was not then in default, which statements were by the original bond made warranties, held not liable for defaults occurring after the original term, where it was shown that the cashier was in default during such term, and that all renewal statements to the contrary were false. (Green v. Interstate Casualty Co., 256 Fed. Rep., 81.)

Powers of and Representation of Bank by Officers.

Discharge—Money obtained by means of a material false statement in writing.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) Credit extended to a bankrupt by a bank through its cashier, who knew that the bankrupt was then insolvent, and who was acting solely in his own and the bankrupt's interest, was fraudulent and voidable, and the bank was not bound by its cashier's fraud, and could claim that the money was obtained by means of a material false statement in writing as to money not checked out, where the directors of the bank examined note signed by bankrupt and false financial statement attached thereto, and relying thereupon, approved the loan. (Bank of Commerce & Savings v. Matthews, 257 Fed. Rep., 292.)

Questions of fact—Remanding case.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) On appeal from an order discharging a bankrupt over an objection that the bankrupt had obtained money by means of a materially false statement in writing, where it was found that the master had erred in finding that the false statement was not relied upon by the bank in extending the credit, and it appeared the master had made no finding as to whether the statement in writing was known to be false by the bankrupt, a finding by the trial judge from the printed record that the bankrupt did not read the statement or know its contents will not be allowed to stand, and the order of discharge will be reversed, so that the uncontradicted testimony of the bankrupt to such effect can be heard and its truth decided upon an observation of the witness, as well as upon his testimony. (Ib.)

Corporations—Representation by officer—Bank checks—Indorsements.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) Indorsements of checks by a corporation's secretary are all in effect in the name of payee corporation by its secretary, though, in some, "Company" is abbreviated to "Co.," and "Secretary" to "Secy.," or "Sec." (Santa Marina Co. v. Canadian Bank of Commerce, 254 Fed. Rep., 391.)

Corporations—Secretary—Authority to indorse checks—Evidence.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) Evidence held to show that secretary of corporation, with knowledge and consent of its president and board of directors, was authorized to indorse checks payable to it, as for five years he did. (Ib.)

Bills and notes—Checks—Negotiability—"General indorsement."

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) Checks with "general indorsement," defined by Civ. Code Cal. § 3112 as one by which no indorsee is named, are negotiable instruments. (Ib.)

Corporations—Authority of secretary—Indorsing checks.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) Authority of secretary of a corporation to indorse in blank checks payable to it was not limited by the mere fact that its president and board of directors supposed he deposited them with its bank. (Ib.)

Checks—Deposits.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) Secretary of corporation having authority to indorse in blank checks payable to it, title to checks so indorsed passed on delivery to his bank, when tendered by him to it for deposit to his own account, unless it had timely notice that he had no title, or it acted in bad faith in receiving them. (Ib.)

Deposits—Estoppel.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) A corporation, which gives its secretary authority to indorse in blank checks payable to it, is estopped to recover of his bank, which acted in good faith in receiving them for deposit to his account. (Ib.)

Appeal and error—Matters reviewable.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) Appeal from decree by plaintiff alone brings up for review only what was decided adversely to him, and not whether decree, so far as favorable to him, was erroneous. (Ib.)

Certificate of deposit—Issuance for individual debt—Risk of authority.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) One to whom a bank's president, in payment of his individual debt, issued its certificate of deposit, accepted with knowledge thereof, took the risk of the president's authority, depending on whether there had been a contemporaneous deposit, as recited in the certificate; the principle that his general powers would give apparent authority not applying, where he is known to be acting in his own interest. (First Nat. Bank of Sweetwater, Tex., v. Rust et al., 257 Fed. Rep., 29.)

Certificate of deposit—Issuance for individual debt—Authority—Burden of proof.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) One to whom a bank's president issued its certificate of deposit in payment of his individual debt, accepted with knowledge thereof, seeking to hold the bank thereon, has the burden of proving the making of the recited contemporaneous deposit, necessary for the authority to issue certificate. (Ib.)

Certificate of deposit—Evidence of deposit.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) A bank's certificate of deposit having been issued by its president in payment of his individual debt, and accepted with knowledge thereof, neither recital in certificate nor statement in letter of president to person receiving the certificate is evidence against bank of deposit having been made, necessary for president's authority to issue certificate. (Ib.)

Statement of bank president—Past transaction.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) Statement of president of bank, to one to whom its certificate of deposit had been issued by its prior president in payment of his individual debt, that its books showed the deposit called for thereby, is not inadmissible against it, in the absence of injury therefrom raising an estoppel; it amounting to an admission that past transactions had occurred and had been evidenced by the bank's books. (Ib.)

Representation of bank by officers—Notice to officers.

(U. S. Dist. Ct., 1919.) Knowledge obtained by an officer of a bank as an individual, and not as an officer of the bank, can not be imputed to the bank, or permitted to operate to its prejudice. (Coleman et al v. Shortsville Wheel Co., 257 Fed. Rep., 591.)

Discount of note—Rights against maker and indorser.

(U. S. Dist. Ct., 1919.) A bank, holding the note of a customer for valuable consideration, is not bound by an arrangement between the maker and indorser as to its payment, of which the bank had no knowledge. (Ib.)

Discount of note—Effect of renewal.

(U. S. Dist. Ct., 1919.) The rights of a bank upon a renewal note can not be affected by knowledge which it obtained after it acquired the original note for value and prior to the renewal. (Ib.)

OFFICERS, CIVIL LIABILITY OF.

Liability of Directors for Mismanagement.

Liability of directors for declaring dividends out of capital.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1917.) The liability of directors of a national bank for voting and declaring dividends out of the capital is not absolute, and they are not liable if they exercise reasonable diligence and acted in good faith, in the belief that the dividends were payable from net profits. (Williams v. Spensley et al., 251 Fed. Rep., 58.)

Directors—Liability—Dividends.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) In an action by a national bank against a former director to recover, on the theory that a dividend had improperly been declared, held, that the declaration of the dividend, which was at the suggestion of the Comptroller of the Currency to wind up branches of the bank, was not improper, and no liability could be predicated thereon, as practically the whole of the dividend was immediately transferred to the bank by the stockholders. (First National Bank of Fairbanks v. Noyes, 257 Fed. Rep., 593.)

Degree of Care Required of Directors.

Directors—Liability.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) Directors of a national bank owe a common-law duty to exercise ordinary care and prudence in the administration of the affairs of the bank, and they should not be shielded from liability for want of knowledge of wrongdoing, if that ignorance is the result of gross inattention; but they can not be held responsible for the wrongful act of other directors, nor to intimately know to whom credits are given. (First National Bank of Fairbanks v. Noyes, 257 Fed. Rep., 593.)

Directors—Liability.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) In an action by a national bank against a director to recover for various losses, including improper extension of credits, claimed to have resulted from the director's neglect, evidence held insufficient to show that the director was liable, either at common-law or under the National Banking Act. (Ib.)

Directors—Liability.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) Where a national bank seeks to recover against a director for a loss resulting from the director's violation of a duty imposed by the National Banking Act, proof of something more than negligence is required, and there must be proof that the violation was in effect intentional. (Ib.)

LIABILITY OF DIRECTORS FOR ASSENTING TO EXCESSIVE LOANS.

Equitable estoppel—What constitutes.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) That a director of a national bank signed his name to reports to the Comptroller of the Currency, representing branches maintained by the bank to be separate institutions, held, as the bank knew all the facts in relation thereto, and did not act to its detriment in reliance on the reports, not to estop the director from asserting, in a suit by the bank to recover against him because of excessive loans to a branch, that such branches were part of the bank itself. (First National Bank of Fairbanks v. Noyes, 257 Fed. Rep., 593.)

Branch banks—What are.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) In an action by a national bank against a former director to recover on account of excessive loans to alleged separate institutions, etc., held, that such institutions were branches maintained by the bank to purchase gold dust, so statements to the Comptroller showing the condition of accounts between the bank and branches were not notice to the director of loans to the branches, or of loans made to borrowers under authority of the bank. (Ib.)

Directors—Liability.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) A director of a national bank, who was not familiar with banking business, held not negligent because he did not examine into advances made by the bank to branches which it maintained, and no recovery can be had on ground of excessive loans by the branches, where the president and majority stockholders of the bank represented all sums sent to the branches were for purchase of gold dust. (Ib.)

OFFICERS, CRIMINAL LIABILITY OF.

PROSECUTIONS.

INDICTMENTS.

Procedure.

(U. S. Dist. Ct., 1919.) Indictments should not be presented to the grand jury without leave of court, where there appears no real necessity for proceeding without a preliminary hearing before a magistrate or commissioner. (United States v. Jenks, 258 Fed. Rep., 763.)

Venue.

(U. S. Dist. Ct., 1919.) An indictment is demurrable which does not set out that the offense charged was committed within the jurisdiction of the court. (Ib.)

Embezzlement—Intent.

(U. S. Dist. Ct., 1919.) Intent to defraud is an essential element of a violation of Rev. St., sec. 5209, as amended by act Sept. 26, 1918, relating to embezzlement, etc., by officer, director, agent, or employee of any Federal Reserve Bank or member bank. (Ib.)

Conspiracy—Venue.

(U. S. Dist. Ct., 1919.) An indictment for conspiracy is not fatally defective, where it alleges the place where the overt acts are charged to have been done, although the venue of the conspiracy is not set out. (Ib.)

To defraud the United States.

(U. S. Dist. Ct., 1919.) One could not be convicted of conspiracy to defraud the United States, consisting in exercising, under a certain circular issued by the Treasury Department, the privilege of converting first Liberty loan 4 per cent bonds into third Liberty loan 4¼ per cent bonds after the time limit set out in the circular had expired, using for that purpose bonds of the United States deposited with the Federal Reserve Bank, unless it be shown that the accused had knowledge of the terms of the circular or of the time within which the conversion privilege could be exercised. FALSE ENTRIES.

Offenses by officers of national bank—Making false report.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) An indictment against an officer of a national bank, under Rev. St., sec. 5209 (Comp. St., sec. 9772), for making a false entry in a report, is not duplicitous because it charges that the entry was made with intent to injure and defraud the bank and to deceive the Comptroller of the Currency, and any agent appointed to examine the affairs of the bank. (Boone v. United States, 257 Fed. Rep., 963.)

Offenses by officers of national bank—Indictment.

(U. S. C. C.A., 1919.) An indictment against the president of a national bank held to properly charge him, not as principal, but as accessory to the making of a false entry in a report to the Comptroller, in that he abetted, aided, counseled, and procured such entry to be made by the cashier. (Ib.)

Offenses by officers of national bank—Trial—Evidence.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) On trial of the president of a national bank, charged with aiding and abetting the making of false reports to the Comptroller, evidence of the condition of his account and his indebtedness to the bank, although as it stood at a later date than the reports, held admissible. (Ib.)

Offenses by officers of national bank—Trial—Sufficiency of evidence.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) Evidence on trial of the president of a national bank for violation of the statute held sufficient to require submission of the case to the jury. (Ib.)

Reversal—Sufficiency of evidence.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) That the evidence in support of the charges in certain counts of an indictment, on which defendant was acquitted, was stronger than that under the single count, on which he was convicted, is not ground for reversal. (Ib.)

Offenses.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) In a prosecution against the president of a national banking association and his successor, under Rev. St., sec. 5209 (Compt. St., sec. 9772), for directing false entries in the books with intent to deceive and for misapplication of funds, evidence held sufficient to sustain a conviction. (Galbreath et al. v. United States, 257 Fed. Rep., 648.)

Offenses—Intent.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) In a prosecution, under Rev. St., sec. 5209 (Comp. St., sec. 9772), against the president and another officer of a national banking association for misapplication of funds and for directing false entries in the books, a showing that the false entries were made with intent to deceive, and that the misapplications were made to injure or defraud bank, is essential to conviction. (Ib.)

Offenses—Intent.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) In a prosecution, under Rev. St., sec. 5209 (Comp. St., sec. 9772), against the president and another officer of a bank for making false entries in the books and misapplying funds, evidence held sufficient to carry to the jury the question whether the entries were made with intent to deceive and the misapplications with intent to injure or defraud the bank. (Ib.)

Offenses—Intent.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) An intent to injure or defraud a national banking association by misapplication of funds, which offense is defined by Rev. St., sec. 5209 (Comp. St., sec. 9772), is not inconsistent with the desire for the ultimate success and welfare of the bank, and such intent may, within the meaning of the law, result from an unlawful act voluntarily done, the natural tendency of which is to injure the bank. (Ib.)

Appeal—Presumptions—Judgment.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) Where there is a good count in the indictment, and the evidence is sufficient in law to support it, and judgment is such as might have been imposed upon it alone, the presumption is that it was imposed upon the good count, supported by evidence, and will not be reversed, though there are bad counts, or counts unsupported by evidence. (Ib.)

National banks—Offenses—Evidence.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) In a prosecution under Rev. St., sec. 5209 (Comp. St., sec. 9772), against the president and another officer of the national bank for misapplying funds and making false entries in the books, which practices occurred in connection with loans and advances to a company in which those officers were interested, the admission in evidence of parts of the record in bankruptcy proceedings of such company, showing it was adjudicated a bankrupt on admission in writing that it was entirely insolvent, and that dividends of only 10 per cent were paid, was proper, though the last transaction charged in the indictment occurred six months before the bankruptcy. (Galbreath et al. v. United States, 257 Fed. Rep., 648.)

Evidences of other offenses—Remoteness.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) In a prosecution under Rev. St., sec. 5209 (Comp. St., sec. 9772), against the president and another officer of a bank for misapplying its funds and making false entries in the books in connection with loans and advances to a company which became insolvent, evidence of similar transactions occurring two or three years before those set forth in the indictment is admissible, over the objection of remoteness. (Ib.)

Review—Evidence—Secondary evidence.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) The sufficiency of proof of loss of records to warrant the admission of secondary evidence of their contents is primarily addressed to the trial judge, whose findings should not be disturbed, unless plainly wrong. (Ib.)

Secondary evidence—Loss of books.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) In a prosecution against the president and another officer of a bank for misapplication of funds and the making of false entries in the books in connection with loans and advances to a corporation which became bankrupt, testimony by an expert accountant, who had examined the books and records of the company which became a bankrupt, and had made summaries thereof, held admissible on proof of loss of such books and records. (Ib.)

Harmless error—Evidence—Instructions.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) In a prosecution against the president and director of a bank for making false entries and misapplication of funds in connection with loans to a company which became bankrupt, the admission of evidence of the contents of books and records of such bankrupt was not error, where the court charged there was no presumption that defendants knew the contents of such books, and that the evidence could be considered only to the extent it was shown defendants did have knowledge of contents. (Ib.)

Evidence—Secondary evidence.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) In a prosecution against officers of a national bank, who were charged with making false entries, etc., an expert accountant may testify as to summaries which he made of the contents of such books, in connection with loans to a company which became bankrupt and whose books were lost; the fact that the accountant reversed certain items in making his summary not rendering the testimony inadmissible, where the changes were explained by him to the jury. (Ib.)

Misapplication of funds—Intent.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) In a prosecution under Rev. St., sec. 5209 (Comp. St., sec. 9772), where it was charged that defendant, while acting as the cashier of a national banking association, willfully misapplied its moneys, funds, or credits, and such misapplications were effected by the payment of checks drawn on the bank by persons having no money or funds to their credit who were insolvent and financially unable to pay the sums, evidence that defendant, while acting as cashier, obtained money from the bank by discounting a note which he knew to be a forgery, is admissible to show intent. (Apgar v. United States, 255 Fed. Rep., 16.)

TRIAL AND ITS INCIDENTS.

DRAWING OF JURY.

Drawing of jurors—Rule in United States court—Trial of criminal cases.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) In the absence of a rule and order governing the drawing of jurors for the trial of cases in the Federal courts, that matter is in control of those courts, subject only to the restrictions Congress has prescribed and to such limitations as are recognized by the settled principles of criminal law. (Apgar v. United States, 255 Fed. Rep., 16.)

Jury—Petit jury—Panel.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) Though district judge who was designated to hold court in an adjoining district entered an order while without the district directing that the panel of petit jurors be drawn, held that, as the Judicial Code does not make such an order a prerequisite to the validity of a drawing of the names of those to be summoned to serve as petit jurors, the action of the jury commissioner in following the order amounted to no more than the drawing of jurors without an order, which irregularity the District Court could waive. (Ib.)

Jury—Petit jury—Drawing.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) Where a district judge was designated to hold court in an adjacent district with the powers provided for by Judicial Code, sec. 14 (Comp. St., sec. 981), held, under section 19 (section 986), and in view of section 17 (section 984), that an order entered by such judge, while without the second district directing the drawing of petit jurors, was valid, for the order was one which could be made by the judge while in chambers, and it is not necessary that it be made within the territorial limits of the district wherein it was to be effective, as the judge's chambers are considered to be where he is and authorized to be engaged in performing his judicial duties. (Ib.)

APPEAL.

Appeal.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) Where plea in abatement to indictment did not show that the district judge appointing the jury commissioner was without the district at the time he entered the order and the record did not show that fact, the overruling of the plea can not be held erroneous on writ of error. (Apgar v. United States, 255 Fed. Rep., 16.)

Review—Harmless error.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) Where defendant was convicted on many counts, and sentenced to a penitentiary term of five years on each count, the terms to be served concurrently, an error in the charge, affecting the conviction as to only one count is harmless and no ground for reversal. (Ib.)

Trial—Instructions.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) The refusal of requested charges fairly covered by the charge given is not error. (Ib.)

TAXATION.

State taxation of the property or shares of national banks determined exclusively by section 5219, Revised Statutes.

(U. S. Sup. Ct., 1919.) The extent to which the States may tax the property of the shares of national banks is determined exclusively by section 5219 of the Revised Statutes. (Bank of California, National Association, v. Richardson, Treasurer of the State of California, 248 U. S., 476.)

(U. S. Sup. Ct., 1919.) The object of the section is to avoid withdrawing the financial resources of national banks from the reach of State taxation, and at the same time to protect the banks as Federal agencies from State interference. It therefore, with certain restrictions, permits the shares of the bank to be taxed to the shareholders, and, in the aspect treats the ultimate beneficial interest of the bank and the shareholders as one, subject to but one taxation and by that method only. (Ib.)

Shares of State bank held by national bank, how taxed.

(U. S. Sup. Ct., 1919.) Shares of State bank, when held by national bank, can be reached only by tax upon shares of latter, and are not taxable to bank itself. (Ib.)

Shares of national bank held by another national bank, how taxed.

(U. S. Sup. Ct., 1919.) Shares of national bank, held by another national bank, are taxable only to latter as shareholder, and are not to be included in valuing shares of latter when taxing its shareholders. (Ib.)

DEDUCTIONS.

Bank stock—Exclusion from assets of Federal Reserve Bank stock—Statute.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1918.) Despite Federal Reserve Act Dec. 23, 1913 (Comp. St., secs. 9785–9805), under Rev. St., sec. 5219 (Comp. St., sec. 9784), stockholders of a national bank were not entitled, for purposes of the assessment of state, county, and municipal taxes, to any deduction of the value of their holdings on account of the bank's holdings of Federal Reserve Bank stock. (First Nat. Bank of Cincinnati v. Beaman et al, 257 Fed. Rep., 729.)

Liberty bonds—Bank stock—State statutes.

(U. S. Dis. Ct., 1918.) Liberty bonds, declared exempt from taxation by the statute under which they are issued, are indirectly taxed, in violation thereof and its underlying principles, when owned by a bank, by tax under Code Supp. Iowa 1913, sec. 1322, providing that its shares shall be assessed to its stockholders, the value thereof to be based on its capital, surplus, and undivided earnings, and its property not to be otherwise assessed; the bonds being considered in determining the value of the stock, and the bank's property being in truth assessed. (Iowa Loan and Trust Co. v. Fairweather, 252 Fed. Rep., 605.)

Internal revenue—Excise taxes—Calculation—Deduction of State taxes.

(U. S. D. C., 1918.) State, county, and municipal taxes paid by a bank under Laws Fla., 1907, c. 5596, sec. 8, constitute a liability of the bank, and not its stockholders, and are to be deducted from the gross income of the bank, to ascertain the net amount on which the 1 per cent. of excise tax under Act Aug. 5, 1909, sec. 38, cl. 2, subd. 4, is to be calculated. (United States v. Guaranty Trust and Savings Bank, 253 Fed. Rep., 291.)

TRUSTS.

Trusts—Resulting trust—Payment of purchase money for land.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) One who buys land with money of another as his representative, but takes conveyance to himself, holds the title in trust for such other. (Pollman et al v. Curtice et al, 255 Fed. Rep., 628.)

Notice to president.

(U. S. C. C. A., 1919.) A bank, which through its president and managing officer made a loan on land, and the president, who afterward bought the land subject to the mortgage, held not bona fide purchasers for value without notice, where the grantor in fact held the title in trust for another, who on purchase of the land a year before paid the consideration, which was known to the president, through whom the negotiations were conducted, and who also knew other facts sufficient to put him on inquiry, and whose knowledge was attributable to the bank. (Ib.)

NOTE.—Specie payments were suspended from Jan. 1, 1862, to Jan. 1, 1879. During the greater part of that period gold and silver coins were not in circulation except on the Pacific coast, where it is estimated the specie circulation was generally about $25,000,000. This estimated amount is the only coin included in the above statement from 1862 to 1875, inclusive.

NOTE 2.—The Director of the Mint recently made a revised estimate of the stock of gold coin, and as a consequence of such revision the estimated stock of gold in the United States and of gold coin in circulation has been reduced $135,000,000 in the figures for 1907.

NOTE 3.—There was a reduction as of June 30, 1910, of $9,700,000 of subsidiary silver coin as a result of the revision of stock by the Mint Bureau.

[1] This amount represents the net amount due from banks as shown by the reports of those banks whose balances due from banks exceed the balances due to banks and must be deducted from the amount in the second column in order to prove the apparent amount of liabilities upon which reserve is required.

[2] On account of changes in reserve requirements 4 banks heretofore included in the city of Boston, as reserved city banks, are now included in the State of Massachusetts, as country banks, all banks in the city of Brooklyn and 1 bank in the Bronx heretofore included in the city of New York, as central reserve city banks, are now included in Brooklyn and the Bronx as reserve city banks, and 11 other banks heretofore included in the city of New York, as central reserve city banks, are now included in the State of New York, as country banks.

[Chartered by Congress in 1816, for 20 years; renewal of charter denied; in consequence, reorganization was effected by means of authority of the Legislature of the State of Pennsylvania. The bank assigned in 1841, the affairs being finally liquidated in 1856, and resulted in the payment in full, interest and principal, of liabilities to depositors and noteholders; the shareholders, however, received nothing on their investment in stock of the bank.]

TABLE 111.—NUMBER OF FAILURES, TOGETHER WITH NUMBER OF NATIONAL AND ALL OTHER REPORTING BANKS INCLUDING TRUST COMPANIES, BY STATES.

[26-year period from Aug. 31, 1893, to June 30, 1919.]

Number of failures, 1893 to 1918, of all banks other than national, as printed in comptroller's reports from year to year, is from reports to Bradstreets, the number for 1919 being from reports to R. G. Dun & Co. This number is exclusive of those banks which closed to go into voluntary liquidation, from which this office has received no report, other than as to national banks, concerning payments made to depositors. Number of banks, other than national, reported is as shown by annual reports of the Comptroller of the Currency. In many cases the number is unofficial and incomplete.

DECISION OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA IN THE RIGGS NATIONAL BANK INJUNCTION CASE.

In Volume I of the Annual Report of the Comptroller of the Currency for 1916 (pp. 141–144) there was printed a synopsis, prepared by the Department of Justice, of the decision of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in the injunction suit brought by the Riggs National Bank on April 12, 1915, against the Secretary of the Treasury, the Comptroller of the Currency, and the Treasurer of the United States. The decision completely upheld the power and authority of the office of the Comptroller of the Currency, which had been questioned by the bank.

It is believed that the case is of sufficient importance to national banks to justify the publication of the court's decision in full in the Comptroller's report for the current year. The decision is therefore reprinted below.

The suit was brought by the Riggs National Bank to prevent the collection of a fine of $5,000 imposed upon the bank for its refusal to furnish the Comptroller of the Currency with information which had been called for in regard to "dummy" and other loans made through a period of years by the Riggs National Bank to officers of the bank and members of their families; and, in asking for an injunction to prevent imposition of the fine, the bank claimed conspiracy on the part of the Government officials to injure the bank.

For the better understanding of the case there is printed below the letter which the Comptroller of the Currency addressed under date of March 30, 1915, to the Riggs National Bank notifying the bank of the assessment of the fine of $5,000 for its refusal to furnish the reports called for in the Comptroller's letter of January 22, 1915, which letter of January 22 is embodied in the Comptroller's letter of March 30, 1915, imposing the fine. The imposition of this fine was followed by the bank's suit charging conspiracy to injure and asking for an injunction to prevent the collection of the fine. The suit was begun April 12, 1915.

Letter from Comptroller of the Currency to Riggs National Bank Assessing Penalty of $5,000 for Refusing to Furnish Information as to Loans to Officers, Etc.

Treasury Department,
Comptroller of the Currency,
Washington, March 30, 1915.

The Riggs National Bank,
Washington, D. C.

Sirs: On January 22, 1915, the Comptroller of the Currency addressed you the following letter calling upon you to furnish this office certain special reports, which, in the judgment of the Comptroller, were necessary in order to a full and complete knowledge of the condition of the Riggs National Bank:

"January 22, 1915.

"The Riggs National Bank,

"Sirs: In view of conditions in your bank brought to light by the national bank examiner, this office, in order that it may be more fully informed as to the extent to which the funds of your bank have been used by its officers for personal and private benefit through indirect, or 'dummy' or concealed loans, as well as through direct borrowings, requests that you prepare and deliver to this office within 10 days, under penalties provided in sections 5211 and 5213, Revised Statutes of the United States, a statement, or report, showing:

"First. All direct loans made by the Riggs National Bank since its organization, either severally or jointly, to Charles C. Glover, W. J. Flather, M. E. Ailes, H. H. Flather, Joshua Evans, jr., or any of them, and to members of the respective families of the above named, giving a full description of the notes and the collateral, if any, by which said loans were secured.

"Second. All indirect, or 'dummy,' or concealed loans made by the Riggs National Bank since its organization for the benefit (directly or indirectly) of the individuals named above, or any of them, including all loans which C. C. Glover, W. J. Flather, M. E. Ailes, or Joshua Evans, jr., or any of them, indorsed or for which they furnished the whole, or any portion of the collateral, by which loans to others were secured, and including all loans made in the name or names of others, the whole or a portion of the proceeds of which were turned over to the said Glover, Ailes, W. J. Flather, H. H. Flather, Joshua Evans, jr., or any of them; giving a full description of all notes and of the collateral, if any, by which they were secured, also showing what portions of the proceeds of said notes were received by or credited, respectively, to the said Glover, W. J. Flather, H. H. Flather, M. E. Ailes, or Joshua Evans, jr., and also showing clearly the ownership at the time of the making of the said loans of the collateral securing them, in each case.

"Let your reply be under oath and over the signatures of C. C. Glover, W. J. Flather, H. H. Flather, M. E. Ailes, and Joshua Evans, jr.

"Respectfully,

"JNO. SKELTON WILLIAMS,
"Comptroller of the Currency."

The investigations of the bank examiner had raised serious questions as to whether or not your bank had collected the proper amount of interest, which it was entitled to receive, from its officers on loans (large and small) which had been made to these officers personally, sometimes directly on notes signed by themselves and sometimes indirectly on "dummy" notes signed by clerks of the Riggs National Bank, or of other banking institutions, or by outsiders, which said "dummy" loans were usually secured by "collateral" provided by the officers of the Riggs National Bank.

It was believed to be desirable and important, in order to determine the present true condition of the Riggs National Bank, and the sums of money which the bank was rightfully entitled to and which it might not have collected from its debtors, that these special reports should be furnished to the Comptroller's office within the time mentioned in the letter aforesaid.

You acknowledged receipt of the letter from this office of January 22, 1915, under date of February 1, 1915, and refused to furnish the special reports called for.

This office could not accept, as an excuse for your refusal, the claim made in your letter that the large amount of money which the national bank examiner found the Riggs National Bank lending to its own officers at the time of his examination last summer, on both direct and indirect or "dummy" loans, amounting to some hundreds of thousands of dollars, had nearly all been paid. Their repayment did not dispose of unsettled and important questions affecting the condition of your bank. It is instructive, though not reassuring, just here to point out that these payments were largely made by transferring the loans of your officers to other national banks and to some of the trust companies of the District. The reports of national bank examiners to this office indicate that the money being borrowed at a recent date from national banks, and from trust companies of the District, by four of the senior and junior active officers of your bank amounted to more than $750,000. These loans were all being carried by banking institutions in which one or more of your officers were either directors or employees, and by two of the local trust companies, and were secured mainly by stocks and bonds, many of the stocks decidedly speculative, such as Greene-Cananea Copper; Lanston Monotype; Nevada Consolidated Copper; Missouri Pacific Railway; American Can, common; Reading, common; B. & O., common; United States Steel, common; Pacific Gas & Electric Co., common; Wabash 4s; Pacific Coast 2d, preferred; United States Rubber, preferred; Intercontinental Rubber, common; Pittsburgh Coal, preferred; Washington Railway & Electric; Seaboard Air Line, preferred; Southern Railway, preferred; Utah Copper; and Washington Utilities Co. stock; and there were hypothecated in these loans nearly all of the stock of the Riggs National Bank owned by the borrowing officers.

It should here be noted that in the opinion of this office no excuse has ever been given for the action of your president in getting $86,500 of money from the bank, without the knowledge of its directors as to the real borrower, on a note signed by the assistant paying teller of the bank (salary, $2,100) for use in one of his (C. C. Glover's) personal real-estate deals or transactions. The statement that the real-estate notes arising from the deal might be sold to a customer, or customers, of the bank and thus "accommodate" such customer does not relieve this "dummy" or "concealed" loan of odium. The practice which appears to have been in vogue in your bank for some years past, for the officers or junior clerks of your bank to borrow its funds, sometimes in their own name and sometimes in the name of "dummies" and sometimes as "dummies" for others, on speculative stocks and bonds, is unbusinesslike, sets a very bad example to the bank's other employees, and is, in fact, thoroughly reprehensible and can not be too strongly condemned; notwithstanding the fact that your president, as late as January 11, 1915, referring to the $86,500 of money borrowed by him in the name of the paying teller of the bank said, when being examined under oath, "I did not see any reason why it should not be done in that way"; and again on March 5, 1915, after he had had opportunity of reflecting upon his conduct, made the following statement: "I did not consider I was doing anything wrong," indicating an ethical standard which is not consistent with the recognized conceptions of sound banking.

Such practices are sometimes attended with direful consequences to employees as well as to the bank whose funds are being jeopardized, as the following press dispatch relating to the tragic fate of a receiving teller in a Cleveland, Ohio, bank, whose borrowings ($775) were insignificant as compared with the loans to your officers and employees, pathetically and clearly shows—

"Cleveland, March 18.—Bertram O. Hill, thirty-eight, receiving teller at the Cleveland ——— Bank, shot and instantly killed himself to-day. * * *."

"Shortly before his suicide Hill received a letter from a Pittsburgh bank reminding him payment was expected Friday of his note for $775."

The suggestion you have offered that the bank examiner should himself get from your books the details as to your "dummy" or "concealed" loans I regret to say can hardly be regarded as being offered in good faith, in view of the testimony given under oath by different officers of your bank that, in reporting "dummy" or concealed loans to the discount committee and to the board of directors, the names of the real borrowers were not made known—"as far as I know they only knew the name of the person who gave the note—the name of the person who gave the note" (testimony of Vice President Flather under oath, Jan. 15, 1915), and the subsequent testimony of your paying teller on March 5, 1915, that there was nothing in the books or records which would show positively which loans were "dummy" loans and that in order to select such loans from the records he would "have to rely on memory."

On February 11, 1915, this office wrote you as follows:

"TREASURY DEPARTMENT,
"COMPTROLLER OF THE CURRENCY,
"Washington, February 11, 1915.

"The RIGGS NATIONAL BANK,

"SIRS: On the 22d ultimo this office requested you to prepare and furnish within 10 days, under the penalties provided in sections 5211 and 5213, R. S., a statement or report, showing:

"'First. All direct loans made by the Riggs National Bank since its organization, either severally or jointly, to Charles C. Glover, W. J. Flather, M. E. Ailes, H. H. Flather, Joshua Evans, jr., or any of them, and to members of the respective families of the above named, giving a full description of the notes and the collateral, if any, by which said loans were secured.

"'Second. All indirect or "dummy" or concealed loans made by the Riggs National Bank since its organization for the benefit (directly or indirectly) of the individuals named above, or any of them, including all loans which C. C. Glover, W. J. Flather, H. H. Flather, M. E. Ailes, or Joshua Evans, jr., or any of them indorsed or for which they furnished the whole or any portion of the collateral by which loans to others were secured and including all loans made in the name or names of others, the whole or a portion of the proceeds of which were turned over to the said Glover, Ailes, W. J. Flather, H. H. "This office has received a letter from you dated February 1, 1915, in which you claim that the loans heretofore made to its officers by the Riggs National Bank have now been paid, and that the only loan to any member of the respective families of the officers named is a certain loan to the wife of your cashier.

"You also say:

" 'Replying to your second request, we beg to say that this bank has never made any "dummy" or "concealed" loans to any of the officers named, * * *.'

"This office has information which indicates to the contrary.

"You say, referring to letter from the Comptroller's office of the 22d ultimo:

" 'As the statement which you request would require an examination of all of the books of this bank during the 18 years of its existence, thus entailing serious loss of time and diverting the attention of our officers and employees from our current business, and as it could not, except as to the loan to Mrs. Emma A. Flather, a full report of which we have given you above, possibly add anything to your full and complete knowledge of the condition of this bank, for which purpose only section 5211 authorizes you to call for a special report, we decline to furnish it.'

"It is with regret, although not with surprise, that the Comptroller notes your official admission that the preparation of a statement showing the borrowings from the Riggs National Bank of its own officers—its president, its two vice presidents, its cashier, and its assistant cashier—would be a task of such large dimensions as would 'entail serious loss of time and diverting the attention of our' (your) 'officers and employees from our' (your) 'current business.'

"The Comptroller desires me to notify you that for your refusal to furnish to this office the report called for in the letter from the Comptroller of the Currency of the 22d ultimo, you are liable for a continuing penalty of $100 per day, as set forth in the letter of the 22d ultimo, above referred to, in accordance with sections 5211 and 5213 of the Revised Statutes.

"Respectfully,

"T. P. KANE,
"Acting Comptroller."

You are now hereby notified that for your failure to make and transmit to this office within the time mentioned, or within five days after the expiration of said time, the special report or reports called for in the aforesaid letter of January 22, 1915, you are hereby assessed and directed to pay the penalty of $100 per day for each day from February 8, 1915, to date—March 30, 1915—both dates inclusive, in accordance with the provisions of sections 5211 and 5213 of the Revised Statutes of the United States. Said penalties amount to this time to $5,000, which sum you are hereby directed to pay at once into the Treasury of the United States under the provisions of the statutes above referred to.

You are furthermore notified that continued failure on your part to furnish the reports called for in the letter from this office of January 22, 1915, will subject you to further and continuing penalties under the provisions of sections 5211 and 5213 of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

The $5,000 assessment imposed as above stated is in addition to all other penalties which you have incurred and are incurring for your failure to furnish other special reports which have heretofore been called for by the Comptroller of the Currency, in accordance with the provisions of sections 5211 and 5213 of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

Respectfully,

JNO. SKELTON WILLIAMS,
Comptroller of the Currency.

In its preliminary decision the court, in passing upon the charges of conspiracy and malice, had on May 21, 1915, expressed the opinion that if there were malice it was on the part of the bank's officers rather than on the part of the Government officials. (See pp. 139–141 of the Annual Report of the Comptroller of the Currency for 1916.)

The complete decision of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia in this case was handed down on May 31, 1916, and is as follows:

DECISION.

IN THE SUPREME COURT OF THE DISTRICT OF COLUMBIA, HOLDING AN EQUITY COURT.

[In the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, holding an equity court. The Riggs National Bank of Washington, D. C., plaintiff, v. John Skelton Williams, Comptroller of the Currency; Wilham Gibbs McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury; John Burke, Treasurer of the United States, defendants. No. 33,360. Filed May 31, 1916. J. R. Young, clerk.]

OPINION.

The bill is filed against the defendants in their official capacities and is before the court on a motion of the plaintiff for a preliminary injunction, and on motions by the defendants to dismiss on several grounds which will be stated hereafter.

The affidavits submitted by the defendants on the motion for preliminary relief completely met and overcame the charges of malice and bad faith on the part of the Secretary of the Treasury and the Comptroller of the Currency; consequently, the motion for preliminary relief was denied except in so far as it made necessary a consideration of the question of the powers of the Comptroller to call for special reports from banks.

The allegations of the bill other than those which are formal or relate to the standing of the plaintiff are substantially of two classes, one consisting of allegations inserted for the purpose of showing malice and ill will on the part of the defendants McAdoo and Williams toward the officers of the plaintiff bank, and the other, consisting of allegations as grounds for relief. In stating the case made by the bill the allegations of facts thought to prove malice and ill will will be only briefly stated for reasons given below. The substance of the allegations is as follows: The defendants are sued in their official capacities. The plaintiff is a national banking association with its principal place of business in the District of Columbia, incorporated on or about July 1, 1896, and in that year succeeded to the large and prosperous banking business for many years conducted by a partnership under the name of Riggs & Co., since which time it has done a successful business and is now in excellent financial condition. It is the Washington representative of several hundred national banks and has extensive foreign relations, being the correspondent of a number of foreign banks and bankers, and it issues many letters of credit for use in foreign countries. It has a good reputation and its financial standing is unquestionable and unquestioned. It enjoys the confidence of the community in which it does business and of banks and bankers throughout the United States and foreign countries. Neither the Secretary of the Treasury nor the Comptroller of the Currency has charged that the plaintiff is not entirely solvent or that its loans, discounts, investments or other resources represent either bad, doubtful or slow securities to an extent possible to impair its capital or reduce its surplus. The defendant Williams became Comptroller of the Currency February 3, 1914. He had theretofore been Assistant Secretary of the Treasury. On March 4, 1915, the plaintiff filed with the Comptroller one of the five reports required by law, and neither he nor the Secretary of the Treasury claims that such report is not a true and correct statement of the resources and liabilities of the plaintiff.

The defendants Williams and McAdoo have confederated, combined and conspired so to use and abuse and exceed the powers conferred on them by the laws of the United States, particularly the powers conferred on the Comptroller of the Currency by sections 5211 and 5213 of the Revised Statutes, as to impose upon plaintiff unlawful, excessive, and ruinous penalties, and entirely to cut off the plaintiff from certain large bank deposits hitherto held by it and greatly to injure, if not wholly destroy its business, and it is their purpose and intent wilfully and maliciously to inflict irreparable injury on the plaintiff in defiance of law and in violation of their official oaths and wrongfully to subject it to their arbitrary actions, which are unauthorized by any law and in palpable violation of plaintiff's property rights in the premises, and thereby confiscate or destroy the same.

The sections of the Revised Statutes under which the defendants are claiming to act are set forth, and also section 5241 as it originally stood and as amended by the Federal reserve act of December 23, 1913. This section limits the visitorial powers to which banks shall be subject to those which are authorized by law or vested in courts of justice or such as shall be or shall have been exercised or directed by Congress or by either house thereof, or by any committee of Congress or of either house duly authorized. Section 5211, being one of the sections of the Revised Statutes quoted in the bill after providing for five reports during each year to be transmitted to the Comptroller by all banks, provides that—

> "The Comptroller shall also have power to call for special reports from any particular association whenever in his judgment the same are necessary in order to a full and complete knowledge of its condition."

Notwithstanding the above mentioned provisions, the defendant Williams has called on the plaintiff bank for numerous special reports which are—

> "wholly impertinent and irrelevant to a full and complete knowledge of its condition and which are unnecessary for that purpose in any reasonable judgment of the Comptroller of the Currency, and has wrongfully subjected the plaintiff to an exercise of inquisitorial and visitorial powers other than such as were authorized by law, and has also wrongfully and maliciously subjected the plaintiff, by conducting a persistent and unlawful and unauthorized inquisition, to compliance with many such calls at great expense, and has imposed upon plaintiff's officers and employees an appalling mass of totally unnecessary work in hindrance and detriment to a proper and orderly conduct of its said business; and in addition the defendant Williams has in flagrant violation of law assessed certain numerous penalties against the plaintiff, * * * and is still continuing and threatens to continue so to do, with the result that at the present time the penalty so as aforesaid unlawfully assessed by the said defendant Williams against the plaintiff bank amounts to about $150,000, as nearly as the plaintiff can ascertain or calculate, but the plaintiff, with one exception, is entirely without any intelligent statement from the defendant Williams as to why such penalties have been inflicted or as to the exact amount thereof, either as to their total amount or as to the per diem total thereof."

These penalties are so excessive as to destroy the plaintiff's business unless the collection of them is restrained, and the three defendants have unlawfully retained and caused to be retained the sum of $5,000, being interest due on bonds deposited by the plaintiff with the Treasurer of the United States to secure its circulation, and it is intended to pay said sum of money into the Treasury of the United States, and it is also threatened and intended to retain and pay into the Treasury the future interest on said bonds when and as the same shall become due to the plaintiff.

The defendant Williams while Assistant Secretary of the Treasury openly manifested his personal hostility to the plaintiff bank and its officers in ways not stated.

Prior to December, 1913—

"the defendants McAdoo and Williams had in ways which will be fully detailed in the evidence to be taken in this suit, openly and publicly manifested their personal malice toward certain of plaintiff's officers;"

and thereafter and on December 3 and 4, 1913, during the course of a discussion as to the responsibility for a certain newspaper article two of the officers of the bank were charged with such responsibility by the defendant McAdoo, and one of said officers informed the defendant McAdoo that the latter's attitude could only be regarded as one of personal persecution, whereupon said defendant McAdoo ordered him out of the Secretary's office and said to the president of the plaintiff: "You know what this means to the Riggs National Bank," the bill adding:

"meaning thereby from that time on the power of the Treasury Department would be aggressively used for the ruination and destruction of the plaintiff bank in order to satisfy the personal malice and ill will of the defendants Williams and McAdoo against its officers. Shortly afterwards the said defendants Williams and McAdoo began a series of persecutions against the plaintiff bank for the purpose of impairing or destroying its said business as hereinafter more fully shown."

Shortly afterwards the defendant Williams was nominated to the office of the Comptroller of the Currency and made to the Committee on Banking and Currency of the Senate, when the matter of his confirmation was up for consideration, a vicious attack on the officer so charged with the responsibility for the publication of said newspaper article, on the false assumption that the latter was responsible therefor.

The bill then goes on to set forth the specific acts of the various defendants which the plaintiff claims are wrongful, first taking up those against the Secretary of the Treasury.

It has been the custom of the Treasury Department to deposit in various national banks in the District of Columbia a sum of money approximately equal to the taxes paid by the District into the Federal Treasury. These taxes have been made in proportion to the individual deposits in each of said banks, and from the distribution of this money for deposit in May, 1914, the defendant McAdoo "arbitrarily" eliminated the plaintiff; and on inquiry being made as to the reason for such elimination stated that he was not required to give any reasons for his action, but that the reason was that the plaintiff bank did a relatively small commercial business and that he thought it would be a greater benefit to the commercial interests of the community if the money were placed in other banks; and stated further that it was his purpose to withdraw all Government funds from the plaintiff bank, this expressed purpose, the bill says, being an execution of said threat embodied in the words above quoted, namely, "You know what this means to the Riggs National Bank." Thereafter plaintiff was discontinued as a Government depository.

The "plaintiff believes and therefore avers" that the defendant McAdoo succeeded through personal efforts in having gradually withdrawn from the plaintiff bank deposits of Panama Canal funds, the deposit of which are within the exclusive jurisdiction of the Secretary of War, and that there now remains with it a balance of said funds amounting to approximately $22,000. All of said withdrawals and withholding of deposits were made at a time when banks were hoarding their money and when the bonds given to secure the payment of said canal deposits could be marketed only by private sale, the war in Europe having resulted in the closing of public exchanges, and when prices of securities were at lower figures than they had been for many years and when panic conditions existed, and that all this was done in a deliberate attempt to wreck the plaintiff bank, and in execution of the conspiracy existing between the defendants

Williams and McAdoo for that purpose arising out of the said two defendants' personal hatred of certain officers of the plaintiff bank.

While the defendant McAdoo was acting as stated the defendant Williams was harassing the plaintiff in wrongful ways, and except for its great strength it would have been seriously crippled, and such was the result intended.

Except for his alleged cooperation with the Comptroller of the Currency, no other specific charges are made against the Secretary of the Treasury.

While Assistant Secretary of the Treasury the defendant Williams became the treasurer of the American Red Cross Society, in accordance with the custom long prevailing to appoint an Assistant Secretary, but after becoming Comptroller of the Currency he retained the office of treasurer of the Red Cross. During the summer of 1914 the defendant Williams began an ultimately successful effort to withdraw the Red Cross account from the plaintiff bank, while the defendant McAdoo was engaged in causing the withdrawals of United States Treasury and Panama Canal funds. The Comptroller carried on his efforts under the guise of endeavoring to secure a higher rate of interest on deposits by means of competition with rival banks and induced the Red Cross to permit him to invite bids from local banks, including the plaintiff. Higher bids than the plaintiff's were received, but the Red Cross declined to remove its funds, the difference in the bids being only slight and the plaintiff bank having for many years successfully handled the funds. Shortly after the European war began the defendant Williams used that situation to recommend that security be required to protect the deposits of the Red Cross funds in the plaintiff bank and to require of the bank an interest rate of not less than 3 per cent on daily balances. The plaintiff declined to pay interest on balances in excess of $150,000, and to deposit any of its securities, claiming that such deposit would be unlawful. The result was that the Red Cross deposits were withdrawn, until at the time of the filing of the bill there remained a balance of about $100.

The Comptroller began on June 9, 1914, the sending of a series of letters to the bank containing unauthorized demands for special reports. There are certain characterizations of letters received from the Comptroller, and an allegation that to a request from one of the attorneys for the bank, made through a national bank examiner, for an indication of any practice of the bank considered to be of even doubtful propriety such practice would be discontinued, and a further request by letter from the board of directors offering to improve the methods of the bank questioned by the Comptroller, and asking for suggestions, which suggestions were not made, the request being replied to sarcastically. It is said that the Comptroller's language regarding fines threatened in these letters has generally been vague and unintelligible and that he has refused to clarify his meaning, and that the penalties threatened, as nearly as they can be calculated, amount to a very large sum.

A bank examiner took off from the plaintiff's books a list of loans in excess of $5,000, secured by collaterals. The Comptroller, for the purpose of establishing that the plaintiff was loaning large sums of money secured by stocks and bonds to borrowers who were not carrying substantial deposit balances, demanded that the amount of balance to the credit of each borrower be stated on the lists submitted. This the bank refused to do, claiming that there was an outstanding rule of the Bureau of the Comptroller of the Currency against so doing; thereupon the Comptroller demanded that a list be prepared and furnished under oath, together with a statement of all commissions collected and personally appropriated by certain executive officers of the plaintiff in connection with the purchase of bonds and stocks upon which plaintiff bank was loaning money, and on account of certain transactions in which the assets of the bank were concerned, and also information relating to the handling of the funds of the bank and in regard to commission collected personally by officers of the bank on real-estate loans negotiated by said officers for account of plaintiff's depositors and charged to their acccounts on the books of the bank; also, a list of borrowers to whom plaintiff bank had made loans aggregating $5,000 or more. The plaintiff's president asked for time to submit the request to a meeting of the board of directors, but the Comptroller persisted in calling for a report at once, threatening the imposition of penalties. The plaintiff objected that the Comptroller had no authority to call for a report to be made at once and that the section under which he purported to act did not authorize him to call for reports of the nature of the one demanded. Before this incident was closed there was certain correspondence between the Comptroller and the bank, during the course of which the plaintiff's president stated that "there was no foundation for said defendant's assumption that any officer of the plaintiff bank had profited by commissions received in connection with transactions of the plaintiff bank," and denied that the plaintiff bank had made any real-estate loans in contravention of the statute; and later, in pursuance of authority conferred by the board of directors, the officers of the bank sent to the Comptroller a statement of the individual balances of depositors demanded as aforesaid. The Comptroller has never formally assessed a penalty against the plaintiff in connection with this particular demand nor advised the plaintiff of the amount of any penalty nor withheld any sum assessed as a penalty from interest becoming due to the plaintiff on bonds deposited to secure circulation, although in assessing a penalty for failure to obey a subsequent and different demand it was stated that such assessment was in addition to other penalties to which it was claimed the plaintiff was liable.

Another demand of the Comptroller complained of was for a report showing whether or not the plaintiff had a private telegraph wire connected with stock brokerage houses in New York, and if so, whether the line was used for transmission of orders for the purchase of stock on the New York Stock Exchange by officers of the Riggs National Bank personally or officially; and if so, what commissions had been charged upon such transactions during the past 12 months, and how the same were credited or disposed of; and further, whether any part of the expense of such wire was borne by the Riggs National Bank, and if not, by whom. The right of the Comptroller to make this demand was questioned but the information was given.

The Comptroller demanded a special report, giving the names of certain extra employees who, it was claimed, were engaged for the purpose of permitting compliance with the Comptroller's demand, together with dates of their employment, and the salary or wages at which they were engaged. This demand was complied with, although it was claimed not to be within the power of the Comptroller to make.

The Comptroller demanded information as to whom the funds in a certain account appearing on the books of the plaintiff bank in the name of "Flather & Flather" belonged. Every fact respecting this account, amount thereof, source of funds credited to it, and the use from time to time made of those funds was fully and repeatedly stated to said Williams, who thereupon demanded the sworn opinion of the officers of the plaintiff bank on the legal conclusion respecting the ownership of said account. The officers of the bank declining to express an opinion on the question of law, the Comptroller demanded that the said information be given under oath to the best of the knowledge and belief of the officers, who persisted in their refusal, whereupon they were notified that the plaintiff bank was subject to a continuing penalty of $100 a day for such refusal.

The unwarranted demands of the Comptroller have resulted and are resulting in practically depriving the officers of the bank of the time necessary for the proper discharge of their duties and the conduct of the plaintiff's business.

The Comptroller made demands for certain reports, the nature of which is not disclosed, and the allegation is that he fixed a time beyond five days within which to make the reports; that in so doing he acted without authority and that the subject matter was not within the province of section 5211 of the Revised Statutes. It is also alleged that compliance was physically impossible but there is no allegation to the effect that further time was asked, and it is not stated whether the demands were ever complied with.

The Comptroller demanded a statement as to loans made by the bank directly or indirectly to Secretaries and Assistant Secretaries of the Treasury of the United States and to Comptrollers of the Currency and national bank examiners for 10 years prior to the demand. This demand was complied with in 15 days thereafter, which was the shortest time within which it could be prepared. Thereupon the Comptroller demanded a similar report in regard to all such loans made since the organization of the bank. This was furnished. Then a demand was made for a report of loans to the employees of the Comptroller's office. This was also furnished.

On August 6 the plaintiff asked for the printing of additional national bank notes which it was entitled to take out on the security of bonds of the United States, the order for the printing having been given in April. On August 10 the Comptroller asked for information in regard to securities eligible for such additional currency as the plaintiff claimed to be entitled to, saying that commercial paper was acceptable for the purpose and asking for a statement of the amount of commercial paper held by the bank. He was informed that the bank did not propose to take out any Aldrich-Vreeland currency; nevertheless the Comptroller persisted in calling for a list of commercial paper as defined by the Aldrich-Vreeland Act, and also called for a list of securities available for additional circulation under the act, and on August 15 the bank submitted a list of commercial paper and of securities. Certain criticisms of this list were made by the Comptroller, and thereupon a request was made by the bank for some authoritative definition of commercial paper so that it might review the list sent; whereupon the Comptroller repeated his demand, quoting the text of the Aldrich-Vreeland Act as a definition of commercial paper; whereupon the bank advised the Comptroller that if it should have occasion to apply for Aldrich-Vreeland paper it would submit a list of securities, asking "to be excused" from further discussion of the meaning of the terms "commercial paper" and "actual commercial transactions." Thereupon the Comptroller notified the bank that it was liable for per diem penalties prescribed by the statute. Again the matter was taken up with the bank by the Comptroller and an additional demand made for information, and the information was given notwithstanding the protest of the bank that no right to call for it existed, and the plaintiff offered to get further information in regard to certain notes which it held, to which offer the Comptroller replied that he would not require this to be done.

The next allegation is in regard to a demand for a special report made by the bank. A special report was furnished. It is stated argumentatively that the call for said report was "alien to the condition of the plaintiff bank" and an unlawful inquiry under color of office.

The Comptroller made a call for a special report in regard to oaths of office of the plaintiff's directors, presumbly as to the hypothecation of stock owned by them, and directed the plaintiff to request that each of its directors furnish a statement under oath containing numerous details as to their stock ownership in the plaintiff bank. This report was made. He made like calls on a certain national bank and trust company in which certain officers of the plaintiff bank were directors but not on other banks and trust companies in the District of Columbia.

Without stating any facts, it is alleged that the Comptroller maliciously used the powers of his office and his personal endeavors to prevent the plaintiff bank from continuing to act as local agent or correspondent of several hundred nonlocal banks.

There is set forth a certain occurrence for the purpose of showing hostility of the Comptroller toward the officers of the bank, and it is also alleged that the Comptroller stated that if the plaintiff did not obey the law he would not permit it to act as reserve agent.

It is further alleged that there was an unnecessarily protracted examination of the bank by bank examiners, continuing from the middle of November, 1914, into the middle of January, 1915, during which the examiners went through old ledgers and accounts of the plaintiff bank to the date of its organization. A bank examiner brought from without the jurisdiction of the District of Columbia began on January 15 an examination of the officers of the bank regarding certain matters. The examination was extensive, prevented the officers from giving their attention to the conduct of the bank's business, and was not necessary to a full and complete knowledge of the bank's then condition.

The written communications between the Comptroller and the plaintiff became so numerous that the plaintiff at its own cost caused the same to be printed in convenient form for its own use and the use of its counsel. During one of the examinations already referred to the examiner asked for copies of the printed correspondence. That request was not complied with. The comptroller then demanded that the plaintiff furnish him at once copies of the printed correspondence, and also to be informed how many copies were printed, to whom they were delivered, and how many had been destroyed. The report was to be signed and sworn to by the president, two vice-presidents and cashier. It is not stated whether the request for the report was complied with beyond the giving of one copy of such printed correspondence to the local national bank examiner, who gave it to the Comptroller.

A demand was made by the Comptroller for information as to whether or not books of record, or accounts, or portions thereof, or of correspondence, or reports, or statements, or vouchers of the bank had been destroyed. The call contained an insinuation that there had been such a destruction, and required the information to be given by affidavit made by the president, two vice presidents, cashier, and assistant cashier of the plaintiff. This call was complied with.

On January 14, 1915, the Comptroller called for a report in regard to certain loans secured by collateral, all of which had been paid, the circumstances attending which in no way affected the present condition of the plaintiff, one loan being of $86,500, and the other of $24,000, which he falsely called "dummy" or "concealed" loans. The call was complied with, although the plaintiff showed that the loans were entirely proper.

The Comptroller then made the following demand:

> "In view of conditions in your bank brought to light by the national bank examiners this office, in order that it may be more fully informed as to the extent to which the funds of your bank have been used by its officers for their personal and private benefit through indirect, or 'dummy' or concealed loans, as well as through direct borrowings, requests that you prepare and deliver to this office within 10 days, under penalties provided in sections 5211 and 5213, Revised Statutes, United States, a statement, or report, showing:
> "First. All direct loans made by the Riggs National Bank since its organization, either severally or jointly, to Charles C. Glover, W. J. Flather, M. E. Ailes, H. H.

Flather, Joshua Evans, jr., or any of them, and to members of the respective families of the above named, giving a full description of the notes and the collateral, if any, by which said loans were secured.

"Second. All indirect, or 'dummy' or concealed loans made by the Riggs National Bank since its organization for the benefit (directly or indirectly) of the individuals named above, or any of them including all loans which C. C. Glover, W. J. Flather, H. H. Flather, M. E. Ailes or Joshua Evans, jr., or any of them, indorsed or for which they furnished the whole, or any portion of the collateral by which loans to others were secured, and including all loans made in the name or names of others, the whole or a portion of the proceeds of which were turned over to the said Glover, Ailes, W. J. Flather, H. H. Flather, Joshua Evans, jr., or any of them, giving a full description of all notes and of the collateral, if any, by which they were secured; also showing what portions of the proceeds of said notes were received by or credited respectively to the said Glover, W. "Let your reply be under oath and over the signatures of C. C. Glover, W. J. Flather, H. H. Flather, M. E. Ailes, and Joshua Evans, jr."

to which the defendant replied as follows:

"We have received your letter of the 22d ultimo, in which you say that in view of conditions in this bank brought to light by the national bank examiners, etc., you request that we prepare and deliver to your office within 10 days, under penalties provided in sections 5211 and 5213, Revised Statutes, a statement showing:

" 'First. All direct loans made by the Riggs National Bank since its organization, either severally or jointly, to Charles C. Glover, W. J. Flather, M. E. Ailes, H. H. Flather, Joshua Evans, jr., or any of them, and to members of the respective families of the above named, giving a full description of the notes and the collateral, if any, by which said loans were secured.

" 'Second. All indirect, or "dummy" or concealed loans made by the Riggs National Bank since its organization for the benefit (directly or indirectly) of the individuals named above, or any of them including all loans which C. C. Glover, W. J. Flather, H. H. Flather, M. E. Ailes or Joshua Evans, jr., or any of them, indorsed or for which they furnished the whole, or any portion of the collateral, by which loans to other were secured, and including all loans made in the name or names of others, the whole or a portion of the proceeds of which were turned over to the said Glover, Ailes, W. J. Flather, H. H. Flather, Joshua Evans, jr., or any of them; giving a full description of all notes and of the collateral, if any, by which they were secured, also showing what portions of the proceeds of said notes were received by or credited, respectively, to the said Glover, W. J. Flather, H. H. Flather, M. E. Ailes, or Joshua Evans, jr., and also showing clearly the ownership at the time of the making of the said loans of the collateral securing them, in each case.'

"Replying to your first request we beg to say that there was not, when your examiners conducted their last examination into the affairs of this bank, had not been for several months prior thereto, has not been since then, and is not now, any loans in this bank to any of the officers named by you. We beg to say further that for more than 10 years past no one of the officers of this bank named by you has over borrowed one dollar from it except upon ample security, and all loans to them have been fully paid.

"The only loan to any member of the respective families of the officers named by you is one to Mrs. Emma A. Flather, wife of William J. Flather, as follows:

" '$4,506.25, dated April 3, 1914; secured by 50 shares Baltimore & Ohio Railroad stock, 12 shares United States steel, preferred, 500 Metropolitan Club 4½ per cent bond, $500 Metropolitan Club 4½ per cent bond (the latter having been added Dec. 24, 1914), and 12 shares Firemen's Insurance Co. stock, added October 26, 1914.' "

The collateral at this time having a market value of $5,890.

"This loan was made to Mrs. Flather upon her own collateral and for her sole benefit.

"Replying to your second request, we beg to say that this bank has never made any 'dummy' or 'concealed' loans to any of the officers named; and we beg further to say that there was not when your examiners conducted their last examination into the affairs of this bank, had not been for several months prior thereto, has not been since then, and is not now, any loan in this bank made for the benefit of either of the officers you name, or indorsed by any of them, or for which they furnished the whole or any portion of the collateral, or of which they received the whole or any portion of the proceeds.

"As the statement which you request would require an examination of all the books of this bank during the 18 years if its existence, thus entailing serious loss of time and diverting the attention of our officers and employees from our current business, and as it could not, except as to the loan to Mrs. Emma A. Flather, a full report of which we have given you above, possibly add anything to your full and complete knowledge of the condition of this bank, for which purpose only section 5211 authorizes you to call for a special report, we decline to furnish it. And, moreover, if the information you seem to desire is at all material to the duties of your office, it can doubtless be furnished to you by your bank examiner, because during the recent examination of this bank by him and his assistants, extending from the 13th of November, 1914, to the 16th of January, 1915, they spent days going over our discount ledgers from the organization of the bank, and an inspection of those ledgers shows that the accounts of C. C. Glover, W. J. Flather, H. H. Flather, and M. E. Ailes were double checked. It is, therefore, certain that even if those accounts were not literally transcribed, they were, at least, thoroughly examined; and if they were not, our books are subject to your examiner's call at any time, and we will gladly submit to him.

"Inasmuch as we have stated that there are no loans, direct or indirect, in this bank to any of its officers named by you, and no loans for which they furnished the collateral, or of which they received the proceeds, and that none of the officers named by you has borrowed, during the past 10 years, one dollar from this bank without ample security, and that all loans made to them have been fully paid, we comply with so much of your letter as requires this answer to be made under the oath and over the signatures of C. C. Glover, W. J. Flather, H. H. Flather, M. E. Ailes, and Joshua Evans, jr.

The Acting Comptroller under date of February 11 reiterated this demand.

Again under date of March 9, 1915, the Comptroller called for certain reports concerning various of the items above mentioned, which report was complied with on March 13, 1915.

On March 30 the Comptroller reiterated his call of January 22 and that of February 11 and stated as follows:

"You are now hereby notified that for your failure to make and transmit to this office within the time mentioned, or within five days after the expiration of said time, the special report or reports called for in the aforesaid letter of January 22, 1915, you are hereby assessed and directed to pay the penalty of $100 per day for each day from February 8, 1915, to date—March 30, 1915—both dates inclusive, in accordance with the provisions of sections 5211 and 5213 of the Revised Statutes of the United States. Said penalties amount to this time to $5,000, which sum you are hereby directed to pay at once into the Treasury of the United States under the provisions of the statutes above referred to.

"You are furthermore notified that continued failure on your part to furnish the records called for in the letter from this office of January 22, 1915, will subject you to further and continuing penalties under the provisions of sections 5211 and 5213 of the Revised Statutes of the United States.

"The $5,000 assessment imposed as above stated is in addition to all other penalties which you have incurred and are incurring for your failure to furnish other special reports which have heretofore been called for by the Comptroller of the Currency, in accordance with the provisions of sections 5211 and 5213 of the Revised Statutes of the United States."

On April 1 the plaintiff, denying the right to assess the penalty of $5,000 and anticipating that the Comptroller might request the Treasurer of the United States, under section 5213, of the Revised Statutes, to withhold payment of interest which would then become due to plaintiff, demanded payment of such interest, which was to fall due on April 1, and requested that in the alternative the Treasurer should not take any action in the matter without giving the bank an opportunity to be heard or take appropriate legal action.

On April 5, 1915, the Comptroller began an inquiry in regard to a transaction in United States' bonds concluded more than seven years prior thereto in which the bank received a large profit, which inquiry was not pertinent to the bank's then condition. Charging certain derelictions on the part of the officers of the bank, the Comptroller directed that the facts of the above transaction be laid before the board of directors with the request that they acknowledge receipt of the Comptroller's communication. In the same communication he notified the bank that in view of the conditions in the bank and of the unreliability of the statements of its officers and of the disregard of instructions from the Comptroller's office, he would not until further notice approve of it as a depository of reserves of other national banks. His intention is not based on any bona fide exercise of discretion, but is due to personal animosity and a desire to injure the plaintiff, and if acted upon would result in great damage to the bank.

Demand was made on March 30 for payment of the penalty of $5,000 assessed.

There are numerous grounds stated as reasons why the bill should be dismissed. In some of them all three defendants join; others are made separately.

The Secretary of the Treasury states as one ground of his motion that he has no power with regard to the assessment of penalties; as another, that he has no authority in regard to the approval of depository banks in reserve cities; and as another ground, that the bill does not show that he has usurped any of the functions of the Treasurer of the United States.

The Treasurer states separately as a ground for dismissal that his acts sought to be enjoined are prescribed by law.

The Secretary of the Treasury and the Comptroller join in stating as grounds for dismissal that as to the threatened refusal to approve of the plaintiff bank as a depository of funds the suit is prematurely begun as the Comptroller has not acted or been called upon to act in the matter, and that the court has no power to review the exercises of the Comptroller's discretion in regard to reserve banks; that as to the assessment of penalties hereafter for alleged defaults the Comptroller has declared his intention not to assess and waived further answer, and as to other threatened injury the bill does not show a foundation for relief.

The three defendants state as grounds for dismissal that the suit so far as the assessed penalty is concerned involves property of the United States; that the plaintiff has an adequate remedy at law, and that the Comptroller acted within his powers in assessing the penalty of $5,000, and that therefore the court has no jurisdiction to review his act.

Before considering the facts with reference to the charges made against the Secretary of the Treasury and the Comptroller of the Currency three of the grounds of the motion to dismiss should be considered, namely, that as to the $5,000 penalty, this is a suit against the United States, which has not consented to be sued; another is that based on the contention that the Comptroller has waived the assessment of penalties for certain defaults and therefore has left nothing for the court to consider; and the third is, that there is an adequate remedy at law.

Is this a suit against the United States so far as the $5,000 assessed as a penalty is concerned?

Section 5159 of the Revised Statutes provides that associations before beginning business—

> "shall transfer to the Treasurer of the United States any United States registered bonds bearing interest * * *. Such bonds shall be received by the Treasurer on deposit and shall by him be safely kept in his office until they shall be otherwise disposed of in pursuance of the provisions of this act."

These bonds may be returned upon the return by the bank to the Comptroller of its circulating notes in a certain proportion. (Rev. Stat., sec. 5160.) All transfers of bonds must be made to the treasurer "in trust for the association" and a receipt be given—

> "by the Comptroller * * * stating that the bond is held in trust for the association * * * and as security for the redemption and payment of any circulating notes that have been or may be delivered to the association. No assignment or transfer of any such bond by the treasurer shall be deemed valid unless countersigned by the Comptroller." (Rev. Stat., sec. 5162.)

Section 5167 provides in part as follows:

> "The bonds transferred to and deposited with the Treasurer of the United States, by any association, for the security of its circulating notes, shall be held exclusively for that purpose, until such notes are redeemed, except as provided in this Title. The Comptroller of the Currency shall give to any such association powers of attorney to receive and appropriate to its own use the interest on the bonds which it has so transferred to the Treasurer; but such powers shall become inoperative whenever such association fails to redeem its circulating notes."

It is obvious from the reading of the above provisions that it was intended that interest on bonds deposited should be security for redemption purposes. There is no express provisions that the power of attorney to collect interest shall become inoperative when the Treasurer undertakes to collect a penalty out of interest but such would seem to be the necessary inference. Section 5213, which is the one under which arises the question here presented, provides that the amount of the penalty assessed in pursuance of its provisions may be retained by the Treasurer upon the order of the Comptroller out of interest on bonds deposited as it becomes due. Section 5215 provides that on failure of a bank to make a return of its notes in circulation, deposits and capital, it may be penalized and that the amount of the penalty may be collected by the Treasurer out of interest on bonds; and section 5216 provides that the amount of said taxes when not paid by the bank may be reserved by the Treasurer out of interest. When there is a default in redemption of any of the notes of the bank, the bonds are forfeited to the United States (Rev. Stat., sec. 5229), but when the Comptroller claims that there is a default and begins proceedings looking to a forfeiture, the bank may take the matter into court for judicial determination. There is no provision in the national bank act permitting a suit to determine the right to collect penalties out of interest, but these penalties can be recovered by action as in other cases. In the former case, the forfeiture is for the purpose of enabling the United States to reimburse itself for redemption of notes of the bank, but in the latter case the money forfeited becomes the absolute property of the United States, and it is that claim asserted in the name of the United States in its own right which it is here contended can not be passed upon because the United States has not consented to be sued in regard to it in a court of equity.

The claim of the bank that payment of interest on bonds involves ordinarily the performance of a mere ministerial duty and therefore one the performance of which can be compelled by mandamus is upheld by the principle upon which Kendall v. Stokes (12 Pet., 524), Parish v. McVeagh (214 U. S., 134), and Cortelyou v. The United States, ex rel. Thorpe (32 App. D. C., 20), were decided. Congress has appropriated money for the payment of the interest and admittedly interest on the bonds of the plaintiff was due on April 1, 1915, so this is not a case in which as to the claim of the plaintiff for the payment of money it can be said that a proceeding against the Secretary to compel payment by mandamus would be in effect a proceeding against the United States. After the order was given by the Comptroller of the Currency to the Treasurer to collect the penalty out of interest, the situation was substantially changed in part. If this suit had not been brought to restrain his action the Treasurer would have had another ministerial duty to perform, but it would have been owed to the United States, namely, to cover the money into the Treasury, as it is not for the Treasurer to inquire whether the penalty was rightfully assessed. Pending this litigation, the Treasurer is merely a stakeholder. If the Comptroller is wrong, the money must be paid to the plaintiff, but if the Comptroller is right, the money must still be paid to the plaintiff, formally, of course, and by a mere bookkeeping entry, and when so paid the penalty is collected from it by making another bookkeeping entry. It can not be successfully maintained that there would not be at some moment a payment of interest if the penalty should be collected; otherwise, the United States would always stand on its own books as a debtor to the plaintiff. The situation is analogous to that which was shown in Rolston v. Missouri Fund Commissioner (120 U. S., 390). The facts are stated by the court at great length, but for the present purpose a short quotation from the opinion will be sufficient. At page 392 the court said:

> "This was a suit in equity brought by the plaintiffs [naming them], trustees in a mortgage made by the Hannibal & St. Joseph Railroad Co., a Missouri corporation, to restrain the executive officers of Missouri from selling the mortgaged property under prior statutory mortgages in favor of the State, on the ground that the liability for which the earlier liens were created had been satisfied, and that they, as trustees, were entitled to an assignment of those liens."

The court says further at page 411:

> "It is next contended that this suit can not be maintained because it is in its effect a suit against the State, which is prohibited by the eleventh amendment of the Constitution of the United States, and Louisiana v. Jumel (107 U. S., 711) is cited in support of this position. But this case is entirely different from that. There the effort was to compel a State officer to do what a statute prohibited him from doing. Here the suit is to get a State officer to do what a statute requires of him. The litigation is with the officer, not the State. The law makes it his duty to assign the liens in question to the trustees when they make a certain payment. The trustees claim they have made this payment. The officer says they have not, and there is no controversy about his duty if they have. The only inquiry is, therefore, as to the fact of a payment according to the requirements of the law. If it has been made, the trustees are entitled to their decree. If it has not, a decree in their favor, as the case now stands, must be denied; but as the parties are all before the court, and the suit is in equity, it may be retained so as to determine what the trustees must do in order to fulfill the law. And under what circumstances the governor can be compelled to execute the assignment which has been provided for."

See also Board of Liquidation et al. v. McComb (92 U. S., 531). There is a clear distinction between the present case and State of Mississippi v. Durham, Comptroller of the Treasury (4 Mackey, 235), for in that case there was no indebtedness to the plaintiff such as there is here, but the claim was for certain moneys received from sales of public lands which the plaintiff said it was entitled to under an act of Congress. The defendant refused to pay the claim because of a ruling of an auditor of the Treasury Department to the effect that there was a counterclaim in favor of the United States against the plaintiff. The court said that the payment of the claim of the plaintiff did not involve a mere ministerial duty but that the determination of that matter involved the exercise of judgment and discretion, and though the invalidity of the alleged counterclaim was admitted by the defendant the court refused to decide whether the defendant should pay plaintiff's claim.

The right of the court in the present case to inquire into the soundness of the contention of the Comptroller that the penalty was rightfully assessed is fully established in Philadelphia Co. v. Stimson (223 U. S., 605), in which case it was held that if the conduct of an officer of the Government constitutes an unwarrantable interference with property of the plaintiff the recourse of the latter in equity for protection is not to be defeated on the ground that the suit is one against the United States; that the exemption of the United States from suit does not protect its officers from personal liability to persons whose rights of property they have wrongfully invaded and that in case of an injury threatened by his illegal action the officer can not claim immunity from injunction process. The question is for the court to determine when it is claimed that an officer has acted in excess of his authority or under an authority not validly conferred. To the same effect are Noble v. Union River Logging Co. (147 U. S., 165), Lane v. Watts (234 U. S., 525), and numerous other cases; and while in those cases relief was sought against the officer whose act was questioned whereas here the Comptroller has nothing to do with the payment of the $5,000 to the plaintiff, still the validity of his act in assessing the penalty may be inquired into, and if found to be unwarranted by law the payment of the amount to the plaintiff can be directed, as the officer withholding the payment does so because of the assessment. See Butterworth v. Hoe (112 U. S., 50), holding that the Commissioner of Patents might be compelled to issue letters patent which he was withholding only because the Secretary of the Interior claimed the right to review his decision that the letters should issue, which claim of the Secretary the court said was without foundation.

It is true that there is here no direct interference with tangible property as in Philadelphia Co. v. Stimpson, Noble v. Union River Logging Co., and Lane v. Watts, cited above, but there is no difference in substance for as pointed out above the interest due the plaintiff is in form to be paid. It is then to be taken to pay the penalty. This taking can be enjoined if the penalty was wrongfully assessed. It would be different if the plaintiff were claiming property of the Government. (See Washington Steel & Ordnance Co. v. Martin, 44 Wash. L. Rep., 53.)

The suit, then, does not affect property of the United States in the sense in which that phrase is used in the cases, but is rather for the purpose of preventing the assertion in the name of the United States of a claim against money which Congress has appropriated for a debt admittedly due the plaintiff, and which must in contemplation of law be paid before the penalty can be collected from it.

In the affidavit filed by the Comptroller in opposition to the motion for a preliminary injunction appears the following:

> "Inasmuch as the plaintiff did ultimately file reports to all the calls (although at times incomplete and evasive), except that of January 22, 1915, aforesaid, exercising my discretion as Comptroller of the Currency, I have no intention of assessing or undertaking to collect any penalty on such calls, notwithstanding the fact that some of said reports were not filed within the time prescribed by law, and I hereby waive the right to assess any penalty on such calls other than said penalty of $5,000.
> "I admit that the Treasurer of the United States still retains said sum of $5,000 interest which on April 1, 1915, became due from the United States on $1,000,000 of United States bonds. I deny that said detention is unlawful and aver that it is in strict accordance with law."

It is contended that by this disclaimer the Comptroller has removed from the case all basis for a claim to relief against the assessment of penalties in the future because of past delinquencies of the plaintiff.

The plaintiff says that this contention is one that should be raised as a matter of defense and is not to be considered in testing the sufficiency of the bill. This contention was raised in Delevan v. N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. Co. (216 N. Y., 359), in the Court of Appeals of New York, which stated that as a rule of pleading the contention was doubtless sound, but when the question presented upon appeal had by lapse of time and the changed course of events become academic merely the court would ordinarily refuse to decide the abstract question and would dismiss the appeal. The Supreme Court of the United States has on numerous occasions dismissed writs of error on representations made to it showing that the controversy no longer existed. (Little v. Bowers, 134 U. S., 547; Singer Manufacturing Co. v. Wright, 141 U. S., 696; California v. San Pablo R. R. Co., 149 U. S., 306; and other cases cited in United States v. Hamburg-Amerikanische Packetfahrt-Action Gesellschaft et al., 239 U. S. 466.) There would seem to be no reason why the question can not be raised before an answer is filed.

The question must be considered with reference to those demands, the responses to which the Comptroller now says are satisfactory to him though made too late, and with reference to the demand for failure to comply with which he assessed penalties aggregating $3,000. In regard to the former the question is whether the Comptroller, who at the time of the filing of the bill was apparently dissatisfied with the reports received, may now and conclusively for all purposes express his satisfaction; further, whether, still stating that such reports were received too late, he may conclusively estop himself or any successor in office from the assessment of penalties by a waiver. As to the latter, the question is whether the Comptroller can, while an attempt is being made to collect penalties for a default which still continues, estop himself or any successor in office from assessing further penalties. If he can estop himself in either instance, then the further question is present whether it is a moot question which the court is called upon to decide, or at least whether in the exercise of its discretion the court may determine not to exercise its extraordinary equitable powers because there is no longer reason to fear the doing of the acts complained of.

The purpose of the act giving the Comptroller power to call for special reports is obvious. Supervision over national banks is vested in him. In order that he may perform his duties he is given authority by the section here under consideration to call for special reports when in his judgment they are necessary to a full and complete knowledge of the condition of the bank. He alone, having power to act, and therefore being the only one for whose benefit information is necessary, is the only one to determine that question, and also whether his call for a special report has been complied with. There can be no doubt, then, of his right to say that the plaintiff has given him the information desired nor that, having so announced to the plaintiff, the liability of the latter to penalties ceased as of the respective times when the reports were received.

A more difficult question to decide is whether, when a report satisfactory as to its contents has been furnished after the time within which it should have been made, the Comptroller may effectually waive the right to assess a penalty for the default. A careful search has not disclosed any case in which the question has been determined. This is not to be wondered at, for it is difficult to see how such a question could be raised except as it is raised here, otherwise, perhaps, than in proceedings based on a charge of malfeasance, as there would seem to be no one authorized to institute mandamus proceedings to compel the assessment of such a penalty. It may be surmised, perhaps, that in very many instances it has occurred that an administrative officer, knowing of the technical right to sue for a penalty, has failed to take any steps to have the right enforced, because upon consideration of all the circumstances of the case, he has determined that it would be unfair to exact the penalty, and the court may take judicial notice of the practice of instituting actions for the purpose of testing the right to impose a penalty, picking out a single violation and ignoring others, and then, if the law is upheld, enforcing it as to subsequent offenses but disregarding past offenses except the one sued on. (See Louisville & Nashville R. Co. v. Stiles, 186 Fed. Rep., 176, 193.) But these considerations do not determine the point involved here. Keeping in mind that the purpose of the penalties in question is not punishment for the doing of any act forbidden by statute or of any act inherently wrong, but that they are intended to constrain the giving of information to an officer of the Government to aid him in the performance of his duties, certainly it would not be against public policy to permit him, after having received the necessary information, though too late, to determine that no penalty should be assessed in view of all the circumstances of the case. For instance, if through some cause over which it had no control a bank should fail to comply in time with a demand for one of the five regular reports it would be unfair certainly to make it obligatory on the Comptroller to assess a penalty, and it is thought that his attempt to do so under such circumstances might be enjoined as intimated in Mo. Pacific R. Co. v. Omaha (235 U. S., 121). In that case the facts were that a municipal ordinance required the building of a viaduct by the plaintiff, and that the work should be commenced within 30 days after the passage of the ordinance and penalties for delay were provided. Litigation ensued over the right to require the building of the aqueduct, and upon the argument in the Supreme Court it was contended among other things that the plaintiff could not possibly begin the erection of the work within 30 days; but the court said:

> "The last objection is that the railroad company was required to begin construction within 26 days after the passing of the ordinance, a time so short as to render it physically impossible to comply with the ordinance, and that upon lack of such compliance the ordinance imposes penalties upon the railroad company, the collection of which penalties it is also sought to enjoin. It is to be noted that the enforcement of this ordinance has been entirely prevented by the injunction issued in this case, and kept in force since, and we have no doubt that should an attempt be made hereafter to require compliance with the terms of the ordinance as to the beginning of construction, they would be given a reasonable interpretation so as to permit of preparation before the beginning of the work, and if any oppression should result in this respect there is no doubt as to the power of a court of equity to relieve the railroad company from the infliction of unwarranted penalties if it should turn out to be physically impossible, as the company insists, to comply with the ordinance in this respect."

If, then, a court of equity would interfere to prevent an unreasonable exaction of penalties, it would seem to follow that an officer having power to assess penalties should have the power to act equitably of his own volition. That it is not incumbent upon the Comptroller to assess a penalty whenever it is in his power to do so may fairly be inferred from a statement by the Supreme Court in its opinion in Cochran v. United States (157 U. S., 286), where the court was considering an indictment for a false statement made in one of the five regular reports required of banks. The court said:

"If such report were not properly verified and attested it would doubtless be competent for the Comptroller of the Currency to reject it, or to proceed against the association under section 5213 for failure to make and transmit a proper report" (p. 289).

In other words, it would be proper for him, it seems, to give the bank an opportunity to send in a proper report rather than to proceed under section 5213, which tuthe one providing for penalties. Olp v. Leddick (14 N. Y. Supp., 41) points to that is nclusion. That was an action brought under a New York statute known as the cotax-payers' act" for the purpose of restraining the settlement by two of the defend- "nts, who were overseers of the poor, of certain actions brought to recover penalties aof another defendant who had violated the excise laws. The complaint in the action to recover the penalties contained 100 separate counts or causes of action on which judgment for $5,000 was demanded. Negotiations for a settlement of this action resulted in an agreement to pay a $50 penalty and $100 costs. The defendant charged with violation of the law was financially responsible. The complaint in the action seeking to restrain such settlement was dismissed upon the merits, the court stating one reason for the dismissal as follows:

"But there is an additional ground upon which the decision of the learned justice at special term may be sustained; namely, that an overseer of the poor may settle and discontinue an action, whether brought by himself or his predecessors, when honestly made, as was done in this case. (Bellinger v. Birge, 7 N. Y. Supp., 695, and 8 N. Y. Supp., 174; People v. Leonard, 74 N. Y., 443.) The evidence and the findings show that the settlement of these actions was honestly made in furtherance of a general public opinion expressed through the board of supervisors and otherwise, and upon terms which were fair and reasonable."

In view of the fact that the matter of special reports to the Comptroller is one of administration, to be acted upon by him in the exercise of a broad discretion after a consideration of all the facts, and as any question in regard to the sufficiency of special reports is exclusively for his determination, and as an effort made by a bank to comply in good faith with a request for a report may fail through a misunderstanding or for some cause not within the control of a bank, it must be held that the Comptroller acts within the powers conferred on him if upon a review of the entire situation he determines that penalties should not be assessed in any particular case, provided that he is not insisting upon the validity of an assessment made for a given default, which default still continues, to which situation the reasoning above would not apply. But to hold that an administrative officer may refrain from undertaking to collect penalties in a case like the present one; that he can not be compelled to do so; and that he would not be guilty of malfeasance in office for his failure to endeavor to collect does not lead to the conclusion that he may by a mere waiver, which is not part of a compromise, conclusively estop himself from endeavoring to enforce a penalty, so it remains to consider whether the court should pass upon the question of liability to pay a penalty for a default which no longer entails liability for accumulating penalties or which can not lead to numerous actions at law.

If the conclusion above stated is sound, the Comptroller has not brought himself within the principle of those cases which hold that when a question has become moot the court will not decide it, a principle most recently announced by the Supreme Court of the United States in United States v. Hamburg-Amerikanische Packetfahrt-

Actien-Gesellschaft et al., supra, in which case the court took judicial notice of the European war and held that the existence of it removed all question from the case, the contracts involved being between corporations between two of the opposing belligerents, and therefore decided that it was without authority to pass upon the case; nor within the decision of Behn v. Young (21 Ga., 207), to the effect that where a defendant comes into court offering to do all that the plaintiff can equitably require of him no injunction will issue. When the bill was filed the Comptroller claimed that the liability to penalties was continuing and the penalties accumulating and the case presented is one for the exercise of the court's discretion under all the circumstances. In Piano Workers v. P. & O. Supply Co. (124 Ill. App., 353) it was held to be within the discretion of the court to issue a permanent injunction or not where differences between employers and employees resulting in a strike had been composed after the issuance of an interlocutory injunction but before final hearing. Reynolds v. Everett (114 N. Y., 189) was also a case of difficulties between employers and employees, and the strike having ceased before the trial it was held that the court below was warranted in dismissing the complaint on that ground. In General Electric Co. v. New England Electric Co. (123 Fed., 310) it was held that a court of equity was without jurisdiction in a suit for infringement of patent where the defendant on learning of the infringement and before the commencement of the suit finally and in good faith abandoned the manufacture and sale of the infringing articles and was not threatening further infringement when the suit was filed. In Cayuta Wheel & Foundry Co. v. Kennedy Valve Manufacturing Co. (127 Fed., 355), which was also a suit to enjoin infringement of a patent, the defendant denied that there was any infringement on his part, and did not in any way set up that further infringement was not intended, so the court proceeded to an adjudication in favor of the plaintiff. In Odell v. Stout (22 Fed., 159) the court said, at page 169:

> "It is true, as urged by counsel for complainants, that it has been held that stopping infringement will not prevent an injunction. But the cases have been where the manufacture was stopped at or after the bringing of the suit, or the indications were that the defendants, having once been wrongdoers, were likely to be so again as soon as released from court. If a defendant has, before suit brought, abandoned the manufacture and sale of the infringing machine, and the court is satisfied that the abandonment was in good faith and final, the injunction ought to be refused, upon the principles of equity applicable to injunction. However, as we find that the defendants in this case are infringers, we think it well to retain the whole case under our control, and the injunction and order for an account may be made to apply to the manufacture and sale of both mills."

In Roberts v. City of Louisville (17 S. W. (Ky.), 206), which was a suit instituted to enjoin the passage of an ordinance, the answer stated that the ordinance had been withdrawn after the commencement of the suit and was not before the council when the trial was had, but the court said that as the plaintiffs had a cause of action, withdrawal of the ordinance did not have the effect to defeat their right to the relief sought, especially as another ordinance of the same character might thereafter be introduced and passed, unless the right to do so be perpetually enjoined. McFarland v. Linderkugel (107 Wis., 474) was a suit in equity to compel the removal of fences maintained by the defendant across a street passing the plaintiff's premises and to perpetually enjoin their maintenance. The suggestion was made by the defendant's counsel after the suit was commenced and before trial that the defendant had removed the fences, but the court held that this could not affect the plaintiff's right to a judgment, as the defendant might again insist upon the right to replace and maintain the obstruction.

In patent cases it is also held that a suit will be retained for an accounting or an award of damages where there can not be an injunction, the patent having expired pending suit. (See Clarke v. Worcester, 119 U. S., 322; Biddle v. Bennett, 122 U. S., 71.)

In view of the above authorities and others that might be cited, and without questioning the good faith of the Comptroller, it seems that the proper exercise of the discretion of the court requires an adjudication upon the right of the Comptroller to now assess penalties, although by his expressed satisfaction with the contents of the reports received he has removed from the case so far as those reports are concerned the situation existing when the bill was filed, namely, the claim that penalties were running and accumulating.

The plaintiff contends that if the demand of the Comptroller for the report, the failure to furnish which led to the assessment of penalties amounting to $5,000, was not lawfully made, but which was at the commencement of the action being insisted upon, there was then presented a case of which a court of equity should take jurisdiction, because the penalties were accumulating from day to day and because the defendant was threatening to order the collection from time to time of the penalties as interest became payable on the plaintiff's bonds. On the other hand, the defendants say that the Comptroller having assessed a penalty of $5,000, his power to assess has ceased and that no additional penalty can be imposed or collected. The statute says that the bank is "subject to a penalty of $100 for each day" that it delays to make the report, and that—

> "Whenever any association delays or refuses to pay the penalty herein imposed after it has been assessed by the Comptroller of the Currency, the amount thereof may be retained. * * *"

To place the defendant's construction on the section would defeat the purpose of the statute, which is to constrain the giving of the necessary information. If an assessment while the default of the bank continues exhausts the Comptroller's power, then there is no further constraint on the bank to furnish the report; and, on the other hand, if only one assessment is contemplated and liability for continuing penalties is to be incentive to make the report a continued refusal of the bank to comply with the Comptroller's request would result in no assessment at all. It seems that a proper construction of the statute is that it was intended to provide for as many penalties as there are days of default, and therefore that if the report was rightfully demanded a separate action might be maintained for each day's penalty or the accumulated penalties upon any day when interest falls due on the plaintiff's bond might be collected therefrom. It is thought that the situation so presented is one in which a court of equity will take jurisdiction.

In Philadelphia Co. v. Stimson (223 U. S., 605), Mr. Justice Hughes, writing for the court, says at page 620:

> "A court of equity, said this court in In re Sawyer (124 U. S., 200, 210), 'has no jurisdiction over the prosecution, the punishment or the pardon of crimes or misdemeanors. * * * To assume such a jurisdiction, or to sustain a bill in equity to restrain or relieve against proceedings for the punishment of offenses * * * is to invade the domain of the courts of common law, or of the executive and administrative department of the Government.' (Harkrader v. Wadley, 172 U. S., 148, 170; Fitts v. McChee, 172 U. S., 516, 531; 2 Story's Eq. Jur., sec. 893.) But a distinction obtains when it is found to be essential to the protection of the property rights, as to which the jurisdiction of a court of equity has been invoked, that it should restrain the defendant from instituting criminal actions involving the same legal questions. This is illustrated in the decisions of this court in which officers have been enjoined from bringing criminal proceedings to compel obedience to unconstitutional requirements. (Davis & Farnum Mfg. Co. v. Los Angeles, 189 U. S., 207, 217, 218; Dobbins v. Los Angeles, 195 U. S., 223, 241; Ex parte Young, 209 U. S., 123, 161, 162; Western Union Telegraph Co. v. Andrews, 216 U. S., 165.) In this there is no attempt to restrain a court from trying persons charged with crime, or the grand jury from the exercise of its functions, but the injunction binds the defendant not to resort to criminal procedure to enforce illegal demands."

The court in that case said, as already stated above, that a Federal officer acting in excess of his authority was in the same position as a State officer seeking to enforce unconstitutional enactments. In Ex parte Young (209 U. S., 123, 160) the court said that it would be an injury to complainant to harass it with a multiplicity of actions in an endeavor to enforce penalties under an unconstitutional enactment and to prevent it ought to be within the jurisdiction of a court of equity.

On the authority of those cases it must be held here that equity has jurisdiction because it is alleged that property rights are being threatened by reason of acts of a Federal officer claimed to be unlawful, which, if not restrained, will lead to a multiplicity of actions.

It remains to consider whether the facts alleged make out a cause of action.

The defendant McAdoo and the defendant Williams are charged with conspiring to ruin the plaintiff's business. Each is sued in his official capacity and every act charged is alleged to have been done or threatened to have been done in violation of the duty imposed by the office, except the act of the defendant McAdoo in inducing the Secretary of War to remove Panama Canal funds from the bank and the act of the defendant Williams in causing the removal of Red Cross funds.

It is sometimes said that a conspiracy will be enjoined. Such statements are generally made in passing upon cases involving a secondary boycott, but such a boycott is itself a threat made by several acting together, and what therefore is really enjoined in those cases is the making of threats. The court said in Swift & Company v. The United States (196 U. S., 375) that it could not issue a general injunction against all possible breaches of the law and that the injunction in that case ought to set forth more exactly the transactions in which certain directions and agreements were to be forbidden; and finally, at page 402:

> "It only remains to add that the foregoing question does not apply to the earlier sections which charge direct restraints of trade within the decisions of the court, and that the criticism of the decree as if it ran generally against combinations in restraint of trade or to monopolize trade ceases to have any force when the clause 'against any other method or device' is stricken out. So modified, it restrains such combinations only to the extent of certain specified devices which the defendants are alleged to have used and intend to continue to use."

Where the efficacy in combining consists of each conspirator doing a several part and it is planned to operate thus singly, an indictable conspiracy exists under some circumstances though no one thing proposed to be done would be ground for an indictment even if it were actually accomplished by one of the conspirators alone. (Bishop's New Criminal Law, col. 2, sec. 185.) And in such a situation the doing of any of the acts complained of should be restrained by injunction, but where the act complained of is absolutely privileged and therefore beyond he reach of injunctive process and arrangement to do that act simultaneously with the doing of acts by others as part of an alleged scheme can not be considered as an overt act done in pursuance of an actionable conspiracy for the same reason that where an overt act is privileged a conspiracy to do it is not a ground for the recovery of damages in an action on the case. (Nalle v. Oyster, 230 U. S., 165.) If this conclusion is sound it follows that the bill does not show any reason for joining the Secretary of the Treasury as a defendant, leaving out of consideration for the present the question whether he has a mere ministerial duty to perform in regard to the interest withheld in the event that the Comptroller's assessment of penalties is not valid, for the reason that the Secretary of the Treasury owes no duty to the plaintiff bank in regard to the deposit of public funds. There is no requirement of law that they shall be deposited anywhere out of the Treasury of the United States, nor that when they are deposited in banks they shall remain there for any given length of time. The matter is within the uncontrollable judgment of the Secretary and even though he should threaten to withdraw deposits with the hope and belief that doing so would injure a bank, no court could legally restrain him.

The only other allegations in the bill relating to an official act of the Secretary of the Treasury are those in regard to the failure to pay the interest due on the plaintiff's bonds. This alleged failure to act can not be controlled by the court because it is alleged to be the carrying out of a conspiracy for the reason that the Secretary in refusing to pay, if as a matter of fact he is refusing, is not thereby failing to perform a mere ministerial duty. He had nothing to do and could have nothing to do with the asesment of the penalty for the payment of which the money is being retained. The statute provides that where there is such an assessment, money due for interest may be retained, but it does not give the Secretary any power to inquire into the propriety of the action of the Comptroller in making the assessment. If the assessment be held to be void then should the Secretary fail to pay the interest, if that be his ministerial duty, and not until then can he be compelled to act.

The plaintiff evidently relies on the case of Allen v. Burrow (69 Kans., 812) in joining two Government officials in this suit, but the facts in that case were entirely different. It was charged there by one of two persons claiming to be the regular nominee of a political party for a public office that a majority of the members of a board of three constituted by law for the purpose of determining who was the regular candidate had conspired with his opponent to prevent the placing of the plaintiff's name upon the official ballot as the regular candidate, having agreed that the plaintiff should be prevented from having his name placed thereon regardless of the merits of his contention to have it placed there, and having agreed with the defendant's opponent that if the latter should procure from a bolting and fraudulent assemblage of persons claiming to be the congressional convention of the district a false, spurious, and fraudulent certificate of nomination and would file the same, the two members of the board constituting a majority would recognize such certificate notwithstanding any objections thereto; and notwithstanding any proof of the fraudulent character of the assemblage which had pretended to authorize the execution thereof. The obvious difference between the two cases appears from this statement of Allen v. Burrow and is emphasized by the fact that the court there assumed jurisdiction of the particular contest saying that in some way a decision must be made between the rival claimants.

The case will not be further distinguished here except by stating what seems to the court to be the rule applicable to the present case, namely, that where the act sought to be accomplished by an alleged conspiracy is not in itself an official act, and where the persons said to be endeavoring to accomplish the object of the alleged conspiracy are acting in an official capacity only, each one having official duties which he alone can perform, the performance of which is not under the control of the other, they should not be joined as officials in one action as conspirators. The law imposes upon them a duty to act. If they act within their powers their motives can not be questioned. If each is undertaking to act without authority he can be restrained in a separate suit and his motives make no difference, or, as the court said in Myles Salt Co. v. Board of Commissioners, etc. (239 U. S., 478): "We are not dealing with motives alone, but as well with their resultant action."

The Secretary of the Treasury had no official duties to perform in regard to the deposits or withdrawals of Panama Canal funds alleged by the bill. They were in the control of the Secretary of War exclusively. Assuming but not deciding that an averment that "plaintiff believes and therefore avers" that the defendant McAdoo used his influence to bring about a withdrawal of these funds from the plaintiff bank is a sufficient averment of a fact in a pleading and that it is anything more than an allegation of a suspicion it clearly could be considered only as evidence of malice, if at all, but standing alone it amounts to nothing, for there is no allegation that the Secretary of the Treasury made any false statements to the Secretary of War nor is there anything to show that the latter acted without due consideration of all the facts unless the allegations were intended as the foundation for an inference that the Secretary of War withdrew the Panama funds merely because the Secretary of the Treasury asked him to or joined in the alleged conspiracy but such a claim would have to be explicitly stated in order to afford a basis for action by the court.

It is to be noted also as to there being allegations of facts sufficient to show a conspiracy so far as the Secretary of the Treasury is concerned that the bill states that the—

> "withdrawals made by direction or through the influence of the defendant McAdoo, including the said Panama Canal deposits and the discriminatory withholding of District of Columbia tax deposits amounting in all to nearly $2,500,000 occurred at a time when all the banks in the United States were making strenuous efforts to husband and protect their resources; the bonds by which said Canal deposits were secured could only be marketed at private sale; the war in Europe had resulted in the closing of the public exchanges throughout the United States; prices of securities were at the lowest figure in many years; panic conditions existed; but, nevertheless, the defendant McAdoo, in the circumstances aforesaid, forced the withdrawal and withholding of the aforesaid sum of about $2,500,000 in a deliberate attempt to wreck the plaintiff bank * * * ."

The war in Europe began during the last week in July or the first week in August, 1914, of which fact the court may take judicial notice. (The United States v. Hamburg-Amerikanische Packetfahrt-Actien Gesselschaft et al., supra.) The bill alleges that—

> "it has been the custom of the Treasury Department to deposit for a limited period of time each year a sum of money approximately equal to the municipal taxes which are paid into the Federal Treasury annually in the month of May. * * * In the distribution of this public tax money for deposit in May, 1914, the defendant McAdoo arbitrarily wholly eliminated the plaintiff bank. * * *"

and further that—

> "Thereafter, on July 1, 1914, the defendant McAdoo * * * discontinued plaintiff bank as a depository, and plaintiff returned its balance of $100,927.90 to the Treasury on the following day. * * *"

and further that—

There is a complete failure to show that for the purpose of wrecking the plaintiff bank the defendant took advantage of conditions arising out of the war in Europe. In fact, the plaintiff's own specific allegations disprove the coincidence on which alone such a charge could be based.

The bill does not state facts sufficient to constitute a cause of action against the Secretary of the Treasury as for a conspiracy nor as to anything done or threatened by him, and it must be dismissed as to him unless he is a necessary party in order to give relief by way of directing a purely ministerial act, namely, the payment of interest withheld because of the penalty of $5,000 assessed by the Comptroller of the Currency.

Has the Comptroller of the Currency assumed as a basis for his various acts a power which is not given him by the statutes? The answer to this question calls for a construction of sections 5211 and 5213 of the Revised Statutes, and section 5212 also must be read to that end. The three sections are as follows:

"SEC. 5211. Every association shall make to the Comptroller of the Currency not less than five reports during each year, according to the form which may be prescribed by him, according to the form or affirmation of the president or cashier of such association, and attested by the signature of at least three of the directors. Each such report shall exhibit, in detail and under appropriate heads, the resources and liabilities of the association at the close of business on any past day by him specified, and shall be transmitted to the Comptroller within five days after the receipt of a request or requisition therefor from him, and in the same form in which it is made to the Comptroller shall be published in a newspaper published in the place where such association is established, or if there is no newspaper in the place, then in the one published nearest thereto in the same county, at the expense of the association; and such proof of publication shall be furnished as may be required by the Comptroller. The Comptroller shall also have power to call for special reports from any particular association whenever in his judgment the same are necessary in order to a full and complete knowledge of its condition.

"SEC. 5212. In addition to the reports required by the preceding section, each association shall report to the Comptroller of the Currency, within ten days after declaring any dividend, the amount of such dividend, and the amount of net earnings in excess of such dividend. Such reports shall be attested by the oath of the president or cashier of the association.

"SEC. 5213. Every association which fails to make and transmit any report required under either of the two preceding sections shall be subject to a penalty of one hundred dollars for each day after the periods, respectively, therein mentioned that it delays to make and transmit its report. Whenever any association delays or refuses to pay the penalty herein imposed, after it has been assessed by the Comptroller of the Currency, the amount thereof may be retained by the Treasurer of the United States, upon the order of the Comptroller of the Currency, out of the interest, as it may become due to the association, on the bonds deposited with him to secure circulation. All sums of money collected for penalties under this section shall be paid into the Treasury of the United States."

The plaintiff contends that the words in section 5211 "whenever in his judgment the same are necessary in order to a full and complete knowledge of its condition" mean that the Comptroller may exercise his judgment as to the times when reports shall be called for, and that the law fixes the nature of the reports that may be demanded; that is, the law "provides that the report shall be one which gives him a full and complete knowledge of the bank's condition. It did not say of the bank's management; it did not say of the officers' misconduct; it did not say of the officers' past loans or the officers' family relations, because as to that section all such questions are wholly immaterial."

"No matter what the condition of the bank might have been 15 years ago, if it is bad now the Comptroller ought to know it. No matter how good the condition of the bank has been or how bad at another time, that is not material to the duties of the Comptroller's office under the section."

If the section is to be interpreted as meaning that "special" reports are special merely because they are demanded of a particular bank and in addition to the five reports required of all banks, then all that could be asked of a bank would be only what it is required to furnish five time a year, namely, a detailed statement of resources and liabilities; but if such had been the intention of Congress, why were the words "to a full and complete knowledge of its condition" inserted? If the five reports are reports of condition and the special reports are also, and limited as are the general reports to showing resources and liabilities, why "full and complete?" Something must have been intended by the use of those words. Was the intention merely that the Comptroller might ask for further information in regard to the items in one of the regular reports? If so, that would be to limit him in the intervals between the dates for making general reports to an inquiry entirely futile perhaps to aid him in a present emergency. Again, if the report is special only by virtue of the fact that it is in addition to the five regular reports, then it is to be a report in detail under appropriate headings of resources and liabilities and it seems obvious that such a report might easily be insufficient for a "full and complete knowledge" of the condition of the bank.

It seems clear that the five regular reports are intended to be uniform as nearly as may be for all banks and that the special reports are to show what the Comptroller may in his judgment think necessary to a full and complete knowledge of a bank's condition, whether any part of the report covers what was in the regular report or not, and that they are not to be confined to a mere statement of assets and liabilities, as are the general reports.

Section 5240 of the Revised Statutes, prior to the passage of the Federal reserve act, provided that—

> "The Comptroller of the Currency with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury shall as often as shall be deemed necessary or proper appoint a suitable person or persons to make an examination of the affairs of every banking association who shall have power to make a thorough examination into all the affairs of the association, and in doing so to examine any of the officers and agents thereof on oath, and shall make a full and detailed report of the condition of the association to the Comptroller."

If, in the opinion of Congress, an examination of the "affairs" of an association is necessary to enable the examiner to make a "full and detailed report of the condition of the association," it seems reasonable to suppose that in giving the Comptroller power to call for special reports when he thinks them necessary to a "full and complete" knowledge of its (the association's) "condition" Congress meant to give to the Comptroller as broad powers at least as it gave to his subordinate and that the reports to be made by the banks are in regard to their affairs just as the examination by an examiner is an inquiry into the affairs of a bank. The section now provides:

> "The examiner making the examination of any national bank, or of any other member bank, shall have power to make a thorough examination of all the affairs of the bank and in doing so he shall have power to administer oaths and to examine any of the officers and agents thereof under oath and shall make a full and detailed report of the condition of said bank to the Comptroller of the Currency."

Other provisions of the national-bank act, except that they relate to the period before an association begins business, indicate as clearly perhaps as does section 5240 what scope of meaning Congress intended that the word "condition" should have.

No association can begin to do business without compliance with certain requirements, and the Comptroller of the Currency is the officer who decides whether there has been compliance. Section 5133 of the Revised Statutes provides that the persons who desire to form an association under the act shall—

> "enter into articles of association, which shall specify in general terms the object for which the association is formed, and may contain any other provisions, not inconsistent with law, which the association may see fit to adopt for the regulation of its business and the conduct of its affairs. These articles shall be signed by the persons uniting to form the association, and a copy of them shall be forwarded to the Comptroller of the Currency, to be filed and preserved in his office."

Section 5134 is as follows:

> "The persons uniting to form such an association shall, under their hands, make an organization certificate, which shall specifically state:
> "'First. The name assumed by such association; which name shall be subject to the approval of the Comptroller of the Currency.
> "'Second. The place where its operations of discount and deposit are to be carried on, designating the State, Territory, or district, and the particular county and city, town or village.
> "'Third. The amount of capital stock and the number of shares into which the same is to be divided.
> "'Fourth. The names and places of residence of the shareholders and the number of shares held by each of them.
> "'Fifth. The fact that the certificate is made to enable such persons to avail themselves of the advantages of this title.'"

Section 5136 confers the corporate powers on the association, among them being—

> "Fifth. To elect or appoint directors, and by its board of directors to appoint a president, vice president, cashier, and other officers, define their duties, require bonds of them and fix the penalty thereof, dismiss such officers or any of them at pleasure, and appoint others to fill their places.
> "Sixth. To prescribe, by its board of directors, by-laws not inconsistent with law, regulating the manner in which its stock shall be transferred, its directors elected or appointed, its officers appointed, its property transferred, its general business conducted, and the privileges granted to it by law exercised and enjoyed.
> "Seventh. To exercise by its board of directors, or duly authorized officers or agents, subject to law, all such incidental powers as shall be necessary to carry on the business of banking; by discounting and negotiating promissory notes, drafts, bills of exchange, and other evidences of debt; by receiving deposits; by buying and selling exchange, coin and bullion; by loaning money on personal security; and by obtaining, issuing, and circulating notes according to the provisions of this title.

"But no association shall transact any business except such as is incidental and preliminary to its organization, until it has been authorized by the Comptroller of the Currency to commence the business of banking."

Section 5159 provides for a transfer to the Treasurer of the United States of United States bonds in certain amounts before an association may begin business. Section 5145 provides for the election of directors before an association shall begin business, and section 5146 specifies qualifications for directorship based on residence and ownership of shares of stock. Section 5147, which provides for the directors' oaths, reads:

"Each director, when appointed or elected, shall take oath that he will, so far as the duty devolves on him, diligently and honestly administer the affairs of such association, and will not knowingly violate, or willingly permit to be violated, any of the provisions of this title, and that he is the owner in good faith, and in his own right, of the number of shares of stock required by this title, subscribed by him, or standing in his name on the books of the association, and that the same is not hypothecated, or in any way pledged, as security for any loan or debt. Such oath, subscribed by the director making it, and certified by the officer before whom it is taken, shall be immediately transmitted to the Comptroller of the Currency, and shall be filed and preserved in his office."

These provisions of the statutes set forth the substantial prerequisites to beginning business except an important one as to good faith mentioned in section 5169, infra, and make necessary an inquiry as to whether they have been complied with. They are quoted so much at length to make clear the scope of sections 5168 and 5169.

Sections 5168 and 5169 require the Comptroller to make an investigation for the purpose of ascertaining whether an association is entitled to his certificate of authority to begin business. They are as follows:

"SEC. 5168. Whenever a Certificate is transmitted to the comptroller of the Currency, as provided in this title, and the association transmitting the same notifies the Comptroller that at least fifty per centum of its capital stock has been duly paid in, and that such association has complied with all the provisions of this title required to be complied with before an association shall be authorized to commence the business of banking, the Comptroller shall examine into the condition of such association, ascertain especially the amount of money paid in on account of its capital, the name and place of residence of each of its directors, and the amount of the capital stock of which each is the owner in good faith, and generally whether such association has complied with all the provisions of this title required to entitle it to engage in the business of banking; and shall cause to be made and attested by the oaths of a majority of the directors, and by the president or cashier of the association, a statement of all the facts necessary to enable the Comptroller to determine whether the association is lawfully entitled to commence the business of banking.

"SEC. 5169. If, upon a careful examination of the facts so reported, and of any other facts which may come to the knowledge of the Comptroller, whether by means of a special commission appointed by him for the purpose of inquiring into the condition of such association, or otherwise, it appears that such association is lawfully entitled to commence the business of banking, the Comptroller shall give to such association a certificate, under his hand and official seal, that such association has complied with all the provisions required to be complied with before commencing the business of banking, and that such association is authorized to commence such business. But the Comptroller may withhold from an association his certificate authorizing the commencement of business, whenever he has reason to suppose that the shareholders have formed the same for any other than the legitimate objects contemplated by this title."

If "condition" connotes resources and liabilities only why should the Comptroller be directed by section 5168 to "ascertain especially the amount of money paid in on account of capital," as well as to examine into the condition of an association? It is clear either that "condition" in section 5168 means at least those things which the Comptroller is thereby directed to ascertain especially and generally or that it is something entirely other and different, but to contend for the latter proposition would be absurd, as no one would deny that condition is to be judged in part on a knowledge whether subscriptions to capital stock have been paid. In this section therefore "condition" is used so as to include many things besides mere resources and liabilities.

Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

It is hardly necessary to analyze section 5169 in order to reach the conclusion that the word "condition" is there used as including more than mere resources and liabilities. The "facts so reported" include the fact of payments on stock subscriptions which at that time are an association's only asset, generally speaking, except of course the bonds which it is obliged to buy, and its liability to stockholders is the only liability, so "any other facts" which the Comptroller or a commission appointed by him "for the purpose of inquiring into the condition" of an association is to endeavor to ascertain are facts indicating condition but other than the condition as shown by resources and liabilities and without endeavoring to determine what sorts of things "any other facts" might be supposed to show they are at least of a kind which may aid the Comptroller to perform one of his duties prescribed by the section in the words already quoted; that is—

* * * "But the Comptroller may withhold from an association his certificate authorizing the commencement of business whenever he has reason to suppose that the shareholders have formed the same for any other than the legitimate objects contemplated by this title."

With the exception of section 5240, possibly the most suggestive provisions of the act in aid of an interpretation of section 5211 are these provisions of section 5169 (supra), for in it "condition" is practically defined so as to include every fact relating to a bank, including those showing an intention to use the association for "any other than the legitimate objects contemplated" by the act.

The provisions of section 3 of chapter 290, act of July 12, 1882, 22 Stat. L., 162, lead to a similar conclusion. That section relates to the granting by the Comptroller of permission to extend the period of the corporate existence of an association and provides as follows:

"That upon the receipt of the application and certificate of the association provided for in the preceding section, the Comptroller of the Currency shall cause a special examination to be made, at the expense of the association, to determine its condition; and if after such examination or otherwise it appears to him that said association is in a satisfactory condition, he shall grant his certificate of approval provided for in the preceding section, or if it appears that the condition of said association is not satisfactory, he shall withhold such certificate of approval."

Clearly the examination so prescribed is the same sort of examination and for the same purpose as that provided for in section 5169 of the Revised Statutes above quoted relating to the inquiry before granting permission to begin business.

Congress having in sections 5168 and 5169 used the word "condition" to indicate an inquiry of the broadest scope to be made by the Comptroller, including the question of intention to carry out the legitimate objects contemplated by the act, before he shall authorize an association to begin business and by the use of the same word indicated a similar inquiry to be made by him before granting leave to extend the period of corporate existence, to argue that the word "condition" has a narrower meaning in section 5211 is to contend that the Comptroller is required to inform himself so that he may guess as to future management but can not obtain information as to actual management.

Section 333 of the Revised Statutes by which the Comptroller is required to make an annual report to Congress contains a provision calling for "A statement exhibiting under appropriate heads the resources and liabilities and condition" of State banks which further emphasizes the argument that Congress used the word "condition" to mean more than resources and liabilities. Again, the provisions of this section requiring reports by the Comptroller to Congress are very significant. Two of them call for—

"First. A summary of the state and condition of every association from which reports have been received the preceding year, at the several dates to which such reports refer, with an abstract of the whole amount of banking capital returned by them, of the whole amount of their debts and liabilities, the amount of circulating notes outstanding, and the total amount of means and resources, specifying the amount of lawful money held by them at the times of their several returns, and such other information in relation to such associations as, in his judgment, may be useful.

* * * * * * *

"Third. Any amendment to the laws relative to banking by which the system may be improved, and the security of the holders of its notes and other creditors may be increased."

An examination of the original National Bank act and of the subsequent legislation in regard to banks discloses the fact that the word "condition" was used several times in those acts, and the various changes in the language used which calls for the making of reports throw some light on the question now under consideration.

Section 24 of the act of 1863, being the original act, provides for quarterly reports to be made to the Comptroller, which reports are to be verified by the president and cashier. The section reads in part as follows:

"The report hereby required shall be in the form prescribed by the Comptroller and shall contain a true statement of the condition of the association making such report before the transaction of any business on the morning of the day specified next preceding the date of such report in respect to the following items and particulars, to wit: Loans and discounts, overdrafts due from banks, amount due from the directors of the association, real estate, specie, cash items, stocks, bonds and promissory notes, bills of solvent banks, bills of suspended banks, loss and expense account, capital, circulation, profits, amount due to banks, amount due to individuals and corporations other than banks, amount due to the Treasurer of the United States, amount due to depositors on demand, amount due, not included under either of the above headings."

The section then provided that the Comptroller should publish abstracts of these reports and that in addition to such quarterly reports the associations doing business in certain cities should—

"Publish or cause to be published on the morning of the first Tuesday in each month, in a newspaper printed in the city in which the association making such report is located, to be designated by the Comptroller of the Currency, a statement under the oath of the president or cashier showing the condition of the association making such statement, on the morning of the day next preceding the date of such statement in respect to the following items and particulars, deposits and circulation."

Section 34 of the act of June 3, 1864, provided for quarterly reports verified by the president or cashier which should "exhibit in detail and under appropriate headings the resources and liabilities" of the association, and that—

"In addition to the quarterly reports required by this section, every association shall, on the first Tuesday of each month, make to the Comptroller of the Currency a statement, under the oath of the president or cashier, showing the condition of the association making such statement, on the morning of the day next preceding the date of such statement, in respect to the following items and particulars, to wit, average amounts of loans and discounts, specie, and other lawful money belonging to the association, deposits, and circulation. And associations in other places than those cities named in the thirty-first section of this act shall also return the amount due them available for the redemption of their circulation."

By section 1 of the act of March 3, 1869, it is provided among other things—

"that in lieu of all reports required by section 34 of the national currency act every association shall make to the Comptroller of the Currency not less than five reports during each and every year according to the form which may be prescribed by him, verified by the oath or affirmation of the president or cashier of such association and attested by the signature of at least three of the directors, which report shall exhibit in detail and under appropriate heads the resources and liabilities of the association at the close of business on any past day to be by him specified."

and then provides for transmission of the reports to the Comptroller and their publication in the newspapers, and further:

"And the Comptroller shall have power to call for special reports from any particular association whenever in his judgment the same shall be necessary in order to a full and complete knowledge of its condition."

It was argued by counsel for the plaintiff that the five regular reports now provided for by section 5211 of the Revised Statutes are known throughout the business world as "reports of condition," and that therefore the work "condition" as used in section 5211 should be taken as meaning the condition in respect to resources and liabilities solely, but the original use of the word in section 24 of the act of February 25, 1863, namely, "condition * * * in respect to the following items and particulars, to wit, loans and discounts," etc., permits a clear inference that Congress was merely calling for the report as to certain items and particulars tending to show the condition of the bank and not that the condition of the bank could be completely disclosed by a statement of these items and particulars or by similar items and particulars, and the same inference may be drawn from a similar use of the word "condition" in that part of the section calling for reports from banks in certain specified cities; and when we come to section 34 of the act of June 3, 1864, we find the word "condition" omitted from the earlier part of that section and the items to be stated are not specified, but the reports are required to show "the resources and liabilities" according to a form to be prescribed by the Comptroller and under appropriate heads. But later in the same section, as quoted above, we again find the language "condition * * * in respect to the following items and particulars, to wit: Average amount of loans, discounts," etc. In the act of March 3, 1869, as already stated, provision is made for a report of "resources and liabilities," and for the first time there occurs the provision authorizing the Comptroller to call for special reports whenever in his judgment the same shall be necessary in order to a full and complete knowledge of the condition of the bank. A similar provision is the one under discussion in section 5211 of the Revised Statutes, and there is nothing to show that Congress intended to put any limitation on the meaning of the word "condition" by confining it to what may be shown by a statement of resources and liabilities or to indicate any change in the use of the word from that which as stated is clearly implied in the original act of 1863 or in the act of 1864. The right to resort to the previous legislation for interpretation is discussed elsewhere in this opinion.

Numerous other sections of that statute might be referred to as showing how large are the powers of the Comptroller and how certain it is that Congress intended that national banking associations should be under the strictest supervision by him for the protection of creditors and stockholders and of the public generally. The statute thus construed makes lawful any inquiry by the Comptroller for the purpose of obtaining information not only as to current items on the books of the bank, but also for the purpose of informing himself generally as to the management of the bank.

It is contended that the word "condition" must be given its ordinary meaning, as defined by standard dictionaries, and that as so defined there, it has not the meaning given to it by the Comptroller. Dictionaries may be referred to for the purpose of aiding an interpretation, but they are an aid only, and the terms of a statute are to be interpreted with reference to the subject matter of the legislation. (Black on Interpretation of Laws, 2d Ed., p. 278.) When words are used in the same connection in different parts of the statute they are ordinarily to be given the same meaning. However, taking the definitions of the word "condition," as found in the dictionaries, the construction of the act held above to be the proper one is in entire accord with those definitions. Webster, for instance, defines "condition," as: "Mode or state of being; state or situation with regard to external circumstances or influences, or to physical or mental integrity, health, strength, etc.; predicament." The Century Dictionary, among other definitions, gives the following: "The particular mode of being of a person or thing; situation, with reference either to internal or to external circumstances; existing state or case; plight; circumstances. A state or characteristic of the mind; * * *." The Standard Dictionary definition is: "The state or mode in which a person or thing exists; especially the manner in which persons or things are situated in relation to their environment. * * * Any one of the circumstances by which an activity or a mode of existence is limited and modified."

The present case is one of first impression, so no case can be cited as controlling the conclusion to be reached, but some guidance is found in the decisions.

In Guthrie v. Harkness (199 U. S., 140) the court had under consideration the question of the common-law right of a stockholder in a national bank to inspect its books. For the bank it was contended that the right was cut off by section 5241 of the Revised Statutes providing that "no association shall be subject to any visitorial powers other than such as are authorized by this title or are vested in the courts of justice." The court held otherwise, and in the course of its opinion said (p. 158):

> "The right of visitation being a public right, existing in the State for the purpose of examining into the conduct of the corporation with a view to keeping it within its legal powers, Congress had in mind in passing this section that in other sections of the law it had made full and complete provision for investigation by the Comptroller of the Currency and examiners appointed by him, and, authorizing the appointment of a receiver, to take possession of the business with a view to winding up the affairs of the bank. * * *"

The court quotes, apparently with approval, two definitions of the word "visitation," one from First National Bank of Youngstown v. Hughes (6 Fed. Rep., 737), as follows:

> "Visitation, in law, is the act of a superior or superintending officer, who visits a corporation to examine into its manner of conducting business, and enforces an observance of its laws and regulations. Burrill defines the word to mean 'inspection; superintendence; direction; regulation.'"

the other, from Merrill on Corporations:

> "Visitors of corporations have power to keep them within the legitimate sphere of their operations, and to correct all abuses of authority, and to nullify all irregular proceedings. In America there are very few corporations which have private visitors, and in the absence of such, the State is the visitor of all corporations."

In United States v. Corbett (215 U. S., 233) the court had under consideration a demurrer to an indictment for a violation of section 5209 by making a false statement in one of the regular reports called for by section 5211, and a contention was that the Comptroller was not an "agent appointed to examine the affairs" of a bank. The court says, at page 240:

> "The authority conferred by this section upon the Comptroller is but one among the comprehensive powers with which he is endowed by the statute for the purpose of examining and supervising the operations of national banks, preventing and detecting violations of law on their part, appointing receivers in case of necessity, etc. From the nature of these powers it would seem clear that the Comptroller is an officer or agent of the United States, expressly as well as impliedly clothed with authority to examine into the affairs of national banking associations, and therefore a false entry made in a report to him is directly embraced in the provision of Revised Statutes, section 5209. But it is argued while this may be abstractly true, it is not so when the provision of Revised Statutes, section 5240, is considered, conferring power upon the Comptroller, with the approval of the Secretary of the Treasury, to appoint suitable agents to make an examination of the affairs of every national banking association."

and at page 241, that these words "any agent" are all embracing "and can not reasonably be held to exclude the Comptroller, the principal agent endowed by the statute, with the power to examine national banks." Speaking of the power of the Comptroller, the court says, at page 245:

> "It was undoubtedly within the power of the Comptroller of the Currency, if the bank was out of line, or if its affairs were in a disordered or precarious condition, or if its officers had embarked in transactions calculated to injuriously affect the financial condition of the bank, to apply a corrective, and thus save the bank from injury and future loss. * * *" and further:

> "The counts charged false entries as to the amount of bad debts due the bank, as to the suspended paper held by the bank, as to the amount due the bank by its president as indorser, guarantor or otherwise, and as to the assets of the bank, by reporting that it owned various pieces of real estate which it really only held as security. * * *"

The opinion of the district judge sustaining the demurrer in the court below gives emphasis to the ruling in the Supreme Court overruling the demurrer. It is reported in 162 Fed. Rep., 687. The court there said among other things (p. 688):

> "The first question is whether the Comptroller of the Currency is an agent appointed to examine the affairs of the bank. The only duty charged by the statute upon the Comptroller is to receive and publish the report. The law does not make it his duty to examine the bank affairs. The receiving, reading, and publication of the report is not an examination of the affairs of the bank. The national banking act (act June 3, 1864, c. 106, 13 Stat., 99), of which section 5209 is a part, provided that the Comptroller should appoint suitable persons to make an examination of the affairs of every banking association, who should have power to make a thorough examination into all the affairs of the association, and who might examine any of the officers or agents thereof under oath; and who should make a full and detailed report to the Comptroller of the condition of the association. (Sec. 5240, Rev. St. (U. S. Comp. St., 1901, p. 3516).) It was not until January 20, 1873, that the Comptroller was given any power to examine national banks, and such power was restricted to banks in the District of Columbia. (Sec. 332, Rev. St. (U. S. Comp. St., 1901, p. 190).) It seems entirely clear that the person appointed to examine the affairs of a bank is one of the examiners so to be appointed, and who have now become a permanent force of the department, and not the Comptroller of the Currency, who is only to receive and publish the report. The statute is highly penal, and can not be extended by construction."

The opinion of the Supreme Court read in the light of the opinion below indicates if it does not hold the view that the power of the Comptroller under section 5211 is to call for a report of the affairs of a bank just as fully at least as might a bank examiner. In the present case it is contended that the examiner has the right to inquire into the affairs of a bank and to get the confidential information; that is, that he is to inquire into its affairs, not its condition, and that the Comptroller is limited to calling for reports showing "condition" merely.

The scope of the power and of the duty of the Comptroller is further pointed out in Thomas v. Taylor (224 U. S., 73), passing upon the duty of directors to charge off bad assets on notice from the Comptroller, when the court says, at page 82:

> "Such disregard of the direction of the officers appointed by the law to examine the affairs of the bank is a violation of the law. Their directions must be observed. Their function and authority can not be preserved otherwise and be exercised to save the banks from disaster and the public who deal with them and support them from deception."

In United States v. Graves (53 Fed. Rep., 634) the court says (p. 649):

"What is the object of these reports [the general reports] to the Comptroller? Undoubtedly to advise him as to the condition and method of management of the bank."

These decisions support the conclusion reached above on an examination of the statute itself.

In several paragraphs of the bill in which are set forth the demands for special reports, the plaintiff alleges either that the information called for was not necessary to a full and complete knowledge of the plaintiff's condition, or that the plaintiff is not advised in what respect such information is pertinent or necessary to such knowledge, or that the subject matter of the questions asked was not such as the Comptroller was authorized to call for. There are also allegations in the bill to the effect that the action of the Comptroller in demanding reports was arbitrary, and that the information sought is not such as would be required by any Comptroller animated simply by a desire to do his duty. The contention of the plaintiff is understood to be that because of what is so alleged, coupled with the facts stated, the burden is upon the Comptroller to disclose facts from which the court may judge of the pertinence of the information which he sought to obtain. United States v. Doherty (27 Fed. Rep., 730) is cited as an authority for this contention. That was an action brought to recover of the defendant a penalty for declining to answer a question asked him by a customhouse appraiser in reference to the price of certain goods which were under appraisement. The defendant had no interest in the importation and it was sought to examine him merely as a witness, but he objected that the disclosure sought for would be prejudicial to his business and that he was not legally required to answer a question which related to the price at which the owner of the goods had directed his agent to deliver them in New York.

Section 2902 of the Revised Statutes made it the duty of the appraisers "by all reasonable ways and means in their power" to ascertain, estimate, and appraise "the true and actual market value of the merchandise at the time of exportation in the principal markets of the country" from which the articles had been imported into the United States, and for that purpose the appraisers were authorized by section 2922 "to call before them and examine on oath any owner or importer, consignee, or other person, touching any matter or thing which they may deem material in ascertaining the market value or wholesale price of any merchandise imported," and a penalty was provided for against anyone who declined to answer any interrogatories when so required by the appraiser.

The court stated that there were two questions to be considered: First, whether the power and discretion vested in the appraisers were unlimited and not subject to any review or question by the court in any action brought for the penalty; and, second, if limited, whether the inquiry in this instance was material. The court held that the power of the appraiser is controlled by the rule of statutory construction that limits the general words of statutes giving a discretion apparently unlimited to a legal, reasonable and just discretion having reference to the objects of the statute, saying that the very language of the statute construed with others in pari materia indicates a similar restriction. The opinion points out that in suits growing out of alleged undervaluations, the courts will not permit evidence showing the price at which the manufacturers contracted to deliver similar goods in this country except in cases of fraud or concealment or in the absence of the ordinary and appropriate means of information as to the foreign value. It further stated that although the appraiser had been called as a witness he had not testified that he deemed an answer to his inquiry to be material to the appraisement, and that there was no allegation of concealment or proof or suggestion of inability to ascertain the foreign value in the ordinary ways, and that there was no element of fraud and nothing exceptional in the circumstances of the case; and further, that it did not appear in any way how much or how little other evidence the appraiser had as to the market value in the principal markets of the country of exportation.

In the United States v. Doherty the court found a limitation on the power of the official on a consideration of the general purposes of the statute under which he claimed to be acting. The inquiry which he was authorized to make was for a definite and concrete purpose, namely, the ascertainment of the market value, words which have a well known significance and describe a subject-matter inquired into by courts and juries in hundreds of cases; and the holding of the court was in substance that as the appraiser, even though he had the information could not lawfully use it in determining foreign market value, it would be unreasonable to fine a recalcitrant witness for the failure to give useless information. The court pointed out, as already stated, that under some circumstances, namely, in case of fraud or concealment or inability to ascertain foreign market value otherwise than by an inquiry into the price of delivery at New York, the New York price might be shown, which seemed to be the application of a sort of "best evidence" rule.

In the present case the word "condition" has no adjudged meaning such as have the words "market value." Again, the word "condition" is a very comprehensive word, as the connection in which it is used indicates. The market value of an article means the price at which it is offered on the market to buyers generally and accepted by them. The condition of a corporation may be determined in some cases on a consideration of only a few circumstances, whereas the condition of another corporation may be possible of ascertainment only upon a knowledge of circumstances of many different sorts, a determination of which involves no such simple inquiry as the ascertainment of market value.

In United States v. Doherty it was not stated that the appraiser must show fraud or concealment in order to permit an investigation into the New York price, but apparently the court meant that there should be some indication of a belief that the matter has in it elements of fraud or concealment, and again, the court intimated that if the appraiser had shown that he had exhausted all sources of information as to the market price abroad he might be permitted to inquire into the New York price.

The functions of the Comptroller are entirely unlike those of the appraiser which were passed upon in United States v. Doherty, and that case is not an authority which supports the contention of the plaintiff here.

What the court understands to be the meaning of the plaintiff in charging as above indicated that the Comptroller acted arbitrarily is, as stated in some of the cases, that there was such a gross abuse of discretion as amounts to a total lack of authority. That statement has been made in numerous cases, but no one has been brought to the attention of the court in which the principal so stated was actually applied unless it be the case of Myles Salt Co. v. Board of Commissioners of Iberia and St. Mary's Drainage District et al., supra, and referred to more at length below. In Interstate Commerce Commission v. Illinois Central R. R. Co. (215 U. S., 452), the court says, at page 470:

> "Beyond controversy, in determining whether an order of the commission shall be suspended or set aside, we must consider (a) all relevant questions of constitutional power or right; (b) all pertinent questions as to whether the administrative order is within the scope of the delegated authority under which it purports to have been made; and (c) a proposition which we state independently, although in its essence it may be contained in the previous one, viz, whether, even although the order be in form within the delegated power, nevertheless, it must be treated as not embraced therein, because the exertion of authority which is questioned has been manifested in such an unreasonable manner as to cause it, in truth, to be within the elementary rule that the substance, and not the shadow, determines the validity of the exercise of the power. (Postal Telegraph Cable Company v. Adams, 155 U. S., 688, 698.) Plain as it is that the powers just stated are of the essence of judicial authority, and which, therefore, may not be curtailed, and whose discharge may not be by usin a proper case avoided, it is equally plain that such perennial powers lend no support whatever to the proposition that we may, under the guise of exerting judicial power, usurp merely administrative functions by setting aside a lawful administrative order upon our conception as to whether the administrative power has been wisely exercised."

In United States v. Louisville & Nashville R. R. Co. (235 U. S., 314), at page 320, the court says:

> "In view of the doctrine announced in Interstate Com. Com. v. Illinois Cent. R. R. (215 U. S., 452); Interstate Com. Com. v. Delaware, L. & W. R. Co. (220 U. S., 235); Interstate Com. Com. v. Louisville & Nashville R. R. (227 U. S., 88), it plainly results that the court below, in substituting its judgment as to the existence of preference for that of the commission on the ground that where there was no dispute as to the facts it had a right to do so, obviously exerted an authority not conferred upon it by the statute. It is not disputable that from the beginning the very purpose for which the commission was created was to bring into existence a body which from its peculiar character would be most fitted to primarily decide whether from facts, disputed or undisputed, in a given case preference or discrimination existed. (East Tenn. & C. Ry. Co. v. Interstate Com. Com., 181 U. S. 1, 23–29.) And the amendments by which it came to pass that the findings of the commission were made not merely prima facie but conclusively correct in case of judicial review, except to the extent pointed out in the Illinois Central and other cases, supra, show the progressive evolution of the legislative purpose and the inevitable conflict which exists between giving that purpose effect and upholding the view of the statute taken by the court below. It can not be otherwise since if the view of the statute upheld below be sustained, the commission would become but a mere instrument for the purpose of taking testimony to be submitted to the courts for their ultimate action."

In United States ex rel. Nalle v. Oyster (31 App. D. C., 311), at page 320, the court says:

"We conceive it to be the duty of the court to construe this statute liberally, so as to give the board as broad discretion as possible in carrying out its objects. Public policy demands that, in the management and control of the public schools, final administrative authority shall be somewhere vested. Here it is vested in the board of education of the District. It is not the duty or prerogative of the courts to interfere by writ of mandamus with the board in the exercise of its discretion in matters pertaining to the control and management of the public schools of the District, unless there is such a gross abuse of discretion as amounts to a total lack of authority to act.

"The extraordinary writ of mandamus will not be granted to correct mere errors of judgment committed by the board, so long as it acts within the authority conferred by statute. If the board had power to dismiss relator upon the recommendation of the superintendent of schools, without granting her such a hearing as is provided for in sec. 10 of the act, we will not stop to inquire into the method employed by the board in arriving at its decision. If the power exists, the writ can not issue; if the board had jurisdiction to act, the writ must be denied. The writ will not issue to correct errors where jurisdiction exists."

It is obvious that an inquiry as to whether or not official action is so arbitrary as to amount to a total lack of authority is a mixed question of law and fact, and therefore that a review of the authorities passing upon statutes totally different in purpose from the one here under consideration would not be of any particular value, for nothing could be derived from such an examination for the purpose of the present case except a statement of the general principle laid down in the cases just quoted. Another rule fairly deducible from these cases is that an act can not be held to be arbitrary if it is reasonably related to a particular lawful purpose or unless the court can say that the means have no reasonable relation to the end. Such is the test applied in regard to legislation claimed to be unconstitutional. (See Atlantic Coast Line v. Ga., 234 U. S., 280, 287, 288; Noble State Bank v. Haskell, 219 U. S., 104, 142.)

Another case in which the Supreme Court speaks of power arbitrarily exerted is Myles Salt Co. v. Board of Commissioners of Iberia and St. Mary Drainage District et al. (supra). The court held that the drainage commissioners acted arbitrarily when they included the plaintiff's land in a drainage district. The bill however stated facts to show that the plaintiff's land could not be benefited by any drainage project, but on the contrary, that the land being high and rolling, the drainage was already excessive and that washing and erosion were serious problems. The bill alleged that the property was included in the district not in the exercise—

"of legal legislative discretion, and not because the scheme of drainage would inure to the benefit of the property even indirectly, but for the purpose of deriving revenues to the end of granting a special benefit to the other lands subject to be improved by drainage without any benefit to plaintiff or its property whatever, present or prospective."

These conclusions were warranted, however, by the facts distinctly and clearly alleged, and the court said:

"We are not dealing with motives alone but as well with their resultant action; we are not dealing with disputable grounds of discretion or disputable degrees of benefit, but with an exercise of power determined by considerations not of the improvement of plaintiff's property but solely of the improvement of the property of others—power, therefore, arbitrarily exerted, imposing a burden without a compensating advantage of any kind."

In other words, the case holds in substance that a mere allegation of arbitrary action is not sufficient where the matter is one involving the exercises of judgment and discretion, but that the plaintiff must allege facts to show that the action is arbitrary and in reality beyond the official power of the person undertaking to exercise it. That the averment that an act is arbitrary is a statement of a conclusion of law merely is held in Collins v. Johnson (237 U. S., 502).

The fact must not be overlooked that Congress in the national-bank act has provided in one instance for restraint of the Comptroller by the courts. Section 5237 provides that whenever proceedings have been taken against a bank based upon an allegation of a failure to redeem its circulating notes the bank, if it denies having done so, may apply to a United States court to enjoin further proceedings looking to the appointment of a receiver. By section 5239 it is provided that for a violation by the directors of any of the provisions of the act, the rights, privileges and franchises of the association shall be thereby forfeited, but that such violation shall be determined in a suit brought for that purpose by the Comptroller.

In the present case it must be kept in mind that the Comptroller is not adjudicating rights as between adversary parties; that he is not seeking to put into operation any power of taxation; that he is not undertaking to deprive the plaintiff of any privilege conferred by law, such as the right to use the mails; that he is not seeking to take property of the bank under legislative sanction, but is merely endeavoring to get information to use for the public benefit and about the affairs of a corporation chartered by the same legislative body that authorized him to call for the information and gave him visitorial powers which are powers of supervision, direction, and correction. That those powers are of the widest scope is indicated by the use of the word "visitorial" in the statute, by a consideration of the cases above cited, and of the clearly indicated purposes of the act itself. Those powers are to be exercised for the purpose of obtaining information for the protection of the public, of depositors, and of stockholders, and were conferred on the assumption that some bank management would need the closest scrutiny because dishonest or otherwise dangerous. No argument is needed to show that the affairs of banks, especially of large banks, are numerous and complicated. The court will take judicial notice of the fact that notwithstanding careful examinations by examiners and by Comptrollers, bad practices in banks have been successfully covered up, and not being disclosed in time for the Comptroller to apply a corrective have led to disaster. The condition in any single bank may be vitally influenced by conditions in one or more banks in the immediate locality or elsewhere. A knowledge of the conditions of such bank consequently may vitally affect the determination by the Comptroller to call for a report from such single bank. General business conditions in a given community may likewise have an influence upon the determination of the Comptroller to call for information from a single bank. All the facts and circumstances surrounding a given situation may be, and usually would be, unknown to the court in advance of judicial inquiry.

It is argued that the Comptroller has no right to go into past transactions which have been closed for a considerable length of time. This argument carried to its possible extreme would prevent the Comptroller from obtaining any information in regard to an item contained in a regular report several weeks after it was filed if the bank officers should report that a particular transaction was closed and that the item was no longer on the books of the bank as an existing transaction. The bank examiners, as is well known, go over the books of a bank and frequently discover defalcations or irregular practices running over several years, notwithstanding many previous examinations, for which irregularities the present management is responsible. Valid reasons for going back over the books of the bank for several years may be suggested by what is discovered as to recent transactions.

The limitations which courts have fixed in regard to interference with the performance of executive duties are clearly indicated in Bartlett v. Kane (16 How., 263, 272), where the Supreme Court said:

> "The interference of the courts with the performance of the ordinary duties of the executive departments of the Government would be productive of nothing but mischief, and we are satisfied that such a power was never intended to be given them."

And that broad principle was applied in construing the national bank act in the following two cases. Washington National Bank of Tacoma v. Eckels (57 Fed., 870, 872), where the court says:

> "In 1876 Congress passed a law which, in terms, gives the Comptroller of the Currency the right to appoint a receiver whenever he becomes satisfied, after an examination, that a national bank is insolvent. The power thus vested in the Comptroller of the Currency is discretionary, and I think the rule holds good in this case, as in others, that where the head of a bureau in one of the departments of the Government is clothed with discretionary powers, and authority to investigate facts and act upon his conclusions, his conclusions as to the facts are final, and not reviewable by the courts; so that the decision of the Comptroller of the Currency in this case, that the bank is insolvent, is to be taken as a finality. It is equivalent to the fact, whether the bank is really insolvent or not, so far as to authorize the exercise of the Comptroller's power to put the bank in the hands of a receiver."

To the same effect is the decision in Platt v. Beebe (57 N. Y. 339, 343), where the court says:

> "The act, in its peculiarity of expression, is framed to meet such an emergency, and authorizes the Comptroller, when satisfied of the existence of a given state of facts, to make the appointment. Such words, as upon proof or evidence, indicating it to be the design of the framers of the law that it should be upon legal proof or evidence of the facts are carefully omitted; and the Comptroller is left to be satisfied as best he can be, under the peculiar circumstances of each case, of the existence of the facts and the necessity of his action."

It would be difficult to suggest any practicable method for limiting the powers of the examiners, and at the same time permit them to render the services required of them, although perhaps a case might arise in which the court would feel constrained to check the activities of an examiner; but as pointed out in United States v. Corbett (215 U. S., 233), the Comptroller is the principal agent to examine into the affairs of the bank and it is equally or more difficult perhaps to suggest any practicable plan of conducting his bureau if his right to act could be successfully challenged until he had satisfied a court that his inquiry into the affairs of a bank was necessary to a knowledge of its condition, although with him, too, a case might arise perhaps in which the court would control his attempted exercise of power merely claimed. When a report which relates to the affairs of a bank is called for by a Comptroller he should not be required to come into court and before being permitted to proceed with the inquiry show to the court all the facts and circumstances which have come to his knowledge in a large and important bureau of the Government on which he is authorized to act, thereby rendering it impossible perhaps for the Comptroller to save a failure or serious loss, or to apply corrective measure to remedy a situation having in it elements of danger unless beyond a reasonable doubt practically it can be said that the information is not necessary.

The actions of the Comptroller on the basis of which specific charges are made to the effect that he was acting in excess of his powers, examined in the light of the views above expressed, must be upheld as lawful.

The information called for by the Comptroller in regard to the list of loans in excess of $5,000 secured by collaterals should have been furnished. The contention is made that he made a demand that the information be given "at once," but that fact can not be clearly ascertained from reading the paragraph, and it rather appears that when the Comptroller said that he wanted the information at once it was merely an answer to the suggestion of the officers of the bank that they would take the matter up with the board of directors.

The demand to be informed whether or not the plaintiff was maintaining a private telegraph wire connected with stock brokerage houses in New York was an eminently proper inquiry, but so was that set forth in the fifteenth paragraph of the bill as it related to expenditures being made at the time by the bank.

It is stated that the Comptroller demanded that certain officers of the bank express an opinion as a matter of law to the best of their knowledge and belief as to who was the owner of a certain account standing in the name of "Flather & Flather." The allegation is that the Comptroller was informed of every fact respecting this account, amount thereof, source of funds credited to the account and the use from time to time made of those funds was fully and repeatedly stated to the Comptroller. Two officers of the bank at the time bore the name of Flather. If the bank knew as much about the account as the allegation indicates, the court will not assume that under those circumstances it was unreasonable to call for expression of the knowledge and belief of the officers of the bank as to whom, between the bank and the persons named as depositors, the funds really belonged. Possibly if all facts in regard to the account which, as the bill says, were stated to the Comptroller had been stated in the bill for the information of the court, a different conclusion might be reached; but the Comptroller did have the facts stated and having them may well have been justified in asking for the best of the knowledge and belief of the officers as to the ownership of this account, which is not calling for an opinion on a question of law.

Certain reports were called for and a time longer than five days was specified for some of them. It is not obvious why the bank should complain of the giving of a longer time. The paragraph also states that compliance was physically impossible, but it is not alleged that any effort was made to get an extension of time, nor does it state what the demands were, so as to permit the court to form any opinion as to whether there was anything objectionable in the demand.

There was a demand for information in regard to loans made by the plaintiff, directly or indirectly, to Secretaries of the Treasury and Assistant Secretaries of the Treasury of the United States; to Comptrollers of the Currency; to national bank examiners, and to employees of the Comptroller's office. The demand certainly can not be considered an improper one especially if any officers of the bank have been officers since its organization, to which time reference is made in the demand and the facts in that regard should be fully stated.

The demand for information in regard to commercial paper being carried by the plaintiff was clearly proper relating as it did to the assets of the bank.

The details of the demand for a special report in regard to United States bonds shown in the regular report of the bank are not sufficiently set forth to enable the court to determine what is complained of.

The gist of one of the charges seems to be that the Comptroller made calls on a certain national bank other than the plaintiff and a certain trust company in which officers of the plaintiff bank were directors and that he disregarded the fact that while a national bank director is required to own 10 shares of stock, directors of trust companies are under no such requirement. The Comptroller has a right to make an inquiry in regard to ownership of stock by the directors of a bank, and it does not appear what his demand for information in regard to the ownership of stock in trust companies has to do with this case unless it be to show the malice charged, but the facts are not set forth fully enough to enable the court to take any action based upon the alleged improper conduct of the Comptroller. Moreover the Comptroller has the same powers over trust companies in the District of Columbia as he has over national banks. (Code, secs. 713, 714.)

The paragraphs of the bill contain allegations that the Defendant Williams said that he would not believe the statements of the plaintiff's officers; that certain lengthy examinations were made by bank examiners; and that a bank examiner was brought from without the jurisdiction of the District of Columbia and made a long examination of the plaintiff's officers, are not statements of facts entitling plaintiff to relief.

The Comptroller rightly asked to be informed in regard to the expenditure of money for printed copies of the correspondence, and for the other information on that matter in order to enable him to determine the propriety of those expenditures, as well as to be informed whether any of the plaintiff's books or records had been destroyed.

The circumstances surrounding the demand for the failure to comply with which the penalty of $5,000 was assessed are fully set forth above. That demand was twofold: First, for information in regard to all direct loans made by the bank to certain of its then officers; and, second, for information in regard to all indirect or dummy or concealed loans made since the organization of the bank for the benefit, directly or indirectly, of those officers, or any of them, including all loans for which they or any of them had endorsed or for which they had furnished the whole or any part of the collateral by which loans to any of them were secured; and for other information as shown by the quotation of said paragraph above. In the view which the court takes of the power of the Comptroller these demands were entirely within his powers. The reply of the bank, it will be noted, states that when the last examination of the bank was conducted there were no loans to the officers standing on the books; and, likewise, in regard to the demand for loans made to them under cover, and it is not denied that the latter sort of loan had been made. Evidently the main contention sought to be raised by the allegation in this paragraph is that the transactions of the sort referred to, having been closed a considerable time prior to the making of the demand, were not the proper subject of inquiry by the Comptroller. The court has indicated a view to the contrary above and it is perfectly obvious that as to concealed loans made for the benefit of the officers of the bank no possible limit to the scope of an inquiry by the Comptroller could be reasonably suggested. The bill alleges that a bank examiner had gone over the books back to the date when the plaintiff began to do business.

It is stated that the Comptroller in requiring that certain facts be laid before the board of directors did so for the purpose of discrediting the plaintiff's officers before the board of directors and to drive them from their official positions. This practice is practically approved by the Supreme Court of the United States in Jones National Bank v. Yates et al., decided April 3, 1916, in which case it appeared that a letter from the Comptroller "emphasized the duty of the directors with respect to the conduct of the bank's affairs; and it concluded with a request for a reply over the directors' 'individual signatures.'"

The bill alleges that the acts of the Comptroller were done maliciously. This is merely the statement of a conclusion of law not admitted by demurrer. Malice in law means nothing more than the intentional doing of a wrongful act without justification and within the meaning of the definition such an act is one which in the ordinary course is calculated to infringe, and does in fact infringe, upon the rights of another to his damage unless it be done in the exercise of an equal or superior right. (Brennan v. United Hatters, 73 N. J. Law, 729.) The Comptroller was acting within his powers and in performance of his duty as far as calling for the reports is concerned, therefore as no right of the plaintiff was infringed he was not acting maliciously.

There are numerous allegations in the bill inserted apparently for the purpose of establishing malice and showing a conspiracy, notably that of the action of the Comptroller in regard to the Red Cross funds, but a reading of the allegations in that regard show satisfactorily that the defendant Williams as treasurer of the Red Cross funds was taking perfectly proper steps to obtain the largest possible revenue from it while on deposit. The plaintiff was given the same opportunity that was given to others to have these deposits made in its bank.

Another allegation is that the defendants McAdoo and Williams "had in ways which will be fully detailed in the evidence to be taken in this suit openly and publicly manifested their personal malice toward certain of the plaintiff's officers." Without considering that the plaintiff's officers are not the bank and that the defendants might be hostile to plaintiff's officers while being solicitous for the welfare of the stockholders, it is obvious that if the plaintiff wished any action to be taken based on the existence of such hostility it should have stated the facts fully enough to permit the court to determine the existence of such feeling. The other allegations inserted in the bill for the purpose of showing malice do not require any special reference.

It can not be successfully contended that where on a given act of facts one comptroller not said to be actuated by malice may lawfully reach a certain conclusion another comptroller acting in a similar manner on a similar set of facts takes such action at the risk of having his motives inquired into when he is said to be acting maliciously. To so hold would be to disregard the long lines of cases restricting judicial interference with executive acts.

It is contended that a bank is not "required" to furnish a special report, which by section 5211 the Comptroller is authorized to call for because the latter section does not in terms require a bank to make such report.

Section 5213 provides that—

> "every association which fails to make and transmit any report required under either of the two preceding sections shall be subject to a penalty of $100 for each day after the periods respectively therein that it delays to make and transmit its report. * * *"

It was held in United States v. Mitchell (58 Fed., 993) that a statute providing that the superintendent of the census be "required to obtain from" corporations certain information did not require the corporations to give it, but it was stated in the opinion by way of dictum in regard to another section of the statute directing the superintendent "to require from every railroad corporation the following facts * * *" did require the companies to give the information. The court said that in the one case a duty was imposed upon the superintendent but in the other it was imposed upon the corporation. It must be held, therefore, that banks are required to furnish the special reports for which the Comptroller is authorized to call.

It is further contended that section 5213 does not impose a penalty for failure to make a special report, the argument being that the words "the periods, respectively, therein mentioned" refer only to the five-day period prescribed for the filing of the general reports in section 5211 and the dividend reports called for by section 5212, and that "respectively" does not mean the two sections, respectively. The plain reading of the section leads to a different conclusion. The words "any report required under either of the two preceding sections" are all embracing, as was said in United States v. Corbett (supra) of the words "any agent," so every kind of report is included and the word "respectively" assigns the "periods" to their proper sections. If the period mentioned in each section had been five days and the word "respectively" left out what was intended would be obvious and the necessary use of that word does not make the meaning obscure.

An examination of the previous legislation confirms this view. The original national-bank act did not provide that the Comptroller might call for special reports. The provision is first found in the second national-bank act (Chap. 106, 13 Stat., 99, sec. 34), which act provided for the making of four general reports and required that the banks—

> "shall transmit the same to the Comptroller within five days thereafter * * * and any bank failing to make and transmit such report shall be subject to a penalty of $100 for each day after five days that such report is delayed beyond that time."

The act of March 3, 1869, section 1, after providing for five regular reports, provided as follows:

> "And the Comptroller shall also have power to call for special reports from any particular association whenever in his judgment the same shall be necessary in order to a full and complete knowledge of its condition.
> "Any association failing to make and transmit any such report shall be subject to a penalty of $100 for each day after five days that such bank shall delay to make and transmit any report as aforesaid. * * *"

Section 2 of that act provides:

> "That in addition to said reports each national banking association shall report to the Comptroller of the Currency the amount of each dividend declared by said association and the amount of net earnings in excess of said dividends, which report shall be made within two days after the declaration of each dividend and attested by the oath of the president or cashier of said association, and a failure to comply with the provisions of this section shall subject such association to the penalties provided in the foregoing section."

In view of this previous legislation it can not be successfully maintained that Congress intended in revising the statutes to make any change as to what was required nor as to the penalty to be imposed. Congress simply enacted in three sections what had previously been contained in two sections of a single act.

The plaintiff contends that especially in view of the fact that the provisions of the statute are highly penal, resort can not be had for interpretation to the previous legislation; but in United States v. Corbett (215 U. S., 233), where the court was considering an indictment found for alleged violation of the national-bank act, it is said, at page 241:

> "The provision in question was originally contained in the act of 1864, which moreover forbade certain acts in the transaction of the affairs of national banks, empowered the Comptroller of the Currency to exercise supervisory power, to call for reports from the associations and to bring into play other authority substantially as found in the law as now existing. This was followed by the provision giving to the Comptroller the right to appoint subordinate examiners, the whole being concluded by a section containing provisions which are now substantially embodied in Rev. Stat., 5209."

The court further says (p. 242):

> "But the argument is that, however cogent may be the considerations just stated, they are here inapplicable, because the statute is a criminal one, requiring to be strictly construed. The principle is elementary, but the application here sought to be made is a mistaken one. The rule of strict construction does not require that the narrowest technical meaning be given to the words employed in a criminal statute in disregard of their context and in frustration of the obvious legislative intent. (U. S. v. Hartwell, 6 Wall., 385.) In that case, answering the contention that penal laws are to be construed strictly, the court said (p. 395):
> "'The object in construing penal, as well as other statutes, is to ascertain the the legislative intent. * * * The words must not be narrowed to the exclusion of what the legislature intended to embrace; but that intention must be gathered from the words, and they must be such as to leave no room for a reasonable doubt upon the subject. * * * The rule of strict construction is not violated by permitting the words of the statute to have their full meaning, or the more extended of two meanings as the wide popular instead of the more narrow technical one; but the words should be taken in such a sense bent neither one way nor the other, as will best manifest the legislative intent.'
> "It is to be observed that the rule thus stated affords no ground for extending a penal statute beyond its plain meaning. But it inculcates that a meaning which is within the text and within its clear intent is not to be departed from because, by resorting to a narrow and technical interpretation of particular words, the plain meaning may be distorted and the obvious purpose of the law be frustrated."

In Oceanic Navigation Co. v. Stranahan (214 U. S., 320), where there was under review the question of the right of the Secretary of Labor and the collector of the port to exact penalties for violation of the immigration law, the court made use of a report of the Senate Committee on Immigration, saying that while the conclusions already reached were clearly sustained by the text, yet, if ambiguity were conceded it was dispelled and the same result reached by a consideration of such report, which it was proper to consider as a guide to a true interpretation of the act. See also Hermann v. Edwards (238 U. S., 107), in which case the court considered previous legislation on the same subject matter and stated among other things—

> "aside from this it is to be moreover observed that the intention of Congress to make by the adoption of the judicial code so radical a change from the rule which had prevailed for so long a period is not to be indulged without a clear manifestation of such purpose."

It is argued that to construe the act as contended by the Comptroller would be to render sections 5211, 5212, and 5213 of the Revised Statutes unconstitutional.

The demands made by the Comptroller were that the bank make certain reports. If the demand had included the production of books and papers of the plaintiff, the officers of the bank would have no privilege of refusing to produce them because they might contain matter which would incriminate the officers or lead to punishment of the corporation. (Hale v. Henkel, 201 U. S., 42; Wilson v. United States, 221 U. S., 361.) As was stated in the latter case the State has visitorial powers over over corporations. The fourth amendment of the Constitution protects a corporation against unreasonable searches and seizures, but the fifth amendment providing against compelling a person to be a witness against himself in a criminal cases does not prevent the compulsory production of the books of the corporation by one of its officers. So here the bank can not excuse the failure to give a report simply because any of its officers required to furnish it raise the question of self-incrimination.

The plaintiff can not object to giving the information demanded of it by the Comptroller nor urge any constitutional ground as a basis for refusing, having accepted its charter under a statute giving the right to call for such reports. (Interstate Consolidated Street Railway Co. v. Commonwealth of Massachusetts, 207 U. S., 79.) In that case a statute was assailed on the ground that it was repugnant to the fourteenth amendment. The court below decided otherwise and the Supreme Court said (p. 84):

> "This court is of opinion that the decision below was right. A majority of the court considers that the case is disposed of by the fact that the statute in question was in force when the plaintiff in error took its charter and confines itself to that ground."

See also Newburyport Water Co. v. Newburyport (193 U. S., 561, 759; Chicago R. I., etc., R. Co. v. Zernecke (188 U. S., 28).

In Hale v. Henkel, supra, the Supreme Court says:

> "Upon the other hand, the corporation is a creature of the State. It is presumed to be incorporated for the benefit of the public. It receives certain special privileges and franchises, and holds them subject to the laws of the State and the limitations of its charter. Its powers are limited by law. It can make no contract not authorized by its charter. Its rights to act as a corporation are only preserved to it so long as it obeys the laws of its creation. There is a reserved right in the legislature to investigate its contracts and find out whether it has exceeded its powers. It would be a strange anomaly to hold that a State, having chartered a corporation to make use of certain franchises, could not in the exercise of its sovereignty inquire how these franchises had been employed, and whether they had been abused, and demand the production of the corporate books and papers for that purpose."

The conclusion is that no constitutional rights of the bank are violated by compelling it to furnish reports. If the officers of the bank decline to give information on constitutional grounds personal to them others can be selected who will have no such ground for refusal.

Notwithstanding that the Comptroller was entitled to have special reports giving him the information sought for, he was not authorized to demand that the reports be verified by the persons designated by him to swear to them.

Section 5211 requires that the reports shall be verified by the oath or affirmation of the president or cashier and attested by the signature of at least three of the directors. The refusal to furnish the reports was not based upon the fact that the persons mentioned in the statute were not called upon to verify and attest them, and the defendants claim that this amounted to a waiver of the defect and that penalties can be imposed notwithstanding.

An action to recover penalties such as are here imposed is an action of debt and is a civil suit and not a criminal prosecution. (Hepner v. United States, 231 U. S., 103.) The case against the defendant need not be made out beyond a reasonable doubt. (United States v. Reagan, 232 U. S., 37.) Nevertheless, the declaration in an action to recover penalties is to be as strictly construed as would be an indictment for the offense for which the penalty is imposed. (Ferrett v. Atwill, 8 Fed. Cases, 4747, and, of course, must set forth the duty imposed upon the defendant by the statute.) Where, as here, that duty does not arise until an official has taken a step of a certain description, it should appear in a declaration that such step has been taken, and according to law. In proving the cause of action plaintiff must bring himself clearly within the statute (Gilbert v. Rowe, 179 Ill., 341), which was a case involving the right of an individual to recover a penalty in his private capacity. Such was also the case of Levy v. Cohen (18 N. Y. Supp. 155, on appeal, 19 N. Y. Supp., 912). There the action was to recover a penalty from the general manager of a corporation for refusing to allow the inspection of books, and it was held that the plaintiff must allege that he made his demand at the principal place of business of the corporation and during business hours, which was a prerequisite under the statute to obtaining the information. The court on the appeal there said that as the action was to recover a penalty the pleadings were to be construed with the same strictness that an indictment is. The ruling of the court was that the complaint was defective in not alleging the fact necessary to be proved.

While it is true that one charged with a crime may waive the doing of certain things which the law provides for his benefit, such, for instance, as the right to have the names of witnesses furnished to him before going to trial, no case has been found in which it has been held that a defendant waives the doing of anything which is of the essence of the offense with which he is charged, and therefore it must be held in this case that the Comptroller having called for a report not verified and attested as provided in the statute did not place himself in a position where he could lawfully assess a penalty for a failure to comply with the demand which he made.

The plaintiff would have the court enjoin the Comptroller from revoking any designation of the plaintiff as a depository and from refusing to approve of the bank as such. The prayer of the bill also asks that if the Comptroller has in form revoked such designation or in form refused such approval, then that such revocation or refusal may be decreed to be null and void.

Section 5192 of the Revised Statutes provides that a certain percentage of the reserves of a bank may consist of balances due from other associations approved by the Comptroller of the Currency. The Comptroller has not refused to approve the application of any association for leave to keep part of its reserve in the plaintiff bank. He has not revoked or threatened to revoke any approval heretofore given. He has, however, announced that he will until further notice refuse to approve of the plaintiff for that purpose.

It is obvious that if the court has any power in the premises there is no statement of fact upon the basis of which it could act except as far as an allegation of the Comptroller's alleged intention not to approve may be an allegation of fact. To enjoin him "from refusing to approve the plaintiff bank as such a depository" can mean nothing unless it be to require the Comptroller to approve, and there being no specific instance of an application pending, it amounts to asking the court to compel the Comptroller to approve of any application. To state the request as thus analyzed is to show that it can not be granted.

It is contended by the plaintiff that the Secretary of the Treasury has usurped the functions of the Treasurer of the United States in paying interest on the bonds rather than directing the Treasurer to do so. If provisions of the statutes are such as to require the Secretary of the Treasury to construe them acting presumably under the advice of the officer lawfully assigned to his department to advise him, the court will not interfere with that construction, at least if it be a possible one, especially in a case in which no harm can come to a plaintiff by following the interpretation placed on the act of the Secretary. He claims that it is his duty to pay the interest and he is retained in the case only because of that contention; otherwise the bill would be dismissed as to him.

The plaintiff seeks to have the Comptroller enjoined generally from future violations of the law so far as his acts might affect it. Such an injunction could not be upheld. A court will not stop an officer vested with powers to be exercised at his discretion from performing his statutory duty for fear that he should perform it wrongly. (First National Bank v. Albright, 208 U. S., 548.) Moreover such an injunction would be too vague (Richmond Safety Gate Co. v. Ashbridge, 116 Fed. Rep., 220), in which case the bill asked for an injunction against certain building inspectors, but the court said (p. 222):

> "The court can not undertake to direct or control the defendants' exercise of judgment in specific cases upon which they may hereafter be called upon to act * * * but an injunction, if now issued, restraining them, in general terms, from acting with groundless discrimination, or upon frivolous reasons, or from unfairly refusing to inspect gates of the plaintiff 'for long periods of time,' or from denying its rights, or interfering with its business, would, I think, because of its vagueness, be practically incapable of enforcement, and therefore, if for no other reason, ought not to be awarded."

The temporary injunction restraining the payment of $5,000 due for interest into the Treasury will be continued, but not as to the Comptroller of the Currency, as he has no control over that matter.

No preliminary relief will be granted against the Comptroller, as he is not threatening at this time to assess any penalties and has disclaimed any intention of doing so.

Except for the purpose of compelling payment of the interest due the bank and retained and of enjoining the assessment of penalties because of the failure to comply with the demands for reports the bill will be dismissed as to all the defendants.

By the Court:

WALTER I. MCCOY, Justice.

In a letter which the Riggs National Bank addressed to the Comptroller of the Currency on June 21, 1916 (which letter is printed in full on pages 154 and 155 of the Annual Report of the Comptroller of the Currency for 1916), the Riggs National Bank frankly admitted and stated that—

"The court sustains the right of the Comptroller to have the reports and information called for, and the right to impose fines in accordance with the provisions of the statutes, if the bank should refuse them."

Special attention is called to the following declaration made by the court in the opening paragraph of the decision, which is printed above:

"The affidavits submitted by the defendants on the motion for preliminary relief completely met and overcame the charges of malice and bad faith on the part of the Secretary of the Treasury and the Comptroller of the Currency; consequently, the motion for preliminary relief was denied except in so far as it made necessary a consideration of the question of the powers of the Comptroller to call for special reports from banks."

The decision, as conclusively shown, was overwhelmingly in favor of the Government officials.

SUMMARY OF THE FOREGOING DECISION.

The following summary, which gives extracts from the text of the decision of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia on the various points involved, shows how completely and specifically the Comptroller's office was sustained on every important point involved and is presented for convenient reference on the several questions involving the powers and duties of the Comptroller and the obligations of national banks:

1. RIGHT OF THE COMPTROLLER TO INFORMATION CALLED FOR JUNE, 1914, AT BEGINNING OF CONTROVERSY.

"The information called for by the Comptroller in regard to the list of loans in excess of $5,000 secured by collaterals should have been furnished. The contention is made that he made a demand that the information be given 'at once,' but that fact can not be clearly ascertained from reading the paragraph, and it rather appears that when the Comptroller said that he wanted the information at once it was merely an answer to the suggestion of the officers of the bank that they would take the matter up with the board of directors." (P. 892.)

2. DEMAND FOR INFORMATION REGARDING PRIVATE WIRES TO BROKERS' OFFICES "EMINENTLY PROPER."

"The demand to be informed whether or not the plaintiff was maintaining a private telegraph wire connected with stock brokerage houses in New York was an eminently proper inquiry, but so was that set forth in the fifteenth paragraph of the bill as it related to expenditures being made at the time by the bank." (P. 892.)

3. BANK WAS WRONG IN REFUSAL TO GIVE INFORMATION REGARDING FLATHER & FLATHER PRIVATE ACCOUNTS.

"It is stated that the Comptroller demanded that certain officers of the bank express an opinion as a matter of law to the best of their knowledge and belief as to who was the owner of a certain account standing in the name of 'Flather & Flather.' The allegation is that the Comptroller was informed of every fact respecting this account, amount thereof, source of funds credited to the account, and the use from time to time made of those funds was fully and repeatedly stated to the Comptroller. Two officers of the bank at the time bore the name of Flather. If the bank knew as much about the account as the allegation indicates, the court will not assume that under those circumstances it was unreasonable to call for an expression of the knowledge and belief of the officers of the bank as to whom, between the bank and the persons named as depositors, the funds really belonged. Possibly if all facts in regard to the account which, as the bill says, were stated to the Comptroller has been stated in the bill for the information of the court, a different conclusion might be reached; but the Comptroller did have the facts stated and having them may well have been justified in asking for the best of the knowledge and belief of the officers as to the ownership of this account, which is not calling for an opinion on a question of law." (P. 892.)

4. TIME ALLOWED BANK BY COMPTROLLER FOR FURNISHING REPORTS APPROVED BY COURT.

"Certain reports were called for and a time longer than five days was specified for some of them. It is not obvious why the bank should complain of the giving of a longer time. The paragraph also states that compliance was physically impossible, but it is not alleged that any effort was made to get an extension of time, nor does it state what the demands were, so as to permit the court to form any opinion as to whether there was anything objectionable in the demand." (P. 892.)

5. COMPTROLLER'S DEMAND FOR INFORMATION REGARDING LOANS TO TREASURY OFFICIALS APPROVED.

"There was a demand for information in regard to loans made by the plaintiff, directly or indirectly, to Secretaries of the Treasury and Assistant Secretaries of the Treasury of the United States, to Comptrollers of the Currency, to national-bank examiners, and to employees of the Comptroller's office. The demand certainly can not be considered an improper one, especially if any officers of the bank have been officers since its organization, to which time reference is made in the demand and the facts in that regard should be fully stated." (P. 892.)

6. CALLS FOR SPECIAL REPORTS REGARDING COMMERCIAL PAPER "CLEARLY PROPER."

"The demand for information in regard to commercial paper being carried by plaintiff was clearly proper, relating, as it did, to the assets of the bank." (P. 892.)

7. BANK'S COMPLAINT REGARDING SPECIAL REPORT CONCERNING GOVERNMENT BONDS NOT SUPPORTED.

"The details of the demand for a special report in regard to United States bonds shown in the regular report of the bank are not sufficiently set forth to enable the court to determine what is complained of." (P. 892.)

8. CALLS FOR REPORTS REGARDING SHARES HELD BY DIRECTORS APPROVED

"The gist of one of the charges seems to be that the Comptroller made calls on a certain national bank other than the plaintiff and a certain trust company in which officers of the plaintiff were directors and that he disregarded the fact that while a national bank director is required to own 10 shares of stock, directors of trust companies are under no such requirement. The Comptroller has a right to make an inquiry in regard to ownership of stock by the directors of a bank, and it does not appear what his demand for information in regard to the ownership of stock in trust companies has to do with this case unless it be to show the malice charged, but the facts are not set forth fully enough to enable the court to take any action based upon the alleged improper conduct of the Comptroller. Moreover, the Comptroller has the same powers over trust companies in the District of Columbia as he has over national banks. Code, sections 713, 714." (P. 892–3.)

9. BANK'S OBJECTION TO EMPLOYMENT OF SPECIAL EXAMINERS NOT SUSTAINED.

"The paragraphs of the bill contain allegations that the defendant Williams said that he would not believe the statements of the plaintiff's officers; that certain lengthy examinations were made by bank examiners, and that a bank examiner was brought from without the jurisdiction of the District of Columbia and made a long examination of the plaintiff's officers, are not statements of facts entitling plaintiffs to relief." (P. 893.)

10. COMPTROLLER'S DEMAND FOR PRINTED COPIES OF CORRESPONDENCE JUSTIFIED.

"The Comptroller rightly asked to be informed in regard to the expenditure of money for printed copies of the correspondence, and for the other information on that matter in order to enable him to determine the propriety of those expenditures * * *" (P. 893.)

11. COMPTROLLER RIGHT IN ASKING WHETHER ANY OF PLAINTIFF'S BOOKS OR RECORDS HAD BEEN DESTROYED.

The court also declared that the Comptroller was right when he called on the bank to inform him "as to whether any of the plaintiff's books or records had been destroyed." (P. 893.)

12. COMPTROLLER'S DEMAND FOR INFORMATION IN REGARD TO "DUMMY" OR OTHER LOANS TO OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES WAS RIGHTLY MADE.

"The circumstances surrounding the demands for the failure to comply with which the penalty of $5,000 was assessed are fully set forth above. That demand was twofold: First, for information in regard to all direct loans made by the bank to certain of its then officers, and, second, for information in regard to all indirect or dummy or concealed loans made since the organization of the bank for the benefit, directly or indirectly, of those officers, or any of them, including all loans for which they or any of them had indorsed or for which they had furnished the whole or any part of the collateral by which loans to any of them were secured, and for other information as shown by the quotation of said paragraph above. In the view which the court takes of the power of the Comptroller these demands were entirely within his powers. The reply of the bank, it will be noted, states that when the last examination of the bank was conducted there were no loans to the officers standing on the books, and likewise, in regard to the demand for loans made to them under cover, and it is not denied that the latter sort of loan had been made. Evidently the main contention sought to be raised by the allegation in this paragraph is that the transactions of the sort referred to, having been closed a considerable time prior to the making of the demand, were not the proper subject of inquiry by the Comptroller.

The court has indicated a view to the contrary above, and it is perfectly obvious that as to concealed loans made for the benefit of the officers of the bank no possible limit to the scope of an inquiry by the Comptroller could be reasonably suggested. The bill alleges that a bank examiner had gone over the books back to the date when the plaintiff began to do business." (P. 893.)

13. COMPTROLLER'S DEMAND THAT BANK SUBMIT CORRESPONDENCE TO BOARD OF DIRECTORS UPHELD.

"It is stated that the Comptroller, in requiring that certain facts be laid before the board of directors, did so for the purpose of discrediting the plaintiff's officers before the board of directors and to drive them from their official positions. This practice is practically approved by the Supreme Court of the United States in Jones National Bank v. Yates et al., decided April 3, 1916, in which case it appeared that a letter from the Comptroller 'emphasized the duty of the directors with respect to the conduct of the bank's affairs, and it concluded with a request for a reply over the directors' individual signatures.'" (P. 893.)

14. NO FOUNDATION FOR BANK'S CLAIM THAT COMPTROLLER ACTED MALICIOUSLY

"The bill alleges that the acts of the Comptroller were done maliciously. This is merely the statement of a conclusion of law not admitted by demurrer. Malice in law means nothing more than the intentional doing of a wrongful act without justification and within the meaning of the definitions such an act is one which, in the ordinary course, is calculated to infringe and does, in fact, infringe upon the rights of another to his damage unless it be done in the exercise of an equal or superior right. Brennan v. United States (73 N. J. Law, 729). The Comptroller was acting within his powers and in performance of his duty so far as calling for the reports is concerned, therefore, as no right of the plaintiff was infringed, he was not acting maliciously." (P. 893.)

15. BANK'S COMPLAINT CONCERNING PANAMA DEPOSITS BASELESS.

"There is a complete failure to show that for the purpose of wrecking the plaintiff bank the defendant took advantage of conditions arising out of the war in Europe. In fact, the plaintiff's own specific allegations disprove the coincidence on which alone such a charge could be based." (P. 880.)

16. CRITICISM REGARDING RED CROSS DEPOSITS UNFOUNDED.

"There are numerous allegations in the bill inserted apparently for the purpose of establishing malice and showing a conspiracy, notably that of the action of the Comptroller in regard to the Red Cross funds, but a reading of the allegations in that regard show satisfactorily that defendant Williams, as treasurer of the Red Cross funds, was taking perfectly proper steps to obtain the largest possible revenue from it while on deposit. The plaintiff was given the same opportunity that was given to others to have those deposits made in its bank." (P. 893.)

17. NO SUPPORT FOR CHARGES OF HOSTILITY TO BANK'S OFFICERS.

"Another allegation is that the defendants, McAdoo and Williams, 'had, in ways which will be fully detailed in the evidence to be taken in this suit, openly and publicly manifested their personal malice toward certain of the plaintiff's officers.' Without considering that the plaintiff's officers are not the bank and that the defendant might be hostile to plaintiff's officers while being solicitous for the welfare of the stockholders, it is obvious that if the plaintiff wished any action to be taken based on the existence of such hostility it should have stated the facts fully enough to permit the court to determine the existence of such feeling. The other allegations inserted in the bill for the purpose of showing malice do not require any special reference." (P. 893–4.)

18. COURT DENIES BANK'S CLAIM THAT THE $100 PER DAY PENALTY DID NOT APPLY TO SPECIAL REPORTS.

"The act of March 3, 1869, section 1, after providing for five regular reports, provided as follows: 'And the Comptroller shall also have power to call for special reports from any particular association whenever, in his judgment, the same shall be necessary in order to a full and complete knowledge of its condition.

"'Any association failing to make and transmit any such report shall be subject to a penalty of $100 for each day after five days that such bank shall delay to make and transmit any report as aforesaid. * * * .'"

"Section 2 of the act provides:

"'That, in addition to said reports, each national banking association shall report to the Comptroller of the Currency the amount of each dividend declared by said association and the amount of net earnings in excess of said dividends, which report shall be made within two days after the declaration of each dividend and attested by the oath of the president or cashier of said association, and a failure to comply with the provisions of this section shall subject such association to the penalties provided in the foregoing section.'

"In view of this previous legislation it can not be successfully maintained that Congress intended, in revising the statutes, to make any change as to what was required nor as to the penalty to be imposed. Congress simply enacted in three sections what had previously been contained in two sections of a single act." (P. 894–5.)

19. REFUSAL OF BANK'S OFFICERS TO FURNISH DATA ON GROUND THAT TO DO SO WOULD INCRIMINATE THEM WAS UNLAWFUL.

"The demands made by the Comptroller were that the bank make certain reports. If the demand had included the production of books and papers of the plaintiff the officers of the bank would have no privilege of refusing to produce them because they might contain matter which would incriminate the officers or lead to punishment of the corporation. Hale v. Henkel (201 U. S., 42); Wilson v. United States, (221 U. S., 361). As was stated in the latter case, the State has visitorial powers over corporations. The fourth amendment of the Constitution protects a corporation against unreasonable searches and seizures, but the fifth amendment, providing against compelling a person to be a witness against himself in a criminal case, does not prevent the compulsory production of the books of the corporation by one of its officers. So here the bank can not excuse its failure to give a report simply because any of its officers required to furnish it raise the question of self-incrimination.

"The plaintiff can not object to giving the information demanded of it by the Comptroller nor urge any constitutional ground as a basis for refusing, having accepted its charter under a statute giving the right to call for such reports." (P. 895–6.)

20. COMPTROLLER'S REFUSAL TO APPROVE RIGGS NATIONAL BANK AS DEPOSITORY SUSTAINED.

"The plaintiff would have the court enjoin the Comptroller from revoking any designation of the plaintiff as a depository and from refusing to approve of the bank as such. The prayer of the bill also asks that if the Comptroller has in form revoked such designation or in form refused such approval, then that such revocation or refusal may be decreed to be null and void.

"It is obvious that if the court has any power in the premises there is no statement of fact upon the basis of which it could act except as far as an allegation of the Comptroller's alleged intention not to approve may be an allegation of fact. To enjoin him 'from refusing to approve the plaintiff's bank as such a depository' can mean nothing unless it be to require the Comptroller to approve, and, there being no specific instance of an application pending, it amounts to asking the court to compel the Comptroller to approve of any application. To state the request thus analyzed is to show that it can not be granted." (P. 897.)

21. COURT REFUSES BANK'S PETITION THAT THE COMPTROLLER BE ENJOINED FROM "FUTURE VIOLATIONS OF LAW."

"The plaintiff seeks to have the Comptroller enjoined generally from future violations of the law so far as his acts might affect it. Such an injunction could not be upheld. A court will not stop an officer vested with powers to be exercised at his discretion from performing his statutory duty for fear that he should perform it wrongly." (P. 897.)

22. RIGHT OF COMPTROLLER TO EXERCISE DISCRETION AS TO ASSESSMENT OF PENALTY FOR DELAY OR REFUSAL TO FURNISH REPORTS SUSTAINED.

"The purpose of the act giving the Comptroller power to call for special reports is obvious. Supervision over national banks is vested in him. In order that he may perform his duties he is given authority by the section here under consideration to call for special reports when, in his judgment, they are necessary to a full and complete knowledge of the condition of the bank. He alone having power to act, and therefore being the only one for whose benefit information is necessary, is the only one to determine that question, and also whether his call for a special report has been complied with. There can be no doubt, then, of his right to say that the plaintiff has given him the information desired, nor, that, having so announced to the plaintiff the liability of the latter to penalties ceased as of the respective times when the reports were received." (P. 875.)

A SMALL TECHNICAL QUESTION WAS ONLY POINT IN BANK'S FAVOR IN ENTIRE DECISION.

The only point decided in favor of the bank in the entire decision was the judge's conclusion that, as the Comptroller had directed that the special reports should be furnished over the signature of the president and cashier and certain other officers of the bank instead of over the signature of the president or cashier, attested by not less than three directors, the Comptroller could not assess the penalty of $100 per day provided by statute, on reports previously called for, and on account of the refusal to furnish which the $5,000 fine had been imposed. But the court's decision declared clearly that if the bank should at any time refuse to furnish any of the reports called for by the Comptroller, signed as provided by statute, the bank would be subject to the continuing penalty of $100 per day for each refusal.
