PUBLIC HOUSING ADMINISTRATION

[Submitted under the Government Corporation Control Act]

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Public Housing Administration has direct responsibility for the low rent public housing program under the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended. In addition the Public Housing Commissioner directs on behalf of the Administrator the liquidation of certain activities included in the revolving fund for liquidating programs (see Revolving fund (liquidating programs)). These include the subsistence homesteads and greentowns program, public war housing program and the veterans' re-use program.

The administrative expenses for these programs are presented in consolidated form. These expenses are paid from a single fund and distributed on a workload basis to the programs.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The United States Housing Act of 1937 (42 U. S. C. 1401) provided for a program of locally owned and operated low-rent housing by authorizing loans, and annual contributions to maintain the low-rent character of the projects. Subsequently, the act of June 28, 1940, permitted the construction of permanent housing for war workers, subject to conversion to low-rent use after the emergency. The program was expanded by the Housing Act of 1949, which authorized the construction of an additional 810,000 housing units over a 6-year period, increased the borrowing power of the Administration to $1.5 billion outstanding at any one time, and increased the authorization to contract for annual contributions to $336 million for periods up to 40 years. The Housing Act of 1950 transferred to the Administration labor supply centers, labor homes, and labor camps administered by the Secretary of Agriculture, to be used for low-income agricultural workers and their families. This act also authorized the transfer of certain permanent war housing projects to local authorities for low-rent use in accordance with the 1937 act, and such projects, when so transferred, are administered as part of the United States Housing Act program.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

The major activities are the development and capital financing of low-rent projects, and the management of projects, including the payment of annual contributions, for which an appropriation of $87 million is requested for 1956.

The following table shows the status of the program at the end of each fiscal year:

Development and capital financing.—The Housing Act of 1954 authorized the Public Housing Administration to enter into new contracts for loans and annual contributions for an additional 35,000 units in fiscal 1955. However, the act specifies that these projects are to be undertaken in a community in which there is being carried out a slum clearance and urban redevelopment project, or a slum clearance and urban renewal project. The act further provides that the local governing body of the community undertaking the program must certify that such low-rent housing project is necessary to assist in meeting the relocation requirements under the act. The act also requires that the total number of dwelling units in low-rent housing projects covered by such new contracts shall not exceed the total number of such dwelling units which the Administrator determines to be needed for the relocation of families to be displaced as a result of Federal, State, or local governmental action in such community.

The budget program provides for the execution of annual contributions contracts for 35,000 units in 1955 and contemplates the authorization of construction of 20,000 units in 1955 and 35,000 in 1956. In addition, it is estimated that 35,000 units will be completed for occupancy in 1955 and 25,000 units in 1956.

Private capital in the form of temporary notes is utilized during development to the maximum extent practicable in lieu of advances by the Administration. Since the Administration guarantees privately financed notes, they have excellent security and are now being sold at interest rates of less than 1.5 percent per year. All temporary notes are retired as soon as the local authority sells to the public long-term bonds for the project, which are secured by the Government's pledge to pay annual contributions.

The budget program for capital financing consists of permanent financing, private temporary financing, and Government financing by loans to local housing authorities. Permanent financing by the sale to private investors of local housing authority long-term bonds and securities is estimated at $543 million in 1955 and $595 million in 1956. Private temporary financing amounted to $1.1 billion on June 30, 1954. It is estimated that private temporary financing will amount to $991 million on June 30, 1955, and $797 million on June 30, 1956. Loans to local housing authorities amounted to $197 million on June 30, 1954, and are estimated at $156 million on June 30, 1955, and $159 million on June 30, 1956.

The above volume of financing is necessary in order to stay abreast of the financing requirements of the new program and to effect permanent private financing arrangements for portions of the existing program.

The following table summarizes the lending activities of the Administration in 1955 and 1956:

	1955 estimate	1956 estimate
Purchases:
Preliminary and advance loan notes	$439,311,000	$469,774,000
Permanent notes	14,919,000	12,847,000
Total purchases	454,230,000	482,621,000
Repayments:
Preliminary and advance loan notes	449,286,000	466,847,000
Permanent notes	37,000,000	12,000,000
Other notes and mortgages	53,105,000	374,000
Total repayments	539,391,000	479,221,000

Management.—The Administration reviews management operations of the local housing authorities, approves operating budgets, audits books, and inspects physical plants, to assure compliance with the law and the orderly and economical operation of the projects. The dwellings are rented to low-income families at rents scaled to amounts which such families can pay. Annual Federal contributions are made to cover operating deficits.

The following table summarizes the annual contribution requirements for all projects:

	1954 actual	1955 estimate	1956 estimate
Number of units eligible	259,116	305,298	354,378
Fixed contribution for projects eligible for payment	$67,844,328	$91,075,000	$110,583,000
Less: Amounts available for reduction of fixed contribution	$23,370,718	$23,298,610	$23,583,000
Annual contributions requirements	$44,473,610	$67,776,390	$87,000,000
Adjustment for 1954 annual contributions payable in fiscal year 1955	−$1,173,610	$1,173,610	----------
Annual contributions appropriation or estimate	$43,300,000	$68,950,000	$87,000,000

The increased annual contribution requirements in 1956 are occasioned primarily by the increased number of units eligible for contributions which result from the completion and permanent financing of new and reactivated projects and the sale to local housing authorities of federally owned projects.

In addition to the above, there are the following types of projects which do not receive annual contributions:

(a) Farm labor centers.—The majority of these centers have been rehabilitated and sold to local housing authorities under a contract which provides that full title will not be acquired until the end of a 20-year period during which time the Government will receive net income but will not pay deficits. Of the 39 camps, 36 had been sold as of June 30, 1954.

(b) Public war housing projects transferred to low-rent use.—The estimate provides for the transfer of 4,000 units of permanent war housing in 1955 to local housing authorities for operation as low-rent projects. Under the terms of the transfer all net income will be returned to the United States Treasury for 40 years after the date of transfer.

(c) Public Works Administration projects transferred to local ownership.—The estimate also provides for the transfer of 6,215 units of Public Works Administration housing to local ownership in 1955 and an additional 3,892 units in 1956. The terms of sale will require that all net income be returned to the Government for 40 years after the date of transfer.

(d) Federally owned projects.—The remaining projects under Federal ownership will receive no annual contribution.

Administrative expenses.—Administrative expense requirements for this program are estimated at $7,350,000 for 1955 and $8,800,000 for 1956. These amounts are merged with funds for administrative expenses of the liquidating programs conducted by the Public Housing Administration into a single fund, which is shown under the estimate for "Administrative expenses, Public Housing Administration."

FINANCING OPERATIONS

The budget program contemplates that outstanding borrowings from the United States Treasury will be decreased by $104 million in 1955 and increased by $1 million in 1956. These repayments of borrowing result primarily from a policy of utilizing private temporary financing to the maximum extent feasible.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAM

The Administration's programs are administered by a single integrated organization. Administrative functions are divided into three major categories: Development, management, and disposition, as follows:

Development.—The anticipated development workload is described in detail under the United States Housing Act program.

Management.—This activity applies to locally owned projects developed and operated with Federal financial assistance and to federally owned projects. Dependent on the type of program, management is conducted by local authorities which own and operate low-rent housing projects and also lease certain of the federally owned projects; by sponsoring municipalities and educational institutions; and by the Public Housing Administration itself in the case of federally operated projects.

The management workload for each program is as follows:

NUMBER OF DWELLING UNITS IN MANAGEMENT AT YEAR END

	1954 actual	1955 estimate	1956 estimate
Low-rent public housing program	373,409	412,409	437,409

Veterans' reuse housing	11,584	4,010
Total management	568,098	532,591	498,581

Disposition.—Liquidation of the Government's interest in war and veterans' reuse housing is proceeding rapidly. The budget program contemplates the following disposal of dwelling units:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Agricultural Research Service conducts fundamental and applied research and demonstrations relating to the production and utilization of agricultural products, and conducts those control and regulatory programs of the Department which involve enforcement of plant and animal quarantines, meat inspection, the control of diseases and insect pests of animals and plants, and related work.

The proposed net increase consists of: (a) increases to expand and strengthen research relating to the production and utilization of agricultural products, primarily in the field of increasing efficiency and reducing costs of producing livestock and livestock products as a primary means of adjusting production to consumer demand, partially offset by (b) a net decrease in control and regulatory activities on certain insects and plant and animal diseases.

1. Research—(a) Crop research.—Investigations are conducted to develop improved varieties of food, feed, fiber, and other plants; to improve crop production practices including methods to control plant diseases; to control harmful and utilize beneficial insects affecting farm production; and to develop and test new chemical formulations for the control of crop pests.

(b) Farm and land management research.—Investigations are conducted to improve fertilizers and soil management and irrigation practices; to develop and improve conservation practices and techniques; to determine the relation of soils to plant, animal, and human nutrition; and to apply engineering principles to agriculture. Economics of production research is conducted on profitable adjustments in farming by type and size of farm; efficiency in use of labor, equipment, land, and water; inventory and analysis of land resources; and problems of farm valuation, taxation, debt, tenure, risk, and insurance.

(c) Livestock research.—Investigations are conducted on all farm livestock, poultry, and domestic fur animals to develop superior strains and types, establish nutritive requirements, determine physiology of reproduction, achieve efficient use of feed and forage in the production of meat, milk, eggs, wool, fur, and other products; develop practical methods of control of diseases and of parasites affecting livestock and develop improved and efficient management methods and practices.

(d) Administration of payments to States, and Territorial research.—Research under Federal grant funds at each State agricultural experiment station is administered and coordinated with the research conducted by other States and by agencies of the United States Department of Agriculture. Agricultural experiment stations are operated in Puerto Rico, Virgin Islands, and Alaska.

(e) Human nutrition and home economics research.—Investigations are conducted on nutritional requirements; the composition and nutritive value of various foods; the principles of utilization underlying consumer selection, preparation, and preservation of foods. Studies are also made of the practices and problems of families in the buying, utilization, and management of food, clothing, household equipment and other needed goods and services, and the requirements and designs for effective use of household space.

(f) Utilization research.—Investigations are conducted in the field of chemistry and related physical and biological sciences to develop new and improved foods, feeds, drugs, fabrics, industrial chemicals, and other products from agricultural commodities; to devise improved methods for evaluating the suitability of commodities for processing; to devise better processing methods; to increase the use of byproducts; and to solve waste disposal problems.

2. Plant and animal disease and pest control—(a) Plant disease and pest control.—The work consists of insect and plant disease control and plant quarantine measures designed to protect agriculture from destructive insects and plant diseases. The Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act is administered and enforced.

(b) Animal disease and pest control.—Measures are devised to exclude communicable diseases of foreign origin from this country; to prevent the spread of diseases through interstate shipments of livestock or distribution of impure or impotent veterinary biologics; to control and eradicate livestock diseases, and to maintain, through a marketing agreement with manufacturers and handlers,

The work includes inspection of animals, carcasses and meat, and meat-food products at various stages of handling and processing. Measures are enforced to insure informative labeling and meats imported or exported are inspected. Reimbursements are received from meatpacking establishments for the cost of overtime performed at their request. Reimbursements are also received from governmental purchasing agencies for examining meat and meat-food products for compliance with their specifications. Continuous inspection of the manufacture of process butter is also provided.

The volume of inspections and examinations performed annually is indicated by examples for the fiscal year 1954, given in the following table:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Funds are allotted to the agricultural experiment stations of the land-grant colleges in the States, Hawaii, Alaska, and Puerto Rico for agricultural research, including investigations and experiments to promote a permanent and efficient agricultural industry and improvements in the rural home and rural life. The allotments are made partly on the basis of prescribed amounts in the authorizing acts and partly on the basis of need in specific areas to find solutions to agricultural problems. The States are contributing about $5 to $1 paid by the Federal Government.

The proposed increase is to strengthen the research program at the State, Territorial, and Puerto Rico agricultural experiment stations.

RESEARCH ON STRATEGIC AND CRITICAL AGRICULTURAL MATERIALS—continued

Research on Strategic and Critical Agricultural Materials, Agricultural Research Service—Continued

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

On recommendation and approval of the Office of Defense Mobilization, investigations are made of the feasibility of developing domestic sources of supplies of any agricultural material or substitute for it, determined by that Office to be strategic and critical. The proposed decrease is made possible by the expected completion during the fiscal year 1956 of the development of a more flexible method for the extraction of tannins from canaigre roots and the production of an adequate amount of the extract for evaluation purposes.

1. Research on domestic production of natural rubber.—Investigations on the production and development of guayule as a source of rubber were discontinued in 1954.

2. Investigations of domestic production of vegetable tannins.—These studies aim at domestic production of crops from which materials for tanning leather can be derived, and development of methods of extracting such materials.

3. Investigations on vegetable fats and oils.—These studies seek to develop the domestic production of castor beans.

4. Investigations on fiber plants.—This work centers on the domestic production of fibers that can be used for such purposes as lines and ropes on naval vessels and as substitutes for jute.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This item provides for research and eradication of foot-and-mouth and other contagious diseases of animals and poultry.

1. Eradication activities.—In May 1953, a new outbreak of foot-and-mouth disease occurred in Mexico. Due to the unpredictable course of the disease, the Department has been authorized to transfer needed amounts from any funds available to it. Replacements of these transfers have been made from subsequent appropriations and by canceling notes issued by the Commodity Credit Corporation to the Secretary of the Treasury.

On August 1, 1952, an emergency was declared as the result of the spread of vesicular exanthema of swine. Cooperative measures have been undertaken to eradicate the disease. Chief means of spread of the disease is through feeding of uncooked garbage. To further eradication efforts, 42 States now have laws or regulations requiring the cooking of garbage fed to swine.

On October 31, 1952, an emergency was declared as the result of the diagnosis of scrapie in California. This destructive virus disease was also diagnosed in Connecticut, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan, New York, Ohio, and Oregon. On December 17, 1954, the emergency was terminated, since no further cases of the disease are known in the United States.

Funds for carrying out the eradication of vesicular exanthema and scrapie have been made available from other appropriations of the Department.

2. Research.—Foot-and-mouth disease research is being initiated in fiscal year 1955 on Plum Island, N. Y., in facilities made available to the Department of Agriculture by the Department of the Army. Research on this disease was authorized by the act of April 24, 1948 (21 U. S. C. 113a). Pending completion of the new facilities which are now under construction on Plum Island, the current research program is limited in scope.

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

Extension work is a joint undertaking of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, the State land-grant colleges, and counties and municipalities. It brings to rural people and others, as appropriate, the results of research conducted by the Department, the colleges and other agencies. Its objective is to help people help themselves to attain greater efficiency in farming, in marketing and in distribution, and to have better homes and higher standards of living.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Funds are distributed to each State, Alaska, Puerto Rico, and Hawaii, on the basis of formulas stipulated in the governing acts. The costs of cooperative extension work are currently shared as follows: Federal appropriations, 39.4 percent; State appropriations, 35.8 percent; county appropriations, 22.3 percent; and other local sources, 2.5 percent.

The funds are used within the States for the employment of county agents, county home demonstration agents, county 4–H Club agents, specialists, and other staff members who make available to rural people and interpret for them the results of agricultural and home economic research and related information and provide information on, and assist in the implementation of, other programs of the Department of Agriculture. Thus, extension agents work directly with farm families and help them solve a large variety of farm and home problems, assist them in making use of the various agricultural programs, and advise on the application of improved methods of production, marketing, and family living. Work with youth, largely through 4-H Clubs which now have an enrollment of over 2,000,000, includes both agriculture and home economics and, in addition, training in leadership development and citizenship responsibilities. Extension specialists and other State staff members are primarily responsible for developing educational materials and training and assisting county extension agents in conducting effective educational programs with farm families.

Funds are also distributed to the States, Hawaii, Alaska, and Puerto Rico on a matching basis under approved projects for educational work applicable to the marketing and distribution of agricultural products.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Federal Extension Service provides administrative, policy and program leadership for a nationwide system of extension education in agriculture and home economics conducted in cooperation with the Extension Services of the States and Territories. Assistance is provided to the States with respect to (1) overall policies and relationships, (2) program development and adjustment in line with changing conditions and new technology, (3) organization of staff and work for most efficient use of resources available, (4) evaluation of methods and procedures used and results obtained, and (5) in-service training for extension personnel.

The Service provides counsel and assistance to the States in adjusting programs, in inaugurating new programs to meet changing economic conditions and new technology, and in developing uniform programs on an area basis involving several States where the need exists. It provides for an exchange of research findings and program information among States, and between the Department, other research agencies, and the States to insure full availability and incorporation into the State educational programs. The latest information is furnished the States regarding the programs of the Department of direct significance to farm people.

Assistance is provided in developing agreements with States covering programs of work and with State budgets, projects and the annual plans of work; funds are allocated to individual States; and State expenditures are examined for compliance with requirements of law. Visual and informational aids are developed and made available to the States and counties. They are assisted and trained in developing and using teaching aids and more effective teaching methods, and are provided with other types of direct program and procedural help.

This item also includes funds to cover the costs of penalty mailings of the cooperative extension agents in the States.

FOREST SERVICE

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Service carries on three primary functions: (1) Protection, development, and use of more than 181,000,000 acres of land in national forests in the United States, Alaska, and Puerto Rico; and the management of land utilization projects covering about 7,000,000 acres; (2) cooperation with the States and private forest landowners to obtain better fire protection on approximately 427,000,000 acres of forest lands and better forest practices on about 345,000,000 acres of privately owned commercial timber lands, to encourage reforestation, and to stimulate development and management of State, county, and community forests; and (3) forest research and range management research for all forest lands and related ranges to bring about better protection from fire, insects, and diseases; to increase productivity, and to facilitate full utilization of forest, water, and range resources, and more profitable production of timber and forage. Included in these three primary functions are construction and maintenance of roads and trails, control of forest pests, protection against floods, land exchange, and a number of cooperative projects.

1. National forest protection and management—(a) Resource protection and use.—The national forests are protected from fire, and their resources are managed in such ways as to bring about full utilization and maximum sustained production.

In addition this item provides for management of land utilization projects. In cooperation with local and State agencies, revegetation and other development work has been done on submarginal land projects in 30 States, covering about 7,000,000 acres. Developed lands are made available to local farmers and ranchers at equitable rates under specific use conditions. Of the revenue amounting to more than $1.5 million annually, 75 percent goes to the Treasury and 25 percent to the counties in which the lands are located.

(b) Resource development.—Main factors are shown in following table:

organization provided for under the activity "National forest protection and management."

3. Control of forest pests—(a) White pine blister rust control.—Protection of white pine trees from blister rust is provided by removing ribes (alternate host plants) from areas where white pines grow. Some of this work is done in cooperation with State, private and other Federal land-managing agencies. Ribes have been removed from approximately 16,500,000 acres to date. Some maintenance work is needed on this acreage to keep the ribes suppressed. Approximately 6,800,000 additional acres require further eradication work.

The following table indicates the estimated program for 1955 and 1956 as compared to work done in 1954:

Acres	1954 actual	1955 estimate	1956 estimate
Initial eradication	218,966	50,000	50,000
Rework	941,232	950,000	950,000
Total	1,160,198	1,000,000	1,000,000

(b) Forest pest control.—Operations consist of (a) surveys to detect and appraise the danger of insects and plant diseases which injure or destroy forest resources, and (b) suppressive measures before extensive damage is done and while areas requiring treatment are small.

4. Forest research—(a) Forest and range management investigations.—Research is conducted at regional forest experiment stations and elsewhere to provide private and public land managers and owners with a sound basis for protection and management of timber, range, and watershed lands. Studies are conducted to enable the maintaining of a sustained yield of products at the lowest possible costs; increase forage on range lands for maximum production of livestock without damage to soil, watershed, or other values; assure maximum regular flow of usable water, and reduce flood and sedimentation.

(b) Forest protection investigations (fire, insects, and diseases).—Research is conducted at the regional forest experiment stations and elsewhere to develop sound measures for the protection of forests from damage by fire, insects, and diseases. These investigations provide the technical basis for control measures and preventive measures, including predictions of fire danger.

(c) Forest products investigations.—The work of the forest products laboratory is directed toward improvement of forest products, reduction and utilization of waste, utilization of low-quality wood and unpopular species, development of new wood products, reduction of costs of logging and utilization of wood products, development of basic knowledge and discoveries, and dissemination of findings to meet the needs of the forest owner, primary manufacturer, wood fabricator, and ultimate consumer.

(d) Forest resources investigations.—These investigations are conducted to inventory and appraise the condition of forest lands, volume and quality of standing timber, ownership of timber resources, annual growth and depletion, potential need for timber products, and other information on supply, production, marketing, and utilization.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Roads and trails are essential to the protection and management of the national forests and the utilization of their resources. The existing system consists of approximately 119,000 miles of earth- or gravel-surfaced roads and 120,000 miles of supplemental trails.

The increase in 1956 is to provide the full $24,000,000 authorized for that year by the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1954. This will permit increased construction of timber access roads urgently needed to accelerate harvesting of national forest timber.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1954 (Public Law 350) made immediately available, in the form of contract authorization, the sum previously authorized for the fiscal year 1955 and the amounts authorized in that act for the fiscal years 1956 and 1957 for forest roads and trails, totaling $70,500,000.

Unfinanced contract authorization.—Status of the unfinanced balance is as follows:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This program, for the most part carried on in cooperation with the States, encourages private timber growing through assistance in preventing and suppressing forest fires, reforestation of denuded and poorly stocked areas, and good management of woodlands. Privately owned forest lands comprise three-fourths of the Nation's commercial forest area and produce 90 percent of all timber cut. The fire-control program applies to all forest lands within the boundaries of organized protection units. The balance of the program is concentrated on small forest properties in private ownership because (a) 76 percent of the private commercial forest acreage is in small holdings averaging only about 62 acres each, (b) the small-owner group comprises 99 percent of private forest owners, and (c) present cutting practices are poorest on these small properties.

1. Cooperation in forest fire control.—Assistance is furnished 43 States and Hawaii in preventing and suppressing forest fires on private and State-owned lands by financial aid, training, procurement of equipment, and a nationwide fire-prevention campaign. About 87 percent of the 427,000,000 acres of non-Federal ownership are now partially covered. During 1953 the acreage burned on protected areas was 0.7 percent as against an estimated 13.5 percent on unprotected lands. Of the total expenditures under this program, 70 percent is contributed by

States and counties, 6 percent by private owners, and 24 percent by the Federal Government.

2. Cooperation in forest tree planting.—To encourage woodland owners to plant trees on the more than 60 million acres of inadequately stocked private forest land, the States provide trees at less than cost. In fiscal year 1954 the Federal Government shared the cost with the States to the extent of one-fifth.

3. Cooperation in forest management and processing.—In cooperation with State foresters, 274 projects in 1,300 counties are operated to aid small-woodland owners in applying good management to their timber holdings, covering some 32,000 owners and about 2,600,000 acres. Small processors of primary forest products receive similar technical assistance.

4. General forestry assistance.—Assistance and advice is given by field technicians in groups of States in response to inquiries in technical forestry fields in which the volume of business in any one State is not sufficient to justify a technician in each individual State.

Acquisition of lands for national forests—1954, $74,489; 1955, $125,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

In the fiscal years 1954 and 1955 funds were provided to acquire lands to protect the watersheds of navigable streams and to increase the production of timber. The National Forest Reservation Commission, composed of 2 Senators, 2 Representatives, the Secretaries of the Army, Interior, and Agriculture, has approved the establishment of 78 national forest purchase units in 33 States, mainly in the eastern half of the United States. The present value of forest lands thus purchased to date is conservatively estimated at $200,000,000, which is more than twice their cost.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Service, in cooperation with State and other agencies, aids in bringing about physical adjustments in land use to conserve soil and water resources, establish a permanent and balanced agriculture, and reduce the hazards of floods and sedimentation.

Proposed decreases are due to savings resulting from reductions in the number of area offices; simplification and standardization of cartographic techniques and procedures; and reassignment of personnel to work on other programs.

1. Assistance to soil conservation districts and other cooperators.—Assistance furnished soil conservation districts and other cooperators in developing and carrying out locally adapted programs in the States and Territories consists in the main of the following: (a) surveys to provide physical land facts needed for farm and ranch conservation planning, and by other Federal, State, and local agencies and the public;

MAIN WORKLOAD FACTORS

[In millions of acres]

Type of survey	Total as of June 30, 1953	1954 actual	1955 estimate	1956 estimate
Soil surveys	423.5	34.8	38	40
Reconnaissance surveys	205.5	.8	1.2	1.5
Range surveys	17.1	4.5	6	7

(b) Technical assistance in developing and applying conservation farm and ranch plans which allow for the best possible use of the farmer's land, labor, equipment, and financial resources;

MAIN WORKLOAD FACTORS

	1954 actual	1955 estimate	1956 estimate
Number of soil conservation district cooperators	1,454,287	1,618,000	1,788,000
Soil conservation district cooperators having basic farm and ranch plans	974,463	1,018,000	1,069,000
Number of basic plans fully applied	162,336	194,000	234,000

(c) Loan of special equipment not otherwise readily available to the farmers; (d) streamflow forecasts as a basis for efficient seasonal utilization of water in the Western States; and (e) observational field testing of promising conservation plant materials.

2. Emergency channel restoration in flood-stricken areas.—Work consists of assistance in restoring the channel capacity of streams and waterways in agricultural areas damaged by floods and includes removing debris and sediment plugs from stream channels, cleaning and reconstructing irrigation canals, drainage ditches, headgates, and outlets, providing protection to stream banks to prevent channel changes, and construction of levees, dikes, barriers, and other stabilizing structures. The work in approved areas was completed in the 1954 calendar year and availability of the funds expired on December 31, 1954.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Department cooperates with States and local public agencies, such as soil or water conservation districts, flood control districts, counties, and other local agencies, in planning and installing in small upstream watersheds, works of improvement designed to prevent erosion, floodwater, and sediment damage, and to further conservation, development, utilization, and disposal of water.

Works of improvement under Public Law 566, approved August 4, 1954, are to be installed only after an application by local interests has been reviewed and not disapproved by an authorized State organization or individual, field investigation has been made and necessary work plans and report prepared and submitted to the Congress which show a favorable cost-benefit ratio and local willingness to assume an equitable share of project costs and responsibility for maintenance of works of improvement. Technical assistance is then provided to farmers and ranchers in the watershed to accelerate establishment of soil and water conservation measures and sound land use measures such as waterflow-retarding structures, debris and desilting basins, diversion ditches and dikes, stream channel improvement, floodways, and gully-control structures are installed on a cost sharing basis.

The increase proposed would be used primarily for work on watersheds authorized pursuant to Public Law 566, August 4, 1954. Work on the pilot demonstration watersheds for which Congress provided funds to initiate this type of program in 1954 will be continued. This work relating to the pilot demonstration projects is located in 34 States.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The aim of the Department's flood-prevention work on watersheds is to prevent or reduce floodwater and sediment damage in upstream areas and to reduce sedimentation of river channels and reservoirs.

1. Preliminary examinations and surveys.—The Department has been making preliminary examinations and surveys of authorized watersheds to determine flood damage occurring and whether the benefits resulting from installation of a program of works of improvement in each watershed would exceed the cost of installing the improvement measures. As a result of the enactment of Public Law 566, approved August 4, 1954, all survey work has been discontinued with the exception of the review surveys on six of the watersheds where works of improvement programs are presently underway. The review surveys are planned for completion in the 1955 fiscal year.

2. Works of improvement.—Improvement measures recommended in survey reports were authorized for installation on eleven watersheds by the Flood Control Act of 1944. Measures primarily for flood prevention, such as flood-water-retarding and sediment-control structures, debris barriers and basins, deflectors, diversion ditches and dikes, riprapping of stream banks, and other channel improvements, are being installed in these watersheds, usually by private contractors, on a cost-sharing basis with local interests. Land treatment measures which contribute to flood prevention are installed by private owners with technical and other assistance being provided by the Department under this and other conservation programs. Measures installed on the watersheds are complementary to the mainstream flood-control structures and works constructed by the Corps of Engineers and other agencies.

3. General basin investigations in the Arkansas-White-Red River, and New England-New York areas.—In cooperation with the respective States involved and other Federal agencies, the Department is participating in the preparation of the agricultural phases of comprehensive resource development plans for the Arkansas-White-Red River and the New England-New York areas. It is planned that all field investigations under this item will have been completed and the reports prepared by the end of the 1955 fiscal year.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

In cooperation with the Bureau of Reclamation, which constructs the dams, reservoirs, and principal canals, the Service develops efficient irrigation farming units on these specific projects for ultimate sale.

1. Land development.—Land classification and topographic surveys are made, and project lands are subdivided into farm units of economic size. The land is cleared and leveled, and farm ditches, drains, and other water-control structures are built. Of the two remaining projects, one is scheduled for completion in 1956 and the other in 1958. Funds appropriated in prior years, which will be carried over into the 1956 fiscal year, are sufficient to continue operations without an additional appropriation in 1956.

2. Land management, settlement, and technical guidance.—In order to protect and improve Government-owned project lands, developed farm units are leased to local people under specific use conditions or are planted to protective cover crops pending their sale to qualified farm families. Technical guidance on irrigation and conservation is furnished until the project is closed.

This program is designed to encourage conservation by sharing with farmers and ranchers the cost of applying approved measures considered as needed in the public interest and which farmers generally would not perform adequately with their own resources.

Funds are distributed among the States and Territories on the basis of conservation needs. The rate of cost-sharing averages less than 50 percent of the cost. Cost-sharing may be in the form of a payment upon completion of the practice, or by furnishing materials or services. Conservation measures include primarily: (1) Establishment of permanent protective cover, (2) improvement and protection of established vegetative cover, (3) conservation and disposal of water, (4) establishment of temporary vegetative cover, and (5) temporary protection of soil from wind and water erosion.

A program is developed for each State and county by the State and county agricultural stabilization and conservation committees, and representatives of the Soil Conservation Service and of the Forest Service, in consultation with representatives of the land-grant colleges, Farmers' Home Administration, State soil conservation committees, local soil conservation districts, the Agricultural Extension Service, and other State or Federal agricultural agencies. The program is administered by farmer-elected county and community committeemen with responsibility assumed by the Soil Conservation Service and Forest Service for the technical phases of permanent-type practices in their respective fields.

Loans from the Commodity Credit Corporation to the Secretary of Agriculture are used to make advances for the purchase of conservation materials or services from January 1 to June 30 of each year; repayment with interest is made during the current fiscal year from balances available from prior years' appropriations or in the succeeding fiscal year from the new funds appropriated.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Agricultural Marketing Service, through this appropriation, engages in research and service to improve and develop the marketing and distribution of agricultural commodities.

A net increase of $597,500 is proposed for 1956, composed of (a) an increase of $758,000 for expanding marketing research and for improving farmers' expenditure estimates and the accuracy of crop and livestock estimating methods, and (b) a net decrease of $160,500 in the work under marketing services, including increases for strengthening market news service and administration of the U. S. Warehouse Act, and decreases in permissive inspection and grading of fresh fruits and vegetables and poultry and egg products, to be offset by increasing fees to place this work on a self-supporting basis.

1. Marketing research and agricultural estimates—(a) Marketing research.—This is aimed at maintaining and improving quality, reducing costs, and expanding outlets in the marketing of agricultural products. The research, involving cooperation with other public and private agencies, includes studies of (1) the uses and market acceptance of new and established agricultural products, techniques for analyzing consumer market behavior, market potentials, and methods of merchandising; (2) trade in specific agricultural commodities including measurements of costs and margins, market organization and practices, and improvement in market information; (3) the biological, physical, and economic aspects of measuring, maintaining, and improving product quality; and (4) transportation and marketing facilities, equipment, and handling methods.

(b) Economic and statistical analysis.—This covers analysis of the agricultural economic situation and outlook including factors affecting price, supply, and consumption of farm products; farm income including the establishment of the relationship between farm prices or income and parity standards; and farm population and work force trends including changes in numbers and composition, and comparisons of rural and urban living standards.

(c) Crop and livestock estimates.—Basic current data on approximately 150 crop and livestock products, prices received and paid by farmers, and farm wage and employment data are gathered and issued in more than 500 reports annually. These are the official estimates for use by farmers, processors, and handlers of agricultural commodities and other Government agencies in connection with adjustment and marketing activities, allocations and price supports and for use in determining parity prices. The activity is conducted through 41 State offices, most of which are operated as joint Federal-State crop reporting services. During fiscal year 1954, 38 States reported expenditures of about $866,000 on State programs associated with this Federal work. These cooperative arrangements permitted the States to obtain a great deal of data, much of it at the county level, which could not have been collected or made available from Federal funds.

2. Marketing services—(a) Market news service.—This service assists farmers in obtaining equitable returns for their products and aids in orderly marketing and prevention of waste resulting from local surpluses by providing timely and reliable market news on all major agricultural commodities. This is accomplished through the collection of market information at year-round and seasonal offices maintained in more than 100 cities and towns and the dissemination of this information by mail, press, radio, television, telephone, telegraph, bulletin board, and trade and farm publications. More than 1,200 daily newspapers having an average circulation of 37 million—approximately 70 percent of the 53 million circulation of all daily newspapers— carry news based on Federal market reports. A total of 1,500 radio stations broadcast news regularly, and approximately 100 television stations carry market news reports.

(b) Inspection, grading and classing, and standardization.—Farmers are assisted in obtaining returns for their products commensurate with quality by providing United States quality standards; applying these standards through an impartial inspection, classing, and grading service; and by broadening the general knowledge, acceptance and use of standards through demonstrations, training courses, and other means. Approximately 79 percent of the total cost of this work was covered by fees or other revenue in 1954.

(c) Freight rate services.—Producers are assisted in obtaining equitable transportation rates and services through participation by the Department in their behalf in formal cases before the Interstate Commerce Commission and other regulatory bodies, and through informal negotiations with carriers. The Department participated in 72 formal litigation actions before the Interstate Commerce Commission and other regulatory bodies in 1954 and carried on 37 informal negotiations with carriers. Of these actions 36 were concluded favorably to Agriculture, 11 unfavorably, and 62 were still pending at the close of the year.

(d) Regulatory activities.—These include the administration of laws designed to protect farmers and others from financial loss resulting from deceptive, careless, and fraudulent marketing practices. The laws are administered mainly by licensing or registration, supervision of operations, collection and testing of samples, and handling of violations.

(e) Administration and coordination of State payments.—Provision is made for administration, planning and coordination of matched fund projects with State departments of agriculture and bureaus of markets. In 1954, agreements were in effect with 31 States and 3 Territories.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Assistance, in the form of both funds and food, is provided to States and Territories for use in serving lunches to schoolchildren. Each State's portion of the total funds available is determined by means of a statutory formula which takes into account the number of school-age children in the State and the relationship between the per capita income of the State and the average United States per capita income.

The program is operated according to the terms of an agreement entered into by the State educational agency (which administers the program within the State) and the Department of Agriculture. Schools make application to the State agency and, if accepted for participation in the program, are reimbursed for a part of the food cost of each meal served.

In addition to the cash assistance, part of the school lunch appropriation has been used by the Department of Agriculture to purchase food to be distributed to the schools. This program also provides the largest single outlet for surplus commodities purchased under authority of section 32 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended. Commodities acquired under the price support programs are also available to the school lunch program under section 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended.

During 1954 about 1.7 billion meals were served to almost 10 million children, utilizing over $380 million worth of agricultural commodities. More than 28 percent of this amount represented stocks acquired under the surplus-removal and price-support programs of the Department. The statutory requirement that States contribute $1.50 for each Federal dollar contributed was more than adequately met in 1954.

The 1956 estimates propose a reduction of $15 million in commodity procurement, and $236,197 in operating expenses. These reductions will be offset to a great extent by the continued large amount of surplus foods donated to the school lunch program by the Federal Government under sections 32 and 416.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Foreign Agricultural Service administers programs and policies relating to foreign agriculture. It provides information and assistance to agencies of the United States Government, farm and industry groups, and the general public on agricultural conditions and trends in foreign countries and their effect on American agriculture and the economy of the United States. The Service collects, interprets, and distributes timely information on foreign production and consumption of farm products, on policy matters affecting trends in production and consumption, and on the present and potential competition of foreign products with American farm products as a guide in the planning of production and marketing of United States agricultural commodities and to help smooth the channels through which United States exports move.

An increase is proposed to expand and strengthen the agricultural attaché program by increasing the number of foreign posts which will result in broadening the area from which information will be obtained in connection with production, consumption, and competition of foreign agricultural products. Particular emphasis will be placed on methods for disposing of surplus or potential surplus American agricultural products.

1. Analysis of foreign agriculture and trade.—Analyses and interpretations are made of world trends in foreign agricultural production, trade, price, finance, marketing, consumption, competition, commercial and trade policies and economic policies of foreign governments, as such trends affect United States foreign agricultural trade. Department participation in the formulation and development of trade programs and agreements designed to stabilize and expand world trade in American agricultural products, and to reduce application by foreign governments of restrictive tariff and trade policies and practices against import of American agricultural commodities is directed and coordinated. Recommendations and positions for the Department on bilateral and multilateral trade agreements and international commodity agreements are formulated. Continuous review of the trade regulations and financial conditions of signatories to the general agreement on tariffs and trade in American farm products is made. Policies, programs, positions, and standards of participation in public and private international organizations are developed.

2. Agricultural attachés.—The worldwide agricultural attaché program is now a part of the Department of Agriculture. Assistance is provided in development of markets abroad for United States agricultural commodities. A comprehensive schedule of foreign agricultural market and trade reporting to meet the needs of the American agricultural industry is maintained.

It is contemplated that in the fiscal year 1956 the number of posts at which attachés will be stationed will be increased from 42 to approximately 59, with accompanying staff and related supporting services. The agricultural attachés and assistant attachés would be increased from 53 to about 81.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Enforcement of the Commodity Exchange Act requires supervision over futures trading in 21 commodities on 17 exchanges to prevent price manipulation and corners and insure honesty and fair dealing.

1. Licensing.—Commission merchants and floor brokers are registered annually. In 1954 there were 623 commission merchants and 851 floor brokers so registered. The estimates for 1956 are 640 and 880 respectively. Exchange rules and regulations are reviewed to insure that legal requirements are met.

2. Supervision of futures trading.—This embraces (a) the administration of the system of required reports from brokers and large traders; (b) analysis of reports and related data for surveillance of futures trading and compilation and publication of summary information; (c) establishment, enforcement and review of speculative limits; and (d) cooperative activities with control committees of contract markets.

Daily and weekly reports on large traders	286,971	310,000	310,000
Delivery notices	29,170	36,000	36,000

3. Audits.—Misuse of customers' funds is prevented by (a) audit and examination of books of futures commission merchants; and (b) analysis of brokers' and traders' books and financial statements.

Segregation audits	726	700	750
Accounts examined	33,231	32,500	35,000
Financial statements examined	628	625	675

4. Investigations.—Apparent or alleged violations of the law and regulations are investigated, and trade practice surveys are made to discover violations and compile legal evidence. The Authority also prepares and presents evidence of violations in administrative hearings and judicial proceedings. In 1954 there were 46 compliance investigations completed and 3,370 transactions examined.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Agricultural adjustment programs include acreage-allotment and marketing quota programs for basic agricultural commodities. These programs are designed to assist in stabilizing fluctuations in the supply, marketing, and price of specified basic agricultural commodities. Acreage allotments, when necessary, are established at National, State, and county levels (only at State level in the case of tobacco). In general, the acreage allotted to any county is apportioned by farmer-elected county committeemen. National marketing quotas must be proclaimed for basic commodities whenever the supply situation specified in basic legislation requires them. However, quotas do not become effective unless approved by two-thirds of those voting in a referendum of farmers engaged in producing the commodity for which a quota is proclaimed.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Administration conducts two major programs: (a) The rural electrification program, to provide electric service to farms and other rural establishments; and (b) the rural telephone program, to furnish and improve telephone service in rural areas.

It is expected that electrification and telephone loans will increase in 1956.

1. Rural electrification.—This program is financed through loans which bear 2 percent interest and must be repaid within a period not to exceed 35 years. Loans are also made for shorter periods at 2 percent interest to electrification borrowers to be reloaned to their consumers for wiring and for the installation of electrical and plumbing appliances and equipment. Funds for making loans are borrowed from the Secretary of the Treasury.

When the rural electrification program was initiated in 1935, less than 11 percent of all farms had electric service. On June 30, 1954, the figure had risen to about 92 percent.

The loans bear 2 percent interest and must be repaid within a period not to exceed 35 years. Funds for making loans are borrowed from the Secretary of the Treasury.

The 1950 census showed 38.2 percent of all farms with telephones, fewer in both number and percentage than in 1920. Cumulative Rural Electrification Administration loans through June 30, 1954, will provide initial or improved service to an estimated more than 400,000 rural subscribers.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

So that electric and telephone service may be available to all farms, borrowers are encouraged to develop their systems on an area-coverage basis. Loan applications are studied to assure self-liquidating operations. When applications are received from existing companies, the quality of business management is appraised and consultation in this field provided when needed. Engineering standards are developed for the design and construction of facilities at minimum cost; engineering review of designs and physical facilities is provided where necessary to assure that construction conforms to approved standards and is adequate to meet the needs of rural consumers; and engineering studies are carried on to solve complex technical problems. Business-management consultation is furnished on a selective basis of need to protect the Government's loan security, and new borrowers are given technical accounting help in establishing the necessary accounting systems to meet accounting requirements of regulatory bodies. Borrowers are required to have their records audited by

1. Farm ownership loans.—Direct farm ownership loans for the purchase or improvement, including farm housing and other building construction, of family-type farms are made to tenants, sharecroppers, farm laborers, owners of inadequate farms, and eligible veterans up to the full normal value of the farm at 4½ percent interest for periods up to 40 years. Loans for the same purposes made by private lenders to eligible applicants are insured in amounts up to 90 percent of the normal farm value for periods up to 40 years at 3½ percent interest, plus one-half of 1 percent as an insurance premium and one-half of 1 percent toward administrative expenses. The Administration services these insured loans, makes collections and pays the lender.

Salaries and Expenses, Office of Information, Agriculture—Con.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Office of Information has responsibility for directing, integrating, and coordinating the information work of the entire Department through press, radio, television, publications, motion pictures, exhibits, and other visuals as a part of the effective execution of the research, regulatory, administrative, resource conservation, and other programs of the Department. The workload of the Office is dependent to a large extent upon direct requests for information and to legislative requirements.

Publications include farmers' bulletins, leaflets, periodicals, scientific, research and marketing publications, and agricultural statistics. Exhibits are supplied to State extension workers for their use in State exhibit showings. Motion pictures for the Department are produced on a reimbursable basis and distributed through 74 cooperating State film libraries. Still photographs, illustrations, and graphics are similarly produced. The Department's activities require the issuance of about 3,000 periodic crop, price, and market reports and press releases annually. Special information is furnished to national magazines, encyclopedic annuals, and trade publications. Digests, newsletters, and other services are made available to press associations, daily newspapers, and farm publications. Radio is used to reach farmers locally and to broadcast regular weekly programs on major networks. Television package programs are prepared for use of land-grant colleges and television farm broadcasters.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Library, serving as the National Agricultural Library, procures, preserves, and makes available books, periodicals, and published materials on agriculture. It is organized into a main office in Washington and five specialized field branches for major field research installations. Various State agencies provide library services to Department employees in designated geographical areas under cooperative agreements. One general branch serves the Beltsville Research Center.

1. General agricultural library services.—About 45,400 volumes were added during the fiscal year 1954 to the collection of approximately 1,000,000 volumes on agriculture and related subjects. In addition, about 274,000 separate issues of periodicals are received annually. During 1954, 1,260,494 loans of books and other periodicals (including photocopies in lieu of loans) were made and 161,677 reference questions were answered. The Bibliography of Agriculture was issued monthly with a total of 95,670 items listed.

2. Specialized services to research.—Special bibliographies compiled for research purposes and branch services were furnished to major segments of the Department's research programs.

Licensing dealers and handling complaints—1954, $384,170; 1955, $410,000; 1956, $410,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

License fees are deposited in this special fund to administer the Perishable Agricultural Commodities, Produce Agency, and Export Apple and Pear Acts (7 U. S. C. 499a–499s, 491–497, 581–589).

These acts assure equitable treatment to farmers and others in the marketing of fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables. Commission merchants, dealers, and brokers handling these products in interstate and foreign commerce are licensed. Complaints of violations are investigated and violations dealt with by (1) informal settlements agreeable to both parties, (2) formal decisions involving payments of reparation awards between parties, and (3) suspension or revocation of license, and/or publication of the facts. About 26,400 licenses are now in effect, and complaints average about 45 per week.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Under section 32 of the act of August 24, 1935, as amended (7 U. S. C. 612c), an amount equal to 30 percent of customs receipts during each calendar year and unused balances up to $300,000,000 are available for the removal from the market of agricultural surpluses and for administration of marketing agreements and orders. These funds must be used principally for perishable agricultural commodities other than those receiving price support under title II of the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended. These commodities are: Wool, including mohair, tung nuts, honey, milk, butterfat, and the products of milk and butterfat. During the fiscal year 1954, 52 percent of the funds used were for perishable commodities and it is estimated that approximately 51 percent of the fund requirements in 1955 will be used for perishable commodities.

1. Direct purchases.—Surplus agricultural commodities, generally perishables, are purchased and distributed to the school-lunch program, charitable institutions serving needy persons and persons certified by welfare agencies as eligible for relief.

2. Encouragement of exportation.—Differential payments are made to enable exporters to purchase surplus commodities on the domestic market and sell them on the world market at competitive world prices.

3. Diversion to byproducts and new uses.—Differential payments are made to enable processors to purchase surplus commodities on the domestic market, divert them to byproducts and new uses, and sell them at prices comparable to competing products, thus creating new markets for surplus commodities.

4. Surplus removal operating expenses.—These expenses are mainly in connection with purchasing, distributing, exporting, and diverting surplus commodities. In addition, supervisory assistance is furnished local and State groups on the preservation of surpluses for year-round use, and in cooperation with the food trade, press, and radio, greater consumption of abundant foods is encouraged.

5. Marketing agreements and orders.—The Secretary makes voluntary arrangements with handlers of farm products upon request of the industry after hearings, investigations, and referenda among producers, to strengthen prices by establishing and maintaining orderly marketing conditions. Orders are in effect for milk, tobacco, tree fruits, tree nuts, and vegetables. Administration at the local level is financed by assessments upon handlers.

6. Foreign market promotion.—Maintenance and expansion of foreign markets for United States surplus agricultural products are promoted by: (a) Obtaining and analyzing firsthand information on foreign market requirements and making such information available to the farm and trade groups; (b) developing market programs to maintain and expand the market abroad of United States farm products; for use by producers, exporters, and Government officials; and (c) assisting domestic trade representatives in negotiations with foreign government officials, importers, and consumers, and bringing together American exporters and foreign importers under conditions favorable to trade.

7. Import controls.—Importation of articles which render ineffective, or tend to interfere with, programs carried out by the Department of Agriculture, is investigated and a recommendation for action is submitted to the President. Import controls are administered, including the issuance of import licenses.

AMOUNTS AVAILABLE FOR OBLIGATION

Appropriation or estimate (obligations incurred)—1956, $200,000.

OBLIGATIONS BY ACTIVITIES

Reimbursement to Commodity Credit Corporation for costs incurred in the fiscal year 1955—1956, $200,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The National Wool Act of 1954 (title VII of Public Law 690, approved Aug. 28, 1954) declares wool to be an essential and strategic commodity, and, as a measure of national security, encourages the annual domestic production of approximately 300 million pounds of shorn wool. In order to encourage the required annual production of wool and mohair, the Secretary is authorized to make sufficient incentive payments, which, when added to the national average price received by producers, will give them a national average return for the commodity equal to the support (incentive) price level thereof. Payments may not at any time exceed 70 percent of the accumulated totals of the gross receipts from specific duties collected on and after January 1, 1953, on wool and wool manufactures under schedule 11 of the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended.

Commodity Credit Corporation funds are used in carrying out this program. This appropriation is for the purpose of reimbursing the Corporation in an amount equal to the total expenditures made by the Corporation during the preceding fiscal year; and to any amounts expended in prior fiscal years not previously reimbursed. The amounts appropriated for any fiscal year shall not exceed 70 percent of the gross receipts from specific duties collected on wool and wool manufactures during the calendar year preceding the beginning of such fiscal year.

The estimate for 1956 is to reimburse the Corporation for expenses in 1955 in planning and formulating this new program.

COMMODITY CREDIT CORPORATION

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION [1]

The Commodity Credit Corporation engages in buying, selling, lending, and other activities with respect to agricultural commodities, their products, food, feeds, and fibers, for the purpose of stabilizing, supporting, and protecting farm income and prices; assisting in the maintenance of balanced and adequate supplies of such commodities; and facilitating their orderly distribution. The Corporation also makes available materials and facilities required in connection with the production and marketing of such commodities.

The Corporation is managed by a board of directors, subject to the general supervision and direction of the Secretary of Agriculture, who is, ex officio, a director and chairman of the board. Besides the Secretary, the board consists of six members appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. In addition, the Corporation has a bipartisan advisory board of five members appointed by the President to survey the general policies of the Corporation and advise the Secretary with respect thereto.

The Corporation has an authorized capital stock of $100,000,000, held by the United States, and authority to borrow up to $10,000,000,000.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

The budget is based on five types of programs: (1) price support, (2) supply and foreign purchase, (3) storage facilities, (4) commodity export, and (5) special activities.

Budget assumptions.—The Corporation's budget estimates for 1955 and 1956 are based on the general assumptions (a) that employment, production, and national income will rise moderately from the level of the second quarter of the calendar year 1954; (b) that prices will change little, on the average, from the present level; (c) that developments in international relations will not be such as to affect Government civilian programs generally; (d) that exports of agricultural products will be higher than at present; (e) that yields will be in line with recent averages; and (f) that acreage allotments and marketing quotas will be in effect for the 1955 crops of peanuts, certain kinds of tobacco, wheat and cotton, and acreage allotments will be in effect for the 1955 crops of corn and rice in accordance with existing legislation.

In considering these estimates, it should be recognized that it is difficult to estimate requirements for the year ending June 30, 1956. They are dependent upon weather conditions, volume of agricultural production in this country and abroad, economic conditions generally, food needs in occupied areas and other foreign countries, availability of dollar exchange, and other complex and unpredictable factors.

1. Price support program.—Price-support operations are carried out under the Corporation's charter powers, in conformity with the Agricultural Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 1051), the National Wool Act of 1954, and with respect to certain types of tobacco, in conformity with the Act of July 28, 1945 (59 Stat. 506). Under the Agricultural Act of 1949, price support is mandatory for six basic commodities—corn, cotton, wheat, rice, peanuts, and tobacco—and specific nonbasic commodities, namely tung nuts, honey, milk, butterfat, and the products of milk and butterfat. Price support for wool and mohair is mandatory under the National Wool Act of 1954. Price support for other nonbasic agricultural commodities is discretionary.

Price support is made available through loans, purchase agreements, purchases, and, in the case of wool and mohair, through incentive payments based on marketings. The producer's commodities serve as collateral for price-support loans. If the producer does not repay his loan, he is not held liable for any deficiency arising from the sale of the collateral unless the loan was obtained through fraudulent representations, or there has been deterioration or shortage in farm-stored collateral. Purchase agreements generally are available during the same period that loans are available. By signing a purchase agreement, a producer receives an option to sell to the Corporation any quantity of the commodity which he may elect within the maximum specified in the agreement. When it is not feasible to support prices through loans or purchase agreements, the Corporation purchases commodities during the regular marketing season, either from producers directly or through usual trade channels, or, as indicated above, the Corporation may make payments upon wool and mohair marketed by producers thereof.

In all its price-support operations the Corporation utilizes normal trade facilities to the maximum extent practicable. In its lending activities the Corporation uses local banks, cooperatives, and other private lending agencies. Commercial storage facilities are used to a great extent in the storage of loan collateral and in the storage of stocks acquired by the Corporation.

It is estimated that price-support loans to be made during fiscal year 1956 will total $2,056,263,750. This compares with a total of $2,381,950,721 estimated for fiscal year 1955 and $3,341,838,280 actually made during fiscal year 1954. The estimated decrease for 1955 below 1954 is primarily attributable to less loans on cotton, corn and wheat and reflects an estimated decrease in production of these commodities due to acreage controls. The estimated decrease for 1956 is almost entirely due to less loans on wheat as a result of continued decreasing production and a lower support level.

The value of the Corporation's inventory of price-support commodities as of June 30, 1956, is estimated to total $4,526,016,641. This compares with an estimated $4,579,971,030 as of June 30, 1955, and an actual inventory of $3,668,222,179 as of June 30, 1954. The value of this estimated inventory both as of June 30, 1955, and June 30, 1956, includes the "Commodity set-aside" as provided for in Title I of the Agricultural Act of 1954. The major increases in inventory in the fiscal year 1955 are estimated to be due primarily to acquisitions of cotton and corn. While there is only a relatively small decrease in the total value in inventory in 1956, there are significant increases in cotton and feed grains other than corn, offset by decreases in inventories of wheat, wool, dairy, and cottonseed products.

Disposition of commodities acquired by the Corporation in its price-support operations is made in compliance with sections 202, 407, and 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949, and other applicable legislation, particularly the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (68 Stat. 454), and title I of the Agricultural Act of 1954 (68 Stat. 897).

In order to expand the domestic market for fluid milk, as one means of reducing the volume of dairy products being acquired by the Corporation, a special program was authorized by section 201 of the Agricultural Act of 1949. This authorization provided that beginning September 1, 1954, and ending June 30, 1956, not to exceed $50,000,000 annually of funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation shall be used to increase the consumption of fluid milk by children in nonprofit schools of high-school grade and under. Therefore these estimates reflect expenditures of $50,000,000 in each of the fiscal years 1955 and 1956 for this purpose.

As a further means of increasing the utilization of dairy products, under section 202 of the Agricultural Act of 1949, the Corporation is donating butter, cheese, and dried milk to Veterans' Administration and the armed services upon certification by them that the usual quantities of dairy products have been purchased in the normal channels of trade. In addition, the Corporation is reimbursing these agencies at the rate of $4.15 per cwt. for purchases of fluid milk made in addition to their usual purchases. The unit rate of reimbursement approximates one-half of the cost of the milk to these agencies. The portion of the cost paid by Commodity Credit Corporation represents the equivalent to the cost of buying, handling, and storing the butter and nonfat dry milk produced from a hundredweight of milk.

Section 407 of the Agricultural Act of 1949 authorized the Corporation to make available farm products for use in distress areas and in connection with any major disaster determined by the President to warrant assistance under Public Law 875. Under this authority the 1954 Emergency Feed Program was initiated on August 2, 1954. It is impossible to accurately forecast the extent to which Commodity Credit Corporation stocks will be used for this program, but for budgetary purposes it is estimated that donations of corn, oats, barley, and grain sorghums valued at $64,430,000 will be involved in the 1954 program.

2. Supply and foreign purchase program.—This program is carried out under the authority contained in the Corporation's charter, particularly sections 5 (b) and (c) thereof. The Corporation procures foods, agricultural commodities, their products, and related materials to supply the requirements of Government agencies, foreign governments, and relief and rehabilitation agencies and to meet domestic requirements. Foods, agricultural commodities, and their products are procured or aid is given in their procurement to facilitate distribution or to meet anticipated requirements during periods of short supply.

Operations are conducted in accordance with procedures and policies reasonably calculated to assure compliance with section 4 of the act of July 16, 1943 (15 U. S. C. 713a–9), which requires that the Corporation be fully reimbursed for services performed, losses sustained, operating costs incurred, or commodities purchased or delivered to or on behalf of any other Government agency from the appropriate funds of such agency.

The main activities now carried on are procurement of commodities for the Department of the Army and the Foreign Operations Administration, and initial financing of certain programs authorized under the Defense Production Act to assure adequate supplies of strategic and critical materials.

Total acquisitions and carrying charges are estimated at $27,981,100 in the fiscal year 1956 compared with an estimated $35,070,863 for 1955 and actual acquisitions of $53,288,651 during 1954. The estimated decrease for 1956 primarily reflects decreased activity under Defense Production operations with respect to castor beans and oil, whereas the estimated decrease for 1955 results mostly from decreased purchases for the Foreign Operations Administration. Dispositions are estimated to total $28,021,100 for the fiscal year 1956 compared with $93,667,231 estimated for 1955 and actual dispositions of $68,868,292 during 1954. The increase in 1955 reflects the liquidation of most operations under the Defense Production Act and the decrease in 1956 results from the discontinuance of these operations.

3. Storage facilities program.—This program is carried out under the authority contained in the Corporation's charter, particularly sections 4 (h), 4 (m), and 5 (a). The Corporation (a) purchases and maintains granaries and equipment for care and storage of grain owned or controlled by the Corporation; (b) makes loans for the construction or expansion of farm storage facilities; (c) provides storage-use guaranties to encourage the construction of commercial storage facilities; and (d) undertakes other operations necessary to provide storage adequate to carry out the Corporation's programs.

During the fiscal year 1954 it was necessary to increase the storage capacity of Corporation-owned structures by 196,211,195 bushels. In the early part of the fiscal year 1955 it became necessary to purchase additional structures with a capacity of 106,077,464 bushels. No further expansion of Corporation structures is now contemplated during the remainder of the current fiscal year or for the fiscal year 1956. Acceptance of applications for storage-use guaranties was discontinued August 20, 1954, because of the estimated reduction in this year's crops due to the drought. It is estimated that the capacity of storage agreements in effect will be 250,000,000 bushels for each of the fiscal years 1955 and 1956 compared with agreements for a capacity of 168,000,000 bushels in effect as of the close of the fiscal year 1954. In order to provide adequate farm storage facilities in 1955 and 1956, it is estimated that the Corporation will be required to make loans on facilities having a total capacity of 60,000,000 bushels in 1955 and of 45,000,000 bushels in 1956. In addition, it is estimated that loans to finance the purchase of mechanical driers totaling $250,000 will be made during 1955 compared with $200,000 for 1956.

4. Commodity export program.—This program is carried out under the authority contained in the Corporation's charter, particularly sections 5 (d) and 5 (f), sections 407 and 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949, the International Wheat Agreement Act of 1949, the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, and Title I of the Agricultural Act of 1954. The Corporation stimulates the export of agricultural commodities and products through sales, barters, payments and other means.

The International Wheat Agreement Act of 1949 authorizes the President, acting through the Corporation, to make available such quantities of wheat and wheat flour to importing countries, and at such prices, as may be necessary to exercise the rights, obtain the benefits, and fulfill the obligations of the United States under the International Wheat Agreement. In turn, the Corporation is authorized to use its general borrowing authority to pay current obligations and to be repaid therefor from appropriations made specifically to cover the costs of the International Wheat Agreement. Pending such reimbursement, the Corporation is authorized to establish the net costs of operations under the agreement as a receivable. It is estimated that 150,000,000 bushels of wheat will be exported under this agreement during each of the fiscal years 1955 and 1956. During the fiscal year 1954 a total of 119,025,100 bushels of wheat were exported under the agreement. An appropriation is being requested elsewhere in this budget in the amount of $57,378,551, to reimburse the Corporation for its net unrecovered costs during fiscal year 1954 charged to the International Wheat Agreement, and interest through June 30, 1955.

In addition to exports under the International Wheat Agreement, a program was initiated in the fall of 1953 under which wheat was offered to the export trade for export as wheat or flour at competitive prices below domestic price but not below the applicable International Wheat Agreement price. A total of 45,801,583 bushels was exported under this program during the fiscal year 1954, and it is estimated that 55,000,000 bushels of wheat will be so exported during each of the fiscal years 1955 and 1956.

Title I of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 authorizes the President, until June 30, 1957, to carry out a program for the sale of surplus agricultural commodities for foreign currencies. The act provides that Commodity Credit Corporation shall make available surplus agricultural commodities heretofore or hereafter acquired in its price-support operations, and make available funds to finance the sale and exportation of surplus commodities from stocks owned by the Corporation or pledged as security for price-support loans or from stocks privately owned if the Corporation is not in position to supply the commodity from its owned stocks. To facilitate the use of private trade channels in cases where Commodity Credit Corporation is in position to supply the commodity from its stocks, Commodity Credit Corporation may finance the sale and exportation of privately owned stocks if the exporter makes arrangements to purchase the same commodity of comparable value or quantity from Commodity Credit Corporation stocks.

The act further provides various specified uses of the foreign currencies by any department or agency of the Government and requires reimbursement to Commodity Credit Corporation by the agency using such funds if appropriations have been made for any of the specified uses. To the extent the Corporation is not thus reimbursed by other agencies, the act authorizes appropriations to reimburse Commodity Credit Corporation for its investment in commodities used under the act including processing, packaging, transportation and handling costs, and for costs incurred in financing the exportation of commodities, and limits transactions requiring appropriations to $700,000,000.

Estimates of the volume of specific commodities to be sold under the provisions of this title are highly tentative. For budgetary purposes, however, it has been assumed that sales for foreign currencies will involve Commodity Credit Corporation costs totaling about $400,000,000 in fiscal year 1955, and $200,000,000 in fiscal year 1956. It has also been assumed that during the fiscal years 1955 and 1956, respectively, the Corporation will receive $40,000,000 and $125,000,000 for foreign currencies used by other agencies. Appropriate adjustments have been made in accounts receivable to reflect additional funds to be received for foreign currencies in subsequent fiscal years as well as amounts to be recovered by appropriation in the 1957 and 1958 budgets. In addition to the authority contained in title I of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 to sell agricultural commodities for foreign currency the Corporation may also use its charter authority to effect sales for foreign currency when such sales are in the interest of the Corporation.

To the extent that operations under the commodity export program involve the disposal of price support commodities held in Commodity Credit Corporation's inventories, such disposals are for accounting purposes treated as price support program disposals.

5. Special activities.—These are miscellaneous activities carried out under authority of section 5 (g) of the Corporation's charter and specific statutory authorizations with respect thereto.

Among these are:

Section 391 (c) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended (7 U. S. C. 1391), requires the Corporation to lend to the Secretary of Agriculture during each fiscal year such sums, not to exceed $50,000,000, as he estimates will be required to make advances for the purchase of conservation materials from January 1 to June 30 of each year. Repayment is usually made during the succeeding fiscal year from appropriated funds, with interest at least equal to the rate paid by the Corporation. In 1954, a total of $30,143,881 was loaned; it is estimated that $43,450,000 will be loaned during each of the fiscal years 1955 and 1956.

Under the provisions of the appropriation item in the Department of Agriculture Appropriation Act, 1955 (68 Stat. 305), entitled "Foot-and-mouth disease and other contagious diseases of animals and poultry," the Secretary of Agriculture has determined that Corporation funds should be transferred for use in the eradication of foot-and-mouth disease in Mexico and related border inspection and quarantines, subject to full reimbursement. Similar authority contained in appropriations for prior years has been used in the past primarily in connection with programs in Mexico and to a limited extent for measures to protect the United States against the introduction of foot-and-mouth disease from Canada. For the fiscal year 1954, advances and interest through June 30, 1955, amount to $5,788,897. An appropriation to reimburse the Commodity Credit Corporation for this amount is included elsewhere in this budget. No advances under this authority in 1956 are reflected in the budget schedules.

Pursuant to authority contained under the head "Marketing services, Production and Marketing Administration," in the 1950 and 1952 Department of Agriculture Appropriation Acts (7 U. S. C. 440, 414a), the Corporation advances to the Agricultural Marketing Service non-administrative funds for grading tobacco and classing cotton without charge to producers. Costs of such grading and classing of those commodities which are not placed under price support are repaid to Commodity Credit Corporation from subsequent appropriations. No provision for reimbursing the Corporation for such costs is included in the estimates for 1956 since sufficient funds were available to the Agricultural Marketing Service during the fiscal year 1954 for this purpose. It is estimated that advances of $1,211,000 and $1,300,000 will be made for this purpose during each of the fiscal years 1955 and 1956, respectively.

Under the provision of the Act of June 25, 1953 (67 Stat. 80), the Commodity Credit Corporation transferred to the Government of Pakistan a total of 22,859,650 bushels of wheat at a cost of $69,273,881. The act of August 7, 1953 (67 Stat. 476), authorized the transfer of Commodity Credit Corporation stocks to friendly peoples in meeting famine or other urgent requirements. Under this act, wheat and wheat flour were transferred to Jordan, Libya, and Bolivia at a cost to the Corporation of $9,676,628. Both of these laws authorize appropriations to reimburse Commodity Credit Corporation for its costs, and this budget proposes appropriations in these amounts for these purposes.

The facilities and stocks of the Corporation were authorized (67 Stat. 150) to be used by the Secretary for emergency assistance in furnishing feed and seed to farmers, ranchers, and stockmen in connection with any major disaster determined by the President to warrant Federal assistance under Public Law 875, approved September 30, 1950 (42 U. S. C. 1855). On November 16, 1953, the President directed the Corporation to furnish supplies of feed acquired by it in carrying out price-support operations for use in the drought emergency program, such supplies to be furnished without reimbursement from presently appropriated funds. Under the drought emergency program which ended July 15, 1954, feed concentrates, principally cottonseed products, corn, wheat, oats, and mixed feeds were furnished at less than market cost to eligible farmers in designated disaster areas.

The President also indicated that Congress would be requested to take specific action for the purpose of reimbursing the Corporation for losses representing the difference between the value of the feed furnished under the directive and the sales price received by the Corporation. The budget includes an estimate of an appropriation of $42,100,000 to reimburse the Corporation for these losses. (This amount represents costs of $41,332,837 actually recorded on the books of the Corporation as of June 30, 1954, and $767,163 for estimated additional commodity costs incurred but not yet identified in the accounts.) Public Law 175, approved July 31, 1953 (67 Stat. 297), appropriated funds which were utilized for handling, processing, shipping, and other expenses relating to the delivery of the emergency feeds to disaster areas.

The 1954 emergency feed program is described under price-support activities, supra.

As a means of stabilizing the dairy industry and further suppressing and eradicating brucellosis in cattle, section 204 of the Agricultural Act of 1954 authorizes the Secretary to transfer not to exceed $15,000,000 annually for a period of 2 years from funds available to the Commodity Credit Corporation to the appropriation item "Plant and animal disease and pest control" in the Department of Agriculture Appropriation Act, 1955, for the purpose of accelerating the brucellosis eradication program. Annual appropriations of such sums as may be necessary to reimburse the Commodity Credit Corporation for such expenditures are authorized. Accordingly, these estimates reflect transfers of $10,000,000 and $15,000,000 in 1955 and 1956, respectively, to the Agricultural Research Service, and appropriate adjustments in accounts receivable have been made to reflect amounts to be recovered in the 1957 and 1958 budgets.

Title II of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act directs the Commodity Credit Corporation to make available to the President surplus agricultural commodities for transfer to friendly nations and friendly populations in order to meet famine or other relief requirements. In addition, the President is authorized to make transfers on a grant basis to assist friendly countries or voluntary foreign relief agencies. No programs are to be undertaken after June 30, 1957, and total expenditures, including the Corporation's investment in the commodities and costs of delivery f. o. b. vessel, are not to exceed $300,000,000. It has been estimated that transfers under this Title will approximate $120,000,000 during 1955 and $100,000,000 in 1956. Appropriate adjustments have been made in accounts receivable to reflect amounts to be recovered by appropriation in the 1957 and 1958 budgets.

The act of July 26, 1954 (68 Stat. 529), authorizes the Commodity Credit Corporation to transfer to the following agencies, free on board transportation conveyance at point of storage, surplus hay and pasture seeds as follows: Forest Service, 485,000 pounds; Fish and Wildlife Service, 163,000 pounds; Bureau of Land Management, 252,000 pounds. The act also authorizes appropriations to reimburse the Corporation for its investment in the seeds so transferred. The estimates include provisions for the transfer of these seeds in the fiscal year 1955 and adjustments in accounts receivable have been made to reflect recovery of these costs in the 1957 budget estimates.

Administrative expenses.—These are for the operating staff, including the services of employees of the Commodity Stabilization Service engaged in Commodity Credit Corporation activities, services performed by other agencies of the Department, costs of audit, and payments to the General Services Administration for space in the District of Columbia.

Expenses in connection with the acquisition, operation, maintenance, improvement, or disposition (including inspection, classing and grading work performed on a fee basis by Federal employees or Federal- or State-licensed inspectors) of property which the Corporation owns or in which it has an interest have been treated as nonadministrative expenses since 1951 as provided by law.

The requested authorization excludes expenses in connection with the supply and foreign purchase program and the wool and mohair price-support program under the National Wool Act of 1954; the budget for 1956 contemplates full reimbursement for these expenses. Such reimbursements in connection with the supply and foreign purchase program will be obtained and used in the fiscal year 1956 in the same manner as in the fiscal years 1954 and 1955. Reimbursement for administrative expenses, as well as program expenses, under the wool and mohair program will be obtained from appropriations made by the National Wool Act of 1954.

Estimates for 1956 include a limitation of $26,000,000 for costs of administration exclusive of reimbursements for services performed but including a reserve of $934,914 for contingencies. Because of the increasing price-support workload during the current fiscal year, present indications are that the 1955 limitation of $18,000,000 will be insufficient. As a result, a supplemental estimate to increase this limitation will be submitted early in this session of Congress.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

The Corporation's operations are financed by capital funds and borrowings from the Treasury and from private lending agencies. In 1954 the annual interest rate paid on capital stock was 2½ percent, and the rate on borrowings from the Treasury ranged from 2½ percent through September 30, 1953, progressively decreasing to 1 percent beginning June 1, 1954. Since that date the interest rate on both capital stock and borrowings from the Treasury has been computed at 1 percent in accordance with a policy of the Treasury Department that the rate shall be based upon the average interest rate on all outstanding marketable obligations (of comparable maturity date) of the United States as of the end of the preceding month. Funds are borrowed from private lending agencies when the Corporation desires to utilize such agencies in carrying out a particular operation. All borrowing agreements with private lending agencies are approved by the Secretary of the Treasury. During the fiscal year 1954 the Corporation extended its certificate-of-interest method of financing cotton loans to other commodities, and the budget estimate anticipates that this plan will continue in effect during each of the fiscal years 1955 and 1956. Although this method of financing has no effect on obligations against the Corporation's borrowing authority, it postpones a portion of the actual cash expenditures of Federal funds until subsequent fiscal years.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

The Corporation's records show that operations resulted in a net budget expenditure of $1,215,877,717 in 1954. It is estimated that such operations will result in net budget expenditures of $2,158,996,289 in 1955 and $1,015,322,913 in 1956. The Treasury, however, during the fiscal year 1954, did not reflect in the Corporation's checking account note cancellations to reimburse the Corporation for prior year costs of eradication of foot-and-mouth disease and International Wheat Agreement. For budgetary purposes, therefore, the budget estimates reflect net budget expenditures of $1,526,293,542 for the fiscal year 1954. The net loss for 1954, including both realized losses of $588,501,678 and net increases in valuation allowances of $412,627,176 amounted to $1,001,128,854. It is estimated that net losses of $1,029,300,000 and $819,750,000 will be incurred in 1955 and 1956, respectively.

Pursuant to the act of March 8, 1938, as amended (15 U. S. C. 713a–1), an appraisal of the assets and liabilities of the Corporation is made each year by the Secretary of the Treasury to determine net worth. If the net worth is less than $100,000,000, the Secretary of the Treasury restores the amount of capital impairment; if net worth is more than $100,000,000 the Corporation pays the surplus to the Treasury (15 U. S. C. 713a–2). Annual appraisals as of June 30, 1953, and as at the close of prior fiscal years, were based upon valuation of assets at the lower of cost to the Corporation or average market value during June of the fiscal year. Capital impairment determined in that manner resulted from valuation of assets at less than cost and from realized losses on sales and other operations. Public Law 312, approved March 20, 1954, provides that the appraisal of assets shall be on the basis of cost to the Corporation; therefore, future appraisals will determine the amount of surplus or capital impairment on the basis of realized losses without regard to established losses from revaluation of assets. A summary of capital impairment, restoration of capital, and payments to the Treasury is given in schedule 4. There was a deficit of $1,092,306,419 on the books of the Corporation as of June 30, 1954. This deficit is composed of $1,049,338,923 in valuation reserves established against the assets of the Corporation as of June 30, 1954; $41,332,837 representing costs, recorded on the books of the Corporation at June 30, 1954, in connection with the furnishing of feed in the drought emergency program; and $1,634,659 in unrestored realized losses. Only that portion of the deficit which represents actual realized losses is subject to restoration under the provisions of Public Law 312. The total realized loss of $588,501,678 for the fiscal year 1954 had, in effect, been restored to the extent of $545,534,182 by the act of February 12, 1954. The restoration of the difference of $42,967,496 will be accomplished through the inclusion of $41,332,837 in the estimates relating to the furnishing of feed in the drought emergency program and the remainder, $1,634,659 of unrestored realized loss, is covered as a separate item in the estimates.

FINANCIAL CONDITION

The Corporation's assets, which consist principally of price-support loans receivable and inventories, were valued at $5,535,062,190 as of June 30, 1954, and are estimated at $6,108,468,474 as of June 30, 1955, and $5,597,869,240 as of June 30, 1956. The estimated decrease in assets as of June 30, 1956, below June 30, 1955, primarily represents a decrease of $630,111,591 in the estimated value of loans outstanding and a decrease of $60,674,389 in the estimated value of inventories offset by an increase of $197,145,000 in the estimated value of accounts and notes receivable. The decrease in loans outstanding is due primarily to cotton. The increase in accounts and notes receivable mainly reflects the financing of sales for foreign currencies and assistance to friendly peoples under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, for which the Corporation will not be reimbursed until 1957 and subsequent fiscal years.

The changes in the Corporation's assets are also reflected in its principal liabilities and investment of the United States Government. Outstanding borrowings from the Treasury are estimated to amount to $6,339,000,000 as of June 30, 1955, and $7,352,000,000 as of June 30, 1956. Other liabilities of the Corporation, principally, price-support loans held by banks, amounted to $2,347,368,609 as of June 30, 1954; it is estimated that these liabilities will amount to $1,791,074,893 as of June 30, 1955; and $1,085,591,000 as of June 30, 1956. In addition, the Corporation had contingent liabilities as of June 30, 1954, amounting to $225,045,460. It is estimated that these contingent liabilities, consisting primarily of purchase agreements outstanding, will amount to $88,786,000 and $126,630,000 as of June 30, 1955, and 1956, respectively.

[1] Sec. 201 of the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended, provides that beginning Sept. 1, 1954, and ending June 30, 1956, not to exceed $50,000,000 annually of funds of the CCC shall be used to increase the consumption of fluid milk by children in nonprofit schools of high school grade and under. In addition, under authority of sec. 202 of this act, as amended, the Corporation partially reimburses the Veterans' Administration and the Armed Services for purchases of fluid milk in addition to their usual purchases.

[2] The Agricultural Act of 1954 provides that price support may be available on wool and mohair by means of payments for which CCC will be reimbursed from subsequent appropriations not to exceed 70 percent of the gross customs receipts collected during the preceding calendar year on wool and mohair and products thereof. Losses shown on this schedule do not include such reimbursable expenditures.

[4] The impairment of $39,436,885 for the appraisal period ending Mar. 31, 1943, was not restored until after the following year's appraisal and is included in the amount shown for 1944 appraisal period.

[5] The act of Mar. 8, 1938, as amended by the act approved Apr. 12, 1945, changed the date of appraisal to June 30 of each year. Therefore, the impairment as of June 30, 1945, covers a 15-month period.

[6] The act of Mar. 8, 1938, as amended by the act of Mar. 20, 1954, changed the annual appraisal of the assets of the Corporation to a cost basis. Restorations of capital impairment through June 30, 1953, included $545,534,182 of estimated losses as well as the losses realized during that period. Therefore the estimate represents the difference between the total unrestored realized losses in the fiscal year 1954 and the amount of estimated losses for which restoration has been made.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation furnishes protection for the farmer's investment in producing crops against loss from unavoidable causes (7 U. S. C. 1501–1519). Insurance programs are conducted on a limited basis to develop the experience necessary for operation of a sound all-risk crop insurance plan on a national basis.

Capital stock of $100 million is authorized to be subscribed by the United States (7 U. S. C. 1504, 1504a). The Secretary of the Treasury holds receipts for $27 million of the authorized capital stock, leaving $73 million unissued.

Appropriations up to $12 million a year are authorized for administrative and operating expenses; such appropriations and expenses charged thereto are not shown in the business-type statements of the Corporation. Beginning with fiscal year 1955, the direct costs of adjusters performing loss adjustments and crop inspections are charged to premium income instead of to appropriations. Beginning with fiscal year 1956, it is also planned that administrative expenses in excess of appropriated funds will be paid from premium income.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

Contracts in force.—There will be 950 county programs in effect for crop year 1956 furnishing coverage on barley, beans, citrus, corn, cotton, flax, multiple crops, soybeans, tobacco, and wheat. It is estimated that total participation will be 470,000 contracts in force, an increase of 90,000 over the workload of 380,000 contracts planned for the 1955 crop year.

Administrative and operating expense.—Although insurance programs are developed and analyzed in the headquarters office they are administered in the field by 20 Federal Crop Insurance Corporation State or area offices. Sales and servicing of contracts at the county level is being performed by private agents under contractual agreements with the Corporation. The 1956 fiscal year budget provides for two additional State offices. Loss adjustments and crop inspections are performed by individuals employed by the Corporation on an intermittent basis, compensated on a per diem basis. Program accounting and contract servicing functions are performed by the branch office in Chicago.

The 1956 estimates contemplate administrative expenses of $6 million payable from appropriations, and $1.5 million payable from premium income, compared to $6 million in 1955 all payable from appropriations. The estimates contemplate loss adjustment and inspection costs of $1,116,000 for 1956 compared with $1,044,000 for 1955, also payable from premium income.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

The 1953 crop year program resulted in net budgetary expenditures of $5,912,186 in the 1954 fiscal year. It is estimated that the 1954 crop year will result in net budgetary expenditures of $5,297,021 in the 1955 fiscal year. The 1955 crop year program is expected to result in net budgetary receipts of $3,692,417 in the fiscal year 1956.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

Fiscal year 1954.—The financial experience of the Corporation for the 1953 crop year was in line with prevailing crop conditions which resulted in heavy losses on wheat in the Southwest and tobacco in the Southeast, caused by one of the worst drought conditions in history. Extensive damage from rust also occurred to the spring wheat crop in the Dakotas, where crop insurance participation was concentrated. A total of 80,000 claims was paid, amounting to $31 million, which exceeded premium income by $4 million. For the first time since the Corporation offered insurance protection on tobacco in 1945, indemnities exceeded the premium income for that crop.

Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

Fiscal year 1955.—Based on current estimates, the outlook for the 1954 crop year is worse. While expectations for a tobacco crop are much better than they were in 1953, the severity of the drought has increased in the Southwest wheat areas and rust damage is again a potential threat in the Dakotas. It is now estimated that indemnity costs and direct costs of loss adjusters will exceed premium income by approximately $6.3 million.

Fiscal year 1956.—While an accurate prediction of crop conditions cannot be made at this time for the 1955 crop year (fiscal year 1956), it is anticipated that earned premiums will exceed by approximately $2.75 million the cost of indemnities, direct costs of loss adjusters, and $1.5 million in administrative expenses.

Retained earnings.—The losses for fiscal years 1954 and 1955 are resulting in a change from almost $2 million of retained earnings to a cumulative deficit of $8.5 million. If a favorable insurance experience occurs for fiscal year 1956 as here estimated, the deficit will be reduced to $5.7 million at the end of that year.

The following table summarizes insurance operations for the 1954, 1955, and 1956 fiscal years:

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Disaster Loan Revolving Fund was created in 1949 by the transfer of the assets of the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation of Washington which was abolished. Its principal of $75.5 million was increased by $130 million additional appropriations in fiscal year 1954, for the purposes of the newer types of loans then authorized. The fund has been used for seven programs recently.

1. Production disaster loans.—The principal original purpose of the fund was to provide emergency loans to farmers and stockmen suffering production disasters, when the Secretary determines that the area involved has suffered a production disaster and that agricultural credit is not readily available from other sources (11 U. S. C. 1148). Loans are made at 3 percent interest. These are now running $30 to $32 million a year.

2. Economic disaster loans.—Under Public Law 115, approved July 14, 1953, loans are made at 3 percent interest in any economic disaster area declared by the President, if the economic disaster has caused a need for agricultural credit that cannot be met temporarily by regularly established lending institutions. Such loans, which were $26 million in 1954, are estimated at $15 million for 1955 and $10 million for 1956.

3. Special livestock loans.—For 2 years after July 14, 1953, loans may be made at 5 percent interest to established livestock producers who are temporarily unable to get credit from recognized lenders and who have a reasonable chance of working out their difficulties with supplementary financing. This program, which was substantial in 1954 and 1955, will be minor in 1956 with the expiration of the law.

4. Special emergency loans.—Public Law 727, approved August 31, 1954, authorizes, until June 30, 1955, special emergency loans up to a total of $15,000,000, to be made in areas where the Secretary finds a need for credit which cannot be met through other means.

5. Other loans.—The fund is available for loans at 5 percent interest to bona fide fur farmers where necessary to protect the Government's interest in existing loans which had been made by the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation or other authorities.

6. Emergency feed assistance.—Public Law 115, approved July 14, 1953, authorized feed for livestock or seeds for planting to be furnished to established farmers, ranchers, or stockmen in connection with major disasters. During fiscal year 1954, feed concentrates, principally cottonseed meal, corn, wheat, oats, and mixed feeds, were furnished at less than market cost to eligible persons in designated areas through the facilities of the Commodity Stabilization Service and special State and local drought committees. The losses on sales incurred by the Commodity Credit Corporation are to be financed through a separate appropriation. However, the disaster loan revolving fund bears the costs of freight, distribution, processing, and handling. Such costs amounted to $29 million, none of which is reimbursable to the fund.

7. Drought relief hay program.—During fiscal year 1955, as in 1954, agreements are being executed with drought disaster States to assist them in furnishing hay to eligible farmers. Under these agreements the Government contributes, from this fund, one-half the cost of transportation, not to exceed $10 per ton, and the State assumes responsibility for purchase and distribution. Obligations for this purpose are estimated at $5.4 million in 1955.

Related programs.—In addition to the foregoing, there are several related programs financed by the Farmers' Home Administration (loans), the Agricultural Conservation Program (emergency wind-erosion-control measures), the Commodity Credit Corporation (feed-grain program under the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954), and the separate appropriation to reimburse the CCC for losses on the drought emergency feed and seed program.

Administrative expenses.—Costs incurred in 1954 amounted to $2,012,251 and are estimated at $3,795,200 in 1955 and $2,489,450 in 1956. These costs are attributable to the activities of the Farmers' Home Administration, the Commodity Stabilization Service, and the Office of the Solicitor.

Operating results and retained earnings.—Due primarily to the furnishing of emergency feed assistance in 1954, which was nonreimbursable, the fund showed a loss of $35.5 million in 1954. The drought relief hay program is the primary factor causing a probable loss of $10.9 million in 1955. For 1956, with only loan programs and related expenses projected in these budget statements, a gain of $1.8 million is estimated. The cumulative deficit of the fund, which was $12 million at the start of 1954, is estimated at $58.4 million at the start of 1956 and $56.6 million at the end of 1956.

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The initial fund of $1 million is supplemented by charges collected from insured borrowers and such inspection and appraisal fees and other charges as the Secretary finds necessary. Receipts are available for administrative expenses and to cover possible losses (7 U. S. C. 1005a). Public Law 597, approved August 17, 1954, makes this fund available also for the insurance of loans under that Act. Outstanding insured loans as of June 30, 1954, totaled $61,736,259 and are estimated to be $86,600,000 at June 30, 1955, and $146 million at June 30, 1956. Retained earnings at June 30, 1954, amounted to $2,018,518 and are expected to be $2,528,718 at June 30, 1955, and $3,402,718 at June 30, 1956.

The Bureau is the principal factfinding and statistical agency of the Federal Government. It is responsible for taking the major censuses of population, housing, agriculture, governmental units, manufactures, mineral industries, the distributive trades, service establishments, and transportation. Current statistics on many of the subjects covered by these major censuses, and on foreign trade, are prepared and published on the basis of data from sample and other surveys and of records and reports made available to the Bureau. The Bureau's facilities are utilized by other Federal agencies for special surveys, tabulations, and related statistical services on a reimbursable basis.

CIVIL AERONAUTICS ADMINISTRATION

The Administration controls air traffic, develops, installs, and operates aids to air navigation and traffic control, certifies the competency of airmen and the airworthiness of aircraft, and administers grants for airport construction.

The estimates for 1956 have been prepared on the basis of a revised appropriation structure. Technical development and evaluation work and overhead items for construction of air-navigation facilities and grants for airports are included under a new heading "Operation and regulation, Civil Aeronautics Administration."

Operation and Regulation, Civil Aeronautics Administration

Operation and regulation: For necessary expenses of the Civil Aeronautics Administration in carrying out the provisions of the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938, as amended (49 U. S. C. 401), and other Acts incident to the enforcement of safety regulations, maintenance and operation of air-navigation and air-traffic control facilities, and disposal of surplus airports and administering instruments of disposal; planning, research, and administrative expenses for carrying out the provisions of the Federal Airport Act of May 13, 1946, as amended, including furnishing advisory services to States and other public and private agencies in connection with the construction or improvement of airports and landing areas; developmental work and service-testing as tends to the creation of improved air-navigation facilities, including landing areas, aircraft, aircraft engines, propellers, appliances, personnel, and operation methods, and acquisition of sites for such activities by lease, or grant; purchase of not to exceed sixty-five passenger motor vehicles for replacement only; hire of aircraft (not exceeding $370,000); operation and maintenance of not to exceed eighty-five aircraft; fees and mileage of expert and other witnesses; and purchase and repair of skis and snowshoes; $106,150,000: Provided, That there may be credited to this appropriation, funds received from States, counties, municipalities, and other public authorities for expenses incurred in the maintenance and operation of air-navigation facilities. (49 U. S. C. 401–705; 49 U. S. C. 171–184; 49 U. S. C. 1101–1119; 50 U. S. C. App. 1622 (a–c) and (g); Convention on International Civil Aviation Treaty, dated Apr. 14, 1947; 49 U. S. C. 1151–1160.)

Estimate 1956, [a] $106,150,000

[a] Includes $1,870,000 for activities previously carried under "Establishment of air-navigation facilities, Civil Aeronautics Administration," $2,000,000 for activities previously carried under "Federal-aid airport program, Civil Aeronautics Administration," and activities previously carried under "Salaries and expenses, Civil Aeronautics Administration," and "Technical development and evaluation, Civil Aeronautics Administration." The amounts obligated in 1954 and 1955 are shown in the schedule as comparative transfers.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Federal airways.—This is a program of maintaining and operating, 24 hours daily, a national network of aids to air navigation and traffic control along the primary air routes and at principal airports in the continental United States, its Territories and possessions. As new facilities are annually placed in service the cost of operation and maintenance increases. These increases are offset in part by the discontinuance of low priority and outmoded equipments and such economy measures as can be accomplished without reducing the level of safety service to aviation. In revising the appropriation structure, provision has been made under this heading for technical supervision and planning for establishment of new facilities.

2. Aviation safety.—Inspections and certifications are made of aircraft, airmen, and operators of aircraft and air agencies, including the enforcement actions necessary to assure compliance with the civil air regulations that are designed to provide safe and competent operation of aircraft. The estimate provides increases for Federal participation in a study of medical standards for airmen and the development of a positive program for shifting responsibility for safe operating practice to the industry.

3. Airports.—A national plan is annually developed for public airports in the United States, its Territories and possessions, specifying the location and type of projects needed for civil aviation and useful for national defense. This activity includes both direct and indirect costs of administering funds appropriated for grants for airport construction and of inspecting airport facilities to determine their utility and to assure that they are used in compliance with law and regulation. Some advisory services are also provided with regard to airport design and engineering.

Terminal-type airports are operated at Anchorage and Fairbanks as required by aviation in the Territory. Charges are made for most services available and revenues are estimated at $585,000 in 1955 and $780,000 in 1956, all being deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury. The increased appropriation requested for 1956 provides for payment of utility costs previously paid by users. This will be offset by increased realized revenues. Legis-

The funds requested provide for the Department of Commerce portion of a program administered by the Air Navigation Development Board, composed of representatives of the Department of Commerce and the Department of Defense, for the development of a system of aids to air navigation and traffic control which will meet the common needs of civil aviation and military nontactical air operations.

1. Research and development on airways facilities.—The total program is divided into two phases: air traffic control and air navigation. During 1956, major emphasis will be placed upon air traffic control aids.

2. Administration.—The recommended amount for 1956 includes all costs of direction and technical supervision of this joint civil/military program.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Board regulates the economic aspects of air carrier operations, both domestic and international; promulgates safety rules and standards; investigates aircraft accidents; and participates in the development of international air transportation. The increase proposed for 1956 is to expand route and rate activities and the auditing of air carrier accounts.

1. Economic regulation.—This includes granting certificates of public convenience and necessity; prescribing or approving rates and rate practices of air carriers; fixing mail rate compensation; prevention of unfair methods of competition; and approval of business relationships between air carriers.

2. Safety regulation.—This consists of promulgation of Civil Air Regulations; adjudication of complaints alleging violations of these regulations; and the coordination of the Civil Air Regulations with international safety standards and practices.

3. Accident investigation and analysis.—Civil aircraft accidents are investigated to determine probable cause; potential hazards are also investigated; and preventive measures are recommended and put into effect.

4. Legal staff activities.—Legal advice and assistance is provided on all aspects of economic and safety regulatory activities; opinions of the Board are prepared; and litigation matters are handled.

5. Executive direction.

6. Administration and service activities.

Payments to air carriers—1954, $80,655,000; 1955, $51,963,706; 1956, $63,000,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Under the Civil Aeronautics Act of 1938 the Civil Aeronautics Board fixes rates for the transportation of air mail with the objective of promoting the development of air transportation required for the commerce of the United States, the Postal Service, and the national defense. Many of these rates include an element of subsidy. Under Reorganization Plan No. 10 of 1953, the subsidy portion is paid by the Civil Aeronautics Board, and the service portion is paid by the Post Office Department.

A supplemental appropriation of $18,500,000 is proposed for 1955 in order to complete subsidy payments falling due during 1955. Reductions in subsidy liability shown below reflect Board action to establish lower rates in the light of increased carrier revenues, including revenues for the transportation of military mail.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The survey publishes aeronautical and nautical navigation charts of selected areas of the United States, its Territories, and surrounding waters, using data obtained through field surveys. In addition, seismological and geodetic control data are obtained and disseminated, and worldwide tide and current information is compiled and published.

1. Surveys and charts for marine and air navigation.—Hydrographic, topographic, tide and current, magnetic, and aeronautical surveys are made to secure information for nautical and aeronautical charts and tables required for safe air and sea navigation.

Receipts from the sale of charts and related publications totaling $445,993 in 1954 and estimated at $455,600 in both 1955 and 1956, are deposited to miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

2. Geodetic control.—Surveys are made in the United States and its Territories to determine the horizontal position (latitude and longitude) and the vertical position (elevation above mean sea level) of a network of control points which are permanently marked on the ground. These points are spaced so that adequate survey control is available for topographic, geologic, and other types of mapping, and for planning large-scale engineering projects. The positions and descriptions of these points are published and distributed to Federal, State, and local agencies and the general public. Increased funds for 1956 are requested for initiating surveys in the Gulf Coast area needed in connection with the administration of the Submerged Lands Act (67 Stat. 29) and the Outer Continental Shelf Lands Act (67 Stat. 462).

3. Earthquake investigation.—Earthquakes are located and investigated to determine their severity and to obtain engineering data for the design of earthquake-resistant structures. The Bureau operates 10 seismograph stations, field investigates an average of 8 severe earthquakes annually, operates 63 strong-motion stations in the seismic area of the Western States, collaborates with 13 universities and cooperates with 150 worldwide seismograph stations to determine the location of distant earthquakes.

4. Instrument services.—These include the design and construction, maintenance, storage, and issuance of intricate instruments used in surveying and processing operations

5. Retirement pay, commissioned officers.—Provision is made for the retirement pay of the Survey's corps of commissioned officers.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Business and Defense Services Administration was established on October 1, 1953, by the Secretary of Commerce to carry out industrial mobilization readiness activities and to provide statistical and informational services to the business community.

1. Executive direction.—Policy guidance, general supervision, and coordination of management activities of the Administration are provided by the Administrator, the deputy administrator, and an administrative staff.

2. Staff services.—Coordination and formulation of operating programs are performed by a staff of program advisers and an office of small business.

3. Marketing and distribution services.—The office of distribution fosters and promotes the development of a more effective system of distribution of goods and services by disseminating market facts and distribution information to Government, industry, and business.

4. Industry divisions.—Twenty-five industry divisions carry out the industrial mobilization programs delegated to the Department, including studies of mobilization requirements and productive capacity; postattack industrial planning and plant protection guidance; recommendations on stockpiling of critical materials; defense production expansion proposals; and priority and allocation controls over materials. Promotion of industry and commerce is accomplished through assembly and analysis of industrial and commercial information for use by both the Government and business, and by providing a focal point for cooperation between Government and business in promoting economic stability and growth. The increase for the budget year will provide for an expanded program for the collection and analysis of construction statistics.

5. Technical services.—Scientific and technical data are collected and compiled primarily from Government research and made available upon request to business, industry, the general public, and Government agencies. In addition, direct assistance is furnished (a) to industry in the development of voluntary programs for standardization of commodities, and (b) to local communities in providing advice and assistance for their participation in the Federal industrial dispersion programs.

6. Field services.—The field offices with assistance from local cooperating organizations are the medium through which the information and services of the Department are made available to the business community on the local level. These offices gather information on local business trends and developments for use of the Department and other agencies. In addition to providing domestic services, these offices provide services for the Bureau of Foreign Commerce on export and import operations, including guidance on regulations and restrictions in effect here and abroad.

Export control—1954, $3,972,641; 1955, $3,450,000; 1956, $3,000,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Export controls are necessary to safeguard the national security by regulating exports of strategic commodities, to implement United States foreign policy, and to protect the domestic economy from excessive drain of scarce commodities. In the absence of improvement in relations with certain countries, these controls must be continued and, as necessary, extended to other areas to guard against transshipment. The Bureau of Customs is responsible for the policing of shipments at points of export. Legislation providing for these activities expires June 30, 1956.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The 1956 estimate provides for (a) construction-differential subsidy and national defense allowances in construction of 2 combination passenger-cargo ships and 5 cargo ships (plus acquisition cost of 5 ships being replaced); (b) construction-differential subsidy and national defense allowances to aid in the reconstruction of 2 Mariner-class ships sold to private operators; (c) construction for Government account of 3 mobilization prototype vessels; (d) acquisition of 20 used tankers to continue the tanker trade-in-and-build program begun in 1955; (e) a program of advanced research and development including the experimental modernization of 1 reserve fleet Liberty ship; and (f) administrative and warehouse expenses necessary to accomplishment of the program.

The various postwar ship-construction programs have previously been commingled under the appropriation "Ship construction, maritime activities." In order to differentiate between current programs available for obligation and those with expenditure requirements only, all programs prior to fiscal year 1955 are now reflected under the heading "Ship construction (liquidation of contract authorization), maritime activities." The following tabulation summarizes the 1955 and 1956 programs.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

On the basis of a review of the postwar ship construction programs authorized prior to 1955 which took into account the advanced status of the programs, the following actions were taken during 1954: (1) Outstanding obligations, including reservations, were substantially reduced and (2) the remaining $49,630,974 of the total contract authority which was unobligated, unfinanced, and unrequired was administratively canceled. As of June 30, 1954, the unfinanced obligations attributable to these programs were $559,830. Since a further downward revision of obligations may be possible during 1955 and 1956, no additional cash is being requested to liquidate the $559,830. The status of the unfinanced balance follows:

Operating-differential subsidies: For the payment of obligations incurred for operating-differential subsidies granted on or after January 1, 1947, as authorized by the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended, and in appropriations heretofore made to the United States Maritime Commission, [$65,000,000] $115,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That to the extent that the operating-differential subsidy accrual (computed on the basis of parity) is represented on the operator's books by a contingent accounts receivable item against the United States as a partial or complete offset to the recapture accrual, the operator (1) shall be excused from making deposits in the special reserve fund, and (2) as to the amount of such earnings the deposit of which is so excused shall be entitled to the same tax treatment as though it had been deposited in said special reserve fund. To the extent that any amount paid to the operator by the United States reduces the balance in the operator's contingent receivable account against the United States, such amount, unless it is forthwith deposited in the fund, shall be considered as withdrawn under section 607 (h) of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended: Provided further, That

At present, 16 privately owned United States flag companies operate 279 ships under subsidy contracts on 26 of the 32 designated essential foreign trade routes. Under the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, these contracts provide for payment of differential between their operating costs and those of foreign competitors (subsidy accrual). The Government recaptures from the operator one-half of net profits in excess of 10 percent of capital necessarily employed, up to the subsidy accrual. The subsidy recapture (amount withheld) is finally determined on a cumulative basis only at the end of a 10-year contract period. In estimating the subsidy payable, subsidy recapture is subtracted from subsidy accrual, but pending the close of the 10-year contract period, the full amount of the accrual is a contingent liability of the United States.

SUMMARY OF PROGRAM JANUARY 1, 1947, THROUGH JUNE 30, 1956

[Dollars in thousands]

1947–50	4,054	$139,651

1953	1,527	97,940
1954	1,494	99,018
1955	1,621	107,108
1956 (1st 6 months)	819	54,133
Total	12,153	643,818
		Cumulative total
Subsidy accrual		$643,818
Subsidy recapture		−93,702
Subsidy payable		550,116
Subsidy paid through June 30, 1954		−209,118
Estimated subsidy payable		340,998
Subsidy to be paid in 1955 (includes a 1955 supplemental of $60 million)		−125,000
Subsidy to be paid in 1956		−115,000
Subsidy to be paid in subsequent years		100,998

The estimated unpaid subsidy as of June 30, 1956, consists primarily of amounts withheld pending annual audits (10 percent of subsidy payable or, in most recent years, 25 percent of subsidy accrual) plus the subsidy earned in the second quarter of calendar year 1956. This amount, of course, is subject to adjustment for changes in the cumulative recapture position of the operators.

The recent rise in expenditures for operating-differential subsidy is attributed primarily to (1) increases in the number of contracts and the number of voyages subsidized, (2) decline in profits of the shipping industry and the consequent increase in the payout of previously withheld profits, and (3) reduction in the administrative lag between subsidy payments and the period of operations covered.

The new appropriation language provides that the Federal Maritime Board shall not obligate the Government to pay subsidy in any one calendar year on more than 1,847 voyages. This number of voyages is 50 more than those covered in contracts in effect on December 1, 1954. This form of limitation will permit annual review of the level of subsidy commitments in the appropriation process.

A supplemental of $60 million is anticipated in 1955.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Administrative expenses.—Shown herein are the expenses of administering most of the functions of the Federal Maritime Board and Maritime Administration, including operating differential subsidies, continuing ship construction activities, ship operations, auditing, and property management. Administrative expenses in connection with maritime training, new ship construction, and repair of reserve fleet vessels are provided in the separate appropriations for these programs.

2. Maintenance of shipyard facilities.—Maintenance and security is provided at four Government-owned reserve shipyards, which are maintained in a partial state of readiness for defense purposes.

3. Operation of warehouses.—Five warehouses carry materials and equipment for reserve shipyards, vessel operations, and repair and outfitting of reserve fleet ships.

5. Maintenance of reserve training stations.—A reserve training station at Alameda, Calif., is being maintained in a custody status for possible future reactivation.

6. Reserve fleet expenses.—Provision is made for the preservation and security of over 2,100 merchant vessels, maintained at eight fleet sites for defense purposes. The increase proposed would permit completion of basic preservation on vessels returned to the fleets after use during the Korean emergency and a substantial reduction in the large backlog of recurring preservation. In addition funds are requested to construct shoreside facilities at the Olympia fleet site and replace bottom protection equipment at the James River fleet. A 1955 supplemental of $400,000 is forecast to restore funds diverted from the bottom protection program to reassemble and remoor ships in two reserve fleets hit by Hurricane Hazel.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Office administers the laws that govern the granting of patents for invention and the registration of trade-marks.

Receipts from fees were $6,055,000 in 1954, and under existing legislation are estimated to be $5,800,000 in 1955 and $6 million in 1956. Legislation will be proposed to increase fees to more nearly cover the cost of the Patent Office.

1. Administration of patent and trade-mark system.—Applications are examined to determine the patentability of claimed inventions and the registrability of trade-marks; quasi-judicial functions are performed in appeal or interference proceedings within the Office; patents and trade-marks are issued; copies of records are furnished; and other services relating to the prosecution of applications are provided.

2. Printing and publication of patent and trade-mark material.—This activity provides for printing of specifications and drawings of patents and trade-mark registrations; publication of their issuance and of official notices, rules of practice, laws, and other matter authorized by law; binding of patents, trade-marks, and other reference material for official and public search; and other printing and binding work necessary for the conduct of the business of the Office. The need and use of funds is governed largely by the volume of patent and trade-mark issuances, and related public demand for printed copies sold from stocks maintained by the Office.

BUREAU OF PUBLIC ROADS

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Bureau administers the Federal-aid highway program for the improvement of primary, secondary, urban, and interstate highways and cooperates with other Federal agencies in improving highways in national forests, parks, and other Federal areas.

Total appropriations requested amount to $712,750,000 compared with $627,040,000 in the current fiscal year, including anticipated supplementals. The increase is principally for grants to States under the expanded highway program provided in the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1954.

General administrative expenses: Necessary expenses of administration, including advertising (including advertising in the city of Washington for work to be performed in areas adjacent thereto), purchase of seventy-five passenger motor vehicles for replacement only, and the maintenance and repairs of experimental highways, shall be paid, in accordance with law, from appropriations available to the Bureau of Public Roads.

Of the total amount available from appropriations of the Bureau of Public Roads for general administrative expenses, pursuant to the provisions of section 21 of the Act of November 9, 1921, as amended (23 U. S. C. 21), $100,000 shall be available for all necessary expenses to enable the President to utilize the services of the Bureau of Public Roads in fulfilling the obligations of the United States under the Convention on the Pan-American Highway Between the United States and Other American Republics (51 Stat. 152), cooperation with several governments, members of the Pan American Union, in connection with the survey and construction of the Inter-American Highway, and for performing engineering service in Pan-American

1. Grants for construction.—Grants are made to States for the construction and improvement of highways on the Federal-aid primary, secondary, urban and interstate highway systems. In general, the grants for primary, secondary and urban highways are matched on an equal basis by State funds. Beginning with the 1956 authorization, the Federal share of interstate system projects is 60 percent. The mileages of the various systems are: Primary, 215,595; secondary, 482,972; and urban, 18,812. Some 37,800 miles of the primary and urban systems have been designated as the National System of Interstate Highways. This system includes major transcontinental and interurban highways important to national defense and interstate commerce.

The funds requested will be used to reimburse the States for the Federal share of the cost of work done on approved projects. A supplemental appropriation of $100 million for this purpose required in 1955 is proposed for later transmission and is reflected in the table below. Actual and estimated progress of the Federal-aid program is summarized in the following table.

Fiscal year	Annual authorization [1]	Number of projects approved	Obligations for projects	Cumulative balance available for obligation at end of fiscal year	Expenditures
1952	$500,000,000	5,156	$507,324,000	$690,839,715	$417,223,780

1955	575,000,000	5,950	705,000,000	859,122,897	600,398,210
1956	875,000,000	6,710	825,000,000	887,172,897	680,000,000

[1] Each fiscal year authorization becomes available for obligation not later than January 1 in the preceding fiscal year.

2. Administration.—Administrative, engineering, and research expenses are met by deductions of not to exceed 3¾ percent from the Federal-aid authorizations. Highway research is carried out independently as well as in cooperation with State highway departments. In 1956 a contribution will be made to the American Association of State Highway Officials test road—a major cooperative highway research project of the Bureau of Public Roads, State and Territorial highway departments, and the automotive and petroleum industries.

NATIONAL BUREAU OF STANDARDS

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The primary and unique functions of the National Bureau of Standards relate to the custody, maintenance, and development of the national standards of physical measurement, in terms of which all working standards in science and industry are calibrated. The Bureau serves as a national laboratory for science, industry, and the Federal Government for fundamental standards of measurement in the fields of physics, mathematics, chemistry, metallurgy, and engineering. Its functions include the development of new and improved standards, methods of measurement, and instrumentation; the rendering of calibration services to science, industry, and commerce; the determination of fundamental physical constants and basic properties of materials; the development of improved methods for testing materials and equipment; the development of codes and specifications; and the rendering of assistance to other Government agencies through advisory services on technical problems and by invention and development of devices to meet special needs.

The budget proposes to consolidate five existing appropriations—"Operation and administration," "Research and testing," "Radio propagation and standards," "Construction of laboratories," and "Construction of laboratories (liquidation of contract authorization),"—into two new appropriations, "Expenses," to finance the direct and indirect costs of research performed at the Bureau, and "Plant and equipment," to provide for maintenance of and additions to the physical plant and procurement of major equipment.

Expenses, National Bureau of Standards

Expenses: For expenses necessary in performing the functions authorized by the Act of March 3, 1901, as amended (15 U. S. C. 271–278c), including general administration; operation, maintenance, alteration, and protection of grounds and facilities; and improvement and construction of temporary or special facilities as authorized by section 2 of the Act of July 21, 1950 (15 U. S. C. 286); $7,750,000: Provided, That during the current fiscal year the maximum base rate of compensation for employees appointed pursuant to the Act of July 21, 1950 (15 U. S. C. 285), shall be equivalent to the entrance rate of GS–12. (15 U. S. C. 285; 40 U. S. C. 14a.)

Estimate 1956, [a] $7,750,000

[a] Estimate is for activities previously carried under "Research and testing, National Bureau of Standards," "Radio propagation and standards, National Bureau of Standards," and $1,525,000 for activities previously carried under "Operation and administration, National Bureau of Standards." The amounts obligated in 1954 and 1955 are shown in the schedule as comparative transfers.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The budget proposes an increase of $1,760,000 in order to (a) provide for certain overhead costs which prior to the consolidation of appropriations were borne by funds advanced from other Federal agencies and (b) permit additional emphasis on basic research and on development of authoritative standards of greater range and precision necessitated by the increasing technological nature of the Nation's industrial and defense programs. The Bureau programs are classified under four activities:

1. Research.—This activity includes investigations of fundamental physical phenomena and determinations of physical constants and properties of materials which are of great importance to science and industry. Fundamental scientific knowledge is applied to achieve more effective use of new scientific and technological processes, materials, and equipment. This activity at the National Bureau of Standards' Central Radio Propagation Laboratory includes the study of the fundamental physics of the atmosphere and the effects of solar and cosmic radiations and terrain characteristics on the propagation of radio waves.

2. Development.—This activity includes the development of new and improved standards of measurement, instruments, instrumentation techniques, methods of measurement and analysis, and commodity testing techniques. Materials, devices, and technological processes in fields of importance to national welfare are also developed.

3. Testing, calibration, and specifications.—This activity includes the comparison of working standards used in scientific investigations for engineering, manufacturing, communication, commercial, and educational institutions with the national primary standards. It also includes the preparation of standard samples of accurately known composition or characteristics and the formulation of specifications and standards for commodities and equipment.

4. General technical services.—This activity includes the provision of advisory and consultative services to other Government agencies, the operation of special technical installations, and the compilation and dissemination of scientific and technical data, such as data on propagation of radio waves which are analyzed for the prediction of radio propagation conditions.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation provides for improvements to the plant facilities of the National Bureau of Standards and procurement of unusual items of equipment.

The National Bureau of Standards laboratories and administrative offices occupy 86 buildings located on a 69-acre tract in Washington, D. C. The Bureau also has a new laboratory on a 217-acre site at Boulder, Colo., for the Central Radio Propagation Laboratory, which was opened in 1954, and several small field sites, some of which are outside the continental limits.

1. Facilities.—This activity includes construction and other work required to effect necessary improvements in the Bureau's facilities. The budget provides $125,000 for minor construction and improvements and $75,000 to continue the rehabilitation of the mechanical facilities of the Bureau.

2. Special equipment.—This activity includes the procurement of large and unusual items of equipment which are not appropriate for purchase by the working capital fund. The National Bureau of Standards proposes to design and construct a pilot electronic data processing device during the next 3 years at an estimated total cost of $450,000. The budget includes $50,000 to initiate this work in fiscal year 1956.

3. Construction.—Any future construction would be funded under this activity, but none is proposed for 1956. The 1955 obligations are for completion of previously authorized projects.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Weather Bureau observes, records, reports, forecasts, and distributes information on weather conditions and river stages for the benefit of United States commerce, industry, agriculture, and the general public. Increased funds for 1956 are primarily to finance certain activities basic to the civilian weather service, now financed in the Department of Defense.

1. General weather services.—Regular forecasts are issued for United States territory and waters with special emphasis on floods and severe storms. Special forecasts and advisory services are provided for international and domestic aviation; fire-weather forecasts are furnished to assist in conservation of timber resources; and fruit-frost forecasts and warnings are prepared for areas where such crops form a major economic interest. Surface and upper-air observations are taken at several hundred locations to serve forecasting requirements. Current weather information is disseminated widely for the benefit of aviation and other interests. Several thousand voluntary and part-time observers record river stage, temperature, and precipitation readings for use in flood-control and water-use activities. All observational records are combined to form the climatic history of the United States and possessions.

2. Research.—Research is directed primarily toward the development of new operational and forecasting techniques directly applicable to major service programs, but also includes some supplemental studies of basic meteorology and meteorological physics.

3. Administration.

Vessel Operations Revolving Fund, Maritime Activities

Vessel operations revolving fund: Hereafter the Vessel Operations Revolving Fund, created by the Third Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1951, shall be available for necessary expenses incurred in connection with protection, preservation, maintenance, acquisition, or use of vessels involved in mortgage-foreclosure or forfeiture proceedings instituted by the United States, including payment of prior claims and liens, expenses of sale, or other charges incident thereto; for necessary expenses incident to the redelivery and lay-up, in the United States, of ships now chartered under agreements which do not call for their return to the United States; for payment of expenses of custody and husbanding of Government-owned ships other than those within reserve fleets; and for payment of expenses of emergency repairs of ships in reserve fleets: Provided, That said fund shall be credited with all receipts from charter of Government-owned ships under the jurisdiction of the Secretary of Commerce.

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund finances the operations for the Government of cargo vessels to meet the increased demand since Korea for shipment of supplies, materials, and other items, resulting from the national defense and foreign aid programs (65 Stat. 59). The operation of the vessels is carried out by private operators acting as agents of the Maritime Administration.

Vessel operations under the fund reached a peak about April 1, 1952, when 538 ships were operated by general agents. By June 30, 1955, however, this number is expected to be reduced to zero. In 1956, four reserve fleet Liberty ships modernized for experimental purposes will be operated by general agents in order to obtain performance data. In view of present world conditions, it is proposed to retain the basic financial and administrative structure in a position to accomplish rapid expansion of shipping services if conditions so require.

Administrative expenses in 1954 were $1,544,324 and are estimated at $1,020,000 in 1955 and $600,000 in 1956.

Language is proposed to broaden the authority of the fund by (a) making it available for expenses arising out of certain ship operating and custody contingencies and (b) authorizing the deposit in the fund of certain charter-hire now going into miscellaneous receipts.

Federal Ship Mortgage Insurance Fund, Revolving Fund, Maritime Activities

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Maritime Administration is authorized to insure mortgages on certain types of cargo- and passenger-carrying vessels and other watercraft. Receipts, representing premiums for insurance and certain incidental fees are deposited in this fund and, together with such amounts as may be appropriated, are available for the redemption of any defaulted mortgages. As of June 30, 1954, the total of the unpaid mortgages on three vessels insured under this fund was $279,167. However, by the end of fiscal year 1956, it is anticipated that mortgage insurance will be extended to an additional 14 vessels then under construction, and insured mortgages will total approximately $57,300,000. Increased activity anticipated is a result of the enactment of recent legislation (Public Law 781, approved Sept. 3, 1954), which facilitates private financing of new ship construction.

War-Risk Insurance Revolving Fund, Maritime Activities

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund was established to provide war-risk insurance in the event that commercial insurance is not available at reasonable terms and conditions during time of war (46 U. S. C. 1281, 1288). Commercial war-risk insurance policies are at present subject to an automatic termination clause upon the outbreak of war between any of the four powers: United States, France, Great Britain, and the U. S. S. R. As of June 30, 1954, interim binders for war-risk hull, protection and indemnity, and second seamen's insurance, which becomes effective upon the outbreak of war, had been issued covering approximately 750 vessels and $3,069,279,303 of insurance.

The transfer of $10 million is authorized from the vessel operations revolving fund to this fund if it becomes necessary to provide insurance coverage (65 Stat. 747). To date no transfers have been made and none are anticipated in fiscal years 1955 or 1956. At present the income of the fund comes from insurance premiums and fees paid for issuance of the interim binders. Expenses of the fund consist of fees paid to underwriting agents and for contract appraisal costs. Legislative proposals are now being developed to extend the underwriting authority which expires September 7, 1955.

INLAND WATERWAYS CORPORATION

[Submitted under the Government Corporation Control Act]

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

Inland Waterways Corporation Fund

The following corporation is hereby authorized to make such expenditures, within the limits of funds and borrowing authority available to such corporation and in accord with law, and to make such contracts and commitments without regard to fiscal year limitations as provided by section 104 of the Government Corporation Control Act, as amended, as may be necessary in carrying out the programs set forth in the Budget for the fiscal year [1955] 1956 for such corporation, except as hereinafter provided: (Departments of State, Justice, and Commerce and the United States Information Agency Appropriation Act, 1955.)

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

The physical facilities and operating rights of the Inland Waterways Corporation, created by Act of Congress June 3, 1924, were sold to Federal Barge Lines, Inc., a subsidiary of the St. Louis Shipbuilding and Steel Company, as of July 1, 1953, for $9,000,000, all paid through a long-term mortgage, bearing interest at 3¾ percent. During the period from July 1 to September 20, 1953, the Inland Waterways Corporation continued to operate, acting as agent for the purchaser. After the latter date, the Corporation's activity is restricted to liquidation of pending claims, and the supervision of the contract with the purchaser, who is required to meet certain conditions with respect to number of trips, barge loadings, solicitation of business, and investment of additional funds in the facilities.

Equipment purchase.—One towboat and 20 barges under construction at the time of sale were completed and included in the sale. The sum of $147,753 was needed in 1954 for their completion.

Operating expenses.—Operating expenses, which are being reduced rapidly, consist mainly of costs relating to prior year operations and the cost of casualties not provided for in prior years. Most of the claims now being settled (a 3-year period being allowed carriers for claims) are not charged to expense currently, but to a deferred credit item established in earlier years.

Administrative expenses.—These expenses include reimbursements to the Department of Commerce for personal services, payment to the General Accounting Office for a commercial audit, payment to Federal Barge Lines for services rendered in claims examination, and necessary travel and other costs.

Income.—Except for fiscal year 1954 when $178,942 was realized from operations of prior years, and minor amounts from time deposits in banks and from rental of leased space at Kansas City, Kans., the income is from interest on the Federal Barge Lines mortgage.

Operating results.—Since the book value of assets sold was $11.9 million, a loss of about $2.9 million was recorded at the time of the sale in fiscal year 1954. Apart from the sale, net income that year and in 1955 and 1956 respectively is estimated at about $0.3 million.

Effect on budget expenditures.—The sale of the company's assets, together with the net income described above, is resulting in a net budgetary receipt to the Government for the years here under consideration and during the future years when the mortgage is being paid off.

Financial condition.—The Government's investment of $27.3 million was depleted to $10.9 million as of the end of fiscal year 1954. However, net income for 1955 and 1956, together with some favorable adjustments in prior years' expenses, primarily reserves for claims, are expected to restore $0.9 million of the Government's investment by the end of fiscal 1956.

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The fiscal year 1956 budget for the Military Functions of the Department of Defense is based upon the same principles and objectives recommended in the fiscal year 1954 and 1955 budgets and which were adopted by the Congress. Essentially this calls for planning and financing our military program on a long-term basis and for the maintenance of ready military forces to support our domestic and foreign policy objectives within the framework of a sound and expanding economy. This budget recognizes the need, in this modern day, of flexibility in planning and carrying out our military programs and gives full recognition to the introduction of new weapons and new techniques suited to any future warfare.

This budget continues the emphasis on modern airpower in the Air Force, the Navy, the Marine Corps and the Army, and assures the development and maintenance of nuclear-air retaliatory power as the principal deterrent to aggression. These forces, in combination with mobile land, air and naval units, and the forces of our allies, are designed to deal swiftly and severely with overt aggression and to cope successfully with general war if war is forced upon us.

Continuing high priority is given in the budget to accelerated development of continental defense programs by all three military departments. New weapons of unparalleled effectiveness are being integrated into the combat elements with all practical speed. The Army is actively studying the changes in its structure and tactical doctrines which will be required to meet the conditions of the atomic battlefield. Further emphasis is provided in the budget on both the research and development and production aspects of guided missiles of all types. Additional funds are requested for the reserve tools and facilities program to eliminate deficiencies in the industrial mobilization base. Funds requested for military public works are principally required by the expanding airpower and continental defense programs. An increase in funds for shipbuilding is provided in order to maintain a modern combatant Navy. The budget provides for procurement of materiel and equipment to modernize the active forces and for additional mobilization reserves. A continuing high level of research and development will be carried on. Further economies in operation are anticipated through the extension of financial property accounting and through the use of industrial funds in the production and commercial-type activities of the Defense Department.

The fiscal year 1956 budget estimates include funds for new legislation to be proposed to protect our investment in trained military manpower and provide increased incentives for capable men and women to select and follow military careers. These include medical care for dependents, equalized survivors' benefits on a contributory basis, improved housing for families of military personnel, and an adjustment in military pay and allowances on a selective basis. Funds are also requested for proposed legislation to create more effective military reserve forces which can be sustained with equity to all concerned and without serious impact on the civilian economy. It is proposed that a substantial part of the money required by the new legislation be derived by transfers from funds previously appropriated to the Department of Defense.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This estimate includes funds for the pay of all military personnel on the retired lists of the Department of Defense, and represents the consolidated requirements of the military departments for: Payments to regular and nonregular officers and enlisted personnel on the retired rolls of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force; the retainer pay of regular enlisted personnel of the Fleet Reserve of the Navy and Fleet Marine Corps Reserve; and the benefits payable to survivors of military personnel under the Uniformed Services Contingency Option Act of 1953. The amount requested is exclusive of any administrative expense. The more liberal retirement policies and the forced separation program of officers have resulted in a significant increase to the retired rolls.

The United States Court of Military Appeals serves as the court of last resort for all of the more serious court-martial convictions of military personnel. The number of cases docketed in fiscal years 1953 and 1954 totaled 2,194 and 2,037, respectively. A comparable number is anticipated for this fiscal year on the basis of the present strength of our Armed Forces. The court is maintaining a current docket with the review completed in 96 percent of the cases filed since its establishment.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation provides for the use of scientific resources to develop new and improve existing weapons systems, equipment, components, techniques, and doctrine for the Army. The work is carried on under contracts with industry and other private institutions, and in the research, development, and test facilities operated by the Army and other Government agencies. A major portion of the funds requested for fiscal year 1956 will be applied to important end items already under development which represent a substantial investment of prior-year funds.

1. Air defense operations.—Developments include new and improved antiaircraft guns and ammunition, surface-to-air guided missiles, and electronic search, detection, and fire-control and countermeasures equipment.

2. Airborne, amphibious, and supply materiel.—Developments include materiel for aerial supply, new types of cargo helicopters, heavy drop equipment, special vehicles for marshy and swampy terrain, vehicles suitable for Arctic conditions, and equipment for overbeach operations.

3. Atomic, biological, and chemical warfare.—Developments are to provide offensive and defensive capability in these types of warfare.

4. Personnel, intelligence, and planning.—Developments include rations, clothing, personal equipment, body armor, and survival aids for use under extreme climatic conditions; training aids for new weapons and equipment; and techniques to improve the classification and utilization of manpower. This activity also covers research on the treatment of wartime casualties and diseases of special military significance, and research on problems of strategy, tactics, intelligence, and logistics to plan the development and use of new weapons.

5. Land combat operations.—Developments include new and improved tanks, antitank weapons, artillery weapons, small arms, surface-to-surface guided missiles, land mines and mine-warfare equipment, flame-warfare equipment, and ammunition.

6. Supporting research and development.—This is to improve techniques, materials, components and equipment.

7. Boards.—The five boards of the Army field forces test and evaluate the tactical suitability of newly developed weapons and equipment.

8. Direct support costs.—This covers installation support costs for research and development activities, such as provision of utilities, local communications, transportation and other general support logistical services.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The National Board for the Promotion of Rifle Practice aids national preparedness by providing able-bodied citizens training in the use of military-type small arms. Assistance is provided to clubs and schools enrolled with the director of civilian marksmanship by the issuance of supplies and equipment for use in marksmanship practice, and the issuance of trophies, medals, and badges for marksmanship. In fiscal year 1956, it is estimated that 161,300 individuals will be enrolled, compared with 157,460 in 1954 and 159,380 in 1955. Upon approval of the Director of Civilian Marksmanship, ammunition, targets, and supplies for rifle practice are sold by the Ordnance Corps to clubs and schools enrolled with the program and to individual members of the National Rifle Association. In fiscal year 1956 the value of such sales is estimated to be $1 million compared with $614,000 in 1954 and $750,000 in 1955.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for the procurement of major supplies and equipment, including ammunition, necessary to equip, maintain, and train the active Army and the Reserve forces.

This budget presentation is based upon the concept of placing maximum reliance upon maintaining existing production lines operating at sustaining rates and establishment of production lines at minimum rates for new items rather than the accumulation of the full reserves to support the current mobilization plan.

1. Major equipment.—Provision is made for procurement of weapons and vehicles actually used for combat, such as antiaircraft artillery, recoilless rifles, fire-control equipment, mortars, rifles, machineguns, tanks and tank accessories, self-propelled artillery, etc.; vehicles, both tactical and quasi-commercial, which are used for general purposes; Army aircraft, including liaison aircraft, helicopters, and target equipment used in antiaircraft training; electronics and communications equipment; and other major items of equipment used by the Army such as railroad equipment, bridges, materials-handling equipment, construction equipment, generators, road-building equipment, etc.

2. Ammunition and guided missiles.—Provision is made for procurement of ammunition used with conventional weapons, small arms, ground explosives and for those missiles assigned to the Department of the Army for procurement.

3. Industrial mobilization.—Provision is made for the rehabilitation and expansion of manufacturing facilities to establish and maintain an adequate mobilization production base for emergency use; for pilot-line production and for production engineering tests leading to reduction in the use of critical materials and manpower; and for the layaway of Government-owned production facilities and equipment as they are released from production.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation finances the operating costs of naval aviation, which consists of the air combat forces of the Regular Navy and Marine Corps, supporting service and training forces, the Naval and Marine Air Reserves, all air weapons and air techniques, naval air stations and other related shore facilities.

1 and 2. Flight operations, Regular Navy and Naval Reserve.—Flight operations are programed for 1956 at approximately 1955 force strengths for major units, projected at peacetime flying rates, but reflect the impact of a larger percentage of modern high-performance aircraft comprising the combat operating complements in 1956.

3 and 4. Aircraft overhaul, Regular Navy and Naval Reserve.—Provision is made for an overhaul workload to accord with operating strength and level of flight operations programed for 1956. Unit workload factors contemplate improved efficiency over 1954 experience, and cost factors reflect prices current in September 1954.

5 and 6. Station operations, Regular Navy and Naval Reserve.—General operating and maintenance costs of Regular and Reserve Navy and Marine Corps stations, whose missions are predominantly air, are budgeted in 1956 at approximately their 1955 levels except where provision has been made for supporting more extensive jet aircraft operations in combat units and the Training Command, and additional overseas air operations in both Atlantic and Pacific Ocean areas.

7. Alteration and replacement of facilities.—Provision is made for essential structural repairs to aeronautical shore facilities, adequate maintenance of industrial reserve aircraft plants and tools, and limited replacement of landing aids and aircraft overhaul shop equipment.

8. Supporting equipment, materiel and services.—Fleet operations are supported by the procurement of weather instruments, training aids, specialized flight clothing, technical publications, essential ground equipment, and photographic equipment. Improvement of production methods, evaluation of newly developed equipment, standardization of material and equipment, maintenance of shipboard catapults and arresting gear, and inspection of newly procured aircraft and equipment also are included.

9. Departmental administration.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation finances procurement of new aircraft for the Navy and Marine Corps, together with specialized aeronautical training equipment and the modernization of service aircraft.

1. Aircraft procurement.—Procurement requirements for new aircraft are based on the projected aircraft operating program, attrition, and obsolescence. The 1956 program is designed to continue the modernization of the operating forces.

2. Training equipment.—This activity finances procurement of aeronautical materiel, such as engines and electronics equipment and mobile maintenance trainers for the technical training of maintenance personnel. Procurement of operational flight trainers for instruction of Naval and Marine Corps pilots and target drones for fleet gunnery training and guided missile operations is also covered by this activity. Requirements are dependent upon the number of students, depth of training, and the planned introduction of new equipment models into fleet operating squadrons. The 1956 estimate covers procurement of advanced types of aeronautical equipment and contemplates more intensive training at the advanced specialized level.

3. Aircraft modernization.—Whenever practicable, aircraft in inventory are modernized or converted to new configurations to meet higher operational requirements and reduce new aircraft procurement requirements. The 1956 estimate provides replacement engines with superior performance characteristics for certain aircraft models and in addition provides newly developed electronic communication, navigation, identification and antisubmarine search radar for operating aircraft.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation provides for basic and applied scientific research and for the development and improvement of weapons and equipment for the various types of military operations for which the Navy must be prepared. The work is conducted by contracts with industry, private research organizations, and universities; and by the research, development, and test facilities operated by the Navy and other Government agencies. A major portion of the funds requested for fiscal year 1956 will be applied to important end items already under development which represent a substantial investment of prior year funds.

1. Aviation.—Development of new and improved aircraft, guided missiles, powerplants, electronic equipment, and related components.

2. Ships.—Scientific and technological advances in the design and construction of naval vessels, their machinery and equipment.

3. Ordnance.—Research and development for the improvement of ordnance and ammunition.

4. Medicine.—Research and development in the fields of aviation medicine, shipboard medicine, submarine medicine, field medicine, general medicine and surgery, dentistry and atomic and special weapons medicine.

5. Civil engineering.—Applied research and development on problems related to engineering and construction equipment, materials and methods, and equipment for specialized operating requirements.

6. Supply.—Research and development on problems relating to food, clothing, supply engineering, and logistics.

7. Naval personnel.—Research and development directed toward the analysis and solution of the personnel problems of the Navy.

8. Marine Corps.—Development of landing-force equipment, tactics, and techniques, mainly in the field of amphibious warfare.

9. Naval research.—This program provides a major portion of the broad supporting work for the Navy in its effort to discover new scientific knowledge for military uses.

The 1956 program is designed to continue modernization of the 137 wing force with the latest and most advanced type of aircraft through fiscal year 1958. This activity also provides fund support for (1) procurement administration, (2) quality control, and (3) audit of costs incurred by contractors in the performance of contracts.

2. Guided missiles.—Guided missiles and associated equipment are procured to augment the combat capabilities of the Air Force in air defense, strategic air, and tactical air operations.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for ammunition and major items of equipment required by the Air Force, the Air Force Reserve, the Air National Guard (long-lead-time items only), and the Air ROTC. Substantial reliance is placed on continuation of a flexible production base capable of rapid expansion as opposed to the accumulation of large stocks of ammunition and equipment. Additive requirements for other than replacement purposes are to support organizations and installations to be activated under the 137-wing program. These initial issue requirements are being gradually satisfied. However, certain projects in the electronics and communications area are being expanded. The major projects in areas of air defense, electronic countermeasures, and navigation and communications systems, are not directly associated with numbers of organizations or bases.

1. Weapons, ammunition, and assist-takeoff units.—Ammunition is provided for a combat reserve, peacetime training of crews, and for service test of new types. No provision is made for additional small arms.

2. Ground powered and marine equipment.—Provision is made for general and special purpose vehicles only. No procurement of materials-handling equipment, construction equipment, railroad equipment or marine craft is contemplated.

3. Electronics and communications equipment.—Provision is made for airborne radio and radar equipment for aircraft not so equipped in production, wire communications equipment, ground radio and radar equipment, communications security equipment, and electronic countermeasures equipment.

4. Training equipment.—Provision is made for major nonexpendable training aid equipment, including mobile training units, counterpart training devices, radio and radar trainers, and aerial targets and related equipment.

5. Other major equipment.—Provision is made for meteorological, photographic, printing and reproduction, test, flying field and shop, utilities, food service, and laundry and dry-cleaning equipment required for tactical units, airbases, depots, and airfield support. Primary requirements are associated with aircraft support.

Army Industrial Fund

BUDGETARY AUTHORIZATION SCHEDULES

AMOUNTS AVAILABLE FOR OBLIGATION

Reappropriation of prior year balance (from "Maintenance and operations, Army" (1953) pursuant to 5 U. S. C. 172)—1955, $149,650,000.

ANALYSIS OF EXPENDITURES

Obligations incurred during the year (total expenditures out of current authorizations—paid into revolving fund)—1955, $149,650,000.

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund finances industrial- and commercial-type activities on a reimbursable basis (5 U. S. C. 172d). The activities now financed include 2 Army printing plants, 5 Quartermaster Corps manufacturing and/or maintenance activities, 7 Ordnance Corps and 2 Chemical Corps arsenals, a proving ground, and an ordnance research laboratory.

Income and expenses in fiscal years 1955 and 1956 increase over fiscal year 1954 because of additional activities financed by the fund. Total inventories are expected to decline from $129,421,672 at June 30, 1954, to $96,017,867 at June 30, 1956 (see schedule C–1). Part of this decline is due to a program for disposition of excess and surplus stores, most of which were on hand at the time of initial capitalization.

Of the $366,930,000 reappropriated to this fund, it is estimated $112,143,000 will be allocated through 1956 to the 18 establishments included in the statements, leaving a balance of $254,787,000 for allocation to additional activities to be financed by the fund. Pending projects include a port of embarkation, a hospital and several depots where there are sizable manufacturing or maintenance operations. It is also anticipated presently operating divisions of the fund will be expanded to include additional similar establishments. Because there is not yet a definite determination of the specific installations nor a firm schedule as to when these additional activities will be financed by the fund, the estimates in the financial statements cover only the presently operating activities.

The investment of the Government as of June 30, 1956, is estimated to be $403,761,857; this is comprised of reappropriations of $366,930,000, net capitalized assets of $36,565,129, and retained earnings (representing accumulated net gain through operation of these establishments) of $266,728.

Army Stock Fund

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund finances the procurement of stocks of common-use items, including clothing and equipage, subsistence, general quartermaster supplies, medical-dental supplies, and selected items of chemical, engineer, ordnance, signal, and transportation supplies. Income is derived from sale of these common-use items to authorized purchasers (5 U. S. C. 172d).

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

In fiscal year 1954, the fund was limited to financing stocks of clothing, subsistence, general quartermaster and medical-dental supplies in the continental United States depot system. In 1955, the fund was expanded to embrace stocks of medical-dental supplies at selected United States stations and hospitals and overseas depots and subsistence stocks at 78 United States stations. In addition, United States depot stocks of chemical, engineer, ordnance, signal, and transportation supplies were capitalized in 1955. In 1956 it is anticipated that stocks of all items will be capitalized at major United States stations and overseas depots. All inventories include mobilization reserves as well as operating stocks.

As a result of these extensions, inventories financed by the fund increased by $713 million in fiscal year 1954 and are estimated to increase by $2,947 million in fiscal year 1955 and by $1,550 million in fiscal year 1956.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

Expenditures to finance operations will be considerably less than sales because the level of inventories on hand when capitalized will permit the utilization of stock for which replacement is not required. This results in an accumulation of cash for return to the Treasury of which $285 million was returned in 1954, and $300 million in 1955.

This limited reinvestment in stocks resulted in a credit to budget expenditures of $249 million in 1954; in 1955 it is estimated this credit will be $392 million and in 1956, $531 million.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

The expansion of this fund has resulted in an increase in sales from $32 million in 1951 (the first year of operation) to $1,284 million in 1954. In 1956 it is estimated that sales will be nearly double the 1954 amount, at $2,137 million.

In the financial statements, reinvestment in stock and transportation and other expenses is shown to be considerably less than sales. In 1956, for example, expenses for goods, transportation, and other operating costs are expected to be $1,496 million as compared to cash sales of $2,137 million. In the 3 years, 1954 through 1956, total expenses (exclusive of accounting adjustments) are estimated at $3,557 million, as compared to total cash sales of $4,842 million. The operating expenses paid from the fund, in addition to the cost of goods purchased and transportation to first destination, are limited to costs for repair and rehabilitation of certain unserviceable stocks held by the fund.

Losses to the capital of the fund result from adjustments in inventory values due to revision of standard prices and from the sale of excess or surplus stocks at less than standard prices. Standard prices of the various inventories are adjusted periodically on the basis of current procurement costs; thus, gains or losses are recorded as changes in market prices occur. The accumulated net loss is estimated at $191 million at the end of fiscal year 1956.

Additional and abnormal losses of capital will result from the sale of excess or surplus stocks of which there were substantial quantities on hand at the time of capitalization. Losses of this kind on the disposal of stocks capitalized during 1955 and 1956 will be charged to reserves established at the time of capitalization. Such losses will continue to occur until "purification" of existing worldwide inventories has been substantially completed, probably during 1957. Normal inventory losses and adjustments are recovered through an operating margin included in sales prices.

FINANCIAL CONDITION

It is estimated that the investment of the Government in the fund as of June 30, 1956, will be $8,639 million. This is composed of net capitalized inventories of $8,991 million, reduced by net returns to the Treasury of $161 million and accumulated losses of $191 million.

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund began operating on July 1, 1953, to finance inventories of materials and equipment (5 U. S. C. 172d). Income is derived from sales to authorized purchasers.

The fund consists of stocks of electronics parts; engineer property, materials and spare parts; general property, clothing and equipment; motor transport equipment and spare parts; ordnance spare parts; nonperishable subsistence; and fuels. While it is not planned to capitalize additional categories in the fund, it is planned to capitalize more items in individual categories (see schedule B–1).

Stock levels are high in relation to planned operations because mobilization reserves of essential items are maintained in most of the categories. A program to identify by item the peacetime and mobilization stock level requirements is expected to be concluded during fiscal year 1956. Until this program is completed, planned purchases will be less than sales.

The principal of the fund as of June 30, 1954, was $412,124,864, including a reappropriation of $40,000,000. This was reduced by a rescission of $25,000,000 returned to surplus of the Treasury in accordance with Public Law 458, approved June 30, 1954. The principal will be increased by additional capitalization of inventories during 1955 and 1956 amounting to $161,952,000, leaving the principal of the fund $549,076,864 as of June 30, 1956.

Naval Working Fund

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund was established for the purpose of accounting for advances received by the Navy to cover the cost of work or services furnished other Government agencies, foreign governments, and private parties (31 U. S. C. 643).

Advances to the fund decrease in fiscal year 1956 primarily because receipts formerly included from the sale of surplus stores are now included in the account for preparation for sale or salvage of military property of the Navy, and advances received for work or services furnished at Navy industrial fund activities are now included in that fund.

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund finances industrial- and commercial-type activities on a reimbursable basis (5 U. S. C. 172d). The 42 activities now financed include Military Sea Transportation Service, 11 naval shipyards, 4 naval ordnance plants, 23 printing plants, 2 research laboratories, and a clothing factory.

Income and expenses in fiscal years 1955 and 1956 are increased over fiscal year 1954 because of 6 additional establishments (5 shipyards and a gun factory) financed by the fund during 1955. Expenditures in fiscal year 1956 are slightly lower than in fiscal year 1955 primarily because it is estimated inventories will be reduced and manufacturing expenses will decrease.

A reappropriation of $69,000,000 was made to this fund in fiscal year 1955, bringing the amount reappropriated as capital of the fund to $480,790,000. Of this amount, $284,350,000 had been allocated to the 42 establishments included in the estimates, leaving a balance of $196,440,000 available for allocation to additional activities to be financed by the fund. These include two ordnance plants, various research laboratories and aviation repair facilities; because there is not a firm schedule as to the date financing will begin, estimates for these establishments are not included in the financial statements.

The investment of the Government as of June 30, 1956, is estimated to be $465,857,975; this is comprised of reappropriations of $480,790,000, less net capitalized assets of $26.150,624, representing inventories acquired reduced by liabilities assumed at the time of the transfer of activities to the fund. and retained earnings of $11,218,599, representing accumulated gain through operation of these establishments.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund was created to facilitate the financing of operations supported by two or more appropriations (5 U. S. C. 172e). The corpus of the fund consists of $1 million transferred from the naval procurement fund. Principal operations financed in this manner are construction of Navy and Air Force bases in Spain, the material inspection service, departmental telephone and maintenance services, and the Electronics Production Resources Agency which coordinates the production and allocation of electronics equipment for the Department of Defense.

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund, initially established in 1893, finances the procurement of stocks of general stores material, vehicular equipment repair parts, special ship electrical fittings, clothing, ship's store and commissary store stock, medical and dental supplies, blood plasma and related items, subsistence, electronic items, and fuels. Income is derived from sales to authorized purchasers (5 U. S. C. 172d).

Included are worldwide depot and, in general, station stocks. In addition to operating stocks, this fund maintains mobilization reserves of essential items which cannot be immediately procured in the event of an emergency. Because of previous stock reductions, returns were made to surplus of the Treasury of $250,000,000 in 1954 and $200,000,000 in 1955. Additional cash generated during 1956 is to be invested in several stock categories, if analysis of requirements indicates this is necessary to obtain a better balance in mobilization reserve stock levels.

Sales income decreases slightly during fiscal year 1956. Planned purchases by the fund will be less than sales in both fiscal years 1955 and 1956, continuing a program to draw down stock levels begun in 1954. Thus, in the 3-year period from June 30, 1953, to June 30, 1956, it is planned inventories will be reduced from $1,810,518,080 to $1,325,911,912.

The Government investment in the fund as of June 30, 1956, consists of $1,435,587,013 of appropriated and reappropriated money, $737,757,373 of net capitalized assets, and $14,736,792 of retained earnings. Retained earnings decrease in fiscal years 1955 and 1956 because of a program to sell excess stocks which will return less than book value. An amount of $400,000,000 was reappropriated in fiscal year 1955 and is available for working capital for expansion of the Navy stock fund to include spare parts now carried in the Navy's appropriation purchases account. Estimates for this proposed expansion are not included in the financial statements because there is not yet a definite determination of the value of the inventories nor a firm schedule as to when they will be capitalized.

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund finances industrial- or commercial-type activities on a reimbursable basis (5 U. S. C. 172d). The activities now financed include the Air Force Printing Services, comprised of seven printing plants under the Air Materiel Command and one under the Air University.

An amount of $160 million was reappropriated in fiscal year 1955 to provide working capital for additional operations which it is planned will be financed by the fund. These activities include laundries and dry-cleaning plants, Military Air Transport Service, Aeronautical Chart and Information Center, and automotive and aircraft maintenance activities at air bases. Because there is not yet a firm schedule as to when these additional activities will be financed by the fund, the estimates in the financial statements cover only the presently operating activities.

The investment of the Government as of June 30, 1956, is estimated to be $161,100,896; this is comprised of reappropriations of $161 million, net capitalized assets of $91,371 and retained earnings of $9,525.

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund finances the procurement of stocks of common-use items in individual clothing, aviation fuels and lubricants, and medical and dental supplies. Income is derived from sales to authorized purchasers (5 U. S. C. 172d).

Worldwide depot and station stocks of these items are included in the fund. In addition to operating stocks, the fund maintains mobilization reserves of essential items. Because of the level of inventories on hand of clothing and medical and dental items, reinvestment in these items is substantially below sales. In aviation fuels and lubricants, investment in 1955 and 1956 is intended to increase stock levels.

The Government investment in the fund as of June 30, 1956, is estimated to be $1,130,597,557, consisting of net reappropriations of $571,300,000, net capitalized inventories of $623,628,322 and a deficit of $64,330,765. The deficit has accumulated primarily because of adjustments in inventory values as a result of revision of standard prices and losses realized in the sale of excess or surplus stocks.

A reappropriation of $340 million to this fund was made in fiscal year 1955 and is available for expansion of the stock fund to include other common-use items. Estimates for this proposed expansion are not included in the financial statements because there is not yet a definite determination of the value of the inventories nor a firm schedule as to when they will be capitalized.

RIVERS AND HARBORS AND FLOOD CONTROL

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Corps of Engineers improves and maintains rivers and harbors throughout the continental United States, Puerto Rico, Alaska, the Virgin Islands, and the Hawaiian Islands in the interests of navigation, control of floods, related hydroelectric power development, and allied water uses, including the protection and preservation of navigable waters.

The total appropriation requested amounts to $508.8 million, representing an increase of $66.4 million compared with the amount appropriated for fiscal year 1955 and an increase of $84.6 million compared with the appropriation for fiscal year 1954. The appropriation requested contemplates minimum progress on all projects and activities and the adherence to completion schedules for multiple purpose projects including power developments. Some of these projects have reached the stage of construction where large appropriations are needed to maintain those schedules. In addition, the appropriation provides for the initiation and resumption of a number of projects or project modifications. Approximately 77 percent of the requested appropriation will be applied to construction and 19 percent to operation and maintenance activities, the balance being general program management.

The following appropriations shall be expended under the direction of the Secretary of the Army and the supervision of the Chief of Engineers for authorized civil functions of the Department of the Army pertaining to rivers and harbors, flood control, beach erosion, and related purposes:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Examinations and surveys.—Preliminary examinations and surveys for navigation and flood-control improvements are made to determine the need for and economic justification of the proposed improvements. These studies are made in cooperation with appropriate Federal and State agencies and will be restricted to a limited number of high-priority investigations.

In addition, cooperative beach erosion control investigations are conducted at specific localities and are paid for equally by the Federal Government and by States and other local agencies.

Special studies are made in cooperation with State and other Federal agencies in the interest of navigation, flood control, power, and related purposes. Included in this activity are the San Francisco Bay survey and the survey of Great Lakes water levels.

posed flood control and river and harbor projects of the Corps of Engineers upon fish and wildlife and to recommend corrective measures.

3. Research and development.—Engineering investigations are made to assist in the solution of unsolved or incompletely solved engineering problems. The solutions are widely applicable to the design, construction and operation and maintenance of civil works projects. The amount requested will permit continuation of 64 individual investigations and provide for the operation of the Research Center at the Waterways Experiment Station, Vicksburg, Miss.

General beach erosion development studies dealing with physical phenomena, techniques, basic principles and remedial or control measures related to shore protection and improvement are made and the results of these are disseminated to other Federal, State, and local agencies and individuals having need for this information.

Hydrologic studies including storm studies, flood investigations, sedimentation studies, and international water studies are made and Corps of Engineers stream flow and rainfall data stations are operated to provide data for use in future design and operation of water-control projects.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The appropriation requested for this activity amounts to $357.7 million and represents an increase of $51.3 million compared with the amount appropriated for fiscal year 1955 and an increase of $78.2 million compared with the appropriation for fiscal year 1954. Thirty-four projects or project modifications are proposed for initiation or resumption with the requested appropriation.

The monetary authorization available for appropriation after fiscal year 1956 for projects in the "Construction, general" program amounts to $4,335.4 million. The status of the active program on June 30, 1954, is shown on the following table. The number and total cost of projects shown as "Balance authorized" includes a number of projects which are parts of approved comprehensive basin plans but for which monetary authorization to complete construction is not yet available.

[1] Excludes projects tentatively classified as "Inactive" or "Deferred for restudy."
[2] Includes projects essentially complete and/or in operation.
[3] Uncompleted projects in the active program for which construction funds have been appropriated. Includes 42 projects or project modifications having no funds presently available for expenditure.
[4] Includes authorized modifications of original projects.
[5] Excludes snagging and clearing and emergency flood protection works.

1. Advance engineering and design.—Design studies are made to establish project features and cost estimates and contract plans are prepared for construction. The requested appropriation for this activity amounts to $5 million compared with an appropriation of $3.2 million in fiscal year 1955 and $1.9 million in fiscal year 1954. The funds requested will bring designs and plans for a number of high priority projects to the stage where they would be ready for construction.

2. Navigation projects.—This activity includes improvement of channels and harbors for navigation by dredging; and construction of breakwaters, jetties, dikes, locks, dams, and canals. The requested appropriation of $65.6 million represents an increase of $23.9 million compared with the current fiscal year and an increase of $40.8 million compared with the preceding fiscal year.

With the requested amount, work will be continued on sixteen channel and harbor projects, of which four will be completed, and on seven lock, dam, and canal projects of which one will be completed. Construction will be initiated or resumed on sections of eight channel and harbor project modifications and three inland waterway project modifications. The channel and harbor projects are Mobile Harbor, Ala.; Delaware River, Philadelphia to the sea, Delaware, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania (Mantua Creek anchorage); Tampa Harbor, Fla., Indiana Harbor, Ind. (widening at Youngstown Sheet and Tube Co.); Mystic River, Mass.; Portsmouth Harbor, N. H., and Piscataqua River, Maine and New Hampshire; Charleston Harbor, S. C.; and Houston Ship Channel, Tex. These projects are all deep draft navigation projects. It is anticipated that the features of work to be initiated at Charleston Harbor and at Indiana Harbor will be completed with the funds requested. The inland waterway projects on which work is to be initiated are Illinois Waterway (Calumet-Sag Channel, Lake Calumet to Sag Junction), Ill.; Green River (channel improvement), Ky.; and St. Marys River (replacement of lift bridge and removal of bridge island), Mich.

3. Alteration of bridges.—This activity includes the alteration of obstructive bridges over navigable waterways in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 647 (approved June 21, 1940), which provides for the apportionment of the cost between the United States and the bridge owners.

The $3.3 million requested for this activity will provide for financing the Federal share of the first year's construction costs on three bridges. These bridges are the Staten Island Rapid Transit Railway Company Bridge over Arthur Kill between Elizabeth, N. J., and Staten Island, N. Y.; the Corpus Christi Bridge at the entrance to the main turning basin of the Port Aransas-Corpus Christi Waterway at Corpus Christi, Tex., and the Norfolk and Portsmouth Belt Line Railroad Bridge over the southern branch of the Elizabeth River, Norfolk Harbor, Va.

4. Beach erosion control projects.—This activity includes construction for the improvement and protection against erosion by waves and currents, of the shores of the United States that are owned by States, municipalities or other political subdivisions. Public Law 727 (approved Aug. 13, 1946), authorized the Federal Government to contribute toward the construction of such works an amount not to exceed one-third of the total cost.

With the requested amount of $2.4 million, local interests will be reimbursed for the Federal share of the first cost of construction to be accomplished through fiscal year 1956 on eight projects. These projects are Hammonasset Beach, Conn.; Winthrop Beach, Mass.; Hampton Beach, N. H.; Atlantic City, N. J.; Cold Spring Inlet (Cape May), N. J.; Ocean City, N. J.; Presque Isle Peninsula, Pa.; and Virginia Beach, Va. Hammonasset Beach and Hampton Beach will be completed with the funds requested.

5. Flood control projects.—This activity includes local protection projects and flood control reservoirs without power installations. Local protection projects consist of construction of channel improvements, levees, and floodwalls.

Provision is made for the removal of accumulated snags and other debris and the clearing and straightening of channels in navigable streams and tributaries when such work is necessary in the interest of flood control, and for the construction of small flood control projects not specifically authorized by Congress.

The requested appropriation of $78.7 million for flood control projects represents an increase of $22 million compared with the current fiscal year and an increase of $34.5 million compared with the preceding fiscal year. With the requested appropriation, construction will be continued on 44 projects, of which 8 will be completed in 1956. Ten local protection projects and one reservoir project will be initiated and work will be resumed on one local protection project. Included in this group of projects are San Antonio and Chino Creeks, Calif.; Hartford (Folly Brook), Conn.; Portneuf River and Marsh Creek, (Pocatello Unit), Idaho; Jackson, Ky.; North Adams, Mass.; Cape Girardeau, Mo.; Carthage, Mo.; East Poplar Bluff and Poplar Bluff, Mo.; Wellsville, N. Y.; Bradford, Pa.; Eagle Gorge Reservoir, Wash.; and Greybull, Wyo. The amount requested for Hartford (Folly Brook), Conn.; Jackson, Ky.; Carthage, Mo.; East Poplar Bluff and Poplar Bluff, Mo.; and Pocatello, Idaho will provide for completion of those projects. Of the proposed 1956 obligation program, 52 percent will be used to finance the work on 12 major projects as shown in the following table:

6. Multiple-purpose projects including power.—With the appropriation request of $199.2 million, construction will be continued on 14 multiple-purpose projects with power installations. This represents a decrease of $4.4 million compared with the appropriation for fiscal year 1955 and a decrease of $7.5 million compared with the appropriation for fiscal year 1954. With the funds requested, the construction schedules and power-on-the-line dates for these large multiple-purpose projects will be maintained. Six multiple-purpose projects with power will be substantially completed in 1956. Of the proposed 1956 obligation program, 91 percent will be used to finance work on 12 major projects as shown in the following table:

7. Small authorized projects.—With the appropriation request of $2 million construction will be initiated and completed on a number of authorized navigation and local flood protection projects each of which has an estimated total Federal cost of $150,000 or less.

8. Lower Columbia River fish sanctuary program.—A plan to counteract the expected damage to the fisheries resulting from the construction of major dams and other obstructions has been developed by the Fish and Wildlife Service together with the fisheries departments of the States of Oregon and Washington. The program consists of stream improvements, transplanting of salmon runs to improved streams, and the construction of additional hatcheries. Funds in the amount of $1.4 million are included for allocation to the Fish and Wildlife Service to continue this program.

[1] In the course of any one fiscal year loans are made between projects already under construction to permit most effective use of funds on projects approved by Congress. These loans are returned to source upon availability of the next year's appropriations. Negative amounts as used in this tabulation result from adjustments of these loans applied to unobligated balances and are not an indication that total allotments to the project are overobligated.

[2] Congress approved a 1955 construction program $5,000,000 in excess of the appropriation, the difference to be provided from savings on completed projects. As a matter of convenience, this amount has been applied to The Dalles Dam, Oreg. and Wash. The $5,000,000 is made up of an unallocated balance as of June 30, 1954, of $3,256,097 and $1,743,903 savings since that date. Of the latter amount, $709,165 represents reallotments to this project of unobligated balances which were on other projects as of June 30, 1954. The balance has become available from the 1955 appropriation and is not reflected in the foregoing schedule.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The appropriation requested, $83.6 million, represents an increase of $8.5 million compared with the adjusted appropriation for 1955 and an increase of $4.6 million compared with 1954.

1. Navigation.—The 1956 program proposes work on 210 channel and harbor projects, including 53 for shallow-draft traffic, 25 canals and canalized waterways, and 3 reservoir projects. Surveys of the northern and northwestern lakes to obtain data for charts and bulletins for safe navigation will be continued.

2. Flood control.—Funds will be used for operation and maintenance of 102 flood-control reservoirs in fiscal year 1956. Regular maintenance is provided for 17 local flood-protection projects authorized under the 1938 Flood Control Act, nondeferrable rehabilitation work, condition surveys, and inspections of completed flood-control projects to determine adequacy of compliance by local interests with prescribed maintenance requirements.

3. Multiple-purpose projects, including power.—The facilities of 37 multiple-purpose projects with an installed capacity at the end of fiscal year 1956 of 4,283,000 kilowatts will be operated and maintained, including initial operations at 9 projects.

4. Lower Columbia River fish sanctuary program.—Funds will be allocated to the Fish and Wildlife Service for operation and maintenance of hatcheries and other facilities of this program.

5. Emergency operations.—Wrecks and other obstructions creating a menace to safe navigation will be marked and removed. Work will be accomplished to protect, clear, and straighten channels of navigable waters not specifically authorized by Congress.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Construction.—Provision is made for flood protection of the lower Mississippi Valley from Cape Girardeau, Mo., to the Gulf of Mexico, including the main alluvial stream, the basins of the St. Francis and White, Lower Arkansas, Yazoo, Tensas, Atchafalaya Rivers, and Bayou La Fourche, and the alluvial lands around Lake Pontchartrain. The adopted plan calls for raising and strengthening about 1,600 miles of existing levees along the main river, for enlarging or constructing some 1,700 miles of levees on tributaries and in side basins, for channel improvements and bank stabilization on the main river, for dredging of the main river to provide a navigation channel 12 feet deep and 300 feet wide from Baton Rouge, La., to Cairo, Ill., and for 5 flood-detention reservoirs on minor tributaries.

The total authorization for flood control and improvement of the Lower Mississippi River in its alluvial valley is $1,327.7 million, of which $848.8 million has been appropriated through June 30, 1954.

The total appropriation requested for construction amounts to $36.2 million and provides for continuation of certain features of the project and for the initiation of control of Old River. This represents an increase of $4.7 million compared with the adjusted appropriation for fiscal year 1955 and a decrease of $0.4 million compared with the appropriation for fiscal year 1954.

With the expenditure of funds requested for fiscal year 1956, the main river levees will be about 78 percent complete, main river-bank stabilization will be about 74 percent complete, and progress will continue on the side basins and on minor tributaries.

2. Maintenance.—The total appropriation requested for maintenance amounts to $14.7 million, which is $0.3 million less than the amount appropriated for fiscal year 1955 and $0.1 million less than appropriated for fiscal year 1954.

3. Flood control, emergencies.—Provision is made for rescue work or for the repair, restoration, or maintenance of any flood control work on tributaries of the Mississippi River threatened or destroyed by flood.

and jurisdiction over the territory and the 700,000 inhabitants of the Ryukyu Islands. A system of military bases and other installations pertinent to the defense of the Pacific area has been developed in the islands. Since they are of critical strategic importance to the security of the free world, it is expected that the United States will be responsible for their administration for an indefinite period.

To discharge its responsibilities, funds are requested for the following:

1. Administration.—This provides for administrative costs in the Ryukyu Islands, and the Office of Civil Affairs and Military Government. In addition it provides for a program of civil information and education in the islands. Beginning in 1956 provision is made for the pay of indigenous personnel supporting the information and education program. These personnel have previously been paid from local currencies which are no longer available.

2. Exchange of persons.—Provision is made for a program of advanced study for Ryukyuan students and leaders in the United States.

3. Aid to Ryukyuan economy.—In order to insure the development and maintenance of economic and political stability, provision is made for a grant to the local government which will (a) compensate indirectly for the cost of extraordinary governmental services provided for the benefit of the United States; (b) provide capital to finance rehabilitation projects which will strengthen the economy of the islands and (c) contribute to the reconstruction of war damage to elementary and secondary schools. In addition provision is made for ocean transportation of relief supplies donated by private sources.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation provides for those functions in the Canal Zone which, in the United States, would be performed by State and local governments and civilian departments of the Federal Government, and for the operation of public hospitals and clinics. All operating expenses, including depreciation, are repaid by the Panama Canal Company from its revenues and by other agencies and individuals served, and the repayments are covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

1. Civil functions—(a) Customs and immigration.—This provides for the activities usually incident to such functions (except that no collection of customs duties is involved) and in addition includes certain special activities relating to transiting vessels and the execution of certain treaty obligations to the Republic of Panama.

(b) Postal service.—The postal system serves the entire Canal Zone and operates under policies and regulations generally similar to those of the United States Post Office Department, including money order and postal savings services.

WORKLOAD

	1954	1955	1956
Airmail received and dispatched (lbs.)	506,462	495,000	484,000

Canal Zone transit mail received and dispatched (sacks)	226,379	213,000	206,000

(c) Police protection.—This includes the usual police functions of preservation of the peace and enforcement of the law in the Canal Zone (not including military reservations), the operation of a penitentiary and a prison for women and juveniles, and police guards for certain facilities.

(d) Fire protection.—This provides for fire fighting and fire prevention work in the civilian communities of the Canal Zone.

(e) Judicial system.—This includes the operation of two magistrates courts and the expenses (exclusive of salaries) of the Canal Zone District Court which serves as both a State and Federal court.

(f) Education.—This provides for the operation of educational facilities from kindergarten through junior college for the dependents of Government employees, military personnel, other residents of the Canal Zone and, on a space-available basis, to certain residents of Panama.

(g) Public areas and facilities.—This includes the cleaning, lighting, and maintenance of streets and highways, maintenance of sewers, and care of public areas, within the Canal Zone, not including military reservations.

(h) Library.—This provides for the operation of public library facilities for the residents of the Canal Zone and technical reference services for Government agencies.

(i) Internal security.—This provides loyalty investigations and related intelligence services for the Canal Zone Government and Panama Canal Company.

(j) Other civil affairs.—This includes the operation and maintenance of general Government buildings and sites, licensing and civil defense activities and supervision of the civil functions program.

2. Health and sanitation—(a) Hospitals and clinics.—Two complete general medical and surgical hospitals with out-patient clinics, a neuropsychiatric and domiciliary hospital, and a leprosarium are operated and maintained. In conformance with recent legislation, the Naval Hospital at Coco Solo was transferred to this agency as of September 1, 1954, and Colon Hospital and all military hospitals were subsequently closed. Medical care of all eligible civilians and military personnel in the Canal Zone is now provided in the two general hospitals operated by the Canal Zone Government.

Change in unapplied resources, net		−116,083

Depreciation included in activity costs.—Depreciation accruals on facilities and equipment capitalized under the capital outlay appropriation are included in activity costs. Appropriation requirements are reduced by the amount of such charges as funds are not required for depreciation.

Capital account adjustments.—In fiscal year 1954 various capital account adjustments included in activity costs and in changes in unapplied resources amounted to a net charge-off of $17,189. This is excluded in arriving at total obligations since funds are not required for such items.

Defense Production Guaranties, Army

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Guaranties are authorized on loans made by financing institutions to facilitate performance of defense production contracts. Revenues from guaranty fees and interest on purchased loans are used to pay administrative expenses and to purchase, when necessary, guaranteed portions of loans. Earnings are currently being retained to meet possible future losses. From time to time, and at the conclusion of the guaranteed loan program, funds in excess of determined requirements will be transferred to miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury. Advances from appropriations available for procurement may be made to this fund for temporary use (50 U. S. C. App. 2091).

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The Panama Canal Company is a wholly owned Government corporation operating and maintaining the Panama Canal and allied maritime and supporting facilities. The Company is authorized to obtain appropriations for its capital needs and to cover losses, and may borrow up to $10 million without interest from funds deposited by it with the Treasury under the provisions of Public Law 808, 80th Congress.

Substantial adjustments were made during 1954 to the preliminary valuation of the Panama Canal net assets transferred to the Company under the recent reorganization. These adjustments were the result of the property valuation required by law and were made in accordance with valuation policies approved by the Bureau of the Budget. The valuation study is not yet complete and these adjustments have not as yet been approved by the Director of the Bureau of the Budget, who, under the law, must approve the final valuation. The major effect of the adjustments is to increase by $52 million the total interest-bearing investment of the Government upon which the Company's interest obligations are computed. The adjustments are retroactive to July 1, 1951. The principal adjustment involves the capitalization of improvements to the channel since 1914 that had previously been expensed. No provision has been made for depreciation or amortization of the waterway itself and certain related costs including interest during the construction period but legislation to authorize such accruals was introduced in the last session of Congress. Except for the adjustments that will be required in the event of the enactment of such legislation, the Company believes that the most significant adjustments to be developed in the appraisal have now been made.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

The activities of the Company have been grouped into (1) canal and allied maritime operations; (2) supporting operations; and (3) general corporate charges.

Canal and allied maritime operations.—This is the substantive program of the Company and comprises the transiting operations and related marine activities, vessel repair facilities, harbor terminal and marine bunkering operations, and Hotel Washington.

Funds to be applied to acquisition of assets in 1956 amount to $2,306,500 and are mainly for beginning replacement of 37 locks towing locomotives, $100,000; continued widening of a portion of Gaillard Cut from 300 to 500 feet $1,008,000; beginning conversion of locks electrical equipment and distribution system from 25 to 60 cycle, $421,500; continued deepening of Cristobal harbor, $375,000; and continued replacement of electrical distribution on piers, $96,100. Locks overhaul expenditures in 1956 are for regularly scheduled general overhaul of the Atlantic locks. Removal of a serious slide hazard on Contractor's Hill in Gaillard Cut was begun in 1954 and will continue through 1956 at a total estimated cost of $5 million.

Net operating expenditures estimated for these operations for 1956 amount to $22,093,200 as compared with $21,926,700 in 1955 and $20,816,515 for 1954.

Supporting operations.—These are the activities which primarily support the Company's mission consisting of employee services, transportation and utilities, and other services such as engineering, maintenance, warehousing, and printing facilities.

Funds to be applied to acquisition of assets amount to $6,763,000 in 1956 mainly for continued conversion of the power system to 60 cycle current, $4,200,000; construction of a retail store at Paraiso, $126,000; new automotive equipment and sheds, $650,000; completion of a 30-inch water main, $813,000; and continued replacement of other vehicles and general equipment.

Operating expenditures are estimated at $34,799,300 in 1956, or about $1.4 million under those in 1955, due essentially to reduced sales of consumer goods to employees. This compares with $37,531,122 for 1954.

General corporate charges.—This includes reimbursements to the Treasury for net cost of Canal Zone Government and interest, general and administrative expenses under statutory limitation and other general charges.

Funds to be applied to acquisition of assets in 1956 amount to $134,000 for electric accounting machines and minor general items. Other expenditures amount to $26,511,800 in 1956 or about $1.5 million over those for 1955 of which $1.0 million represents an increase in net costs of Canal Zone Government. This compares with $24,533,059 for 1954.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

In 1954, funds provided by operations exceeded those applied by $4.7 million. Estimates indicate that for 1955 and 1956 the situation will be reversed and that funds applied will exceed those provided for those years by $6.8 million and $6.9 million, respectively. In addition, the capital refundment of $10 million to the Treasury included in the 1955 financial program has been made. As a result, the cash with Treasury and in banks will materially decline during the 2 years to an estimated level of $20.1 million at June 30, 1956. This will be only slightly more than the estimated obligations to the Treasury at that date of $16.9 million for payment of interest, the net cost of Canal Zone Government, and the annuity to the Republic of Panama under the Treaty of 1936. It is expected that capital expenditures, which since the reorganization of July 1, 1951, have been financed from revenues, will be similarly financed in 1956.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

During fiscal year 1954, Canal tolls and tolls credits came within 1 percent of attaining the alltime record for the Canal established during fiscal year 1953. Tolls for commercial vessels, which constitute the bulk of Canal traffic, increased 4 percent over the preceding year but credits from Government vessels declined by 30 percent. The decline in Government traffic is attributable to the falling off of the abnormally large volume of such traffic through the Canal that had resulted from the war in Korea. Government traffic is expected to get down to its normal level in 1955. Economic studies of principal commodities moving through the Canal indicate some decline in volume of commercial traffic in 1955 and a further decline in 1956, which have been reflected in the budget estimates for those years. The studies also indicate that it may be several years before the long-term normal rate of growth in Canal traffic is resumed.

Net income for 1954, after giving effect to the increase in fixed charges resulting from the recent property valuation adjustments, is tentatively stated at $4.2 million. On the same basis, net income for the 2 preceding years has been recalculated at $5.9 million for 1953 and $2.9 million for 1952. This represents a total net income of $13 million for the first 3 years of operation following the reorganization of 1951.

Losses of $0.2 million and $2.9 million are projected for 1955 and 1956 respectively. The unfavorable current showing is due primarily to the drop in number of Government transits, increases in wage and interest rates, and to employee benefits recently authorized by law. The net income of the years since 1951 provides some means for absorbing these losses. The maintenance of present tolls rates will depend upon the extent to which the conditions projected may continue or change.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Guaranties are authorized on loans made by financing institutions to facilitate performance of defense production contracts. Revenues from guaranty fees and interest on purchased loans are used to pay administrative expenses and to purchase, when necessary, guaranteed portions of loans. Earnings are currently being retained to meet purchases which may be required under guaranty commitments and to absorb possible future losses. From time to time and at the conclusion of the guaranteed loan program, funds in excess of determined requirements will be transferred to miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury. Advances from appropriations available for procurement may be made to this fund for temporary use (50 U. S. C. App. 2091).

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

This fund was created by the Civil Functions Appropriation Act, 1954, approved July 27, 1953, to provide for expenses necessary for the maintenance and operation of plant and equipment of the Corps of Engineers used in civil functions, including acquisition of plant and equipment, for temporary financing of services finally chargeable to appropriations for civil works functions, and for the furnishing of facilities and services for the military functions of the Department of the Army and other governmental agencies and private persons, as authorized by law. The fund is credited by reimbursements or advances from the appropriations or individuals who utilize the services or facilities, at rates which include charges for overhead and related expenses, depreciation of plant and equipment, and accrued leave costs. Capital for the fund was provided by assumption of the assets, liabilities, and obligations of the plant accounts, as carried on the records of the Corps of Engineers as of June 30, 1953; and by a general fund appropriation of $100. This fund operates on a business-type budget, and maintains an operating reserve to defray losses due to storm, fire, flood, sinking, and other casualties. The reserve is credited with insurance premiums which are included as a portion of the cost of services rendered.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

During the fiscal year 1954 an appropriation from the general fund was received in the amount of $100, and appropriated funds were transferred from existing civil works appropriations in the amount of $25,240,782 as provided in the act cited above. In addition, there was transferred selected working capital and inventories in the amounts of —$17,673,912 and $14,318,343, respectively. Also transferred were fixed assets at a book value of $107,230,387, an insurance reserve of $1,194,353, and an operating deficit of —$1,140,087. Except for the appropriated capital mentioned above, the fund operates wholly from income.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

Operations in 1954 resulted in a net income of $1,232,116, establishing retained earnings of $92,029 at the end of the fiscal year. It is expected that a net loss of approximately $92,029 will be experienced in fiscal year 1955 and that income will approximately equal expenses in fiscal year 1956.

FINANCIAL CONDITION

At the end of the fiscal year 1954, investment of the United States Government in the fund amounted to $129,793,681, consisting of the appropriated capital mentioned above, amounting to $25,240,882, other net assets transferred to the fund from plant allotment, Corps of Engineers, amounting to $103,820,552; net donated property received without reimbursement during the fiscal year amounting to $640,218; and the retained earnings mentioned above, amounting to $92,029. It is expected that the investment of the Government at the end of 1955 and 1956 will be $129,714,700 and $131,057,899, respectively. Total capital of the fund is limited to $140,000,000 by law.
