This appropriation establishes a framework of joint Federal and State efforts to provide basic facilities essential to economic growth in Appalachia. Program investments made in the Appalachian Region are concentrated in areas with significant potential for future growth as well as in those areas that suffer the greatest distress. The States, acting through the Appalachian Regional Commission, are responsible for recommending local and State projects within their borders for assistance under this program.

1. Appalachian Development Highway System.—The Appalachian Development Highway System including local access roads, is designed to improve the accessibility of Appalachia; to reduce highway transportation costs to and within Appalachia; and to provide the highway transportation facilities necessary to accelerate the overall development of Appalachia. The budget for 1994 provides $100 million for highway construction.

The cumulative status of the system of roads, including mileage prefinanced by the States, follows:

	1992 actual	1993 est.	1994 est.
Development systems miles (Prefinanced miles included) (cumulative):
Miles contracted	2,216,7	2,250	2,300

Prefinanced by States	219,323	215,000	210,000
Annual obligations (thousands)	119,418	164,019	100,000

2. Community Development Program.—Funds are provided by allocation to each of the Appalachian States for community development projects, including public works, housing and local government assistance. State projects generally are directed to two objectives: providing gap assistance to project with immediate private investment and job creation opportunities, and enhancing long term prospects in the Region by encouraging strategic planning, leadership development, service consolidations of other strategies that help local governments and organizations come together to solve problems and save resources. Special funding and criteria are used to assist the Region's most distressed and underdeveloped counties in providing basic services to their residents. The budget for 1994 provides $47.7 million for local development projects, with the approximate approved project workload as follows:

	1992 actual	1993 est.	1994 est.
Community Development	205	205	205

3. Business and Human Development Program.—A funding level of $32.6 million for 1994 will build on the Commission's efforts to tackle some of the most intractable problems of the Region—education, health and business development opportunities. Emphasis is placed on furthering the national education goals and on expanding curricula and furthering professional development using telecommunications. Lifelong learning, using such vehicles as tech-prep, applied learning and apprenticeship strategies; programs in basic skills; and customized training to meet immediate employment needs round out the program priorities. The Commission is involved in health manpower recruitment for medically undeserved counties in the Region. The Commission will also invest in regional and interstate strategic initiatives, such as tourism and manufacturing competitiveness. Business development technical assistance programs serving rural communities generally are operated through the Commission's system of local development districts. Approximate approved project workload follows:

	1992 actual	1993 est.	1994 est.
Business and human development	180	205	300

4. Research and Local Development District Programs.—Increased assistance is provided through grants to multi-county local development districts and for technical assistance and research projects. The budget for 1994 provides $5.3 million with the approximate approved workload as follows:

	1992 actual	1993 est.	1994 est.
Planning districts aided	69	69	69
Technical assistance projects	35	23	16

5. Salaries and Expenses.—The Federal Co-Chairman represents the Federal Government on the Commission and leads in the coordination of the Appalachian program with Federal agencies. Since 1989, the Office of the Federal Co-Chairman includes an Inspector General.

The Federal Government contributes 50 percent of the expenses of a professional staff which works with the States and the Federal staff in operating the program. The staff members are not Federal employees but are employees of the jointly supported Commission. The budget for 1994 as in 1993 provides $3.4 million for salaries and expenses.

The Architectural and Transportation Barriers Compliance Board was established by section 502 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1973 to ensure compliance with the Architectural Barriers Act of 1968. Its primary role is to carry out a compliance program to ensure accessibility and usability of most Federal and federally-funded buildings by people with disabilities. In 1993, the Board will continue to process, investigate, and resolve complaints of noncompliance. Emphasis is on voluntary, amicable resolution of access issues.

The Board also develops Federal minimum accessibility guidelines and requirements for the standards under the Architectural Barriers Act, and provides technical assistance to public and private organizations affected by Federal accessibility regulations.

The Americans With Disabilities Act (P.L. 101–336) expanded the Board's responsibilities to include (1) developing accessibility guidelines for transportation vehicles and facilities, public accommodations, outdoor recreation, and communications; (2) assisting the Department of Justice in developing an overall technical assistance plan for covered entities; (3) implementing technical assistance programs in the areas of transportation and public accommodations; (4) developing and publishing technical assistance manuals for entities covered under Titles II and III of the Act; (5) assisting the Department of Justice in certifying State and local building codes to be used to comply with the ADA; and (6) commenting on the mandated study of technical requirements for making over-the-road buses accessible.

The Board for International Broadcasting provides grants to Radio Free Europe/Radio Liberty (RFE/RL) and oversees its operations. RFE/RL currently broadcasts to the countries of Eastern Europe (except former Yugoslavia and Albania), the former Soviet Union, and Afghanistan. The Budget reflects the President's decision to consolidate U.S. international broadcasting and achieve significant savings by eliminating administrative overlap and duplication. Specific measures to effect consolidation are the subject of an Administration review to be completed shortly.

The Commission engages in studies concerning areas in which there may be denials of civil rights and reports on these matters to the President and the Congress. Hearings by the Commissioners are held to investigate and obtain information about denials of civil rights. Conferences and open meetings are held by staff and State Advisory Committees to gather data and issue reports providing information about civil rights problems. In addition, appraisals of Federal agencies' civil rights programs are made and complaints alleging discrimination are referred to the proper Federal agencies.

The Commission provides liaison with private groups, public groups, and the media to provide civil rights information to Government officials, organizations, and the public. This is sometimes accomplished through the issuance of Commission publications. It also provides a library resource to support civil rights research, studies, hearings, and other Commission activities, and makes this information available to the general public.

The Commission on National and Community Service was established by the National and Community Service Act of 1990 to encourage all citizens, especially young people, to engage in community service. The Commission makes grants to States and other entities to create service opportunities for students and out-of-school youth, full-time or summer youth corps programs, and innovative full-time and part-time national and community service programs. The Commission is governed by a board of directors, appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate.

The Committee for Purchase From People Who Are Blind or Severely Disabled was established by the Wagner-O'Day Act of 1938, as amended. Its primary objective is to increase the employment opportunities for people who are blind or have other severe disabilities and, whenever possible, to prepare them to engage in competitive employment. In 1994, approximately 23,000 people who are blind or have other severe disabilities are projected to be employed in nearly 600 producing nonprofit agencies. The Committee's duties include promoting the program; determining which commodities and services are suitable for Government procurement from qualified nonprofit agencies serving people who are blind or have other severe disabilities; maintaining a procurement list of such commodities and services; determining the fair market price for commodities and services on the procurement list; and making rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the Act. In FY 1994 the Committee expects to have 4,100 items on its Procurement List and sales of $520 million.

The Committee staff's responsibilities include promoting and assessing the overall program; supervising the selection and assignment of new commodities and services; assisting in establishing prices; reviewing and adjusting these prices; verifying the qualifications of nonprofit agencies; and monitoring their performance.

The Commodity Futures Trading Commission (CFTC) administers the Commodity Exchange Act of 1936, as amended. The purpose of the CFTC is to further the economic utility of the futures markets by encouraging their efficiency, assuring their integrity, and protecting participants against abusive trade practices, fraud, and deceit. The object of commodity futures trading regulation is to enable the markets to better serve their designated functions of providing a price discovery mechanism and a means of offsetting price risk. By properly serving these functions, the futures markets serve the public interest by contributing toward better planning, more efficient distribution and consumption, and more economical marketing.

Authorizing legislation will be proposed to establish a transaction fee on commodity futures and option contracts traded on futures exchanges to cover the cost of the CFTC's regulatory activities. For 1994, the fee would be set at 14 cents per round turn transaction and would generate revenues of approximately $55 million. The legislation would require the exchanges to remit the fee four times a year based on trading volume during the previous quarter. The CFTC would provide appropriate exemptions to correct any significant adverse competitive effects on any market or person. The legislation would not affect the CFTC's existing authority to impose fees for the services and activities it performs.

Market surveillance, analysis and research.—Responsibilities under this program include daily surveillance of the market activity of large individual traders and fundamental economic market factors to insure orderly markets. Contract terms and conditions are reviewed to insure conformity with current cash marketing conditions and adequate deliverable supplies. This program also systematically investigates the Contract markets, audit and oversight.—This program has been split into two new divisions: (1) Financial Risk Management; Intermediary and Professional Review, and (2) Market Review and Development.

Financial Risk Management; Intermediary and Professional Review.—This program works to protect customer funds, ensure financial integrity of regulated intermediaries, and monitor compliance activities of the National Futures Association and financial and sales practice compliance activities of other self-regulatory organizations.

Market Review and Development.—This program oversees the integrity, fairness and competitiveness of the markets by monitoring compliance activities of the designated contract markets and reviewing contract markets' rules and rule changes. The program also coordinates with other domestic and international regulators, generally, and especially in the event of a market disruption.

Public Law 102-368 (Dire Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1992) created the Community Investment Program to implement initiatves to improve the quality of life and expand economic opportunity. In 1993, $500 million was appropriated for the program, subject to enactment of subsequent authorizing legislation. This language has yet to be enacted. The 1994 level provides $513.5 million in additional assistance for distressed communities. Of the total funds available for the Community Investment Program in 1994, up to $500 million will be used to provide grants to local units of government to hire new police officers through a Police on

The Director of Central Intelligence (DCI) directed that the Community Management Staff (CMS) be established in June 1992 to coordinate Intelligence Community activities. The CMS is the DCI's principal source of advice and assistance in planning and executing his Community management responsibilities. These responsibilities include: developing the National Foreign Intelligence Program budget, developing intelligence plans and requirements, overseeing the Intelligence Community, and developing Community counterintelligence and security policy. Also funded by this appropriation are four major ongoing activities: (1) the National Intelligence Council composed of senior intelligence officers who provide direct analytical support to the DCI and national policymakers; (2) the Environmental Task Force, charged to evaluate the application of Intelligence Community assets to the issues of environmental science, and serve as the Intelligence Community's liaison to the nation's environmental scientists; (3) the Intelligence Community Open Source Initiative, which is responsible for overseeing the development and implementation of a Community-wide program for collecting and disseminating publicly available information relevant to intelligence activities; and (4) the Advance Research and Development Committee, responsible for developing and carrying out DCI policies and plans relative to research and development

The Corporation for Public Broadcasting provides grants to qualified public television and radio stations to be used at their discretion for purposes related primarily to program production or acquisition; and, supports the production and acquisition of radio and television programs for national distribution. In addition, the Corporation assists in the financing of several system-wide activities, including national satellite interconnection services and the payment of music royalty fees, and provides limited technical assistance, research, and planning services to improve system-wide capacity and performance. The appropriation for the Corporation is enacted two years in advance. For 1994, an appropriation of $275 million was enacted in 1992.

For 1996, the Administration is requesting $293 million for general programming and system support. The Federal contribution to the replacement of public broadcasting's satellite capacity was concluded in the 1993 appropriation, so additional funding is not required for this activity. Public broadcasting plays a vital role in the educational and cultural development of our Nation. The proposed funding level will allow the Corporation to maintain quality public service programming and to meet the needs of American public telecommunications. The table below illustrates the 1993–1996 funding levels for the Corporation for Public Broadcasting:

The Veterans Judicial Review Act, 38 U.S.C. §§ 7251-7292 (1988) established the United States Court of Veterans Appeals under Article I of the United States Constitution. The Court is empowered to review decisions of the Board of Veterans' Appeals and may affirm, modify, revise or remand a decision of the Board of Veterans' Appeals as appropriate. The type of review performed by the Court is similar to that which is performed in Article III courts under the Administrative Procedures Act, title 5 U.S.C. §§ 551 et seq. In actions before it, the Court has the authority to decide all relevant questions of law, interpret constitutional, statutory and regulatory provisions, and to determine the meaning or applicability of the terms of an action by the Secretary of the Department of Veterans Affairs. The Court, being created by an act of Congress, may issue all writs necessary or appropriate in aid of its jurisdiction, 28 U.S.C. § 1651.

The Court is empowered to: compel actions of the Secretary that are found to have been unlawfully withheld or unreasonably delayed; set aside decisions, findings, conclusions, rules and regulations issued or adopted by the Secretary, the Board of Veterans' Appeals, or the Chairman of the Board that are found to be arbitrary or capricious, an abuse of discretion or otherwise not in accordance with the law, contrary to constitutional right, in excess of statutory jurisdiction or authority, or without observance of the procedures required by law. In cases involving benefits under the laws administered by the Department, the Court may hold unlawful or set aside findings of material facts if the findings are clearly erroneous.

The Court's principal office location is Washington, D.C.; however, it is a national court, empowered to sit anywhere in the United States.

The Defense Nuclear Facilities Safety Board, authorized by Public Law 100-456, is responsible for evaluating the content and implementation of the standards relating to the design, construction, operation, and decommissioning of defense nuclear facilities of the Department of Energy (as defined in Public Law 100-456). In addition, the National Defense Authorization Act For fiscal years 1992 and 1993 (Public Law 102-190) expanded the Board's jurisdiction to include facilities and activities involved with the assembly, disassembly, and testing of nuclear weapons. The Board is also responsible for investigating any event or practice at a nuclear facility which has an adverse affect on public health and safety. The Board shall make specific recommendations to the Secretary of Energy on measures that should be adopted which will ensure that public health and safety are protected.

The annual Federal payment to the Government of the District of Columbia is intended to compensate the District for the net costs imposed by the presence of the Federal Government in Washington, DC. While the Federal presence may actually add more to District revenues than it does to operating costs (since local income, property and sales tax receipts are highly dependent on Federal employment in the city), a lump-sum, unrestricted Federal payment is provided to the District Government each year to help fund local budget expenditures. A $653 million Federal payment is proposed for 1994.

This appropriation also includes a contribution of $52.1 million which represents the Federal share of payments to District of Columbia retirement funds for police officers, fire fighters, teachers and judges.

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) is the Federal agency responsible for enforcement of the Age Discrimination in Employment Act of 1967; title VII of the Civil Rights Act of 1964, as amended; the Equal Pay Act of 1963; and, in the Federal sector only, section 501 of the Rehabilitation Act of 1963. These acts prohibit employment discrimination based on race, sex, religion, national origin, age, or handicap status. The EEOC is also responsible for carrying out Executive Order 12067, which promotes coordination and minimizes conflict and duplication among Federal agencies that administer statutes or regulations involving employment discrimination.

EEOC is charged with ensuring compliance with the Americans with Disabilities Act including: development of substantive regulations; development and implementation of a plan

(Technical Assistance), in coordination with the Attorney General, to assist all entities covered under this Act (approximately 666,000 employers) and other Federal agencies in understanding their responsibilities under this Act; issuance of appropriate technical manuals to individuals or entities with rights or duties under the Act; investigation of charges of discrimination filed under the ADA; and subsequent actions (e.g., conciliation, litigation) to ensure full remedy if violation of law has occurred. ADA requirements became effective on July 26, 1992, for employers with 25 or more employees and will be effective on July 26, 1994, for employers with 15–24 employees.

The Civil Rights Act of 1991 requires that the EEOC carry out educational and outreach activities and establish a Technical Assistance Training Institute. The Technical Assistance Institute will be used to provide technical assistance and training to covered entities concerning the laws EEOC enforces. EEOC's educational and outreach activities are aimed at those individuals who have been victims of discrimination. The EEOC, in carrying out its responsibilities under this Act, is developing guidance and revising existing regulations and policies to conform to the requirements of the Civil Rights Act of 1991.

The purpose of the Export-Import Bank (Eximbank) is to aid in financing and promoting U.S. exports. To accomplish its objectives, the Bank's authority and resources are used to: assume commercial and political risks that exporters or private institutions are unwilling or unable to undertake; overcome maturity and other limitations in private sector export financing; assist U.S. exporters to meet foreign officially sponsored export credit competition; and provide leadership and guidance in export financing to the U.S. exporting and banking communities and to foreign borrowers. The Bank is also actively assisting small- and medium-sized businesses to increase their exports by publicizing the Bank's programs. Eximbank also provides export credit insurance which is serviced by the Foreign Credit Insurance Association Management Co. Inc. (contractor) to U.S. exporters and financial institutions to protect them against the risk of default by foreign buyers as a result of certain commercial and political events.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for Eximbank, the subsidy costs associated with direct loans and direct grants obligated, and loan guarantees and insurance committed in 1992 and beyond, as well as administrative expenses. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on an accrual basis.

Operating results and financial condition.—The Bank is a wholly owned Government corporation. Capital stock of $1 billion was purchased by the U.S. Treasury. In addition, the Bank is authorized to borrow from the Treasury up to $6 billion. The Bank pays interest on such borrowings.

The Bank has a Reserve for Possible Credit Losses, which provides for the risk of loss inherent in the lending process. This reserve is a general reserve, available to absorb credit losses related to the total loan portfolio. The reserve is increased by provisions charged to expenses and decreased by charge-offs, net of recoveries.

The Provision for Possible Credit Losses is based on the Bank's evaluation of the adequacy of the Reserve, taking into consideration a variety of factors, including repayment status of loans, future risk factors, the relationship of the Reserve to the portfolio, and worldwide economic conditions. Providing for such possible losses does not imply that any loans will be written off. It simply recognizes the fact that the prospects for collection of some of the Bank's loans are impaired. It does not provide for losses on a country-by-country basis and is intended only to provide an overall revaluation of the loan portfolio.

The Bank's net operating loss is estimated to be $575 million in 1994, compared with a loss of $650 million in 1993 and an operating loss of $720 million in 1992. Total Government equity in the corporation is estimated to be negative $500 million on September 30, 1994.

The Farm Credit Administration (FCA) is an independent Federal agency that examines and regulates the Farm Credit System. The Farm Credit System is a cooperative agricultural credit system of farm credit banks and associations that lends to farmers, ranchers, and their cooperatives. Beginning in 1990, the FCA also performs annual examinations of the Federal Agriculture Mortgage Corporation.

The Farm Credit System is comprised of 10 Farm Credit Banks, the National Bank for Cooperatives, 2 regional banks for cooperatives, and approximately 248 associations and other institutions and service corporations.

Assessments based upon estimated administrative expenses are collected from institutions in the Farm Credit System and the Federal Agricultural Mortgage Corporation and are available for administrative expenses. Obligations are incurred within fiscal year budgets approved by the Farm Credit Administration Board.

The Assistance Board was created by the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 and was Federally chartered in January 1988. Authority for the Board expired in December 1992, after authority for the Farm Credit System Financial Assistance Corporation to issue debt expired. The Assistance Board was responsible for certifying system institutions to receive assistance under authorized circumstances. Some Assistance Board authorities have now transferred to the Farm Credit Insurance Corporation. Administrative costs of the Board were paid through the Farm Credit System Financial Assistance Fund.

The Farm Credit System Financial Assistance Corporation (FAC) was created by the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 to provide funds to Farm Credit System institutions experiencing financial difficulties. The FAC was re-classified from a Government-sponsored enterprise to a federal entity beginning in FY 1993, when most of the private capital in FAC, provided by the Farm Credit System, will be rebated from the FAC Trust Fund, pursuant to the 1989 Reconciliation and Agriculture Appropriations Acts. Authority for FAC to issue obligations and provide assistance expired in 1992, after $1.26 billion in FAC debt had been issued.

Except for debt issued for Capital Preservation cash-outs, the U.S. Treasury pays all the interest on 15-year, uncollateralized FAC obligations in the first five years, and half the interest in the second five years. The Farm Credit System is required to eventually reimburse Treasury for these payments, and will redeem FAC debt upon maturity or call. In 1992, legislation was enacted that accelerated the repayment by system institutions of certain FAC obligations.

Proceeds of FAC debt issuances were paid into, and amounts for assistance and other expenses were paid from, the FAC Assistance Fund. The FAC Trust Fund holds and rebates the private capital contributed by the Farm Credit System. Remaining amounts in the Trust Fund are available to cover System defaults on FAC principal and interest payments.

The Farm Credit System Insurance Corporation was established to ensure the timely payment of principal and interest on Farm Credit System obligations. Its Board of Directors is the Farm Credit Administration Board. The Insurance Corporation began operation in January 1989, at which time amounts currently in the on-budget Farm Credit revolving fund were transferred to it. Beginning in January 1991, the Insurance Corporation began collecting insurance premiums charged to insured System banks, which amounts are based on the level of accruing and non-accruing loans in each bank's loan portfolio. Public Law 101-220 reduced insurance premiums charged on Federal- and State-guaranteed loans originated by Farm Credit System institutions. Annual premium collections will continue until the reserve fund equals 2 percent of outstanding System obligations, or an amount determined by its Board of Directors to be actuarially sound to maintain in the Fund, taking into account the risk of insuring outstanding insured obligations of the System.

Beginning in January 1993, the Insurance Corporation fund became available for payment on System obligations if an insured System bank defaults on its primary liability. Also, the Insurance Corporation can exercise its authority to make loans, purchase System bank assets or securities, provide other financial assistance, and otherwise act to reduce the exposure of the Corporation to losses. The Insurance Fund also is available to ensure the retirement of certain eligible borrower stock and pay the operating cost of the corporation and the principal and interest on debt issued by the Farm Credit System Financial Assistance Corporation upon payment default by System institutions after amounts in the Financial Assistance Corporation Trust Fund are exhausted.

FEDERAL DEPOSIT INSURANCE CORPORATION

The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation was created by the Banking Act of 1933 to provide protection for bank depositors and to foster sound banking practices. The Financial Institutions Reform Recovery and Enforcement Act (FIRREA) of 1989 established the Bank Insurance Fund (BIF), the Savings Association Insurance Fund (SAIF), and the FSLIC Resolution Fund (FRF). The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991 (FDICIA) authorizes the Corporation to borrow up to $30 billion from the Treasury to cover its deposit insurance losses and provides additional borrowing authority for working capital purposes. The FDICIA generally requires the Corporation to use the least costly method of resolving failed banks and mandates that the Corporation take prompt corrective action against undercapitalized financial institutions.

The deposit insurance ceiling protection has been $100,000 since March 31, 1980. In order to accomplish its varied functions to protect depositors, the Corporation is authorized to promulgate and enforce rules and regulations relating to the supervision of insured institutions and to perform other regulatory and supervisory duties consistent with its responsibilities as insurer. The Corporation is required to set assessment rates for insured financial institutions semi-annually to build the reserves of the BIF and SAIF to a minimum of 1.25 percent of total insured deposits.

The Administration proposes that state-chartered banks be assessed fees for their FDIC examinations. Under the proposal, state-chartered banks would pay similar rates as national banks, but they also would be allowed to take credit for amounts they pay to state regulators.

The Bank Insurance Fund (BIF), a public enterprise revolving fund, derives its income principally from insurance assessments paid by insured banks. As of September 30, 1992, the deposit insurance fund amounted to $10.9 billion, excluding reserves for future failed bank resolutions. The fund represents the accumulated net income of the BIF and is reserved for the protection of depositors in insured banks and for payment of administrative and insurance expenses.

These statements are based upon a level of bank failures and associated resolution costs that remain high by historical standards but significantly reduced from prior year estimates. The net worth (government equity) is projected to remain positive in the foreseeable future. The Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Improvement Act of 1991 authorizes the FDIC to borrow up to $30 billion from the Treasury to cover deposit insurance losses and provides additional loans from the Federal Financing Bank for working capital purposes. The BIF is not expected to borrow any of the $30 billion line of credit from the Treasury, but BIF is expected to continue to borrow from the Federal Financing Bank to finance working capital needs.

The projected 1994 FTE increases for BIF reflect the fact that, as an independent agency, FDIC is not complying with the President's executive order reducing Federal employment.

The Administration proposes to assess examination fees for state-chartered, FDIC-insured banks. Currently, state-chartered banks (unlike federally-chartered banks and thrifts) are not assessed fees for their examinations by the FDIC and Federal Reserve. The Administration proposes that state-chartered banks pay the same rates as national banks, but that they also be allowed to take credit for amounts they pay to state regulators.

The Savings Association Insurance Fund insures depository institutions formerly insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. Starting in 1993, SAIF will receive assessments paid by its members.

Beginning in 1994, SAIF will be appointed conservator or receiver of failed thrifts. The Resolution Trust Corporation also will continue to resolve cases in 1994 for which RTC is appointed conservator or receiver prior to October 1, 1993.

The Administration is requesting that up to $17 billion be appropriated to SAIF to cover anticipated losses on thrift resolutions from 1993–1998. Premiums paid by SAIF members will be used to build fund reserves. The fund's net worth is projected to reach $2.4 billion in 1994.

The projected 1994 FTE increase for SAIF reflects the anticipated workload increase from beginning to resolve insolvent thrifts in 1994. It also reflects the fact that, as an independent agency, FDIC is not complying with the President's executive order reducing Federal employment.

The FSLIC Resolution Fund (FRF) is the successor to FSLIC assets and liabilities from resolved cases. The Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC), assumes responsibility for the FSLIC's unresolved cases.

Funds for FRF operations come from: income earned on its assets; liquidation proceeds from receiverships established prior to January 1, 1989; the proceeds of the sale of bonds by the Financing Corporation; and a portion of insurance premiums paid by SAIF members. The Act authorizes appropriations to make up any shortfall. FRF will terminate upon the disposition of all its assets, and any net proceeds would be paid to the Treasury.

The projected 1994 FTE decrease for FRF reflects the anticipated workload decrease as the 1988 deals wind down or are restructured. FDIC is not required to comply with the President's executive order reducing employment.

Federal disaster assistance is a nationwide program operated pursuant to the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (Public Law 100-707). Supplementary assistance is provided to individuals, and State and local governments, in the event of a Presidentially declared emergency or major disaster. Funds may be made available directly to a State or local government, or to other Federal agencies as reimbursement of expenditures in disaster relief work performed under this authority. In addition, a variety of other Federal agency assistance is coordinated under this program.

Civil Defense.—The civil defense program is the focal point for the Federal effort to develop and maintain a system of preparedness, response, and recovery capabilities for the protection of life and property in the United States from all types of emergencies, including all forms of attack. Program activities concentrate on developing the required capabilities common to all catastrophic emergencies and those unique to attack emergencies in order to protect the population and vital infrastructure. Support is provided to the Emergency Management Institute and a nationwide training program for State and local governments. The civil defense program seeks to develop the base level of capability at the Federal, State and local levels of government necessary to respond to catastrophic emergencies, regardless of cause, which do not provide warning and adequate time to surge the development of required capabilities.

National earthquake program and other hazards.—This program provides for FEMA's activities as lead agency in the National Earthquake Hazards Reduction Program, and for the enhancement of the capability to prepare for, respond to, and employ mitigation techniques for earthquakes and other natural hazards, at all levels of government (Federal, State and local) as well as the private sector. Program activities include: coordinating interagency activities, hazards analyses and assessments, progam planning, developing and disseminating technical guidance, and administering financial support programs designed to assist State and local governments and the private sector in developing a comprehensive approach to earthquake and natural hazards mitigation and preparedness planning.

Technological hazards.—This program includes activities in the areas of radiological emergency preparedness and hazardous materials. Radiological preparedness provides assistance to State and local governments through the issuance of guidance, review and approval of plans, and evaluation of exercises. The program is focused on improvement of State and local capabilities to cope with radiological accidents at commercial nuclear power plants, other fixed nuclear facilities, nuclear materials license holders and transportation of radioactive materials. In 1994, the budget proposes to recover 100 percent of the cost of these activities through fees (see Administrative Provision).

Federal preparedness.—The goals of the Federal preparedness activity are to achieve Government readiness to ensure that the Nation will be able to respond to, manage, and recover from peacetime or wartime national security emergencies and to enable Government, at all levels, to cope with the consequences of accidental, natural, and man-caused occurrences.

Training and fire programs.—This activity prepares Federal, State and local officials, their supporting staff, and the public to meet the responsibilities and challenges of domestic emergencies through planning, mitigation, preparedness, response, and long-term recovery. Educational programs are provided through the Emergency Management Institute and the National Fire Academy. In addition, the U.S. Fire Administration concentrates on providing a Federal focus on identifying problems with which the Nation's fire and rescue services must deal, finding solutions to these problems, and supporting State and local fire protection and emergency rescue efforts.

This appropriation provides agencywide audit and investigative functions to identify and correct management and administrative deficiencies which create conditions for existing or potential instances of fraud, waste and mismanagement. The audits function provides internal audit, contract audit, and inspections services. Contract audits provide professional advice to agency contracting officials on accounting and financial matters relative to the negotiation, award, administration, repricing, and settlement of contracts. Internal audits review and evaluate all facets of agency operations. Inspections services provide detailed technical evaluations of agency operations. The investigative function provides for the detection and investigation of improper and illegal activities involving agency programs, personnel, and operations.

The National Insurance Development Fund provided the funding source for two programs authorized by the Urban Property Protection and Reinsurance Act of 1968, as amended: (1) The FAIR (Fair Access to Insurance Requirements) Plan/Riot Reinsurance Program, and (2) the Federal Crime Insurance Program. The Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1984 (Public Law 98-181) did not extend authority for the Riot Reinsurance Program beyond November 30, 1983. The Federal Crime Insurance Program has been extended until September 30, 1995. The budget estimates assume there will be no new policies issued subsequent to those dates. However, there will be operating expenses associated with unexpired policies and the close-out of contractor activities.

Insurance claims.—Claims reflect insurance payments in the program.

Operating expenses.—Expenses are incurred by fiscal agents in issuing policies, settling claims, and maintaining accounting and statistical records.

Administrative expenses.—This represents the administrative cost of operating the programs.

Interest expense.—This represents interest on Treasury borrowings needed to defray underwriting and loss expenses of the crime insurance program.

Financing.—Claims and expenses are estimated to be paid from premium income and Treasury borrowings. Premiums are projected to increase by fifteen percent annually in order to reduce losses.

Operating results.—Effective October 1, 1991, Public Law 102-139 forgave all prior borrowings of the program which amounted to $152,239,000.

The National Flood Insurance Act of 1968, as amended, authorizes the Federal Government to provide flood insurance on a national basis. Flood insurance may be sold or continued in force only in communities which enact and enforce appropriate flood plain management measures. Communities must participate in the program within one year of the time they are identified as flood prone in order to be eligible for flood insurance and some forms of Federal financial assistance for acquisition or construction purposes. In 1994, the budget assumes collection of all of the administrative and program costs associated with flood insurance activities from policy holders.

Under the emergency program, structures in identified flood-prone areas are eligible for limited amounts of coverage at subsidized insurance rates. Under the regular program, studies must be made of different flood risks in flood-prone areas to establish actuarial premium rates. These rates are charged for insurance on new construction. Coverage is available on virtually all types of buildings and their contents in amounts up to $245 thousand for residential and $550 thousand for other types.

Significant indicators of program size are as follows:

Policies in force	2,561,359	2,689,427	2,743,216
Insurance in force (billions of dollars)	229,878,640	248,613,321	261,192,568

Budget program—Insurance underwriting expense.—Cost of initiating and maintaining flood insurance policies is estimated at $284,366 thousand in 1994.

Loss and adjustment expense.—Insured flood losses and associated loss adjustment expense is estimated at $502,022 thousand in 1994.

Interest expense.—Though no interest expenses for Treasury borrowings are projected, a ceiling of $3,500,000 is requested to cover charges for purchasing Treasury securities and possible unanticipated interest costs.

The budget proposes to recover the cost of the following activities from policyholders and to reimburse other appropriations in FEMA's budget:

Flood studies and surveys.—These studies are estimated at $37,102 thousand in 1994.

Flood hazard reduction.—This activity, which includes the State support services element is estimated at $6,270 thousand in 1994.

Purchase of property.—This activity is estimated at $4,720 thousand for 1994.

Salaries and expenses.—This activity provides for salaries and related expenses of all Federal staff administering the National Flood Insurance Program and is estimated at $14,081 thousand in 1994.

Financing.—The Administrator is authorized to borrow up to $1 billion to carry out the program. The program is financed through premium income and appropriations to repay borrowing.

Operating results.—The program achieved its goal of becoming self-supporting for the average loss year. Flood insurance rates will be closely monitored and adjusted as necessary so that the program maintains its self-supporting status and continues to cover the cost of salaries and expenses and program activities for flood insurance and mitigation.

Disaster Assistance loans authorized by the Robert T. Stafford Disaster Relief and Emergency Assistance Act (Public Law 100–707), consist of (a) loans to States of the non-Federal portion of cost-sharing funds; and (b) community disaster loans, which are loans to local governments incurring substantial loss of tax and other revenues as a result of a major disaster. The funds requested for this program include direct loans and a subsidy based on criteria including loan amount and interest charged.

As required by the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990, this account records, for this program, the subsidy costs associated with the direct loans obligated in 1992 and beyond (including modifications of direct loans), as well as administrative expenses of this program. The subsidy amounts are estimated on a present value basis; the administrative expenses are estimated on a cash basis.

The Director of FEMA is authorized to accept, hold, administer, and utilize gifts and bequests of property, both real and personal, for the purpose of aiding or facilitating the work of the Federal Emergency Management Agency. Property and the proceeds thereof are used as nearly as possible in accordance with the terms of the gift or bequest.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

The Director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency shall promulgate through rulemaking a schedule of fees applicable to persons subject to the Federal Emergency Management Agency's Radiological Emergency Preparedness regulations. The aggregate charges assessed pursuant to this section during fiscal year [1993] 1994 and any fiscal year thereafter shall approximate, but not be less than, 100 per centum of the amounts anticipated by the Federal Emergency Management Agency to be obligated for its Radiological Emergency Preparedness program for such fiscal year. The schedule of fees shall be fair and equitable, and shall reflect the full amount of direct and indirect costs incurred through the provision of regulatory services. Such fees will be assessed in a manner that reflects the use of agency resources for classes of regulated persons and the administrative costs of collecting such fees. Fees received pursuant to this section shall be deposited in the general fund of the Treasury as offsetting receipts. [Assessment and collection of such fees are only authorized during fiscal year 1993.]

[The Federal Emergency Management Agency may store, stockpile, or access stocks of Meals, Ready-to-Eat (MREs) declared surplus by the Department of Defense, or otherwise made available, for the purpose of providing assistance in situations of disaster or emergency. In addition, the Federal Emergency Management Agency may make available, at the discretion of the Director, MRE stocks to the Interagency Council on the Homeless for purposes of domestic, civilian assistance.]

Notwithstanding any other provision of law, no funds provided in this Act or in any other Act for the Federal Emergency Management Agency may be used for the purposes of chauffeuring employees.

[By the end of fiscal year 1993, notwithstanding any other provision of law, the number of individuals employed by the Federal Emergency Management Agency in other than "career appointee" positions shall not exceed 22.]

[During fiscal year 1993, notwithstanding any other provision of law, average employment in the headquarter's offices of the Federal Emergency Management Agency shall not exceed: (1) 6 workyears for the Office of the Director, (2) 22 workyears for the Office of General Counsel, (3) 192 workyears for the Office of the Executive Director, (4) 90 workyears for Financial Management, (5) 25 workyears for Information Services, (6) 5 workyears for Regional Liaison, (7) 105 workyears for Regional Executive Direction, and (8) 20 workyears for External Affairs.]

[Notwithstanding any other law, nonsupervisory employees of the Federal Emergency Management Agency may not be excluded from coverage under chapter 71 of title 5, and such employees shall be eligible to participate in collective bargaining under such chapter.]

[Notwithstanding any other provision of this or any other Act with respect to any fiscal year, the Hazardous Materials Branch of the Office of Technological Hazards, and all funds and staff years provided to it by this Act, shall be transferred from the State and Local Programs and Support Directorate to the United States Fire Administration within 90 days of the enactment of this Act.]

[The Director of the Federal Emergency Management Agency shall undertake a review of the agency's organizational structure and, within 180 days of enactment of this Act, submit to the appropriate committees of the Congress a reorganization plan which reflects changing mission requirements and priorities. The review shall include an assessment of the National Preparedness Directorate and examine potential alternatives to meet that directorate's principal objectives while increasing overall agency efficiency.] (Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1993.)

The Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (Title XI of Public Law 101–73, August 9, 1989) established the Appraisal Subcommittee of the Federal Financial Institutions Examination Council. Subsequent legislation (Public Law 101–235) authorized the Secretary of the Department of Housing and Urban Development to designate a representative to be a member of the Appraisal Subcommittee.

The Subcommittee is charged with ensuring that real estate appraisals used in federally related transactions are performed in accordance with uniform standards by appraisers certified and licensed by the States. Its responsibilities include the following: (1) monitoring the requirements established by the States for the certification and licensing of appraisers; (2) monitoring the requirements established by the Federal financial institutions regulatory agencies and the Resolution Trust Corporation with respect to appraisal standards for Federally related transactions; (3) monitoring and reviewing the practices, procedures, activities, and organization of the Appraisal Foundation; and (4) maintaining a national registry of licensed and certified appraisers.

The Federal Housing Finance Board (Finance Board), an independent executive agency, was established by the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 which amended the Federal Home Loan Bank Act. The duties of the Finance Board are: (1) to ensure that the twelve Federal Home Loan Banks (Banks) operate in a safe and sound manner, (2) to supervise all lending and related operations of the Banks, (3) to ensure that the Banks fulfill their mission to the housing finance industry, (4) to ensure that the Banks remain adequately capitalized, and (5) to ensure that the Banks are able to raise funds in the capital markets. The Finance Board succeeds the former Federal Home Loan Bank Board with respect to the Banks.

The management of the Finance Board is vested in a five-member Board of Directors. The Directors are the Secretary of Housing and Urban Development and four other individuals appointed by the President, by and with the advice and consent of the Senate. The President designates one of the appointed Directors as the Chairperson of the Board of Directors. The term of a Director is seven years.

The Finance Board has the power (1) to supervise the Banks and promulgate and enforce such regulations and orders as are necessary, (2) to suspend or remove for cause a director, officer, employee, or agent of any Bank or joint office, (3) to determine necessary expenditures of the Finance Board and the manner in which such expenditures shall be incurred, allowed, and paid, and (4) to use the United States mails in the same manner and under the same conditions as a department or agency of the United States.

The projected 1994 FTE increases for the Finance Board reflect the fact that, as an independent agency, the Finance Board is not complying with the President's executive order reducing Federal employment.

The Authority serves as a neutral party in the settlement of disputes that arise between unions, employees, and agencies on matters outlined in the Federal Service Labor Management Relations Statute, decides major policy issues, prescribes regulations, and disseminates information appropriate to the needs of agencies, labor organizations, and the public. Establishment of the Federal Labor Relations Authority gives full recognition to the role of the Federal Government as an employer.

The Federal Labor Relations Authority is composed of three components.—The Authority, the Office of the General Counsel, and the Federal Service Impasses Panel.

Authority.—The Authority adjudicates labor-management disputes in the Federal sector including: appeals on negotiability issues; exceptions to arbitration awards; appropriate units for the purposes of exclusive recognition; eligibility of labor organizations for national consultation rights and unfair labor practice complaints.

Within the Authority, Administrative Law Judges hold hearings on unfair labor practice complaints, issuing reports, and making recommendations to the Authority on each case to allow timely settlement of disputes arising between agencies and unions.

Administrative support is also provided to all components of the Federal Labor Relations Authority. These activities involve financial management, which includes budget, accounting and payroll support; personnel management, which includes position management and classification; and office services, which includes space management, procurement, contracting, printing support, supply and property management, records management, and other administrative services.

The Office of the Inspector General is responsible for conducting and supervising audits and investigations related to the functions of the FLRA, pursuant to the provisions of the Inspector General Act of 1978, as amended in 1988.

Workloads are reflected in the following table:

The Federal Maritime Commission regulates the domestic offshore and international waterborne commerce of the United States. In addition, the Commission has responsibility for the licensing of ocean freight forwarders, ensuring that non-vessel-operating common carriers are tariffed and bonded, and for insuring that vessel owners or operators establish financial responsibility for death or injury to passengers or other persons on voyages to and from U.S. ports, and indemnification of passengers for the nonperformance of transportation. Major program areas for 1994 will concentrate on carrying out investigations of foreign trade practices under the Foreign Shipping Practices Act; implementing and operating a system to computerize the filing of tariffs; and pursuing an active enforcement program designed to identify and prosecute violators of the shipping statutes.

The Service assists parties to labor disputes in industries affecting commerce to settle their disputes through conciliation and mediation.

Dispute mediation.—The Service assists labor and management in mediation and prevention of disputes, other than those involving rail and air transportation, whenever such disputes threaten to cause a substantial interruption of interstate commerce or a major impairment of the national defense. The Service also makes mediation and conciliation services available to Federal agencies and organizations representing Federal employees in the resolution of negotiation disputes. The Service provides mandatory mediation and, where necessary, impartial boards of inquiry to assist in resolving labor disputes involving private nonprofit health care institutions. The workload shown below includes assignments closed in both the private and public sectors.

Total mediation conferences conducted	22,184	20,295	20,129	20,130	20,130

Preventive mediation, public information, and educational activities.—Through its preventive mediation program, the Service initiates and develops labor-management committees, training programs, conferences, and specialized workshops dealing with issues in collective bargaining. Mediators also participate in public information and educational activities such as lectures, seminars, and conferences.

Arbitration services.—The Service assists parties in disputes in utilizing the arbitration process for the resolution of disputes arising under or in the negotiation of collective bargaining agreements in the private and public sectors.

Number of arbitrators appointed	12,557	12,065	13,037	13,050	13,050

Management and administrative support.—This activity provides for overall management and administration, policy planning, research and evaluation, and employee development.

Boards and panels.—Provision is made for ad hoc use of labor relations experts, individually or in panels, in support of the mediation function, for boards of inquiry appointed by the President in emergency disputes, and for boards of inquiry which the Director of FMCS may appoint in a contract dispute involving health care institutions.

Labor-management cooperation project.—The Labor Management Cooperation Act of 1978 (29 U.S.C. 175a) authorizes the Service to carry out this program of contracts and grants to support the establishment and operation of plant, area, and industry labor-management committees.

Alternative Dispute Resolution (ADR) Projects.—FMCS assists other federal agencies providing mediation and technical assistance in the area of ADR. ADR projects reduce litigation costs and speed federal processes. FMCS is funded for this work through interagency reimbursable agreements.

The Federal Retirement Thrift Investment Board is responsible for managing the Thrift Savings Fund. The Thrift Savings Fund is a special tax-deferred savings fund established by the Federal Employees' Retirement System Act of 1986. Due to the fiduciary nature of the Thrift Savings Fund, the Fund is not included in the totals of the Federal budget. Information on the financial status and activities of the Thrift Savings Fund follows this account.

Program administration for the Thrift Savings Fund is financed from the Fund. In addition, the Board may require employing agencies to contribute an amount not to exceed one percent of employing agency contributions to purchase insurance to cover the potential liability of persons who serve in a fiduciary capacity on behalf of the Fund. The Board has ceased requiring such contributions because of legislation enacted in January 1988 which provided an alternative source of funding for a major portion of such liabilities. This legislation reduces estimated expenses for insurance premiums. Program expenses are derived first from Fund forfeitures of agency one percent automatic contributions for employees who separate from the Federal government prior to vesting, and subsequently from earnings on all participant and agency contributions to the Fund.

tribute to the Fund. However, only those employees covered by the Federal Employees' Retirement System (FERS) will have their contributions matched by employing agencies in accordance with the formulas prescribed by law. Employees are entitled to select how contributions are distributed among three investment funds: a Government Securities Investment Fund, a Fixed Income Index Investment Fund, and a Common Stock Index Investment Fund.

Because the Thrift Savings Fund recently commenced operations, the estimates of the status of these funds in 1993 and 1994 are based on the initial years of experience. Employee participation in the Fund is entirely voluntary, so actual results could vary significantly from these estimates. The estimated status of the three separate funds is shown below:

The Federal Trade Commission is charged by law with ensuring that competition in the marketplace is vigorous, free, and fair. This is accomplished by eliminating threats to fair and honest competition from all sources, both public and private.

Maintaining competition.—The Commission's efforts are aimed at fostering and preserving our competitive system with the goal of maximizing consumer welfare. In addition to enforcing the antitrust laws against private sector restraints on competition, the Commission also scrutinizes regulatory policies that unduly restrain competition, and tries to exert a procompetitive influence in the development of such policies.

Consumer protection.—The Commission is charged with eliminating unfair or deceptive acts or practices affecting commerce. The goal of the consumer protection mission is to improve market performance so that consumers can make informed choices when exercising their purchasing power. To accomplish this goal, the Commission will remove harmful private and public restrictions on market performance; encourage business to provide consumers with accurate and useful information; and reinforce market forces that enhance consumer welfare.

The President's budget for 1994 provides a total of 954 workyears. Funding for programs of the Commission would increase from $86.9 million in 1993 to $89.0 million in 1994, allowing the Commission to continue to pursue its missions.

The programs administered by the Federal Trade Commission are funded by appropriated funds and fees assessed for premerger notification filings under the Hart-Scott-Rodino Act, as required by section 605 of Public Law 101–162. For 1994, the FTC will use $17.3 million in premerger filings fees to finance its activities.

Public Law 93-642 established the Harry S Truman Scholarship Foundation to operate the scholarship program that is the permanent Federal memorial to the 33rd President of the United States. The Foundation awards scholarships for up to four years to qualified students who demonstrate outstanding potential for and interest in careers in public service at the local, State, or Federal level.

In its fiscal year 1994 annual competition, the Foundation will select up to 85 new Truman scholars. The maximum award will be $30,000 for four years. The Foundation will continue to assist in the placement of graduating Truman scholars in public service positions.

Scholarship awards.—This activity is comprised of scholarships awarded to cover eligible educational expenses.

Program administration.—This activity covers all costs of operating the program, including annual program announcement, interview and selection of Truman scholars, calculation and disbursement of scholarship awards, monitoring of student progress, and special services and activities for scholars, including an orientation week for new scholars, a summer education and internship program, and workshops and conferences.

The Interagency Council on the Homeless was authorized in the Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act (Public Law 100-77). The Council is an independent establishment, composed of 17 designated Federal agencies. Its purpose is to review Federal activities and programs to help the homeless, to work with State and local governments and private organizations on homeless-related efforts, to collect and disseminate information, and to prepare reports on the homeless issue for the President and Congress.

The appropriation request of $910,000 for 1994 will be used to cover Council headquarters staff and related expenses; field staff support will be provided on a non-reimbursable basis from member agencies of the Council.

The International Cultural and Trade Center Commission was established by the Federal Triangle Development Act (Public Law 100–113). The purpose of the Commission is to organize the International Cultural and Trade Center which will be located in a building to be constructed by the Pennsylvania Avenue Development Corporation. Federal funding for the Commission is limited and restricted to resources transferred from certain departments and agencies having interests in foreign trade and international cultural exchange. The ICTC as originally proposed was found not to be viable and as a result the Commission staff shut down operations on March 31, 1992. No transfers, therefore, are identified for fiscal year 1994.

The U.S. International Trade Commission is an independent agency created by act of Congress. The Commission's current powers and duties are provided for by the Tariff Act of 1930; the Trade Act of 1974; the Trade Agreements Act of 1979; the Agricultural Adjustment Act; section 1911 of the Financial Institution Regulatory and Interest Rate Control Act of 1978, 12 U.S.C. 635a-2; the Trade and Tariff Act of 1984; and the Omnibus Trade and Competitiveness Act of 1988.

The Commission conducts investigations and makes findings concerning whether: (1) increased imports are a substantial cause of serious injury to an industry; (2) imports of goods that are subsidized or are being sold at less than fair value are materially injuring an industry; (3) unfair import practices have the threat or effect of substantially injuring an industry or restraining or monopolizing trade and commerce in the United States; and (4) imports of agricultural products are materially interfering with certain programs of the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

The Commission advises the President as to the probable economic effect on the domestic industry and consumers of modification of duties and other barriers to trade which may be considered for inclusion in any proposed trade agreement with foreign countries. Further, the Commission, at the request of the President, the Congress, or on the Commission's own motion, undertakes comprehensive studies and provides reports on key issues relating to international trade and economic policy matters and upon request provides other information and advice to the Congress and President on tariff and trade matters.

The Commission, in cooperation with the Secretary of the Treasury and the Secretary of Commerce, establishes for statistical purposes an enumeration of articles imported into the United States and exported from the United States, and seeks to establish comparability of such statistics with statistical programs for domestic production.

The Commission also issues a publication containing the U.S. tariff schedule and related matters and considers questions concerning the arrangements of such schedules and the classification of articles.

Pursuant to section 175 of the Trade Act of 1974, the budget estimates for the Commission are included without revision by the President.

The Interstate Commerce Commission is responsible for the regulation of interstate surface transportation. Consistent with the downward trend in the regulation of surface transportation, which grew out of the regulatory reform legislation of 1980 and 1982, the Commission's staff has been reduced by 68 percent since 1981.

Motor program.—This includes the regulation of rates, the granting of operating authorities, the regulation of mergers and acquisitions, and the planning, analysis, and policy development associated with these activities as they relate to the Interstate Commerce Act as amended by the Motor Carrier Act of 1980, the Household Goods Transportation Act of 1980, the Bus Regulatory Reform Act of 1982, and the Surface Freight Forwarder Deregulation Act of 1986. The activities of interstate motor freight, bus, and water carriers are monitored, and enforcement actions are instituted to ensure compliance with these regulations.

PAYMENTS FOR DIRECTED RAIL SERVICE

(LIMITATION ON OBLIGATIONS)

None of the funds provided in this Act shall be available for the execution of programs the obligations for which can reasonably be expected to exceed $475,000 for directed rail service authorized under 49 U.S.C. 11125 or any other Act. (Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1993.)

Once a railroad ceases operations due to a lack of cash or a court order, the Commission may direct other railroads to provide service over the track of the railroad which ceased operations and may compensate the directed rail carrier for its services. Since no subsidized or compensable directed rail service is anticipated, no funds are being requested for FY 1994.

Public Laws 99-500, 101-208, and 102-221 established the James Madison Memorial Fellowship Foundation to operate a fellowship program to encourage graduate study of the framing, principles, and history of the American Constitution. Appropriations of $10 million in 1988 and $10 million in 1989 established the foundation's trust fund. The funds have been invested by the Secretary of the Treasury in U.S. Treasury securities, and the interest earned on these funds is available for carrying out the activities of the foundation. Funds raised from private sources and the surcharges from commemorative coin sales are also placed in the trust fund.

The foundation is authorized to award graduate fellowships of up to $24,000 to high school teachers of American history, American government, and social studies and to college seniors and recent college graduates who want to become secondary school teachers of these subjects.

Fellowship awards.—This activity is comprised of fellowship awards to cover educational expenses. It will also support the foundation's first annual Summer Institute on the U.S. Constitution, which all current fellows are required to attend. The Institute will be an intensive educational experience that will ensure that all fellows know the history of the framing, ratification, and implementation of the U.S. Constitution and the Bill of Rights. The foundation awarded 48 fellowships in its inaugural competition in 1992 and plans to award 43 fellowships in FY 1993.

Program administration.—This activity covers the costs of planning, fund-raising, and the operation of the fellowship program.

The National Advisory Council on the Public Service was appointed in accordance with National Advisory Council on the Public Service Act of 1990, Public Law 101-363. The Council has been charged with providing the President and the Congress with an assessment of, and recommendations regarding, the Federal workforce and to improve public perceptions of Federal employees. The Council will submit a report to the President and each House of the Congress in June, 1993.

No appropriation is requested for 1994. The National Advisory Council on the Public Service is proposed for termination as part of the effort to eliminate programs that are no longer absolutely necessary. The Council was authorized in response to a recommendation by the Volcker Commission. Agencies and public interest groups have already bolstered their activities in response to the Volcker Commission's recommendations. Comprehensive pay reform legislation was enacted in 1990, and the government has moved to improve its competitiveness as the nation's largest employer. Federal entities such as the Office of Personnel Management, Merit Systems Protection Board and General Accounting Office, as well as public service groups such as the National Academy of Public Administration, the Council for Excellence in Government, and the Public Employees Roundtable continue to examine issues, make reports, and pursue initiatives on important public service issues such as compensation, recruitment and retention, measuring workforce quality, student interest, and public perceptions of Federal workers. With the important issues identified by the Volcker Commission being aggressively pursued by these groups, a separate advisory council, particularly one funded by public dollars, is no longer necessary.

The National Archives and Records Administration provides for basic operations dealing with management of the Government's archives and records, operation of Presidential libraries, and for the review for declassification of classified security information.

Records centers.—This activity provides for the accessioning, storage, reference service, and disposal of the semiactive and non-current records of Federal agencies through a nationwide system of 14 records centers. Significant savings result from use of low cost records storage and the efficient and timely disposal of non-permanent records.

Archives and related services.—This activity provides for selecting, preserving, describing, and making available to the general public, scholars, and Federal agencies, the permanently valuable records of the Federal Government and the historical material in Presidential libraries, related publications and exhibit programs, and the appraisal of all Federal records. It also provides for the publication of the Federal Register and Code of Federal Regulations, the U.S. Statutes-at-Large, Presidential documents and for a program to improve the quality of regulations and the public's access to them. It also provides for the National Archives' government-wide audiovisual information and management programs.

Through the records declassification program, historically valuable information in the records of the Federal Government and in donated historical materials are made available to the public by declassifying as much information as possible without endangering the national security.

National Historical Publications and Records Commission.—This Commission coordinates and provides technical assistance to archival planning and assessment projects in many States and also offers a specialized reference service to Federal, State and local and nongovernment institutions that are publishing significant portions of records from official government files. The Commission also lends its endorsement and support to those specific projects that further the basic objectives stated in its legislation.

Archives II Facility.—Provides for construction and related services of a new archival facility. Costs of construction are financed by $301,702 thousand of federally, guaranteed debt issued in 1989. Beginning in 1994, the Archives is seeking appropriations for the annual payments to be made under the contract for construction and related services. In 1994, a portion of this amount will be paid from interest earned from the construction financing.

The National Capital Planning Commission is the central planning agency for the Federal Government in the National Capital Region. During 1994, major emphasis will be placed on the following activities: the maintenance of Federal elements of the Comprehensive Plan for the National Capital, the five-year Federal Capital Improvements program, the review of Federal land acquisition and development proposals in the region, relevant zoning analyses, and continuing Federal interest reviews of the impact of proposed local, State and regional planning efforts on the Federal establishment. In addition, there will be an emphasis on the development of computer-based analytical planning tools. These tools will be used in cooperation with other agencies early in the planning process to allow for resolution of differences before the final review and approval stages.

Federal credit unions are privately owned, cooperative associations organized for the purpose of promoting thrift among their members and creating a source of credit for provident or productive purposes, authorized by the Federal Credit Union Act of 1934, as amended.

The Administration's activities consist of: (a) chartering new Federal credit unions, (b) supervising established Federal credit unions, (c) making periodic examinations of their financial condition and operating practices, and (d) providing administrative services. The operating fund is reimbursed for the insurance fund's share of the agency's administrative expenses by the insurance fund. The reimbursement percentage, which is reviewed and adjusted periodically, is currently at 50 percent. Data relating to activities are shown below:

The insurance fund is used to carry out a program of insurance for member accounts in Federal credit unions and State-chartered credit unions which apply and qualify for insurance, authorized by Public Law 91-468, enacted October 19, 1970.

Budget program.—The activities consist of: (a) providing member account insurance, (b) formulating standards and requirements for insured credit unions, and (c) providing for liquidation or other disposition of the assets and liabilities of solvent and insolvent insured credit unions. The fund also reimburses the operating fund for its share of the Agency's administrative costs. The reimbursement percentage, which is reviewed and adjusted periodically, is currently at fifty percent.

The extent of the program is estimated as follows:

Item:	1992 actual	1993 est.	1994 est.
Number of insured credit unions	12,960	1,300	13,100
Insured shares of member institutions as of June 30 (in millions of dollars)	227,074	250,000	275,000

It is estimated that approximately 4,800 State-chartered credit unions will be enrolled in the program by the end of 1994.

Financing.—For insurance year 1993, the credit union's required annual insurance premium of one-twelfth of 1 percent of its total member share accounts has been waived. As a result of Public Law 98-369 (July 18, 1984), each insured credit union is also required to deposit and maintain in the insurance fund 1 percent of its member share accounts. The fund is structured to be entirely self supporting through the monies paid by member credit unions. The monies received plus the income generated from their investment are expected to cover all administrative and financial costs, as well as increase the fund balance proportionate to insured share growth. It is anticipated that the capital generated from the 1 percent deposit will eliminate the need to assess the annual premium except in years of extraordinary credit union losses. The fund has $100 million in borrowing authority from the Treasury for use in unforeseen emergencies.

Operating results.—Anticipated net income of $21 million will be retained in the fund, raising the balance for unforeseen emergencies to $2.8 billion by the end of 1994.

The National Credit Union Central Liquidity Facility was established under Public Law 95-630. It began operations on October 1, 1979. The Central Liquidity Facility provides loans to member credit unions for seasonal and emergency needs.

The two primary sources of funds for the Facility are stock subscriptions from credit unions and borrowings from the Federal Financing Bank. Credit unions, which choose to become members of the Facility, are required to purchase stock equal to one-half of 1 percent of their assets. One-half of the subscription in stock is forwarded to the Facility and deposited in the fund. The remaining half of the subscription remains on call in the credit union in investments as approved by the NCUA Board.

The Board resolves representation disputes in industry, and remedies and prevents specified unfair labor practices by employers or labor organizations. Case intake and additional program statistics appear in the table below.

Program Statistics

Case intake:	1992 actual	1993 est.	1994 est.
Unfair labor practice cases	32,955	33,317	33,983
Representation cases	6,600	6,672	6,779
Administrative law judges:
Hearings closed	587	735	592
Adjustments after hearings closed	13	15	15
Decisions issued	629	613	484
Board adjudication:
Contested Board decisions issued	751	727	696
Regional director decisions	830	835	829
Representation election cases:
Decisions issued	69	91	95
Objection rulings	161	165	167
Board decisions requiring court enforcement	181	184	184

Field investigation.—Charges of unfair labor practices and petitions for elections to resolve representation disputes are investigated by regional office personnel. Over 92 percent of the unfair labor practice cases and about 84 percent of the representation cases are closed by settlement, dismissal, or withdrawal. The remainder are prepared for public hearing. The agency strives to maximize the voluntary settlement of all cases and to avoid litigation.

Administrative law judge hearing.—Administrative law judges conduct public hearings in unfair labor practice cases. Their findings and recommendations are set forth in their decisions.

Board adjudication.—In an unfair labor practice case a judge's decision becomes a Board order if no exceptions are filed. About 30 percent of these decisions become automatic Board orders or are complied with voluntarily. The remainder with exceptions filed require contested Board decision. In representation cases, regional directors initially decide the issues by Board delegation. The Board itself decides representation issues on referral from regional directors or by granting a request for review of a regional director's decision. The Board also rules on objection and challenge questions in election cases.

Securing compliance with Board orders.—If the parties do not voluntarily comply with the Board's order involving unfair labor practices, the Board must request that the appellate courts enforce its decisions.

Mediatory services.—The Board mediates disputes over wages, hours, and working conditions for some 746 rail and air carriers and approximately 795,000 employees in the two industries.

The Board also provides technical assistance to enable labor and industry representatives to explore informally the relevant economic and noneconomic problems that condition collective bargaining in the railroad and airline industries.

The Board investigates representation disputes involving the various crafts or classes of railroad and airline employees to determine their choice of representatives for the purpose of collective bargaining.

Voluntary arbitration and emergency disputes.—When the parties fail to resolve their disputes through mediation, they are urged to submit their differences to arbitration. If neither mediation nor voluntary arbitration is successful, the President, when notified of disputes which threaten to seriously interrupt service, may appoint emergency boards to investigate and report on the disputes under section 160 of the Railway Labor Act (RLA). Such reports usually serve as a basis for resolving the disputes.

The Northeast Rail Service Act of 1981 amended the Railway Labor Act by adding a new emergency dispute procedure covering disputes between a publicly funded and operated commuter carrier and its employees. The 1981 Act requires the Board to appoint the public members of factfinding panels on Conrail.

Adjustment of railroad grievances.—Railroad employee grievances resulting from disputes over the interpretation or application of collective bargaining contracts may be brought for settlement to the National Railroad Adjustment Board (NRAB). The divisions of the Board are composed of an equal number of carrier and union representatives compensated by the party or parties they represent. Public Law 89-456 provides for the adjustment of disputes involving grievances resulting from interpretation or application of bargaining agreements in the railroad industry otherwise referable to the NRAB.

Administrative direction and support for the public law boards, special boards of adjustment, and the NRAB are provided by Federal employees who are compensated by the National Mediation Board.

The major research program activities of the Foundation are:

Biological sciences.—This activity supports research in cellular and molecular biology, neural sciences, and environmental biology.

Computer and information sciences and engineering.—Research is directed at "information processing" in the broadest sense of the term, ranging from fundamental theory to systems engineering.

Engineering.—Research supported by this activity aims to increase U.S. engineering capability and strength, and focus that capability and strength on areas which are relevant to national problems and long-term needs. This activity also includes small business innovation research.

Experimental program to stimulate competitive research.—This activity seeks to broaden the participation of states and geographic regions in science and engineering. Funding will be provided through the Education and Human Resources appropriation beginning in fiscal year 1993.

Geosciences.—This research advances knowledge of the properties and dynamics of the planet Earth.

Mathematical and physical sciences.—Research in this activity is directed at increasing understanding of natural laws and phenomena. It includes research in mathematics, astronomy, physics, chemistry, and materials science.

Social, behavioral and economic sciences.—This activity supports research in behavioral, social, economic, and cognitive sciences, facilitates international scientific cooperation, and funds science resources studies.

Academic Research Facilities and Instrumentation is designed to improve the research infrastructure by funding, on a cost-sharing basis, the development and acquisition of major instruments, and the repair and renovation of academic research facilities. The program will support the acquisition of the major modern scientific instruments for our nation's laboratories and advance the nation's research and research training efforts. This also provides competitively awarded grants for the repair, renovation, or, in exceptional cases, replacement of facilities used for research and research training at academic and other non-profit institutions.

U.S. Antarctic research activities.—The Foundation manages the U.S. program in the Antarctic and supports a multidisciplinary research program on weather and climate, earth sciences, glaciology and other physical and biological characteristics of Antarctica and its surrounding seas. This activity, which includes operations and science support, is the major expression of U.S. interest and presence in Antarctica.

U.S. operations and science support.—Includes logistical support and maintenance for equipment and living accommodations at Antarctic bases, including reimbursement to other Federal Agencies providing such services.

U.S. Arctic research activities.—This activity was funded in the Research and Related Appropriation in FY 1993 and transferred to U.S. Polar Research Programs in FY 1994. Arctic research includes the Arctic Ocean and surrounding land masses.

Education and Human Resources (EHR) activities provide a comprehensive set of programs across all levels of education in science, mathematics and technology. These efforts also address the participation of groups underrepresented in science and engineering. At the precollege level, EHR provides for new instructional material and techniques, and enrichment activities for teachers and students. Undergraduate initiatives support curriculum improvement (including laboratory instruction), faculty enhancement, and selected student development efforts. Graduate level support is directed primarily to research fellowships and traineeships. Human resources activities focus on women, persons with disabilities, minorities, and minority institutions. Emphasis is given to systemic reform through components that address urban and statewide efforts in precollege education, and, beginning in 1993, the Experimental Program to Stimulate Competitive Research (EPSCoR), which seeks to broaden the participation of States and regions in science and engineering. Education research, evaluation and dissemination activities are supported across the science and mathematics education spectrum.

The Critical Technologies Institute is a federally-funded research and development center that provides analytical support to the Executive Branch; policy guidance for the Institute is provided by an external Operating Committee, which functions as the governing board of the Institute. The views of U.S. industry, colleges and universities, and Federal and State agencies, involved in research and development or utilization of technologies considered critical for U.S. global economic or defense leadership, are analyzed. Through such analyses, the Institute identifies near-term and long-term objectives for research and development; analyzes the production capability and economic viability with respect to such technologies; and provides options for achieving those objectives.

The National Transportation Safety Board is mandated by Congress to investigate all catastrophic transportation accidents and, therefore, has no control over the frequency of costly accident investigations. The emergency fund provides a funding mechanism by which periodic accident investigation cost fluctuations can be met without delaying critical phases of the investigations.

The major activities of the Corporation include: establishing neighborhood partnership programs; assisting in expanding NeighborWorks organizations to additional neighborhoods, including mutual and multi-family housing strategies, providing training and technical assistance to NHS organizations; identifying, evaluating, and supporting neighborhood preservation projects that show promise as strategies for reversing neighborhood decline; replicating successful neighborhood preservation projects; and promoting a national secondary market for local NHS revolving loan funds.

The Corporation receives both Federal and non-Federal funding to finance its program activities. For 1994, a program level of $27,976,000 is requested. The following tables reflect the total program activity of the Corporation and include all sources of financing, both Federal and non-Federal.

An additional $5,000,000 for the purpose of providing local neighborhood revitalization organizations revolving homeownership lending capital and equity capital for affordable lower income rental and mutual housing association projects is available for use until September 1994. These funds will be

Reactor safety and safeguards regulation.—This program encompasses all NRC licensing and inspection of civilian reactor facilities and designs as required by the Atomic Energy Act of 1954, as amended. This includes the responsibility for evaluating the public health effects, safety, environmental safeguards, and antitrust aspects of reactor facilities and for ensuring that reactor facilities are designed, constructed, and operated safely and are in compliance with agency regulations. Reactor safety and safeguards regulation is carried out through the following three major program elements: reactor licensing; reactor inspection; and reactor oversight. During fiscal year 1994, the NRC will continue to emphasize oversight of plant operations at the 110 existing licensed commercial nuclear power plants to ensure their continuing improvement in safety performance, will review proposals for design certification for advanced reactors, and will continue efforts designed to ensure that the agency will be prepared to review reactor operating license renewal applications.

Reactor special and independent reviews, investigations, and enforcement.—This program encompasses the review, evaluation, and investigation of NRC's power reactor licensees; the conduct of diagnostic evaluations of individual reactor plant safety; evaluation of both foreign and domestic operational events; ensuring power reactor licensee compliance with regulatory requirements through a comprehensive enforcement policy; and providing advice to the Commission on power reactor license applications and amendments. In addition, the NRC maintains an emergency operations center to receive calls of reportable events and determine appropriate regulatory response, and a technical training center to assure that NRC technical employees are well prepared to carry out their responsibilities. Reactor special and independent reviews, investigations, and enforcement are carried out through the following five major program elements: analysis and evaluation of operational data, Advisory Committee on Reactor Safeguards, Atomic Safety and Licensing Board Panel, external investigations; and enforcement.

Reactor safety research.—This program encompasses all NRC reactor safety research as required by the Energy Reorganization Act of 1974 as amended. This includes the responsibility for developing recommendations for research and engaging in or contracting for research deemed necessary for the performance by the Commission of its licensing and regulatory functions. Work carried out in reactor safety research provides independent expertise and information for making timely regulatory judgments, anticipates problems of potential safety significance for which new or expanded knowledge can assist the NRC in pursuing its mission, and develops the regulations and guides necessary to implement commission policy or technical requirements. Reactor safety research is carried out through the following two major program elements: reactor licensing support, and reactor regulation support. The major emphasis during fiscal year 1994 will continue to be on: developing sound technical bases for safety decisions associated with the certification of standard reactor designs, reactor aging and license renewal, and maintenance of computer codes used to analyze abnormal operating conditions.

Nuclear material and low-level waste safety and safeguards regulation.—This program encompasses all NRC licensing and inspection of nuclear fuel-cycle facilities, users of nuclear materials, the transport of nuclear materials, the safe management and disposal of low-level radioactive wastes, the safe interim storage of spent fuel and uranium recovery activities and related remedial actions. This includes the responsibility for evaluating the public health effects, safety, safeguards, and environmental aspects of a variety of licensees, ranging from very complex operations such as the manufacturing of reactor fuel and the production of medical radiopharmaceuticals, to relatively simple operations, such as the use of small quantities of radioisotopes in medical diagnostics.

The program also includes an integrated agency effort to oversee decontamination and decommissioning of facilities and sites associated with NRC-licensed activities. Within this program the NRC will assess the domestic safeguards environment and safeguards reviews for all NRC licensing activities involving the export of special nuclear material. Nuclear material and low-level waste safety and safeguards regulation is carried out through the following three major program elements: nuclear materials low-level waste and materials special and independent reviews, investigations and enforcement. The nuclear materials program element affects approximately 7,000 licensees across the United States. The major emphasis during fiscal year 1994 will continue to be on the implementation of the Low-Level Waste Policy Act of 1980, as amended in 1985; the Uranium Mill Tailings Radiation Control Act of 1978; modifying the method for investigating human performance-related events to apply to materials licensees; improving licensee performance, particularly fuel-cycle facilities, radiographers, and medical licensees; and assuming new responsibilities for regulating the United States Energy Corporation's gaseous diffusion uranium enrichment facilities pursuant to the National Energy Policy Act of 1992.

High-level nuclear waste regulation.—This program encompasses all NRC public health and safety licensing, inspection, and environmental reviews for the safe management and disposal of high-level radioactive wastes (including spent fuel); and research to assess the safety of high-level waste management, storage, and disposal. High-level nuclear waste regulation is carried out through three major program elements: high-level waste licensing; assessing the safety of high-level waste disposal; and independent safety advice and adjudicatory reviews. The major emphasis during fiscal year 1994 will continue to be focused on the implementation of the Nuclear Waste Policy Act of 1982, as amended in 1987.

The Office of Navajo and Hopi Indian Relocation was established by Public Law 93–531 to plan and conduct relocation activities associated with the settlement of a land dispute in northern Arizona between the two tribes.

Bonuses are paid to clients who volunteered for relocation prior to July 7, 1982. Relocation of clients includes such activities as certification, housing acquisition and construction, and land acquisition. Discretionary funds will be used for activities which will facilitate and expedite the overall relocation effort.

The Office of Special Counsel (1) investigates Federal employee allegations of prohibited personnel practices (including reprisal for whistleblowing) and when appropriate prosecutes before the Merit Systems Protection Board; (2) provides a channel for whistleblowing by Federal employees; and (3) enforces the Hatch Act. The Office may transmit whistleblower allegations to the agency head concerned and require an agency investigation and a report to the Congress and the President when appropriate.

Many cases investigated by the Office are resolved without recourse to formal proceedings before the Board. Efforts to obtain such negotiated resolutions will continue.

Note.—Authority to borrow is available to the Panama Canal Commission on a permanent indefinite basis. This authority is limited only in that the amount of borrowing outstanding at any time cannot exceed $100 million.

The Panama Canal Act of 1979 established the Panama Canal Commission to operate and maintain the interoceanic waterway. The Commission is self-sufficient in its operations and makes payments to the Republic of Panama as specified in the Panama Canal Treaty of 1977. Pursuant to Public Law 100-203, the Commission operates as a revolving fund agency.

Budget program—Transit operations.—The services performed by this activity are (in thousands of dollars):

Payments to Panama include a public service payment, a fixed annuity of $10 million, and an annuity based on net tonnage of vessels transiting the Canal. These payments are prescribed in paragraph 5 of article III and paragraphs 4(a) and 4(b) of article XIII of the Panama Canal Treaty of 1977.

Vessel traffic volume and other indices of workload are as follows:

Ship transits (over 300 net Panama Canal tons)	12,636	12,425	12,650
Tolls (in thousands of dollars)	368,663	408,000	417,000

Capital obligations for 1994 include the following major projects: continuation of the Gaillard cut widening/straightening program; replacement of floating equipment; replacement and addition of transit equipment; addition of a craneboat to replace the ATLAS; procurement of a damming device; and other improvements to transit facilities.

Supporting services.—The services performed by these support activities are (in thousands of dollars):

Supply and logistical	43,691	43,865	46,367
Utilities	47,276	47,679	47,776
Other supporting services	12,835	13,158	13,638
Total operating expenses	103,802	104,702	107,781
Less intra-agency recoveries	−27,790	−26,578	−28,236
Net operating expenses	76,012	78,124	79,545

Note.—These numbers are based on standard business accounting techniques and therefore do not necessarily tie with the Program and Financing schedule.

Capital obligations for 1994 include several projects for electric power and communication systems improvements.

Administrative.—This category includes the overall direction and administrative expenses of the Commission; the costs of the employee health benefits program; the cost of health and education services provided to Commission employees and dependents at Department of Defense facilities; and certain employment costs of the Commission.

Interest expense.—Interest expense on the investment of the U.S. Government in the Canal is being paid into miscellaneous receipts of the U.S. Treasury.

Special retirement costs.—This provides for the Commission costs for amortizing the expense for the special retirement provision of the treaty implementation legislation.

Other general.—This includes other miscellaneous expenses not under limitation.

Financing.—The operation of the Canal is conducted on a commercial basis with revenues derived from tolls collected from vessels and other essential supporting services. Revenues collected are deposited in an account in the U.S. Treasury. Operating and capital expenditures are then funded from this account. The Commission may borrow from the U.S. Treasury not more than $100 million outstanding at any time. The Commission anticipates to pay back $8,733 thousand of the borrowing authority in 1993. No cash withdrawals against these funds are planned. In 1992 the Commission incurred a loss of $3,569 thousand. In 1993, the Commission expects to recover the prior year loss of $3,569 thousand. The amount set aside from toll receipts for working capital purposes in 1994 is $2,000 thousand and $14,500 thousand for a capital advance.

The limitation on administrative expenses provides for salaries and expenses associated with the overall direction and administration of the Commission.

Executive direction.—Executive direction provides for the management planning, direction, and control of overall Commission activities and operations. It also provides for Congressional liaison through the Secretary's Office in Washington, and implements policies and directives of the Commission's Board.

Operations direction.—Operations direction provides for the bureau-level direction and coordination of the non-administrative operations of the Commission. Included in this function are the costs associated with administering the director's offices for the various non-administrative Commission operating activities including the Marine Bureau, Engineering and Construction Bureau, and General Services Bureau.

Financial management.—The Financial Management function is responsible for the development of financial, accounting and rate-making policies; development of financial systems and procedures; maintenance of the general books of account and the preparation of financial statements and reports; establishment of systems of internal control; collection, custody and disbursement of funds and related fiscal matters; and financial planning, budget management, and manpower control.

Personnel administration.—This function has the overall agency responsibility for personnel administration and management, and the joint personnel program that provides staffing services for participating federal agencies in the Panama Canal area on a cost-sharing basis.

Employment costs.—Included in this activity are certain employment costs of the Commission which are general in nature and not identifiable with other specific activities. The estimates include provisions for employees' States travel, reimbursement to Department of Defense for education and hospital services, employer's contributions to Federal Employees' Health Benefit Act and certain other statutory costs required by the U.S. Government.

Relocation assistance.—The Corporation provides assistance to business tenants displaced from their existing locations within the PADC project area.

Public improvements.—Pennsylvania Avenue and adjoining public areas are being progressively reconstructed and improved, creating a thoroughfare having new sidewalks, curbs, lighting, landscaping, and street furniture.

Historic preservation.—Buildings of architectural merit are being restored and retained.

Federal Triangle/International Cultural and Trade Center Building (ICTC).—The Corporation developed the plan for construction of a joint-use Federal office building and private international cultural and trade center and selected the developer of the project. The Corporation is managing the design and construction of the building complex. Funds from the General Services Administration can be transferred to this activity.

The Administration strongly encourages the Postal Service to work with the Congress to implement legislative reforms including some suggested by the Postal Rate Commission in its June 1986 Preferred Rate Study. These reforms would discontinue abuses of the reduced postage rate subsidy by tightening eligibility requirements. Preferred rate status would be terminated or restricted for the following categories: (a) second-class nonprofit mail whose content includes more than 10 percent advertising; (b) third-class nonprofit mail containing advertising or including political advocacy material, and educational material for organizations that are not schools; and (c) fourth-class library rates for commercial publishers.

The Postal Reorganization Act of 1970, Public Law 91-375, converted the Post Office Department into the U.S. Postal Service, an independent establishment within the executive branch. The Postal Service commenced operations July 1, 1971. This agency is charged with providing patrons with reliable mail service at reasonable rates and fees.

The U.S. Postal Service is governed by an 11-member Board of Governors, including 9 Governors appointed by the President, a Postmaster General who is selected by the Governors, and a Deputy Postmaster General who is selected by the Governors and the Postmaster General.

Decisions on changes in domestic rates of postage and fees for postal services are recommended to the Governors of the Postal Service by the independent Postal Rate Commission after a hearing on the record under the Administrative Procedure Act. The Commission also recommends decisions on changes in the domestic mail classification schedule to the Governors. Decisions of the Governors on rates of postage, fees for postal services, and mail classification are final, subject to judicial review.

Effective in FY 1986, the Postal Service Fund (Fund) was included in the congressional and executive budget process and taken into account in making calculations under the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 (Gramm-Rudman-Hollings). The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1989 amended title 39 of the U.S. Code by adding a new section, 2009a, which provides that, beginning in FY 1990, the receipts and disbursements of the Fund shall not be considered as part of the congressional and executive budget process and shall not be taken into account in making calculations under Gramm-Rudman-Hollings.

Programs.—Included are all postal activities providing window services; processing, delivery, and transportation of mail; research and development; administration of postal field activities; and associated expenses of providing facilities and financing.

Financing.—The activities of the U.S. Postal Service are financed from the following sources: (1) mail and services revenue; (2) reimbursements from Federal and non-Federal sources; (3) proceeds from borrowing; (4) interest from U.S. securities and other investments; and (5) appropriations by the Congress. All receipts and deposits are made to the Postal Service Fund and are available without fiscal year limitation for payment of all expenses incurred, retirement of obligations, investment in capital assets, and investment in obligations and securities.

Separate legislation also increased the Postal Service's statutory borrowing authority beginning in FY 1991. Section 2005 of title 39, as amended, increased the Postal Service's borrowing authority by $2.5 billion in FY 1991 for a revised ceiling of $12.5 billion and an additional $2.5 billion in FY 1992 for a revised total ceiling of $15 billion. The total net increase in amounts outstanding in any one fiscal year were also increased and now may not exceed $2.0 billion in obligations issued for the purpose of capital improvements and $1.0 billion for the purpose of paying operating expenses. As of September 30, 1994, it is expected that the total debt instruments issued and outstanding pursuant to this authority will amount to $13.9034 billion.

Operating.—Estimated revenue will total $49.929 billion in 1994. This includes $48.551 billion from mail and services revenue, $487 million from investment income, a 1994 revenue forgone appropriation of $531 million, and $360 million for the 1993 revenue forgone appropriation shortfall. Total expenses are estimated at $49.842 billion in 1994.

The Postal Reorganization Act of 1970 established the Postal Service as a fully self-sufficient, independent entity. Postal revenues were to cover the full costs of postal operations. When the Act was passed, the Postal Service received substantial taxpayer subsidies, both appropriated and unappropriated. Consistent with the intent of the 1970 Act, Congress has taken steps over time to reduce these subsidies. Under the 1974 Civil Service Retirement Fund—Postal Employee Benefits Act, the Postal Service assumed responsibility for paying unfunded retirement costs from wage schedule increases under postal labor contracts. These costs are not covered by normal employee/employer contributions to the retirement fund. The 1985 Reconciliation Act shifted responsibility for paying health benefit costs of Postal annuitants retiring after 1986 from OPM to the Postal Service. The 1987 Reconciliation Act had the Postal Service make one-time payments to defray annuitant health benefit costs in 1988 and 1989 and retirement COLA costs in 1988. (Retirement COLAs, like wage schedule increases, result in retirement liabilities not covered by normal retirement fund contributions.) Under the 1989 Reconciliation Act, the Postal Service assumed responsibility for paying health benefits of survivors of post-86 annuitants and unfunded retirement COLA liabilities for post-86 annuitants.

The Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1990 superseded certain existing legislation and expanded the Postal Service's responsibility for benefit costs of postal annuitants. Effective October 1, 1990, the Postal Service is required to fund Civil Service Retirement System (CSRS) COLAs and the employer's share of Federal Employee Health Benefit Program (FEHBP) premiums for postal annuitants who retired after June 30, 1971, and their survivors. In addition, the Postal Service is required to fund the retroactive CSRS COLA and FEHBP premium costs for which the Postal Service would have been liable if the provisions of this new legislation had been in effect as of July 1, 1971.

The Administration's position is that the 1990 OBRA recognized the full liability of the Postal Service for liabilities, and interest on the liabilities, created by pre-1991 FEHB and COLA payments to postal annuitants (and their survivors) who retired after the 1971 Postal Reorganization. The payments required by the 1990 OBRA, however, do not offset the full amount of the liability as calculated by both Congressional and Administration staff. The Administration's 1994 proposals require payment of the difference between the liability recognized by the 1990 OBRA, and payments required by the 1990 OBRA. These proposed payments would begin in 1995. The Postal Service should plan to effect operating savings in an amount equal to these payments in the years the payments are due in order to continue to operate on a break-even basis. Without these additional payments, the amounts received from the Postal Service would not be adequate to pay the health and retirement benefits received by postal annuitants (and their survivors).

In addition to rail social security, rail industry pensions and special windfalls, the Railroad Retirement Board pays supplemental annuities to rail workers retiring at age 60 with 30 years of creditable rail service or at age 65 with 25–29 years of creditable service. Monthly benefit amounts are calculated from a base of $23, adding $4 for every year of service over 25, up to a maximum monthly benefit of $43. Employers finance benefits on a pay-as-you-go basis by a cents-per-hour tax, currently established at 31 cents per hour.

All railroad retirees receive the equivalent of a social security benefit, and they may also receive other add-ons including rail industry pension payments, windfall payments, and supplemental annuities. Social security benefits for former railroad employees are funded by the social security trust funds, and rail industry pension payments are the responsibility of the rail sector.

The Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act (FIRREA), enacted in August 1989, established the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) to dispose of insolvent thrift institutions until August 1992. The RTC Funding Act of 1991 provided additional resources for resolutions. The RTC Refinancing, Restructuring, and Improvement Act of 1991 extended RTC's authority to resolve thrifts until the end of FY 1993 and provided funding until April 1, 1992. Thrifts for which conservators or receivers are appointed October 1, 1993 or thereafter will be resolved by the Savings Association Insurance Fund.

FIRREA established the RTC Oversight Board to provide RTC with general policy direction and to review its performance. The RTC Thrift Depositor Protection Reform Act modified the structure of the Board, expanding it from five to seven members. The Secretary of the Treasury remains a member and Chairperson. The Chairman of the Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, and two other members appointed by the President with the advice and consent of the Senate also remain as members. The Oversight Board's membership was expanded to include the newly created position of RTC Chief Executive Officer (CEO) and the Chairman of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation (FDIC) and the Director of the Office of Thrift Supervision. The Secretary of Housing and Urban Development no longer serves on the Board but chairs the National Housing Advisory Board created by the Act.

The RTC Thrift Depositor Protection Reform Act abolished the RTC Board, formerly the FDIC Board. The RTC CEO assumes many of the duties and responsibilities previously held by that Board. The RTC CEO is presidentially appointed and confirmed by the Senate.

Sources of funds for the RTC include income and sale proceeds from assets acquired during the course of resolving thrift cases, $31.2 billion from the sale of capital certificates to the Resolution Funding Corporation (REFCORP), a privately capitalized financing entity also established by FIRREA, and $55.5 billion in funds appropriated prior to FY 1993. Of the $31.2 billion, $1.2 billion was contributed by the Federal Home Loans Banks through REFCORP to the RTC in 1989. The remaining $30 billion was raised through REFCORP issuance of long-term debt obligations.

The Administration is requesting that up to $28 billion be appropriated to RTC to cover anticipated losses on RTC's remaining caseload, estimated at $88 billion in assets, and any re-estimates for resolved cases. RTC's remaining caseload includes RTC conservatorships and additional thrifts that the Office of Thrift Supervision transfers to RTC prior to October 1, 1993. The $28 billion would remain available for two years following RTC's termination on December 31, 1996. Under present law, should RTC not require the full $28 billion, the Oversight Board may direct that the unused funds be transferred to the Savings Association Insurance Fund (SAIF) for SAIF losses, if needed. Upon termination of RTC, all assets and liabilities of the RTC will be transferred to the FSLIC Resolution Fund, managed by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. The FSLIC Resolution Fund thereafter will pay

The primary purpose of the Securities and Exchange Commission (the Commission) is to protect the interests of the investing public.

Full disclosure.—This program ensures that investors will be provided with material facts in the public offering, trading, voting and tendering of securities. Issuers that have conducted public offerings, have securities traded in the public markets, or have total assets and security holder populations of specified sizes, are required to furnish management, financial, and business information to the Commission on a continuing basis in proxy materials and in annual and other periodic reports. The staff reviews these documents on a selected basis for compliance with the disclosure requirements. In addition, all registration statements of issuers that are making their initial public offerings of securities and all third party tender offer filings are reviewed by the staff. As a result of the review process, the staff may issue comments to issuers to elicit better compliance or, where appropriate, refer matters for enforcement action.

Electronic filing project (EDGAR).—In 1984, the SEC began a pilot project that successfully tested the feasibility of receiving, analyzing and disseminating full disclosure filings electronically. The pilot received approximately 114,000 filings electronically through July 1992, when it was closed.

In early 1989, the SEC selected a contractor to develop the operational system. The operational system provides the Commission with the capability for electronic receipt, analysis, and dissemination of most of the full disclosure filings currently filed in paper. The operational system opened in January 1992 for test filings and the phase-in of the first group of mandated filers will begin in April 1993. The operational contract is for eight years ending in 1997. The EDGAR contract cost is 8.0 million in fiscal 1994.

Prevention and Suppression of Fraud.—This program evaluates information indicating possible violations of the federal securities laws. Possible violations include, among other things, the illegal distribution of unregistered securities, fraud in the offer, purchase and sale of securities, insider trading, market manipulation, and illegal conduct by broker-dealers, investment advisers and other regulated entities. Investigations of possible violations are conducted and, if appropriate, enforcement actions are initiated. Actions include civil proceedings seeking injunctive and other relief and administrative proceedings. The Commission is now authorized to seek court orders imposing civil monetary penalties for any securities law violation as well as to seek such penalties against regulated entities in administrative proceedings. Under appropriate circumstances matters are referred for criminal prosecution.

Economic and statistical research.—This program provides the Commission with research studies concerning economic and regulatory issues, such as takeovers, stock price volatility, mutual fund performance, and international aspects of securities regulation. The program also provides economic analyses of proposed regulations and legislation, and litigation support in enforcement cases.

Program direction.—This program assists the Commission in fulfilling its statutory requirements and in responding to changes in the securities industry by carefully evaluating priorities, formulating and implementing policies and managing agency resources. The staff provides management direction and analysis, internal control, financial management, personnel, data processing, public affairs, records management, information dissemination and general administrative services.

The Administration proposes to increase the registration of securities fee currently paid by applicants filing registration statements with the Commission from 1/32nd of one percent of total registration dollar volume to 1/24th of one percent. The Administration proposes to do this in two distinct ways: (1) authorizing legislation will be proposed to raise the base fee, stipulated in section 6(b) of the '33 Act and deposited in the General Fund of the Treasury, from 1/50th of one percent to 1/40th of one percent; and (2) appropriation language proposes the fee rate, specified in existing appropriations lanaguage and currently deposited as an offsetting collection against the SEC's appropriation, be increased from the difference between 1/50th and 1/32nd of one percent to the difference between 1/40th and 1/24th of one percent, and deposited into a special fund to be established in the Treasury.

The Administration supports legislation that would amend the Investment Advisers Act of 1940 to authorize, subject to appropriations action, the collection of annual fees from registered investment advisers for the purpose of funding increased inspections of industry members. Following enactment, the Administration will propose appropriations language which would require that annual fees be deposited into a special fund to be established in the Treasury to be available for the purpose of funding increased inspections of investment advisers.

The Securities Investor Protection Corporation (SIPC) may borrow up to $1 billion from the U.S. Department of the Treasury, through the Commission, in the event that the fund maintained by SIPC is insufficient to satisfy the claims of customers of failing brokerage firms. To date, SIPC has not needed these loans.

In 1994, the Selective Service System will continue to register men as they reach age 18, conduct a non-registrant identification program to insure compliance with the law, and maintain a data base of registrant records. The System will continue to enhance its capability to respond rapidly and efficiently from its standby posture.

Mobilization readiness remains one of the System's major objectives. Activities in support of this objective include all facets of National and Regional operational planning, maintenance of automated registration information, a comprehensive training program for the System's Reserve Forces, a training program for the standby board members, and administrative functions. The processing procedures of the Registrant Information Management System will continue to be tested and refined to insure that it can fully satisfy the emergency manpower needs of the Armed Forces.

Reserve and National Guard officers are trained for mobilization assignments in specific positions with the System. A special focus of the program is on the exercise of the mobilization plans to ensure a high readiness capability in the event of mobilization.

The Military Selective Service Act, section 10(h), as amended by section 715, Public Law 100-180, approved December 4, 1987, required the Selective Service System to develop a system for the delivery of health care personnel to the Armed Forces in a national emergency. The four development phases of the basic ADP system, which began in January 1988, have been completed. Phase I consisted of a needs analysis and plan of action; Phase II consisted of a concept of operations, a detailed study of the policies and procedures related to the induction of health care personnel, and the identification of functional ADP requirements; Phase III consisted of development of an ADP system; and Phase IV consisted of testing and acceptance of the basic system. During fiscal year 1994, work will continue on the follow-on components including: the capability to make alternative service work assignments for health care registrants found to be conscientious objectors opposed to all military service; a health care registration compliance system to identify potential non-registrants; and, a system for the examination and induction of overseas registrants. Subsequent to the completion of the follow-on components, efforts will be focused on system maintenance, program refinements, and testing and evaluation.

In 1994, registration improvement activities will include emphasis on targeted urban areas and audiences where registration shortfalls are the greatest. Public awareness, enhanced compliance efforts and Federal and State legislation requiring registration for employment and student financial assistance all contribute toward improved compliance with the law.

The Tennessee Valley Authority (TVA) was created in 1933 as a Government-owned corporation for the unified development of a river basin comprised of parts of seven States. Its program in 1994 will be financed from three sources: (1) appropriations by the Congress; (2) proceeds available from current power operations and borrowings against future power revenues; and (3) proceeds available from nonpower activities.

The following table provides detailed information on programs financed by power proceeds and borrowings and programs financed by appropriations and nonpower proceeds.

Budget program-stewardship.—TVA responsibilities in this area include maintaining a system of dams, reservoirs, and navigation facilities; refurbishing outmoded public facilities and other structures; performing adequate routine and cyclic maintenance; and maintaining and managing over 300,000 acres of public land and 11,000 miles of shoreline efficiently and in an environmentally sound manner. TVA operates and develops the navigation channel from Paducah, KY, to Knoxville, TN; operates a system of multipurpose reservoirs to retain excessive seasonal runoff and regulate discharges at flow rates that can be accommodated by downstream channels and reservoirs, resulting in the reduction of flood crests along the Tennessee River and its tributaries and also the lower Ohio and Mississippi Rivers; performs dam safety modifications and maintenance activities in a manner consistent with Federal dam safety guidelines and to ensure that the waterway system is in a safe operating condition; operates dewatering areas associated with TVA's reservoir system; protects public lands and waters under TVA trust; manages Land Between The Lakes, a 170,000 acre area in western Kentucky and Tennessee situated between TVA's Kentucky Reservoir and the Corps of Engineer's Barkley Reservoir; and performs environmental cleanup and demolition of obsolete buildings and materials on TVA's Muscle Shoal (AL) Reservation.

Water and land.—This program is designed to aid further the proper use, conservation, and development of the natural resources of region TVA serves. TVA operates a regional air quality monitoring network; monitors and seeks to improve water quality; obtains and provides information for sound floodplain management; supports environmental education; promotes the wise use of the forest resources of the region; and prepares maps in support of TVA activities as well as the regional mapping needs of the U.S. Geological Survey.

Land Between The Lakes.—TVA provides outdoor recreation and environmental education opportunities for the public at this facility.

Rural Development.—This program's mission is to achieve a competitive regional economy by strengthening local communities, upgrading the Valley's human and natural resources, and supporting a more innovative private sector.

National Fertilizer and Environmental Research Center.—This program serves the Tennessee Valley Region and the Nation by developing and introducing technologies that will enhance the environment while sustaining a productive and competitive U.S. agriculture system.

Power program: Power supply and use.—TVA is the sole supplier of electric power to an area of 80,000 square miles in the seven Tennessee Valley States. Income from power operations, net of interest charges and depreciation, and other operating expenses is estimated at $417,000 thousand in 1993.

Power generating facilities are financed from power proceeds and borrowings.

General services.—Operating costs for general service activities include reimbursable services furnished at the request and expense of other agencies.

Financing.—Amounts estimated to become available in 1994 are to be derived from (1) the requested appropriation of $138,973 thousand; (2) nonpower revenues and receipts of $101,951 thousand; and (3) power revenues and receipts of $5,419,916 thousand. A summary of the application of appropriations follows:

Operating results and financial conditions.—Only the power program and fertilizer introduction are intended to be self-supporting; the net expense of nonpower programs is covered largely by appropriation funding. Payments to the Treasury from power proceeds in 1994 are estimated at $76,000 thousand—$56,000 thousand as a dividend (return on the appropriation investment in the power program) and $20,000 thousand as a reduction in the appropriation investment in the power program. Outstanding borrowings for the power program are expected to increase by $1,284,000 thousand during 1994.

Total assets are estimated to increase by $1,900,711 thousand during 1994. The estimate of liabilities at September 30, 1994, is $1,763,204 thousand more than the estimate at September 30, 1993. Total Government equity at September 30, 1994, is estimated to be $137,507 thousand greater than that at September 1993. This change includes the requested appropriation for 1994 and the net income from power operations, less payments to the Treasury and the net expense of nonpower programs.

The Fund was established by the Coal Industry Retiree Health Benefit Act of 1992 to take over paying for medical care of retired miners and their dependents who were eligible for health care from the private 1950 and 1974 United Mine Workers of America Benefit Plans. The Fund's trustees represent the United Mine Workers of America and coal companies. The Fund will be financed by assessments on current and former signatories to labor agreements with the United Mine Workers; transfers from an overfunded United Mine Workers pension fund; and, commencing in 1995, transfers from the Abandoned Mine Land Reclamation Fund.

The Fund was established by the Coal Industry Retiree Health Benefit Act of 1992. It pays for health care of miners who retire between July 21, 1992 and September 30, 1994, and their dependents, who are eligible for benefits under an employer plan and cease to be covered, usually because an employer is out of business. Fund trustees are appointed by the United Mine Workers of America and the Bituminous Coal Operators Association, a coal industry bargaining group. The Fund is supported by signatories to the 1988 labor agreement with the United Mine Workers of America.

The United States Information Agency conducts the international informational, educational, cultural and exchange programs of the United States and advises the President, the National Security Council, and the Secretary of State on these matters. The Agency defines, explains, and advocates U.S. policies abroad and seeks to increase knowledge and understanding among foreign audiences of U.S. society and its values. In 1994, the Agency will continue to emphasize programs for Eastern Europe and the New Independent States.

Agency operations are largely financed from this appropriation and consist of the following major elements:

Overseas missions.—The Agency currently operates over 200 U.S. Information Service posts in over 140 countries. These USIS posts administer exchange-of-persons programs and conduct informational and cultural activities using, primarily, materials and programs provided by support offices in Washington, DC.

Bureau of Broadcasting.—All broadcasting services within USIA, including the Voice of America, the Television and Film Service, and Radio and TV Marti, function under the Bureau of Broadcasting. The Bureau maintains WORLDNET, the Agency's global satellite distribution system transmitting to a worldwide network of television receive-only antennas. The Voice produces radio programs in English and 47 other languages broadcasting from transmitters at 3 domestic and 12 overseas locations.

Radio Free Asia.—A new Radio Free Asia broadcasting operation will be established to provide "surrogate" broadcasting to China and other Asian countries.

Educational and cultural affairs.—This activity covers the staff that administers educational and cultural exchanges between the United States and over 140 countries. It also provides program and support costs for the J. William Fulbright Foreign Scholarship Board, American-sponsored schools abroad, binational centers, USIS centers abroad, book publication, exhibits, English teaching, and other educational and cultural activities. Grant costs for Academic and Visitor Exchanges, the Humphrey Fellowship, Citizen Exchanges, Congress-Bundestag and new exchange programs for the New Independent States and Eastern Europe are funded separately in the Educational and Cultural Exchanges account.

Policy guidance and program support.—This activity serves primarily to support USIS posts by coordinating overseas participation of U.S. experts and other programs, and by producing and acquiring press and publications and other material for their use.

Agency direction and management.—This activity encompasses managerial staffs, research and centralized servicing functions for the Agency as a whole.

Administrative support from other agencies.—This activity covers payments to the Department of State for USIA's share of the costs of services provided for our overseas operations, to the General Services Administration for space and services provided under the Federal building rent system, and payments to other agencies for services provided.

This appropriation provides funding for the conduct of audits and investigations relating to the programs and operations of the United States Information Agency. Audits and investigations are responsible for providing leadership, coordination and policy recommendations to promote economy, efficiency and effectiveness and to identify and correct management and administrative deficiencies which create conditions for existing or potential instances of fraud, waste and mismanagement. The audit function provides internal audit services, program evaluation, and contract audit services. The investigation function provides for the detection and investigation of improper and illegal activities involving agency personnel, programs, and operations. This appropriation also provides funding for inspection services for domestic and overseas operations.

This appropriation provides funding for programs authorized by the Mutual Educational and Cultural Exchanges Act of 1961, as amended, to increase mutual understanding between the peoples of the United States and other nations. It includes the following:

Academic and visitor exchanges.—This consists of academic (Fulbright) exchanges of American and foreign graduate students, lecturers, and scholars including the President's Undergraduate Student Exchange between the United States and the former USSR; officially invited international visitors; and selected foreign visitors who are not U.S. Government-sponsored.

Hubert H. Humphrey Fellowships.—This provides for one year of graduate academic and professional training to promising mid-career professionals from developing countries.

Citizen Exchanges.—This supports traditional and other exchange programs conducted by non-governmental organizations.

Congress-Bundestag Exchange Program.—This co-funded activity provides mutual full scholarships for year-long academic home stay programs between Germany and the United States.

NIS/Central and East Europe Training Program.—This program provides training for local government officials, scholars, and business leaders to foster growth of democratic institutions and economic pluralism in the developing democracies of the region.

Edmund S. Muskie Fellowship Program.—This program provides scholarships for graduate study in the United States in the fields of business administration, economics, law, and public administration. Fellowships are awarded to qualified young and mid-career individuals who are citizens of the New Independent States.

World Scholar-Athlete Games.—This activity provides support for the first World Scholar-Athlete Games to be held in Newport, Rhode Island, June 20–July 1, 1993.

Near and Middle East Research and Training.—This activity provides assistance to graduate and postdoctoral studies by United States scholars on the Near and Middle East.

NIS-American Interparliamentary Exchanges.—This program supports senior-level legislative exchange projects for parliamentarians from representative states of the former Soviet Union.

Freedom Support Act Exchange Programs.—The Secondary School Exchange Initiative of the Freedom Support Act provides for exchanges of high school students between the U.S. and the New Independent States (NIS) of the former Soviet Union.

The Agency also manages other exchange related activities funded from the Agency's Salaries and Expenses appropriation, e.g., cultural presentations, the J. William Fulbright Foreign Scholarship Board, student advising, cultural centers, and traveling American experts.

The staff costs to operate the exchange programs funded by this appropriation are included in the Salaries and Expenses account.

The National Endowment for Democracy is a private, nonprofit corporation established in the District of Columbia to encourage and strengthen the development of democratic institutions and processes internationally, including activities which promote individual rights and freedom, through private sector initiatives, exchanges, training programs, and other activities.

The National Endowment for Democracy Act provides that the U.S. Information Agency will make an annual grant to the Endowment to enable the Endowment to fulfill the purposes of the Act. The Endowment does not carry out programs directly but provides funding for activities of the Free Trade Union Institute of the AFL–CIO, the Center for International Private Enterprise of the U.S. Chamber of Commerce, the National Republican Institute for International Affairs of the Republican Party, the National Democratic Institute for International Affairs of the Democratic Party, and other private organizations and groups.

In 1994, additional funding in the amount of $20,000,000 has been included for expanded democratization efforts in Africa, Latin America, and Asia.

The Office of Cuba Broadcasting was newly established in 1990 to provide coordinated management of the Radio and Television Marti programs. Both Radio and Television Marti programs originate in Washington, D.C., and are broadcast to Cuba from facilities in Greenville, North Carolina; Marathon Key, Florida; and Cudjoe Key, Florida.

The objectives of the Radio and Television Marti are: (1) to support the right of the people of Cuba to seek, receive, and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers; (2) to be effective in furthering the open communication of information and ideas through use of radio and television broadcasting to Cuba; (3) to serve as a consistently reliable and authoritative source of accurate, objective, and comprehensive news; and (4) to function in accordance with all Voice of America standards, and to broadcast programs which present a variety of views.

Program operations.—These funds are for personnel compensation, research, transmission costs, and other programming requirements for Radio and Television Marti, and for the establishment of facilities necessary to the production and broadcasting of Television Marti. Radio Marti broadcasts 24-hours per day, and includes news and information programs throughout the day to ensure that the people of Cuba are made aware of important, fast-breaking developments. Television Marti produces a daily half hour network quality newscast as well as other special programs.

New construction.—In 1994, the agency will continue the Administration-approved streamlined modernization plan to expand the transmission capability of the Voice of America (VOA). This plan includes completion of two high priority shortwave radio relay stations, one in Morocco and one in Thailand, and construction of new medium wave stations in the Middle East and West Africa.

Upgrade of existing relay station capabilities.—This activity funds the upgrade of our existing relay stations to improve transmission quality and avoid the need for future new construction. In 1993, funds provide for continued work on the VOA shortwave facility in Sri Lanka and medium wave facility in Rhodes, Greece. In addition, refurbishment of Bangkok and Kavala medium wave will be initiated.

Major improvements, replacements and repairs.—This activity funds the continuing repairs and improvements required to maintain the VOA's existing global radio network.

Broadcast facility leases and land rentals.—This activity primarily funds leased broadcast facilities at Wertachtal, Germany.

Satellite and Terrestrial Feed Systems.—This activity provides funding for the construction and maintenance of the Satellite Interconnect System (SIS) and Television Receive Only (TVRO) earth stations.

The Washington Metropolitan Area Transit Authority (WMATA) is a non-Federal agency established pursuant to an interstate compact among Maryland, Virginia, and the District of Columbia. The Authority's primary functions are to plan, develop, finance, and construct the Metrorail rapid transit system and to operate the bus/rail transit system in the National Capital area. The rail system extends from the District of Columbia into the participating jurisdictions of Maryland and Virginia.

This WMATA account provides the annual Federal share (two-thirds) of interest payments on outstanding WMATA bonds sold in support of the rail construction program. The WMATA bonds, totaling $997 million, are guaranteed by the Federal Government and become due beginning in the year 2012. In September 1979, WMATA and the Department of Transportation approved an Initial Bond Repayment Participation Agreement providing for an overall two-third Federal and one-third local sharing of the interest and principal costs of the bonds. In August 1982, this agreement was reaffirmed in a supplement to the agreement.

The proposal would provide the Office of the United States Trade Representative (USTR) sufficient 1993 operating funds to bring to an acceptable conclusion the following two major trade initiatives:

—Resuming the North American Free Trade Association talks to satisfactorily resolve environment, worker rights and other issues, and —Continuing the Uruguay Round negotiations on the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade to settle remaining areas of disagreement.

Each initiative will impose significant expenses during the second half of 1993 on USTR operations.

This supplemental would purchase food to give to food banks selected by the States. The food banks give the food to low-income households. Since USDA needs lead time to get food delivered, food banks may receive smaller deliveries at the beginning of a fiscal year. The Administration requests $23.5 million in 1993 to buy food to deliver in 1994. These funds will ensure a steady flow of food to food banks throughout the year.

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

This supplemental request would make additional funds available to the Economic Development Administration (EDA) for grants to States, local governments, Indian tribes, and private and public non-profit organizations to promote the long-term recovery of economically distressed areas. Most EDA funds are awarded to projects that help rebuild the Nation's basic infrastructure—industrial parks, water and sewer improvements, access roads to industrial sites. Other grants are awarded to help localities plan for economic development and to recover from sudden economic problems, such as those resulting from hurricanes, floods, and other disasters.

This supplemental request would provide funds for the Minority Business Development Agency. Funds are to cover an anticipated administrative shortfall. Twenty-five percent of the current population of the United States is black, Hispanic, Asian, or Pacific Islander. By the year 2050, these groups are projected to make up 48 percent of the U.S. population. Minority-owned businesses are estimated to make up about 6 percent of all businesses. Minorities must be brought into the mainstream of the U.S. economy.

This supplemental request would promote the development of broadband, interactive telecommunications networks linking the Nation's schools, libraries, governments, and other public information producers. Grants would be awarded to States, local governments, universities, school systems, and other non-profit groups to connect public facilities in such a network or to develop plans for statewide and, eventually, nationwide systems. This proposal should accelerate the expansion of interactive networks now in the early stages of development.

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

COMPENSATORY EDUCATION FOR THE DISADVANTAGED—Continued

Of the total supplemental request, $500 million would provide support for local school districts throughout the U.S. to operate 1993 summer programs providing education services to disadvantaged children in elementary and secondary grades. Funds would be distributed through the Chapter 1 concentration grant formula for use by school districts only during the remaining months of fiscal year 1993. The funds are meant to provide new summer educational programs that would otherwise not have been available in participating schools.

An additional $235 million would provide funds to mitigate substantially the effects of changes in the location of poor children in the U.S. that occurred between the 1980 and 1990 decennial censuses. The Chapter 1 compensatory education program would use, for the first time, 1990 census data to distribute 1993 appropriations for use in the 1993-94 school year. The total number of poor children ages 5 to 17 increased between 1980 and 1990, and the distribution of those children shifted. Poor children are increasingly concentrated in the school districts of the western States, and less concentrated in the schools of the eastern States. The supplemental would ease the transition to a smaller compensatory education program in communities that would otherwise have the size of their Chapter 1 grants substantially reduced for school year 1993-94.

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

40.00 Budget authority (appropriation)		2,023,730
Relation of obligations to outlays:
71.00 Total obligations
90.00 Outlays

The current estimate of the cost of fully funding the 1993-94 school year would be financed from these supplemental resources, as would the current estimate of shortfalls for prior award years. This supplemental request would replace funds which would otherwise have been derived from the 1994 appropriation for the Pell grant program, requiring that year's program, in turn, to use funds from 1995.

Of the amount requested, the President has designated $1,863,730 thousand as an emergency requirement under the Budget Enforcement Act and $160,000 thousand as a non-emergency requirement.

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

90.00 Outlays		21,555	19,159

This supplemental request would provide funds to increase the participation of Department of Energy's (DOE) non-defense laboratories in Cooperative Research and Development Agreements (CRADAs) with the private sector. The funds will go to the laboratories to pay for their share of jointly agreed upon research and development in the CRADAs. In addition, $50 million in 1993 funds appropriated for "Weapons Activities" will be redirected from research and development on nuclear weapons at DOE's defense laboratories to CRADAs in dual use technologies at the defense laboratories. This proposal would also provide funds to be used for additional energy efficiency projects within the Department of Energy.

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

90.00 Outlays		30,233	55,428

This proposal would provide additional funds for the following:

Alternative-Fuel Vehicles. The Federal government operates a fleet of about 375,000 light-duty vehicles (automobiles, pickup trucks, and small vans), not including the Postal Service's vehicles. A program is already in place to purchase increasing numbers of alternative-fuel vehicles (AFVs), with $7 million appropriated to DOE in 1993 to pay for the incremental cost of AFVs. This supplemental request would provide an additional $28.2 million for 1993, which would cover conversions of existing Federal fleet vehicles as well as additional purchases of new vehicles.

Weatherization Grants. The Weatherization assistance program provides funds to States to subsidize weatherization improvements to the residences of low-income citizens. The current level of funding ($185 million in 1993) is distributed as "formula grants" to the States, with each receiving a specified percentage of the total. The increase proposed here, $47 million for 1993, would be distributed in the same way, although starting in 1994 the additional funds over the baseline will require matching funds from the States.

Federal Energy Management Program. Both Administration policy and the Energy Policy Act of 1992 require that Federal agencies reduce their energy consumption per square foot of facilities by 20 percent by the year 2000, relative to their consumption in 1985. In order to meet the 20 percent goal, the Administration proposes to ramp up spending from the current level of $150 million to over $500 million per year by 1996. As a first step in that increase, a total of $18.8 million to improve Federal facility energy efficiency is being requested as supplemental appropriations for 1993, divided among four agencies. The language above provides $5.6 million as the Federal Energy Management Program's share of that first step. It will provide for the training of approximately 560 new energy managers and the performance of energy audits at 470 Federal sites around the country. The total $18.8 million Federal energy efficiency supplemental is expected to create approximately 188 jobs in 1993, with substantially more in the future as the program expands.

Federal Energy Efficiency Fund. Besides the $5.6 million for increased training and site audits described above, the $18.8 million Federal energy efficiency initiative provides $13.1 million in funds for actual facility improvements. The largest energy-using agencies (the Departments of Defense, Energy, and Veterans' Affairs and the General Services Administration) will receive direct appropriations for this purpose. Those four agencies account for a little more than 90 percent of all energy use in Federal facilities, and they will receive a little more than 90 percent of the facility improvement funds. In addition, the language above also provides $1.2 million to create a fund to be administered by the Federal Energy Management Program to help finance energy improvements in all other Federal agencies, proportionate to their 9 percent share of energy consumed by government facilities.

These proposals, excluding the proposal funding for Federal facility energy efficiency, would result in 1993 obligations of $94 million and 1993 outlays of $35 million. An estimated 870 jobs would be generated in 1993 and 1994. Estimated obligations and outlays resulting from funds requested in this account for Federal facility energy efficiency are included in the totals for the Federal energy management program.

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

Relation of obligations to outlays:
71.00 Total obligations		10,000
90.00 Outlays		10,000

This supplemental request would release $10 million from the general fund to the Limitation on Administration in order for the Social Security Administration to process non-Social Security casework under section 9704 and 9706 of the Internal Revenue Code of 1986, as added by Section 19141 of the Energy Policy Act of 1992 (Public Law 102-486).

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

SUPPLEMENTAL SECURITY INCOME

Program and Financing (in thousands of dollars)

Program by Activities:
10.00 Total obligations (object class 25.2)		150,000
Financing:
40.00 Budget authority (appropriation)		150,000
Relation of obligations to outlays:
71.00 Total obligations		150,000
90.00 Outlays		150,000

This request provides additional funds to reimburse the Social Security trust funds for the Supplemental Security Income program's share of Social Security administrative costs as reflected in SSA's fiscal year 1993 supplemental request for the Limitation on Administrative Expenses account.

This technical change shifts the date indefinite authority can be used from July 31 to June 15. The current appropriation language limits the use of the indefinite funding authority to benefits that are paid after July 31. Because of recent increases in the number of SSI recipients, the continuing increase in SSI disability applications, and the revised projection of the program impact of the Zebley decision, SSA projects that the regular 1993 appropriation will not be sufficient to cover benefit obligations for a portion of the August payment (payable July 30) and the entire September payment. By law, since August 1, the day regularly designated for delivery of the August SSI benefit check falls on a Sunday, the August 1993 benefit check will be delivered on July 30, the last banking day before August 1. This is a technical revision only and will not change the obligation or outlay pattern in the SSI program.

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

PUBLIC AND INDIAN HOUSING PROGRAMS

SEVERELY DISTRESSED PUBLIC HOUSING PROJECTS

(Supplemental now requested, existing legislations)

For activities authorized by Section 24 of the United States Housing Act of 1937, as amended, $300,000,000 to remain available until expended, to be derived by transfer from amounts appropriated for this purpose under the head "Homeownership and Opportunity for People Everywhere (HOPE) Grants" in the Department of Veterans Affairs, and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act of 1993.

Program and Financing (in thousands of dollars)

Identification code 86-0218-1-1-604	1992 actual	1993 est.	1994 est.
Program by activities:
10.00 Total obligations (object class 41.0)		300,000

74.40 Obligated balance, end of year		-300,000	-270,000
90.00 Outlays			30,000

This proposal reflects the transfer of resources appropriated for this purpose under the "HOPE Grants" heading to a separate account. These funds will be available to rehabilitate and restore severely dilapidated public housing projects, thereby expanding the supply of decent, safe, and affordable housing for low-income renters. Funds provided to this program are in addition to the substantial resources provided for the public housing modernization program, and are specifically targeted to the units in most need of attention.

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

COMMUNITY PLANNING AND DEVELOPMENT

COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT GRANTS

(Supplemental now requested, existing legislation)

For an additional amount for "Community Development Grants," for use only for the repair, renovation, or replacement, or other authorized community development activities affecting structures damaged or destroyed by Hurricane Andrew, Hurricane Iniki, Typhoon Omar, and other Presidentially-declared disasters, to remain available until September 30, 1995, $40,000,000, to be derived by transfer from the $100,000,000 appropriated in the second paragraph under the head "Annual Contributions for Assisted Housing" in the Dire Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1992, Public Law 102-368: Provided, That the Secretary may waive entirely, or in any part, any requirement set forth in Title I of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, except a requirement relating to fair housing and nondiscrimination, the environment, and labor standards, if the Secretary finds that such waiver will further the purposes of the use of the amount hereby transferred.

90.00 Outlays		660,960	1,334,320

This request includes two separate proposed supplementals. The first is an appropriations request of $2,536 million as part of the Administration's "Economic Stimulus Initiative."

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

The second proposal would transfer $40 million from amounts appropriated for Annual Contribution for Assisted Housing in the Dire Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1992. The $40 million will be used under the CDBG program in disaster areas.

HOME INVESTMENT PARTNERSHIPS PROGRAM

(Supplemental now requested, existing legislation)

For additional amounts for the HOME investment partnerships program, as authorized under Title II of the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act, as amended, subject to the terms provided under this head in the Dire Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1992, Public Law 102-368, to remain available until expended, $60,000,000, to be derived by transfer from the $100,000,000 appropriated in the second paragraph under the head "Annual Contributions for Assisted Housing" in such Act.

74.40	Obligated balance, end of year		−58,800	−44,400
90.00	Outlays		1,200	14,400

This proposal would transfer $60 million from amounts appropriated for Annual Contributions for Assisted Housing in the Dire Emergency Supplemental Appropriations Act, 1992 (P.L. 102-368). The $60 million will be used under the HOME program in disaster areas.

SUPPORTIVE HOUSING PROGRAM

Program and Financing (in thousands of dollars)

Identification code 86-0188-1-1-604		1992 actual	1993 est.	1994 est.
	Program by activities:
10.00	Total obligations (object class 41.0)		423,000
	Financing:
40.00	Budget authority (appropriation)		423,000
	Relation of obligations to outlays:
71.00	Total obligations		423,000
72.40	Obligated balance, start of year			296,100
74.40	Obligated balance, end of year		−296,100	−84,600
90.00	Outlays		126,900	211,500

This supplemental request would provide an additional $423 million for activities that could be implemented immediately to house and provide appropriate services to the Nation's homeless families and individuals. By providing funds for housing rehabilitation combined with health and social services, this proposal not only addresses the symptoms, but also the root causes of homelessness—the lack of shelter and the multiple social problems of many homeless people, such as mental illness, substance abuse, and lack of job skills. To ensure rapid award and expenditure of these funds, the regular program will be modified in order to focus funding on projects that are ready for immediate implementation.

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

OPPORTUNITY FOR YOUTH: YOUTHBUILD

(Supplemental now requested, existing legislation)

For activities authorized by subtitle D of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1992, under the heading "HOPE for Youth: Youthbuild", $40,000,000 to remain available until expended, to be derived by transfer from amounts appropriated under the head "Homeownership and Opportunity for People Everywhere (HOPE) Grants" in the Department of Veterans Affairs, and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1993.

Program and Financing (in thousands of dollars)

Identification code 86-0219-1-1-604		1992 actual	1993 est.	1994 est.
	Program by activities:
10.00	Total obligations (object class 41.0)			40,000
	Financing:
21.40	Unobligated balance available, start of year			−40,000
24.40	Unobligated balance available, end of year		40,000
42.00	Budget authority (Transferred from other accounts)		40,000
	Relation of obligations to outlays:
71.00	Total obligations			40,000
74.40	Obligated balance, end of year			−36,000
90.00	Outlays			4,000

This proposal reflects the transfer of resources appropriated for this purpose under the "Hope for Youth: Youthbuild" heading to a separate account. Those funds will be available to educate, train, and provide stipends for economically disadvantaged young adults to construct and rehabilitate housing for low-income and homeless persons. The program will expand the supply of affordable housing, while at the same time, enabling high school dropouts to obtain the education and employment skills necessary to achieve self-sufficiency.

MANAGEMENT AND ADMINISTRATION

SALARIES AND EXPENSES

(Appropriations language now requested, existing legislation)

The third, fourth, and fifth provisos under this heading in title II of the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1993, are repealed.

This language would remove the ceilings on obligations for personal services and travel for the budget activities of Departmental Management, General Counsel, and Policy Development and Research, allowing the Department more flexibility in assigning work and in responding to program requirements.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Except the account for the Office of Inspector General, in title II, Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1992, the accounts under the head Management and Administration and the amounts in such accounts are hereby merged, into "Salaries and Expenses," for the purposes of administering such accounts in accordance with 31 U.S.C., subchapter IV, chapter 15.

The seventh paragraph under this heading in the Departments of Veterans Affairs and Housing and Urban Development, and Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1993, (the second full paragraph at 106 Stat. 1591) is repealed.

The first provision would allow the Department to merge the seven Headquarters appropriations for 1992 into HUD's Salaries and Expenses appropriation for 1992. This merger will alleviate the administrative burden associated with accounting for and reporting monthly on eight expired appropriations for the five years following expiration.

The second provision would remove the limitation on noncareer SES appointments in 1993, allowing the Department flexibility and responsiveness to the new administration.

This supplemental request would be used for school operations, administrative cost grants, road maintenance, forest development, and operation and maintenance of education facilities. Of the amount requested, $23 million is needed to meet shortfalls in funds available for Indian School Equalization Programs and related administrative cost grants in the current school year. The shortfall is a result of an unanticipated five percent increase in school enrollment. Based on current projections, an additional $26 million is needed to supplement the funds available for the 1993–94 school year that begins July 1, 1993. The balance of the request includes $23 million for road maintenance, $15 million for forest development, and $4.7 million for education facility operations and maintenance projects to stimulate employment through economic development and infrastructure improvements on Indian reservations. It is intended to enhance school operations and natural resource protection on Indian reservations.

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

This request would provide a one-time transfer of unobligated balances of the Oil Spill Emergency Fund (scheduled to expire in 1994) to the Bureau of Indian Affairs Alaska Resupply program. These funds would provide sufficient funds to cover an Anti-Deficiency Act violation that occurred in 1992 and provide obligational authority necessary to meet the long lead-time requirements for ordering fuel and other supplies for delivery to remote areas of Alaska. Other authorities, in addition to these funds exist to meet any unanticipated requirements relating to oil spills for the remainder of 1993 and 1994.

GENERAL ADMINISTRATION

Salaries and Expenses

(Supplemental now requested, existing legislation)

Notwithstanding section 1346 of title 31, United States Code, or section 612 of the Treasury, Postal Service, and General Government Appropriations Act, 1993, funds made available for fiscal year 1993 by this or any other Act shall be available for the interagency funding of debt collection tracking and reporting by the Department of Justice.

This language would clarify the authority of the Justice Department to receive reimbursement from agencies referring debt to the department for collection. The reimbursement would cover the cost of tracking and reporting to those agencies the status of debt related to their programs.

This supplemental is requested as part of the President's economic stimulus package. Of the $1 billion proposed, $989.5 million is for the Job Training Partnership Act Summer Youth Employment and Training Program for the summer of 1993. The funds will be used to provide economically disadvantaged youth with work experience and training. In addition, about one-third of the resources will be made available only for academic enrichment such as basic skills training, testing and counseling, and closer coordination with schools. Together with already-appropriated funding, a total of almost $1.7 billion would be available for grants to States and local areas during the summer of 1993. The additional $989.5 million would finance an estimated 675,400 summer jobs, for a total of almost 1.3 million youth who could participate. This would generate the equivalent of 103,900 full year jobs in 1993. All local areas will receive increased resources and, to attack urban unemployment, a portion of the supplemental proposal would be targeted on youth in inner cities. This public summer jobs program will be coupled with and complemented by a campaign to expand private summer job opportunities for young Americans.

In conjunction with the academic enrichment component of the Summer youth employment and training program, $10,000,000 is requested for developing models and demonstrations of enriched learning and work experience serving 6,800 youth during the summer months, identifying best practices of programs operated during the summer of 1993. Additional funding in the amount of $500,000 is requested for technical assistance and training activities associated with the Summer Youth Employment and Training Program.

In addition to the funding requested, appropriations langauge is proposed making Economic Dislocation and Worker Adjustment Assistance discretionary funding authorized by the Job Training Partnership Act and appropriated for the program year 1993 period July 1, 1993 to June 30, 1994, available at the time the supplemental is enacted. This supplemental would provide resources for a worker profiling initiative. The goal of the worker profiling initiatives is to identify those workers who may face difficulties in finding new jobs and then to refer them to reemployment services early in their spell of unemployment. Grants to State employment security agencies totaling $9.4 million will provide resources to States to develop systems to identify these structurally unemployed workers at the time they file for unemployment compensation. The balance will, among other things, finance a national ADP design center which will assist in developing the profiling systems. Up to $2.7 million may be transferred to the Program administration account.

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

	Relation of obligations to outlays:
71.00	Total obligations		4,000,000
90.00	Outlays		4,000,000

This proposal would provide an increase of $4 billion, which is the estimated FY 1993 cost of benefits associated with the anticipated extension of the Emergency Unemployment Compensation (EUC) Act. These funds may be used to provide general revenue advances for the Extended Unemployment Compensation Account of the Unemployment Trust Fund as well as for advances to the Unemployment Trust Fund as authorized by sections 905(d) and 1203 of the Social Security Act, as amended; to the Black Lung Disability Trust Fund as authorized by section 9501(c)(1) of the Internal Revenue Code of 1954, as amended; to the Unemployment Trust Fund as authorized by section 8509 of title 5, United States Code, and section 104(d) of Public Law 102-164; and to the Federal Unemployment Benefits and Allowances account.

The EUC extension will provide for a continuation of the existing EUC program in Public Law 103-6 through October 2, 1993, and phase-out of remaining weeks of entitlement through January 15, 1994. The extension will provide benefits

74.40 Obligated balance, end of year		−4,900
90.00 Outlays		9,400	4,900

This proposal would provide the implementation of a nationwide unemployment insurance profiling system.

Department of State

INTERNATIONAL ORGANIZATIONS AND CONFERENCES

CONTRIBUTIONS FOR INTERNATIONAL PEACEKEEPING ACTIVITIES

(Supplemental now requested, additional authorizing legislation required.)

For an additional amount for "Contributions for international peacekeeping activities", $293,000,000.

Relation of obligations to outlays:
71.00 Total obligations		293,000
90.00 Outlays		293,000

This proposal would provide $293 million to pay the United States' share of the expenses to initiate peacekeeping activities by the United Nations in Mozambique and to extend and expand UN activities in Somalia, Yugoslavia, Angola, and Iraq/Kuwait. The new force in Mozambique and the other expanded forces were not anticipated in the 1993 budget request, but have already been deployed.

74.49 Contract authority		−2,976,250	−2,976,250
90.00 Outlays		316,440	1,895,482

This supplemental request would expand the Federal-aid Highway program to the maximum level authorized in the Intermodal Surface Transportation Efficiency Act (ISTEA) for 1993. It will result in increasing the obligation limitation from the currently enacted level of $15.3 billion to $18.3 billion.

It is expected that the States will obligate these projects quickly for ready-to-go projects with a significant portion for fast-spending resurfacing, rehabilitation, and restoration projects.

The proposal also includes a provision intended to accelerate obligations and outlays. The proposal provides that additional obligation authority given to a particular State shall be redistributed among the States if the State has not obligated and received bids on projects for the increased authority within 60 days of receiving the additional obligation authority. The Department of Transportation will ensure that these funds support projects that will create jobs this year.

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

90.00 Outlays		34,000	106,000

This supplemental request would provide $250 million in grants to airports for airport development projects, including those which expand capacity, increase safety, speed air travel and mitigate noise. The requested additional increase in liquidating cash will ensure that the obligational authority previously made available for 1993 is outlayed quickly.

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

OFFICE OF THE SECRETARY

(Appropriations language now requested, existing legislation)

OFFICE OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR TRANSPORTATION POLICY

For necessary expenses of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Transportation Policy, $2,358,000 to be derived from amounts made available for the "Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy and International Affairs" in the Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1993.

OFFICE OF THE ASSISTANT SECRETARY FOR AVIATION AND INTERNATIONAL AFFAIRS

For necessary expenses of the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Aviation and International Affairs, $7,920,000 to be derived from amounts made available for the "Office of the Assistant Secretary for Policy and International Affairs" and the "Office of Essential Air Service" in the Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1993.

OFFICE OF THE DIRECTOR OF PUBLIC AFFAIRS

Amounts made available for the Office of the Assistant Secretary for Public Affairs in the Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1993, which are unobligated on the date of enactment of this Act shall be transferred to and merged under this head.

This proposal reflects a reorganization of the Office of the Secretary.

TITLE III—GENERAL PROVISIONS

Section 345 of the Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1992, as amended by Section 353 of the Department of Transportation and Related Agencies Appropriations Act, 1993, is amended by adding at the end of subsection (d) thereof the following:

"(7) The Metropolitan New York Aircraft Noise Mitigation Committee shall not be subject to the Federal Advisory Committee Act."

This provision will permit the Committee to continue to operate under its current procedures.

Credit financing accounts disburse funds and receive various payments and fees. When cash balances result from an excess of receipts over outlays, these balances are deposited with Treasury and earn interest. This account pays such interest to credit financing accounts from the general fund of the Treasury in accordance with section 505(c) of the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990. The estimates of interest paid by this fund are derived from the estimates of interest received in the various credit financing accounts. Amounts shown in this schedule are interest payments related to proposed changes for the receiving account.

This proposal would provide for personnel costs needed to expand the Environmental Protection Agency's (EPA) voluntary "green programs" that promote private-sector energy conservation. This effort would build on EPA's already successful "Green Lights" program in which Fortune 500 companies are encouraged to convert profitably to more energy-efficient lighting and thereby reduce electricity generation and greenhouse gas emissions.

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

This account provides funding for watershed resource restoration through the non-point source grant program under Section 319 of the Clean Water Act. Reductions in non-point source pollution will help restore watersheds and estuaries, leading to increased numbers of fish and other aquatic life, and improving fishing and recreational opportunities in urban, suburban, and rural areas. The usual 40 percent state match is waived for these additional funds in order to accelerate obligations.

This account also includes contract funding to help expand the EPA's voluntary "green programs" that promote private-sector energy conservation. This effort would build on EPA's already successful "Green Lights" program in which Fortune 500 companies are encouraged to convert profitably to more energy-efficient lighting and thereby reduce electricity generation and greenhouse gas emissions.

This supplemental request would provide funds that contribute to the Nation's industrial competitiveness and research capabilities. Federal programs, such as the High Performance Computing and Communications program, have played a key role in maintaining U.S. leadership in high performance computing. This proposal would build upon this program and initiate projects among four Federal agencies (the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the National Science Foundation, the National Institutes of Health, and the Department of Commerce) to develop applications that use advanced computers and communication networks. These applications would be used to solve problems in health care, education, manufacturing, and access to libraries.

This supplemental request would support an additional $2.6 billion in section 7(a) loan guarantees. Demand for the program has increased substantially over the past 18 months as many banks have become increasingly reluctant to lend to small firms because of the general weakness of the economy and the tight regulatory environment within which banks must operate. Given this high demand, it is expected that without supplemental funds the current appropriation for the program will be exhausted by early May forcing a shutdown of the program until the new fiscal year.

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

This supplemental would provide resources for a pilot national service program established this year. The program will enable more than 1,000 young people, ages 17-25, to serve their communities and participate in leadership development training activities. Leaders trained during this program will serve as catalysts for the next wave of national service programs expected to be authorized under the President's national service program later this year.

These young people, serving in 4-10 regional clusters across the country, will participate in delivering services that directly improve the lives of children at risk. Service projects will focus on the healthcare needs of at risk children, bettering their environment, providing educational enrichment and improving public safety. Each service project will have clear measurable goals and undergo a rigorous evaluation process.

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

The Federal Government makes an annual payment to the District to compensate it for the net cost of the large Federal presence in the nation's capital. The enacted 1993 Federal payment was below the amount the Mayor requested to help balance the District's budget. The $28 million will assist the District in reducing its projected operating deficit of $300 million for 1993.

This supplemental request would provide funds to increase the number of enforcement staff in Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) field offices. This financing would enable EEOC to effectively and efficiently process the new cases filed pursuant to the provisions of the Americans with Disabilities Act of 1990 and the Civil Rights Act of 1991. Enhanced enforcement of these Acts would enable all Americans to develop their full potential in the workplace, increasing the overall productivity of the American economy.

These funds would provide the necessary staffing and equipment to enable the Federal Communications Commission (FCC) to implement the requirements of the Cable Television Consumer Protection and Competition Act of 1992. The Cable Act mandates regulation of cable television rates in approximately 30,000 communities where cable television is not subject to effective competition. The statute allows local franchising authorities to regulate rates if the FCC certifies their procedures, and requires the FCC regulate rates if the local authority does not seek the authority. The Act also requires the FCC to resolve complaints arising from other statutory requirements. In all, approximately 25,000 cable-related complaints are anticipated in 1993.

NATIONAL ADVISORY COUNCIL ON THE PUBLIC SERVICE

(Appropriations language now requested, existing legislation)

Funds made available for the National Advisory Council on the Public Service under the heading Office of Personnel Management, "Salaries and expenses", in the Independent Agencies Appropriations Act, 1993, shall be available for expenses to carry out the orderly termination of the Council by September 30, 1993.

The National Advisory Council on the Public Service (NACPS) is proposed for termination in A Vision of Change for America as part of the President's program to eliminate advisory councils that are no longer necessary. Separate legislation will be proposed to terminate the NACPS effective on or before September 30, 1993. This proposal would allow the NACPS to use funds appropriated for 1993 to cover expenses associated with shutting down its operations.

This supplemental request would provide funds that contribute to the Nation's productivity by generating new scientific and engineering knowledge, and contribute to the development of the next generation of scientists and engineers. In 1992, the National Science Foundation (NSF) had $1 billion of unfunded proposals that were rated excellent by the science and engineering community. Thus, it appears that NSF has the capacity to invest more funds in a broad range of important research areas, including strategic research in improving our understanding of the climate system, advanced supercomputers and digital computer networks, biotechnology, materials processing, advanced manufacturing, and math and science education. These funds should be focused on research conducted by single investigators and groups, not on major facilities or equipment. This proposal would restore NSF funding to roughly the level that was planned for in 1993.

This proposal also includes $19 million to build upon the High Performance Computing and Communications program, and to initiate projects among four Federal agencies (the National Aeronautics and Space Administration, the National Science Foundation, the National Institutes of Health, and the Department of Commerce) to develop applications that use advanced computers and communication networks. These applications would be used to solve problems in health care, education, manufacturing, and access to libraries.

This proposal was submitted to the Congress by the President on February 22, 1993, as part of his program for short-term economic stimulus.

RESCISSION PROPOSAL

Under the provisions of the Impoundment Control Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344), whenever the President proposes rescission of enacted appropriations, a special message must be sent to the Congress giving details of the proposals. Included below are related budget schedules, references to the special message being sent to the Congress, and narrative explanations of the proposals.

INVESTMENT PROPOSALS

This chapter provides detailed information by budget account for the investment program outlined in A Vision of Change for America. The information presented includes proposed appropriations language, program and financing and object classification data, and narrative explanations. It is essential that this investment package be considered within the context of the Administration's entire economic plan.

Cooperative forestry research.—This investment of $9 million for the Forestry Research Initiative will allow the Cooperative State Research Service to distribute funds to eligible institutions for the purpose of conducting forest ecosystem research. This initiative is being carried out in cooperation with Forest Service and Extension Service. Information will be obtained to help the Nation develop sound forest-related policies that will both provide resources to meet ever-increasing demands from the population and sustain forest ecosystems.

National research initiative competitive grants.—The National Research Initiative (NRI) supports research to assure the continued competitiveness of U.S. agricultural products in global trade, ensure the food supply's safety and quality, and sustain natural resources. This $30 million investment will fund research in animal and plant biotechnology (including genome mapping), food safety, sustainable agricultural production practices, and technologies to manufacture new agricultural materials, as well as other high priority agricultural issues. Since the NRI program focuses primarily on basic research, the results of many projects will be useful to scientists in other disciplines.

Managing the Nation's forest resources relies increasingly upon scientific information and technology. This includes areas as diverse as understanding forest ecosystems and the wildlife/urban interface to extending the use of wood as a raw material. This investment will allow the Extension Service to transfer the results of agricultural research programs to provide the necessary information to help the Nation develop sound forest-related policies that will both provide resources to meet ever-increasing demands from the population and sustain forest ecosystems.

This request would provide funding to improve the existing meat and poultry inspection system by increasing the number of Food Safety and Inspection Service inspectors that are available to ensure that visibly diseased animals are not processed, slaughterhouses and processing plants are clean and follow safe food handling procedures, and plant employees follow proper hygiene. The request also provides increased funding for food safety research to better ensure public safety through more scientific evaluation of the hazards to health contained in meat and poultry products.

This initiative would directly assist rural communities to improve the quality of rural life by providing grants to qualified applicants for use in FmHA-financial rental units.

RURAL HOUSING VOUCHER PROGRAM

For necessary expenses to operate a rural housing voucher program as authorized by section 542 of title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, $75,000,000, to be administered by the Secretary of Agriculture.

90.00	Outlays			525

This is a new program proposed for implementation in 1994. Funding under this proposal will help 3,750 rural, very low-income households to obtain adequate housing for a 5-year period. This proposal would directly assist rural communities to improve the quality of rural life by providing housing vouchers in areas where rental units are available but not currently affordable for low-income persons.

The proposed rural housing voucher program is authorized under section 542 of Title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended. The program would be based on the same payment standards as section 521(a)(2)(A) of Title V of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended. The benefits of this voucher program accrue to the renting household. With vouchers, families have the opportunity to choose from any apartment or house that is suitable to their needs. To help pay for housing, the government will cover the difference between 30 percent of the recipient's monthly adjusted income and the fair market rental cost established by the Secretary for that residential area.

VERY LOW-INCOME HOUSING REPAIR GRANTS

In addition to amounts already available under this heading and subject to the same terms and conditions, $18,000,000 for grants to the very low-income elderly for essential repairs to dwellings pursuant to section 504 of the Housing Act of 1949, as amended, to remain available until expended.

including nonprofit corporations, public and quasi-public agencies, and certain Indian tribes to finance storage, treatment, purification, or distribution of water or the collection, treatment, or disposal of wastewater in rural areas. The amount of any development grant may not exceed 75 percent of the eligible development cost of the project.

The major objectives of the rural water and wastewater disposal grant program are: (1) to provide assistance to attain basic human amenities; (2) to alleviate health hazards; (3) to promote stability of rural areas by meeting the need for new and improved rural water and wastewater disposal systems; and (4) to meet national safe drinking water and clean water standards.

Rural Development Grants

In addition to amounts already available under this heading, and subject to the same terms and conditions, $30,000,000, for grants authorized under section 310B(c) and 310B(j) of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act to any qualified public or private nonprofit organization.

This grant program is authorized under section 310(B)(c) of the Consolidated Farm and Rural Development Act as amended. These grants enable public and private nonprofit organizations to operate rural economic development projects. In general, these grants are an investment in the human and physical resources of rural communities. Past projects have enabled rural communities to acquire and develop land, create technical assistance programs, and encourage small business growth. As part of the rural initiative on rural economic development, program guidelines will be revised so that projects are selected on a competitive basis. This will ensure that grants are targeted to innovative projects that may be duplicated elsewhere in the region or nation.

This proposal supports the commitments reached at the 1992 Rio "Earth Summit" to reduce world-wide deforestation. This investment would be a down payment towards that commitment to fund initial partnership activities with foreign nations and domestic and international non-governmental organizations.

Funds would be used to support integrated resource management, assist scientific research on tropical forests and biodiversity, assist local communities in forest resource management, improve inventory and management of large forests, develop institutions that attract private investment in forest conservation, and reforest degraded lands.

Investment increases for the Operations, research, and facilities appropriation will fund acquisition of Doppler weather radars (NEXRADs), the automated surface observing system, an information processing and distribution system, a class VII supercomputer, and staffing, training and other preparation necessary to operate future Weather Forecast Offices. In addition, funding will support procurement of replacement satellites for the polar-orbiting and geostationary systems. These acquisitions and activities are part of a comprehensive program to modernize the nation's weather forecasting abilities. These investments will significantly improve the National Weather Service's ability to issue warnings of severe weather, resulting in a reduction of loss of life and property damage. Investment increases will also fund NOAA's participation in the government-wide programs to understand the factors contributing to long term global change, and to incorporate the use of high performance computing and communications in both research and operational programs.

This investment increases funding for in-house research at the National Institute of Standards and Technology (NIST). NIST is the only Federal lab with the principal mission of supporting U.S. industry and has provided a steady stream of technology support to U.S. firms for over 90 years. NIST laboratory research programs are a primary means for strengthening industry-government cooperation for supporting commercial research and development needed by industry to compete internationally. NIST programs are highly leveraged, providing industry with the technical base needed for precision measurements required for high technology development, quality control and productivity growth.

This investment is part of a plan to double the funding for research and development work carried out by NIST labs over the next four years. Investment increases will substantially increase efforts in critical technologies including electronics, advanced manufacturing, biotechnology and chemical processing, high performance computing/information infrastructure, and international standards.

This investment will enhance U.S. competitiveness through the Advanced Technology Program and the Technology Transfer and Outreach activities. These programs accelerate the development and commercialization of pre-competitive generic technologies and assist industry in refining their manufacturing practices.

The Advanced Technology Program provides matching grants for industry-led projects, where the research goals and objectives are conceived and carried out by industry, not government. Proposals are selected through a rigorous and fair competition with proposals reviewed by both technical experts and private sector business experts to ensure proposals have both technical and business merit. These grants promote cooperative research and strategic alliances in U.S. industry. Grants will also be provided for consortia like SEMATECH.

The Technology Transfer and Outreach activities include two programs. The Manufacturing Extension partnership will create more than 100 manufacturing extension centers by 1997. These centers will assist manufacturers modernize their production capability. The Quality Outreach Program will capitalize on the achievements of the Malcolm Baldridge National Quality Award to provide national leadership in quality and competitiveness through government/industry partnerships.

Domestic Policies.—The National Telecommunications and Information Administration (NTIA) will work with other Federal agencies to resolve policy and technical issues involved in implementing the National Research and Education Network (NREN) and other information infrastructure initiatives.

International Policies.—(NTIA) will participate in critical international conferences dealing with telecommunications standards setting and negotiations.

Spectrum plans and policies.—In support of the Administration's spectrum management proposals, NTIA will work with the private sector and other Federal agencies to identify the spectrum to be transferred to the private sector.

Spectrum management, analysis and operations.—NTIA will perform the necessary analysis to support anticipated spectrum legislation wherein the Federal Government may transfer 200 MHz to the Federal Communications Commission for private sector use in satisfying future communications needs and emerging technologies.

Spectrum research and analysis.—NTIA will develop, test, and evaluate radio-based performance standards for the telecommunications infrastructure development initiative. Also, as a result of the restructuring of the international telecommunication bodies, NTIA will increase its involvement in telecommunications standards activities.

Systems and networks research and analysis.—NTIA will develop, test, and evaluate network-based performance standards for telecommunications infrastructure development initiative. Also, NTIA will conduct research on quality of service and performance measures and will facilitate the development of standards of NREN in support of network optimization and management for the public switched network.

The Information Infrastructure Program awards grants to entities for the planning and construction of telecommunications infrastructure facilities throughout the United States and its territories. The program will enable entities to develop key "backbone" and "last-mile" facilities using a wide variety of telecommunications infrastructures, including microwave, fiber optic and satellite technologies, to develop local, regional, State and national networks and services. The telecommunications infrastructures funded by the National Telecommunications and Information Administration are directed towards ensuring that "real-time" access to vital information is broadly available to schools, hospitals, libraries, and other non-commercial entities and businesses.

This investment proposal will provide $59 million for Department of Defense efforts to increase energy efficiency in Federal buildings. In addition, it would provide $12 million for the Office of Economic Adjustment (OEA) to provide planning grants to communities hard hit by reductions in defense spending. OEA works directly with local communities, States and other Federal agencies to help localities develop assistance and diversification plans.

Goals 2000: Educate America Act.—Legislation will be proposed to support improvements in learning and teaching by providing a national framework for education reform and for meeting the National Education Goals. New authorities will establish a National Education Goals Panel, a National Education Standards and Assessment Council, a National Commission on Opportunity to Learn, a National Skill Standards Board, and a new program of grants to stimulate systemic State and local education improvement for all students.

School-to-Work Transition.—The Administration is requesting a total of $270 million—$135 million for the Department of Education and $135 million for the Department of Labor—to initiate a national system for school-to-work transition. Funds will be used jointly by the two Departments to develop the capacity of States, local communities, educational institutions, employers, labor organizations, and employer associations to design and implement a national system for school-to-work transition. Funds would only be spent under a joint plan designed and administered by the Departments of Labor and Education. For 1994, funds would be used under current authorities in the Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Applied Technology Education Act and the Job Training Partnership Act. Legislation will be proposed to continue this joint effort in 1995 and beyond.

Urban-Rural Initiative.—From funds requested for the Fund for Innovation in Education, (Section 4601 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act) approximately $15 million would be used for programs to support the Administration's proposed urban-rural initiative. These funds would be used in selected communities to help ensure that State, local, and Federal education services are integrated with other social services, with particular emphasis on helping those communities work toward the National Education Goals. Use of these funds would be coordinated with appropriate agencies including the Departments of Housing and Urban Development, Agriculture, Labor, and Health and Human Services.

Teacher Professional Development.—From funds requested under the authority for the Fund for Innovation in Education, (Section 4601 of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act) approximately $15 million would be used to develop models for how preservice teacher training and continuing professional development can contribute to systemic education reform.

Compensatory Education for the Disadvantaged

In addition to amounts already available under this heading, for carrying out chapter 1 of title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965, as amended, $227,148,000, which shall become available on July 1, 1994 and shall remain available through September 30, 1995: Provided, That $202,927,000 shall be available for basic grants under section 1005 excluding subsection (a)(3), $5,750,000 shall be available for concentration grants under section 1006, and $18,471,000 shall be available for the Even Start program under Part B: Provided further, That such funds shall not be regarded as supplemental appropriations for the purpose of section 1432(b)(2) of such Act: Provided further, That no State shall receive less than a total of $340,000 from the amounts made available under this appropriation and any other appropriation for fiscal year 1994 for concentration grants under section 1006 of such Act.

The Energy Supply Research and Development (ESRD) account contains eight investment initiatives for 1994, which fall into six different ESRD programs, as listed below.

Solar and Renewable Energy: Energy Policy Act-Related Investments.—The Energy Policy Act of 1992 (EPAct) reinforces the Administration's objectives of increased investment in research and development of technologies to improve efficiency in all sectors of the economy, to lessen dependence on petroleum, and to increase our supplies of renewable energy. The 1994 budget for Solar and Renewable Energy R&D includes $28.5 million for high-priority and EPAct-related activities in solar energy, wind, biomass, and geothermal R&D. It also includes funds for expanded studies relating to health effects of electric and magnetic fields (EMF).

Nuclear Fission: Close-Out of Unnecessary Nuclear Reactor Research.—The Administration is proposing to eliminate the research and development funding and related facility funding for nuclear reactors that have no commercial or other identified application. This initiative provides $24 million for termination costs as well as for safety-related activities that are required to place the test facilities in a safe-shutdown condition. Additional funds are provided in the base budget for Energy Supply R&D.

Environmental Restoration and Waste Management.—This investment initiative provides $16 million above the base program for environmental cleanup activities at non-defense sites, in order to bring active and stand-by non-defense facilities into compliance with applicable local, State and Federal regulations. The funds will also provide for assessment and clean-up of surplus non-defense facilities and inactive sites, and the minimization, treatment, storage, and disposal of hazardous, mixed, and sanitary wastes generated as a result of the ongoing activities at non-defense facilities.

Magnetic Fusion Energy Research.—The fusion program for 1994 includes $20 million above the base program to initiate design of the Tokamak Physics Experiment (TPX). This is a new experimental fusion device with the capability to operate for long pulses and to develop advanced tokamak operating modes that would lead to a more economical demonstration power reactor.

Supporting Research and Technical Analysis.—

Cooperative Research and Development Agreements (CRADAs).—An additional $30 million over the base program is budgeted for a significant increase in CRADA activities between non-defense DOE laboratories and the private sector. These agreements encourage the transfer of technologies from DOE national laboratories to industry, and allow industry to take advantage of unique instrumentation and analytic capabilities at the laboratories.

Federal Coordinating Council on Science, Engineering and Technology (FCCSET).—An additional $78 million over the baseline R&D programs is included in the budget for enhanced levels of effort in FCCSET crosscut areas, including advanced materials and processing, high-performance computing and communications, global climate change, biotechnology, math and science education, and advanced manufacturing.

Advanced Neutron Source.—An additional $26 million is budgeted in 1994 for the Basic Energy Sciences program to initiate construction of the Advanced Neutron Source (ANS). This is to be a state-of-the-art research reactor that will replace two existing but aged facilities: the High-Flux Beam Reactor and the High Flux Isotope Reactor. The ANS is specifically designed for three types of research activity: neutron scattering to study properties and behavior of materials, isotope production for medical and other applications, and the study of materials degradation due to neutron irradiation.

In-House Energy Management: Federal Facility Energy Efficiency.—The investment program to increase the energy efficiency of Federal buildings and facilities is an extension of the 1993 stimulus initiative of the same name. The program will conserve Federal operating funds, reduce the Nation's energy demand, and create jobs as cost-effective, energy-efficient technologies are deployed by the Federal sector, the Nation's largest energy user. Additionally, this program will assist in the commercialization of new energy-efficient technologies by demonstrating their potential and reliability in the Federal infrastructure. The four largest energy-consuming agencies (Defense, Energy, Veterans Affairs, and the General Services Administration) will receive direct funding to supplement their existing in-house energy management programs. The investment initiative in this account represents DOE's share of that direct funding—$6 million over the existing base program. This is slated to increase further in the FY 1994 budget out-years.

Natural Gas.—The Department's 1994 request of $14 million is for utility gas turbine research focused on increasing the efficiency of turbines and reducing the emissions of nitrogen oxides. This effort will assure that the United States maintains its technological leadership in the gas turbine area, domestically and internationally thereby assuring that we are able to maintain or expand its gas turbine industry.

There are four investment initiatives included in the Energy Conservation account. Three lie wholly within individual "sector" programs listed in the Program by activities. The fourth, $87.5 million for a variety of increases related to the Energy Policy Act of 1992, is described under each program heading as appropriate. The Energy Policy Act of 1992 (EPAct) reinforces the Administration's objective of increased investment in research and development of technologies to increase energy efficiency in all sectors of the economy, increased fuel flexibility, enhanced environmental quality, and improved U.S. competitiveness in world markets.

Building Technologies.—The buildings sector programs are involved in two of the investment initiatives: increases for Federal facility energy efficiency and Energy Policy Act-related increases.

Federal Facility Energy Efficiency.—The investment program to increase the energy efficiency of Federal buildings and facilities is an extension of the 1993 economic stimulus initiative of the same name. The program will conserve Federal operating funds, reduce the Nation's energy demand, and create jobs as cost-effective energy-efficiency technologies are deployed by the Federal sector, the Nation's largest energy user. Additionally, this program will assist in the commercialization of new energy-efficient technologies by demonstrating their potential and reliability in the Federal infrastructure. The four largest energy-consuming agencies (Defense, Energy, Veterans Affairs, and the General Services Administration) will receive direct funding for their in-house energy management programs.

The budget request in this investment initiative ($16 million) will significantly expand the activities of the Federal Energy Management Program (FEMP—$8 million above the base program), and will add $8 million to the fund to support projects at agencies other than those receiving direct funding. The additional FEMP funds should be sufficient to support about 600 site energy audits at Federal sites around the country in 1994, and to train about 700 Federal facility and energy managers in that year. The 1994 budget includes plans for additional funding increases in future years.

Energy Policy Act of 1992.—The EPAct-related increases include $26 million for expanded R&D in building technologies and increased product coverage for energy-efficiency standards. For many other products not covered by mandatory standards, the program will increase its efforts in developing methods to measure product energy efficiency and to develop labeling and product information standards.

Industrial Technologies.—The EPAct-related R&D increases include $27.5 million in the Industrial Technologies program. To meet the requirements of the Act, the Department of Energy must enhance various industry-related activities such as combined combustion of coal and solid waste, reduction of manufacturing and process wastes, improved electric motors, and development of advanced materials. This increase will also fund the creation of Metal Casting Extension Centers, as provided for in the Energy Policy Act.

Transportation Technologies.—The Transportation program is proposed to receive additional funding over the base level for purchases of alternative-fuel vehicles for the Federal fleet, and for EPAct-related R&D activities.

Federal Alternative-Fuel Vehicles.—The economic investment proposal includes $18 million to increase the rate at which alternative-fuel light-duty vehicles are purchased and/or converted for use in the Federal fleet. This additional funding will demonstrate Federal leadership in the adoption of alternative-fuel vehicles for everyday use, with the objective of accelerating widespread acceptance and use of vehicles that operate on non-petroleum fuels, such as methanol, ethanol, and natural gas.

Energy Policy Act of 1992.—The EPAct-related R&D increases include $25.5 million in the Transportation Technologies program. This will fund increased activity in alternative fuels R&D, advanced materials R&D, and enhanced development activities for heavy-duty engines for trucks and buses. It also supplements the already-planned increases in electric and hybrid vehicle development. Many of these activities will be integrated under the framework of the President's Clean Car initiative for government/industry cooperation.

Technical and Financial Assistance.—The Office of Financial and Technical Assistance (OTFA) is host to an initiative to increase the number of homes of low-income citizens weatherized under the Weatherization Assistance Program (WAP), and also to a number of State grant and technical assistance initiatives in response to the Energy Policy Act of 1992.

Weatherization Assistance Program.—The economic investment proposal includes $60 million over the base WAP funding level. A key feature of this proposal is to require matching funds from the States, which may be derived from direct State funding, utility rebate programs, or other funding sources. This requirement will allow the WAP to fund the treatment of twice as many homes (72,000) with this money as would otherwise be possible, and it creates an incentive for States to work with their utilities and to take advantage of the utilities' demand-side management programs.

Energy Policy Act of 1992.—The EPAct-related increases include $6.5 million for international market development and a variety of new grants to States, for such purposes as adopting the most recent and energy-efficient industry-standard building codes.

Utility Technologies.—The EPAct-related R&D increases include $2.0 million in the Utility Technologies program, to broaden and accelerate the Integrated Resource Planning (IRP) program through surveys, studies, and development of analytic tools for use by utility planners and regulators. A key feature to be added to the IRP methodologies will be inclusion of multiple energy types, such as natural gas and electricity, in a unified planning framework. This will allow utilities and their regulators to include end-user fuel-switching in their plans so that their regions and communities can make the best possible use of their energy resources.

shall be for assistance for State or local units of government, tenant and nonprofit organizations to purchase projects where owners have indicated an intent to prepay mortgages and for assistance to be used as an incentive to prevent prepayment or for Section 8 rental assistance to aid tenants adversely affected by mortgage prepayment, as authorized in the Cranston-Gonzalez National Affordable Housing Act (Public law 101–625).

This appropriation contains two investment proposals. The first would increase the number of housing vouchers added each year from nearly 40,000 in 1993 to 100,000 by 1998. Estimated investment: $6.2 billion over four years. Housing vouchers provide rental assistance to low-income and very-low-income households. The second would preserve more units of affordable housing by providing incentives to landlords not to convert this housing to other uses and by facilitating the disposition of housing held or owned by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

This proposal substantially increases Federal resources to rehabilitate and restore severely dilapidated public housing projects, thereby expanding the supply of decent, safe, and affordable housing for low-income renters. Funds provided to this program are in addition to the substantial resources provided for the public housing modernization program, and are specifically targeted to the units in most need of attention.

COMMUNITY PLANNING AND DEVELOPMENT

Community Development Grants

In addition to amounts already available under this heading, and subject to the same terms and conditions, $90,000,000, of which $900,000 shall be for grants to Indian tribes pursuant to section 106(a)(1) of the Housing and Community Development Act of 1974, as amended, and $89,100,000 shall be for grants pursuant to section 106(a)(3) and (d)(1) of such Act.

Community development projects are an important source of jobs and economic development both in the short- and long-term. The Administration's proposal will provide an additional $90 million in 1994 and $490 million between 1994 and 1998 to continue much-needed investment in America's communities. These funds are targeted at low- and moderate-income residents, providing assistance in areas with the greatest need. Because communities can select eligible activities most appropriate to their local circumstances, this additional funding will help communities where they need it most.

The HOME Investment Partnerships Program helps States, local governments, and Indian tribes increase the supply of housing for low-income persons. Because of the range of eligible activities available to program participants (e.g., new construction, rehabilitation of existing housing, or rental assistance), HOME provides flexibility to State and local officials to decide what type of housing best suits local needs. The Administration's investment proposal will provide an additional $511 million in 1994 and over $4 billion between 1994 and 1998. In addition to the increased investment, efforts are underway to make the HOME program a more flexible, workable tool for the production of affordable housing. These efforts include accelerating issuance of regulations to simplify program requirements, providing better information on how the program can be used, rapidly approving and targeting of technical assistance to key jurisdictions, and simplifying administrative procedures.

This investment focuses resources on one of the nation's most notable and daunting social problems: homelessness. By providing additional funds each year for housing rehabilitation and services for homeless persons, the proposal will increase economic activity and job creation and provide sorely needed resources for the most needy persons living in our cities. The Supportive Housing Program is based on a recognition that a successful approach must go beyond housing to address root causes and the lack of needed services for mental illness and drug abuse and to provide job training and educational services. The Administration's investment initiative will provide an additional $165.9 million in 1994 and over $1 billion between 1994 and 1998. This investment will more than double the resources currently going to the Supportive Housing program on a yearly basis from 1994 through 1998.

The proposed appropriation increase for the Supportive Housing Program will permit the funding of two demonstration initiatives in 1994. Up to $50 million of Supportive Housing Program funds will be made available for a safe havens demonstration initiative and up to $20 million will be made available for a rural homeless demonstration initiative. The additional funding will ensure that two special populations—those homeless from rural areas and the mentally ill population from the streets that have been unwilling or unable to participate in existing programs—will benefit from the increase in homeless funds.

The Federal/State Partnerships program would provide funding to fight crime by: promoting community and neighborhood-oriented policing programs; developing a national Police Corps; upgrading criminal records at the Federal and State levels; and assisting State and local governments to hire new police officers in conjunction with community policing. The Community Policing program will provide grants directly to State and local governments to improve cooperative efforts between law enforcement agencies and the community by placing more officers on the streets and employing techniques to prevent crime. The Police Corps will provide scholarships for higher education to students who aspire to be police officers in exchange for a commitment to service as a State or local police officer. The Criminal Records Upgrade program will upgrade criminal history records maintained by the Federal Bureau of Investigation and by the States, enabling a national criminal background check system to be implemented. This system will help prevent unauthorized persons, such as convicted felons, from purchasing handguns. A separate Police on the Street program is funded through the Communi-

Reception, processing and care of Cubans and Haitians.—Additional resources are requested to provide primary and secondary resettlement assistance to Cuban and Haitian entrants and to retain existing bedspace at an inpatient mental health facility for the care of Mariel Cuban detainees. These resources will permit the Service to move toward resettling Cubans and Haitians as they become eligible for resettlement in this country. This will reduce the need for detaining these individuals solely because of inadequate funding for placement services.

The investment activities of the FBI are divided into the following general categories:

Criminal, security, and other investigations.—An increase of $10,000,000 is planned to begin the nationwide implementation of the Background Investigations Contract Services (BICS) program. The BICS program involves the FBI's use of contract employees to conduct background investigations on a reimbursable basis for other Federal agencies, and includes

These proposals include additional financing for several employment and training programs:

Summer Youth Employment and Training.—The investment proposal includes $375 million in addition to amounts currently available for the summer of calendar year 1994 and $675 million in addition to the amount proposed above for programs in the summer of calendar year 1995. These resources will provide additional summer work experience and academic enrichment opportunities to economically disadvantaged youth.

Dislocated Worker Assistance.—Additional financing for programs assisting dislocated workers will ensure access of dislocated workers to a broad array of employment and training services intended to help them find new jobs quickly or train for new careers.

Job Corps.—The resources requested in 1994 will begin addressing needed repairs and renovation at existing Job Corps and begin a multi-year expansion of the Job Corps program. When completed shortly after the turn of the century, the expansion will have increased the number of Job Corps centers to about 160 and the program's capacity to about 62,500 slots—both about fifty percent increases.

School-to-Work.—Under this initiative, funds will be used jointly by the Departments of Labor and Education to develop the capacity of States, local communities, educational institutions, employers, labor organizations, and employer associations to design and implement a national system for school-to-work transition. For 1994, $270 million is requested in total for this initiative. Resources are evenly divided between the Departments of Labor and Education and will be spent only under a joint plan designed and administered by these agencies. For 1994, funds would be used under current authorities in the Carl D. Perkins Vocational and Applied Technology Education Act and the Job Training Partnership Act. Legislation will be proposed to continue this joint effort in 1995 and beyond.

The investment proposal includes funding for Unemployment Insurance (UI) profiling and Employment Service one-stop career shopping.

State Operations.—The $9 million investment in 1994 for UI profiling will continue the initiative started in 1993 to develop automated profiling systems in all State employment security agencies. These profiling systems will enable States to identify those workers who may face difficulties in finding new jobs and then refer them to reemployment services early in their spells of unemployment.

One-Stop Career Shopping.—The investment proposal includes $150 million in 1994. These funds will be used to streamline access to employment and training services through a system of "one-stop shop" career centers to be developed to provide career counseling and guidance. The centers would be a common point of access to occupational information, career counseling, assessment, and referral to jobs and a full range of Federal and State funded training and employment programs and related services in the community.

This Federal-Aid Highways (FAH) investment initiative proposes to fund the program fully at the level authorized in the Intermodal Surface Transportation Act (ISTEA). Full-funding of the FAH program, together with state and local matching funds, will maintain conditions and performance on the nation's most important roads, the National Highway System. In addition, the proposal would increase the Federal Lands program by $36 million over the ISTEA-authorized levels in order to address the backlog in road projects on Federal lands, including National parks and forests and Indian reservations. Effective on enactment of the Omnibus Budget Reconciliation Act of 1994, the FAH FY 1994 obligation limitation would be increased by $2.657 billion to a total of $18.398 billion. The total increase through 1997 is $5.6 billion in outlays.

Section 402 Safety formula grants.—States use this funding for reducing traffic crashes, fatalities, and injuries.

Section 410 incentive grants.—"Alcohol-impaired driving countermeasures" grants are provided to States that qualify by adopting specific laws and program measures to reduce safety problems stemming from driving while impaired by alcohol or other controlled substances. Basic grants are issued for achieving criteria that include administrative driver license actions within stated timeframes, lower blood-alcohol content (BAC) laws, statewide police roadside checkpoints, effective programs to deter under-21 year-old impaired driving, mandatory sentencing of repeat offenders, and programs in the above areas that can become financially self-sufficient. Supplemental grants are issued for adopting specific additional measures, including .02 BAC laws for under-21 drivers, license plate confiscation, laws against open alcohol containers and mandatory BAC testing by police.

Section 153 incentive grants.—Grants are issued to States with laws requiring use of safety belts and motorcycle helmets.

This additional obligation authority would provide a total safety grant program of $177 million. In particular, the proposal would support the ISTEA-authorized program to promote safety belt and motorcycle helmet use and to further efforts to reduce drunk driving.

The 1994 Federal Transit Administration (FTA) investment initiative proposes an additional $699 million for FTA's Formula Grants Program. These funds, together with $2.7 billion in capital grants included elsewhere in this budget, will provide a total of $3.4 billion in capital assistance, excluding grants for Washington Metrorail and the Interstate Transfer Program. This is an increase of about $800 million, or 30 percent, in capital funding over the enacted 1993 level.

These funds, together with State and local investment, will be used to upgrade rail facilities and equipment, and replace rail rolling stock, thus beginning to eliminate the rail investment backlog. These funds will also fund bus and van replacement and bus facility rehabilitation. The new vehicles, needed to replace the aging U.S. transit fleet, will not only be safer and contribute to improved air quality, but will also be more accessible to disabled persons.

FEDERAL AVIATION ADMINISTRATION

GRANTS-IN-AID FOR AIRPORTS

(LIQUIDATION OF CONTRACT AUTHORITY)

(AIRPORT AND AIRWAY TRUST FUND)

In addition to amounts otherwise available under this heading, and subject to the same terms and conditions for liquidation of obligations incurred for grants-in-aid for airports, $15,200,000. Further, the obligation limitation of $1,848,600,000 otherwise applicable under this head for fiscal year 1994 is increased by $30,400,000, and the increase is subject to the same terms and conditions.

The proposed investment funding will support airport capacity development, safety and security needs.

FACILITIES AND EQUIPMENT
(AIRPORT AND AIRWAY TRUST FUND)

In addition to amounts otherwise available under this heading, and subject to the same terms and conditions, for necessary expenses, not otherwise provided for, for acquisition, establishment, and improvement by contract or purchase, and hire of air navigation and experimental facilities and equipment as authorized by the Federal Aviation Act of 1958, as amended (49 U.S.C. App. 1301 et seq.); $106,718,000 to be derived from the Airport and Airway Trust Fund and to remain available until September 30, 1996.

Program and Financing (in thousands of dollars)

Many American communities face problems of deteriorating housing, loss of jobs, lack of private enterprise, and declining economic and social infrastructure. A network of community development banks will be created to provide loans for business and housing purposes in distressed communities that have previously been underserved by traditional lending institutions. Government investment and technical assistance would supplement private funds and expertise to ensure community development banks' effectiveness in restoring healthy economic development in these communities.

Credit financing accounts disburse funds and receive various payments and fees. When cash balances result from an excess of receipts over outlays, these balances are deposited with Treasury and earn interest. This account pays such interest to credit financing accounts from the general fund of the Treasury in accordance with section 505(c) of the Federal Credit Reform Act of 1990. The estimates of interest paid by this fund are derived from the estimates of interest received in the various credit financing accounts. Amounts shown in this schedule are interest payments related to proposed changes for the receiving account.

The level of funding in this investment schedule along with the $15.058 billion reflected earlier in the budget will provide an increase of $1.0 billion over the enacted 1993 appropriation level. This increased funding will provide resources to furnish quality health care to all eligible veterans expected to apply on a system-wide basis and adquate levels of equipment and other items. This level of funding will allow the health system to activate newly completed construction projects, increase staff to meet requirements of residency programs, continue implementation of the unit dose program, as well as enhance services for veterans suffering from PTSD and those who are homeless.

This account will provide funding for capitalization grants to clean water State Revolving Funds for the purpose of making low-interest loans to help municipalities address water quality problems, including wastewater, stormwater and implementation of estuary management plans. These capitalization grants will require new authorizating legislation. This account also provides grants for non-point source control under Section 319 of the Clean Water Act in order to help restore watersheds and estuaries. In addition, grant funding will be provided for one or more needy cities with high capital needs for secondary wastewater treatment infrastructure and high user charges. For 1995, the Administration is reviewing several options to establish a self-financing fund to address the infrastructure needs of cities that face exceptionally burdensome costs to meet secondary treatment standards.

This proposal would increase spending for energy efficiency procedures in Federal buildings and facilities in the General Services Administration inventory in order to reduce energy consumption. The energy consumption reductions will support the Administrations' policy and contribute to the goals established by the Energy Policy Act of 1992.

National Aeronautics and Space Administration

Research and Development

In addition to amounts otherwise available under this heading, and subject to the same terms and conditions, $74,000,000, for subsonic and high-speed research and technology development for short-haul civil aviation aircraft, and for the application of high performance computing and communications to various national needs.

Program and Financing (in thousands of dollars)

Identification code 80-0108-7-1-999	1992 actual	1993 est.	1994 est.

NASA Civil Aviation.—This investment would expand NASA aeronautics research in its support of the aviation industry and its enhancement of the safety and capacity of the national airspace system. In particular, the program would focus on subsonic and high-speed research to bolster the competitive position of the U.S. aircraft industry.

NASA Short-Haul Aircraft Research.—This investment would develop technologies for both rotary and fixed wing aircraft to enable a new mode of high utility, safe, fast, direct transportation. The program would take advantage of ongoing and new Federal Aviation Administration (FAA) and industry cooperation to accelerate application of these advanced technologies to U.S. aircraft and engine manufacturers.

High Performance Computing (i.e., Information Infrastructure Technology Program).—This investment would build upon the High Performance Computing and Communications program and initiate projects among four Federal agencies (National Institute of Standards and Technology, National Institutes of Health, NASA, and the National Science Foundation) to develop applications which use advanced computers and communication networks. These applications would be used to solve problems in health care, education, manufacturing, and access to libraries.

Small Business Administration

In addition to amounts otherwise available under this heading, and subject to the same terms and conditions, $67,633,000, for the cost of guaranteed loans, as authorized by section 7(a) of the Small Business Act (15 U.S.C. 636(a)).

This program helps small businesses struggling to attract bank lending because of the general weakness of the economy. Building on a stimulus proposal, increased funding levels will be extended to assure that creditworthy small businesses have access to capital. These funds will support $2.9 billion in lending and will result in about 11,000 loans to individuals otherwise unable to expand or start small businesses.

This investment initiative would provide funds to maintain the number of enforcement staff in the Equal Employment Opportunity Commission (EEOC) field offices at the end of 1993. These enforcement staff enable EEOC to effectively and efficiently process the new cases filed pursuant to the provisions of the Americans with Disabilites Act of 1990 and the Civil Rights Act of 1991. Enhanced enforcement of these Acts would enable all Americans to contribute to their full potential in the workplace increasing the overall productivity of the American economy.

The requested increase for the Research and Related Activities appropriation will be used for research projects that invest in the Nation's future through support for the development of the next generation of scientists and engineers. This investment will enable researchers to carry out fundamental and strategic research that generates new scientific and engineering knowledge. Support will be focused on individual investigators and will include research in areas such as civil infrastructure systems, environmental research, and intelligent systems. Specific programs will also be supported in the strategic areas identified by the Federal Coordinating Council for Science, Engineering, and Technology (FCCSET) which include improving our understanding of the climate system, math and science education, materials processing, biotechnology, and advanced manufacturing. Special attention will be given to the development of applications which use advanced computers and communication networks to solve problems in health care, education, manufacturing, and more.

Investments in lifelong learning will provide "human capital" payoffs for the Nation far beyond their original price. The requested increase for the Education and Human Resources appropriation will provide increased support for efforts to encourage systemic educational reform in states, major urban areas, and at colleges and universities. The funds will enhance programs to develop new and innovative curricula, improve teacher training, increase the use of new education and communications technologies at all education levels, inspire students to higher achievement in math and science, and improve the technical literacy of all Americans. The National Science Foundation will coordinate with other federal agencies through the Federal Coordinating Council for Science, Engineering, and Technology's initiative for math and science education. The Foundation will reinforce efforts to bring women, minorities, persons with disabilities, and all types of institutions from all regions of the country to full participation in scientific and technical activities.

The President's call to service extends from the youngest elementary school students to our oldest citizens. Legislative proposals will be submitted building upon existing programs, and expanding opportunities for service through a new national service initiative. The national service initiative will help participants pay for college and other postsecondary education by serving their country. In conjunction with income-contingent loan repayment, which will help Americans serve their communities in jobs if high value but relatively little pay, the program will provide dramatic new opportunities to serve our country. Participants will meet pressing national needs in areas including education, public health, environmental protection, and public safety.

The national service initiative will support grants to public and private organizations which will directly implement community and national service programs. The activities of the Points of Light Foundation will receive $5 million under this initiative.

AMENDMENTS TO AND REVISIONS IN BUDGET AUTHORITY FOR 1993

(Between the Transmittal of the 1993 and 1994 Budgets)

A statement of all amendments to or revisions in budget authority requested between transmittal of the 1993 budget and the 1994 budget is presented below. This statement is being included in the budget in accordance with the Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (31 U.S.C. 1105(d)).

The modifications to requests for 1993 budget authority that were made through the course of the past year took three forms. If the Congress had not yet acted on a pending request, the President sent amendments to the budget requests transmitted in February 1992. If appropriations had been enacted, the President proposed either supplemental budget authority or rescission of enacted appropriations.

Amendments and requests for supplemental appropriations are printed in the documents of the House of Representatives and the Senate that are identified on the following listing. The President's proposals for rescissions are included in special messages to the Congress under the Impoundment Control Act of 1974 (Public Law 93-344). Both the special messages and monthly cumulative reports on the items they cover are printed in the Federal Register.

There are no rescissions currently pending before the Congress. Rescission proposals associated with the 1994 budget request are shown under the heading, "Stimulus and Other Supplemental Proposals."

ADVANCE APPROPRIATIONS, ADVANCE FUNDING, AND FORWARD FUNDING FOR 1994

I. An advance appropriation is one made to become available one fiscal year or more beyond the fiscal year for which the appropriation act is passed. Advance appropriations in fiscal year 1994 appropriations acts will become available for programs in 1995 or beyond. Since these appropriations are not available until after fiscal year 1994, the amounts will not be included in fiscal year 1994 budget totals, but will be reflected in the budget totals for the fiscal year for which they are requested.

The Congressional Budget Act of 1974 (31 U.S.C. 1105(a)(17)) requires inclusion in the budget of "information on estimates of appropriations for the fiscal year following the fiscal year for which the budget is submitted for grants, contracts, and other payments under each program for which there is an authorization of appropriations for that following fiscal year when the appropriations are authorized to be included in an appropriation law for the fiscal year before the fiscal year in which the appropriation is to be available for obligation." In fulfillment of this requirement, the table below lists those accounts authorized to receive, in fiscal year 1994, advance appropriations for fiscal year 1995 and beyond and cites the authorizing statute. The listing is in two parts: Part A shows the amounts of advance appropriations included in the 1994 budget. Part B is a listing of accounts for which advance appropriations are authorized but not requested in the 1994 budget.

A. Accounts for which advance appropriations are included in the 1994 budget:

Department of Education:
- Student financial assistance, benefits to Desert Storm/Shield participants (P.L. 102-27) $3,165 thousand in 1995.
- Guaranteed student loans, benefits to Desert Storm/Shield participants (P.L. 102-27) $379 thousand in 1995.

Department of Energy:
- Clean coal technology (42 U.S.C. 5901 et seq.), $350,000 thousand for 1995; and $150,000 in 1996.

Department of Health and Human Services, except Social Security:
- Grants to States for Medicaid (42 U.S.C., sec. 1396) $26,600,000 for 1995.
- Special benefits for disabled coal miners (30 U.S.C., sec. 921) $190,000 thousand for 1995.
- Supplemental security income program (42 U.S.C., sec. 1381) $6,770,000 thousand for 1995.
- Family support payments to States (42 U.S.C., secs. 601 and 651) $4,200,000 thousand for 1995.
- Interim Assistance to States for Legalization (P.L. 99-603) $135,171 thousand for 1995.
- Low income home energy assistance programs (P.L. 97-35) $1,404,780 thousand for 1995.
- Food stamp program (7 U.S.C. 2011-2027, 2029) $6,250,000 thousand for 1995.

Department of Housing and Urban Development:
- Assistance for the renewal of expiring section 8 subsidy contracts (42 U.S.C. 1437) $800,000 thousand for 1995.

Corporation for Public Broadcasting: Public broadcasting fund $292,640 thousand for 1995 and $292,640 thousand for 1996.

Department of State:
- Contributions to international organizations (P.L. 102-138, sec. 102), $163,016 thousand for 1995.
- Contributions for international peacekeeping activities (P.L. 102-138, sec. 102), $21,992 thousand for 1995.

Department of Veterans Affairs:
- Readjustment Benefits (38 U.S.C. Chapters, 21, 30, 31, 35, 36, 39, 51, 53, 55 and 61) $327,000 thousand for 1995.

B. Accounts authorized to receive advance appropriations but for which none are requested in the 1994 budget:

Department of Agriculture:
- Food program administration (42 U.S.C., sec. 1752).
- Food donations program (P.L. 93-29, sec. 209).
- Child nutrition programs (42 U.S.C., sec. 1752).

Department of Education. The following activities are authorized to receive advance appropriations (20 U.S.C. 1223 and 29 U.S.C. 703): [1]
- Compensatory education for the disadvantaged.
- Impact aid.
- School improvement programs.
- Indian education.
- Bilingual and immigrant education.
- Special education.
- American Printing House for the Blind.
- National Technical Institute for the Deaf.
- Gallaudet University.
- Rehabilitation services and disability research.
- Vocational and adult education.
- Student financial assistance.
- Guaranteed student loans.
- Higher education.
- Higher education facilities loans and insurance.
- College housing and academic facilities loans.
- Howard University.
- Education, research, statistics, and improvement.
- Libraries.
- Education and research overseas (special foreign currency program).

Department of Health and Human Services:
- Payments to States for foster care and adoption assistance (P.L. 96-272).
- ACF service programs (P.L. 97-35, sec. 657, P.L. 89-73 as amended, sec. 209, P.L. 96-272).

[1] These statutes erroneously refer to "advance funding". Since these statutes describe and clearly intend to provide advance appropriations, the affected accounts are listed here.

II. Advance funding is budget authority that is to be charged to the appropriation in the succeeding year but which authorizes obligations to be incurred in the last quarter of the fiscal year if necessary to meet higher than anticipated benefit payments in excess of the specific amount appropriated for the year. When such budget authority is used, an adjustment is made to increase the budget authority for the fiscal year in which it is used and to reduce the budget authority of the succeeding fiscal year. Essentially, this is a device for avoiding supplemental requests late in the fiscal year for certain programs, should the appropriations for the current year prove to be low. The table below lists those accounts for which advance funding authority is requested in the 1994 Budget.

Department of Labor:
- Special benefits.
- Black lung disability trust fund.
- Federal unemployment benefits and allowances.

Department of Veterans Affairs:
- Veterans insurance and indemnities.
- Burial benefits and miscellaneous assistance.

III. Forward funding is budget authority that is made available for obligation beginning in the last quarter of the fiscal year for the financing of ongoing grant programs during the next succeeding fiscal year. The budget authority for such programs is included in the budget totals for the year in which it is appropriated. This device is often used for education programs, so that grants can be made on a school year basis. The language providing forward funding for education programs will specify that amounts appropriated, in most but not all cases, will not be available until some time into the year of the appropriation (e.g., July 1, 1993) and in most cases will specify that such amounts will remain available until the end of the succeeding fiscal year. In other cases (e.g., Federal Pell grants), the funds become available on October 1st but are not normally obligated until July 1st or later and are available for obligation for an additional year. The table below lists those accounts for which forward funding exists or is requested in whole or in part in the 1994 budget.

Department of Education:
- Compensatory education for the disadvantaged.
- School improvement programs.
- Education reform.
- Special education.
- Vocational and adult education.
- Indian education.
- Student financial assistance.
- Education, research, statistics, and improvement.

Department of the Interior:
- Operation of Indian Programs.

In the training and employment area, forward funding provides appropriations for a program year that starts on July 1st of the fiscal year of the appropriation. Financing extends through June 30th of the following fiscal year. Program years are authorized for training programs under the Job Training Partnership Act, operation of the State Employment Service under section 6 of the Wagner-Peyser Act, and senior citizen employment programs under Title V of the Older Americans Act. The table below lists accounts for which forward funding is requested in the 1994 Budget.

Department of Labor:
- Training and employment services.
- Community service employment for older Americans.
- State unemployment insurance and employment service operations.

GOVERNMENT-SPONSORED ENTERPRISES

This chapter contains descriptions of and data on the Government-sponsored enterprises listed below. These enterprises were established and chartered by the Federal Government. They are not included in the Federal budget because they are classified as being private. However, because of their relationship to the Government, detailed statements of financial operations and condition are presented, to the extent such information is available, on a basis that is as consistent as practicable with the basis for the budget data of Government agencies. These statements are not reviewed by the President; they are presented as submitted by the enterprises.

—The Student Loan Marketing Association is a for-profit financial corporation chartered by Congress in 1972 under the Higher Education Act (HEA) to help increase the availability of student loans. Sallie Mae carries out secondary market and other functions.

—The College Construction Loan Insurance Association is organized as a private, for-profit insurance corporation to guarantee and insure bonds and loans made for construction and renovation of college and university facilities. The Corporation was established by, but was not chartered by, the Federal Government.

—The Federal National Mortgage Association provides supplementary assistance to the secondary market for home mortgages. The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation provides a secondary market for mortgage lenders. Both are supervised by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

—The Banks for Cooperatives and Farm Credit Banks provide financial assistance to agriculture. They are supervised by the Farm Credit Administration.

—The Farm Credit System Financial Assistance Corporation was created to carry out a program to provide capital to institutions of the Farm Credit System that experienced financial difficulty.

—The Federal Agricultural Mortgage Corporation, under the supervision of the Farm Credit Administration, provides a secondary mortgage market for agricultural real estate and certain rural housing loans as well as for farm and business loans guaranteed by the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

—The Federal Home Loan Banks, which assists thrift institutions, is supervised by the Federal Housing Finance Board.

—The Financing Corporation functions as a financing vehicle for the FSLIC Resolution Fund. It is owned by the Federal Home Loan Banks.

—The Resolution Funding Corporation provides financing for the Resolution Trust Corporation (RTC) and is subject to the general oversight and direction of the Oversight Board of the RTC. It is owned by the Home Loan Banks.

The Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System is not a Government-sponsored enterprise, but its transactions also are not included in the budget because of its unique status in the conduct of monetary policy. The Board provides data on its administrative budget on a calendar year basis, which is included here for information. Its budget schedules and statements are not subject to review by the President.

loans by providing liquidity to lenders engaged in the Federal Family Education Loan Program (FFELP), formerly the guaranteed student loan program (GSLP).

Sallie Mae provides liquidity through direct purchase of insured student loans from eligible lenders and through warehousing advances, which are loans to lenders secured by insured student loans, Government or agency securities, or other acceptable collateral. In capital shortage areas, Sallie Mae is authorized, at the request of appropriate State and Federal officials, to make insured loans directly to students. Sallie Mae is authorized to advance funds to State agencies that will provide loans to students. Sallie Mae is also authorized to provide a secondary market for noninsured loans; to serve as a guarantee agency in support of loan availability at the request of the Secretary of Education; to purchase and underwrite student loan revenue bonds; to provide certain additional services as determined by its board of directors to be supportive of the credit needs of students generally; and to provide financing for academic facilities and equipment.

Sallie Mae is authorized by the Health Professions Educational Assistance Act of 1976 to provide a secondary market for federally insured loans to graduate health professions students.

Operations.—The forecast data with respect to operations are based on certain general economic and specific FFELP loan volume assumptions and should not be relied upon as an official forecast of the corporation's future business.

Financing.—Between 1974 and early 1982, Sallie Mae borrowed through the Federal Financing Bank. The Secretary of Education was authorized by the Education Amendments of 1980 to guarantee principal and interest on such obligations issued prior to October 1, 1985. Under an agreement with the Department of the Treasury reached in early 1981, Sallie Mae began borrowing directly in the private capital markets. Its last borrowing through the FFB and its last issuance of federally guaranteed obligations occurred in January 1982. Its obligations today have certain characteristics, provided by charter, which give them "agency" status, but they are not federally insured or guaranteed.

Management.—At its annual meeting in May 1992, the shareholders of Sallie Mae elected 14 members to its board of directors to serve until May 1993. The shareholders of Sallie Mae are entitled to elect 14 members to the board. Pursuant to the Education Amendments of 1972, seven public directors are appointed by the President, who also names the chairman from among the 21 members.

COLLEGE CONSTRUCTION LOAN INSURANCE ASSOCIATION

The College Construction Loan Insurance Association (Connie Lee) was authorized by Public Law 99-498 on October 17, 1986. The Corporation was created to insure and reinsure bonds and loans of educational institutions which borrow funds to finance the acquisition, construction, or renovation of their facilities. The Association was incorporated in February 1987, under the District of Columbia Business Corporation Act.

Connie Lee's authorizing statute states that "no obligation which is insured, guaranteed, or otherwise backed by the corporation, shall be deemed to be an obligation which is guaranteed by the full faith and credit of the United States."

Operations.—Connie Lee is structured to operate as a private corporation, subject to the same state laws and regulations as any other insurance company. Accordingly, Connie Lee secures insurance licenses in each of the various states in which it expects to conduct its insurance activities.

The Board of Directors authorized management to begin activities as a reinsuror of educational facilities bonds in 1988. Connie Lee reinsured its first bonds in December 1988. In fiscal year 1992, Connie Lee provided direct insurance on bonds representing $1.0 billion of debt service for more than 18 colleges, universities and teaching hospitals.

Connie Lee also provided reinsurance on bonds representing $700 million of debt service.

The forecast data contained in this material are based on certain general economic assumptions and should not be construed as an official forecast of the Corporation's position.

Financing.—In order to provide capitalization, the Secretary of Education, the Student Loan Marketing Association (Sallie Mae), and other investors are authorized to purchase stock in the corporation. Sallie Mae made an initial investment of $2 million in Connie Lee stock in fiscal year 1987. The Secretary of Education purchased $19.1 million in Connie Lee stock with funds appropriated for this purpose in fiscal year 1988. Subsequently, the corporation sold an additional $50.9 million of equity securities to Sallie Mae, increasing total capital of the corporation to $72.0 million. At the end of 1991, Connie Lee placed equity securities with private investors, providing sufficient incremental capital to obtain a triple-A credit rating necessary to engage in the financial guaranty business as a direct writer of insurance.

Fannie Mae is a company wholly owned by private investors and known as a Government-sponsored enterprise. It is dedicated by its Congressional charter to engage only in the business of housing finance through the secondary market for residential mortgages. The common stock of the corporation is owned by the public, is fully transferable, and is listed on major stock exchanges.

Fannie Mae was established in 1938 to ensure a consistent supply of affordable mortgage funds throughout the country and in all economic circumstances. Originally limited to investments in mortgages insured or guaranteed by the Federal Government, Fannie Mae received an expanded mandate in 1970 from the Congress to increase the availability and decrease the cost of non-subsidized mortgage financing.

Fannie Mae introduced mortgage underwriting guidelines and documents that serve as industry standards, and supported the development of a secondary mortgage market. In the past five years alone, Fannie Mae has served over 7 million families, providing over $600 billion for single family mortgage financing. Its primary consumer beneficiaries are low-, moderate-, and middle-income households. In 1992, about 25 percent of the one- to four-unit mortgages it purchased had balances of $60,000 or less and the average mortgage purchased was about $93,000. Also, about 25 percent of the single family mortgages and approximately 90 percent of the multifamily mortgages purchased by Fannie Mae served families with incomes at or below the area median income.

Over the last five years, Fannie Mae also has directed more than $17 billion to local housing markets for the financing of multifamily housing, helping to keep rents affordable for nearly 1 million apartment households.

In 1991, the company announced a program to purchase $10 billion in mortgage loans for low- and moderate-income families by the end of 1994. As of September 30, 1992, Fannie Mae had provided over $5 billion in financing under this special initiative through a variety of techniques including purchases of debt, equity investments under the low-income housing tax credit, and credit enhancement of mortgage revenue bonds.

Fannie Mae has successfully fulfilled its housing mission while continuing to build its financial strength. For the year ending September 30, 1992, the company earned nearly $1.6 billion. The company's credit experience, as measured by loan delinquencies, has continued to be substantially better than that of the entire mortgage industry. In addition, the company has been immune from the sizable interest rate movements experienced over the past several years. Capital (shareholder's equity and loan loss reserves) at the end of September stood at $7.2 billion. The company is in compliance with applicable capital standards recently enacted into law (see below).

In 1992, Congress examined and reaffirmed the continuing importance of Fannie Mae to the housing finance delivery system through charter amendments enacted as part of the Federal Housing Enterprises Financial Safety and Soundness Act of 1992 (the "Act"). Fannie Mae's charter purposes, as amended by the Act, are: "to provide stability in the secondary market for residential mortgages; respond appropriately to the private capital market; provide ongoing assistance to the secondary market for residential mortgages (including activities relating to mortgages on housing for low- and moderate-income families involving a reasonable economic return that may be less than the return earned on other activities); and promote access to mortgage credit throughout the Nation (including central cities, rural areas, and underserved areas) by increasing the liquidity of mortgage investments and improving the distribution of investment capital for residential mortgage financing."

The Act establishes affordable housing goals that enhance Fannie Mae's responsibility to finance housing for low- and moderate-income families and housing in central cities and other underserved areas. The HUD Secretary is responsible for monitoring these goals. The Act also establishes a substantially independent oversight office within HUD headed by a Director. The Director's responsibility is to ensure that Fannie Mae is adequately capitalized and operating safely. The Act provides for three capital stantards: a minimum standard, a critical standard, and a risk-based standard. The risk-based capital standard directly links required capital to the company's primary risks: interest rate risk and credit risk. It also includes a component for management and operations risk.

Fannie Mae's charter also includes a number of Government ties intended to compensate it for performing its public purpose and restricting its business to home finance. These ties enable the company to lower mortgage credit costs by financing its operations through debt issues characterized as "Agency" issues in the securities market (but not in the Federal government budget).

Fannie Mae is the nation's largest mortgage investor. Its portfolio and mortgage-backed securities finance about one out of every six mortgages in the United States. Acting as a national intermediary between home buyers and world capital markets, it provides greater efficiency, liquidity, and reliability in part because of its Government ties. Deregulation of financial institutions has made Fannie Mae more important to effective home finance delivery in recent years, by assuring depositories of ready access to mortgage funds when demand outpaces their deposit or capital base.

Fannie Mae has three separate authorities to borrow money from private sources. It may issue subordinated obligations. It may, in addition, borrow amounts through the issuance of debentures and short-term discount notes. Finally, Fannie Mae may issue bonds secured by mortgages. To generate additional funds for housing, the company guarantees the timely payment of principal and interest on Fannie Mae mortgage-backed securities are considered to be owned by the holders of these securities. Consequently, on the books of the Federal National Mortgage Association (Fannie Mae), these mortgages are not considered assets and the securities outstanding are not considered liabilities. However, the concepts of the budget of the U.S. Government consider these mortgages and mortgage-backed securities to be assets and liabilities, respectively, of Fannie Mae. For the purposes of this document, therefore, they are presented as assets and liabilities in the accompanying schedules. On the schedule of Status of direct loans for mortgage-backed securities, the items labeled "New loans" and "Recoveries: Repayments and prepayments" are budgetary terms. However, from the Corporation's perspective, these items are "Amounts issued" and "Amounts passed through to the holders of securities", respectively.

The Federal Home Loan Mortgage Corporation (Freddie Mac) was created under the Emergency Home Finance Act of 1970. Congress chartered Freddie Mac to provide mortgage lenders with an organized national secondary market enabling them to manage their conventional mortgage portfolio more effectively and gain indirect access to a ready source of additional funds to meet new demands for mortgages. Freddie Mac serves as a conduit facilitating the flow of investment dollars from capital market investors to mortgage lenders and, ultimately, to homebuyers increasing the amount of mortgage credit and making it more affordable.

The Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (FIRREA) significantly changed the corporate governance of Freddie Mac. FIRREA, signed into law in August, 1989, replaced Freddie Mac's three member Board of Directors (who also comprised the Federal Home Loan Bank Board) with a new 18 member Board of Directors. Thirteen of these Directors are elected annually by Freddie Mac's shareholders, and the other five are appointed for one year terms by the President of the United States. In addition, FIRREA automatically converted Freddie Mac's 60 million shares of non-voting, senior participating preferred stock to voting common stock, which is listed on the New York and Pacific Stock Exchanges.

FIRREA also introduced into Freddie Mac's charter the following elaboration of the corporation's mission: "to provide stability in the secondary mortgage market for home mortgages; to respond appropriately to the private capital market; and to provide ongoing assistance to the secondary market for home mortgages (including mortgages securing homes for low- and moderate-income families involving a reasonable economic return to the Corporation) by increasing the liquidity of mortgage investments and improving the distribution of investment capital available for home mortgage financing."

These legislative changes enhance Freddie Mac's current ability to identify the needs of homeowners as well as the mortgage finance industry and develop appropriate mortgage purchase and securitization programs to meet those needs in a timely fashion.

Title XIII of the Housing and Community Development Act 1992 (The Federal Housing Enterprises Financial Safety and Soundness Act of 1992 or FHEFSSA) strengthened the regulatory oversight of Freddie Mac. It created the Office of Federal Housing Enterprises Oversight (OFHEO), an independent financial safety and soundness regulator within the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD), with HUD retaining oversight authority over Freddie Mac's housing activities. FHEFSSA also established new minimum and risk-based capital standards and three affordable housing goals for Freddie Mac.

Additionally, these programs and security structures have helped Freddie Mac finance one in eight American homes and half a million apartment units at the lowest possible cost. Freddie Mac ensures that lenders throughout the country have equal access to the competitive benefits of the secondary market so that Freddie Mac's presence is felt in every area across the country.

Freddie Mac's role in developing a nationwide network for obtaining mortgage credit involved much more than linking capital rich areas to capital deficit areas. The corporation's mission to create more affordable mortgage credit throughout the country also required standardization and uniformity in the marketplace. Freddie Mac's underwriting guidelines, innovative mortgage programs and mortgage backed securities are the cornerstones to Freddie Mac's commitment to affordable housing.

This commitment is borne out by the corporation's current purchase statistics. Freddie Mac's average single family dwelling loan purchase in 1992 was $97,000, which is less than half of Freddie Mac's maximum loan amount. In addition, approximately 25 percent of Freddie Mac's loans purchased in 1991 were made available to households earning at or below the median income for their geographic area.

Freddie Mac is also committed to financially safe and sound management. It securitizes nearly all of its mortgages as part of its strategy to minimize interest rate risk. As the Department of the Treasury reported in its May, 1990, study of Government-Sponsored Enterprises (GSEs), Freddie Mac's "exposure to interest rate risk is small," and even under wide swings in interest rates "Freddie Mac's net market value remains positive." In addition, Freddie Mac has limited its exposure to credit risk by establishing comprehensive underwriting standards, actively monitoring compliance to these standards, and accurately measuring and pricing risks.

The forecast data contained in this material represent estimates and should not be construed as an official forecast of the corporation's future position. The data have been developed on the basis of certain economic assumptions that are reviewed and revised periodically. Consequently, the estimates are subject to forecast error and will normally differ from actual data when these become available.

According to generally accepted accounting principles utilized by private corporations, the mortgages in the pools of loans supporting PCs are considered to be owned by the holder of these securities. Therefore, Freddie Mac does not show these mortgages as assets. However, the budget philosophy of the United States Government includes these mortgages and mortgages pass-through securities as assets and liabilities, respectively, of Freddie Mac. For the purpose of this document, therefore, they are presented as assets and liabilities in the accompanying schedules. On the Status of Direct Loans schedule for mortgage pass-through securities, the items labeled "Disbursements" and "Repayments" are budgetary terms. However, from Freddie Mac's perspective, these amounts represent "Sales of PCs" and "Amounts passed through to PC holders," respectively.

Pursuant to the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987, 11 of 13 banks for cooperatives voted in 1988 to merge into a single National Bank for Cooperatives. The bank for cooperatives in the Springfield and St. Paul districts voted to remain independent, but have nation-wide lending authority.

The banks for cooperatives lend to agriculture-related and rural utility cooperatives. As part of the Farm Credit System they are regulated by the Farm Credit Administration, an independent federal agency. The funds to finance loans are obtained primarily from sales of bonds to the public. The Farm Credit System bonds issued by the banks are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest.

The Farm Credit Act of 1955 provided for eventual ownership of the banks by farmers' cooperatives and the retirement of the U.S. Government's investment. This was accomplished on December 31, 1968, when the remainder of the U.S. Government capital was retired.

The banks for cooperatives presently operate under authorities contained in title III of the Farm Credit Act of 1971, Public Law 92-180, as amended.

The Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 required the Federal Intermediate Credit Bank (FICB) and Federal Land Bank (FLB) in each Farm Credit District to merge into a single Farm Credit Bank by July 6, 1988. No merger occurred in the Jackson District because the FLB is in receivership. The Farm Credit Banks operate under statutory authority which combines the prior authorities of the FLB and the FICB.

The 11 Farm Credit Banks are under the general supervision of the Farm Credit Administration, an independent federal agency. They serve as banks of discount for agriculture, discounting agricultural and livestock paper for, and making loans to local financing institutions such as production credit associations, agricultural credit corporations, livestock loan companies, and commercial banks. They make short-term production and long-term real estate loans to farmers and ranchers, through Agricultural Credit, Federal Land Credit, and Production Credit Associations.

The bank's lending funds are obtained primarily from the sale of Farm Credit System bonds to the public and from their own capital funds. The bonds are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government either as to principal or interest. All of their expenses are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the credit banks' share of costs of the Farm Credit Administration and insurance premiums paid to the Farm Credit Insurance Corporation. In addition, legislation enacted in 1992 requires the System to accelerate repayments of certain obligations of the FCS Financial Assistance Corporation (FAC). (See discussion of FAC elsewhere in this document).

The banks were originally wholly owned Government corporations set up exclusively as banks of discount; however, pursuant to the Farm Credit Act of 1956, the banks became mixed-ownership corporations and were made responsible for supervising the production credit and federal land bank associations and assisting them to make sound credit available to farmers.

All the capital stock of the FICB's, from organization in 1923 to December 31, 1956, was held by the U.S. Government. The 1956 Act provided a long-range plan for the eventual ownership of the credit banks by the production credit associations and the gradual retirement of the Government's investment in the banks. This retirement was accomplished in full on December 31, 1968. The last of the Government capital that had been invested in the FLB's was repaid in 1947.

Federal Agricultural Mortgage Corporation

Farmer Mac was established by the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 (the Act) to facilitate creation of a secondary market for farm and rural housing mortgage loans that meet minimum credit standards. As authorized by the Act, Farmer Mac guarantees securities formed by certified loan pooling institutions. In addition, the Farmer Mac title of the Act was amended by the 1990 farm bill to authorize Farmer Mac to purchase, pool, and securitize the guaranteed portions of Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) guaranteed farmer program loans. These two areas of secondary market authority have been organized by Farmer Mac into two distinct programs designated as "Farmer Mac I" and "Farmer Mac II," respectively. The Farmer Mac title was further amended in 1991 to clarify Farmer Mac's authority to issue debt obligations, to provide for the establishment of minimum capital standards for Farmer Mac, and to expand rulemaking authority for the Farm Credit Administration.

In general, the agricultural secondary market is intended to attract new capital for financing agricultural real estate, including rural housing, foster increased long-term fixed-rate lending, and provide greater liquidity to agricultural lenders. Increased competition among agricultural lenders, stimulated by access to the secondary market, should result in more favorable rates and terms for agricultural borrowers.

Farmer Mac is governed by a 15 member Board of Directors. Ten Board members are elected by stockholders, including five by the Farm Credit System, and five are appointed by the President subject to Senate confirmation.

FINANCING

Funding for Farmer Mac comes from four sources: common and preferred stock; debt obligations; guarantee fees and a $1.5 billion line of credit with the U.S. Treasury.

The actuarial soundness of the guarantee fee is reviewed annually by the Comptroller General in a report to Congress. The soundness of Farmer Mac I pools will be determined through a multi-stage process. First, loans must comply with the credit underwriting and appraisal standards. Second, pools of eligible loans must meet Farmer Mac's standards for geographic and commodity diversification and be subjected to economic stress analysis to determine pool performance characteristics. In the case of Farmer Mac II, only the FmHA guaranteed portions of the loans will be pooled by Farmer Mac.

Available funds of Farmer Mac are invested in U.S. or agency securities. No stock dividends are allowed under the Act until the Board determines that an adequate loss reserve has been funded to back Farmer Mac guarantees.

GUARANTEES

Farmer Mac provides a guarantee of timely payment of principal and interest on securities backed by pools of eligible loans. These securities are not guaranteed by the United States, and are not "government securities". Under Farmer Mac I, guaranteed securities must be supported by a minimum ten percent cash reserve or subordinated class of securities (retained by the originators and poolers or sold to investors). The Farmer Mac guarantee cannot be triggered for payment until the loss reserve, in addition to the subordinate securities or cash reserve for a pool (Farmer Mac I only), has been exhausted.

Farmer Mac guaranteed mortgage-backed securities are subject to registration requirements established by the Securities and Exchange Commission under the 1933 and 1934 Securities Acts.

REGULATION

Farmer Mac is federally regulated by the Farm Credit Administration (FCA). Under 1991 amendments to the Act, regulation is performed by the FCA's Office of Secondary Market Oversight. The Office is responsible for examination of and rulemaking for Farmer Mac (after a transition period), including the determination of the stress test for Farmer Mac's risk-based capital. The 1991 amendments also clarified FCA's regulatory authority, including enforcement of Farmer Mac's regulatory capital standards.

The Financial Assistance Corporation (FAC) was created by the Agricultural Credit Act of 1987 (the '87 Act) to provide funds to Farm Credit System (FCS) institutions experiencing financial difficulties. The board of the FCS Funding Corporation is also the board of the FAC. Authority for FAC to issue debt and provide assistance expired in 1992. The Farm Credit Insurance Corporation has assumed a number of assistance authorities similar to FAC's.

FAC debt obligations are backed by a full faith and credit guarantee of the United States Government. Except for debt issued for Capital Preservation cash-outs, the U.S. Treasury pays all the interest on 15-year, uncollateralized FAC obligations in the first five years after issuance, and half the interest expense in the second five years. The FCS is required to eventually reimburse Treasury for these payments, and will redeem FAC debt upon maturity or call. Interest and principal due on Capital Preservation debt issuances are paid by FCS Banks. Proceeds of FAC debt issuances are paid into, and amounts for assistance and other expenses are paid from, the FAC Assistance Fund. In 1992 legislation was enacted that accelerates payments to FAC by System institutions for certain FAC obligations, including reimbursement of Treasury-paid interest.

Private ownership in FAC was achieved by a one-time mandatory purchase of FAC stock by FCS institutions in 1988. Proceeds from this purchase, totalling $177 million, were deposited in the FAC Trust Fund and are invested in Treasury securities. Amounts in the Trust Fund and in the Farm Credit Insurance Fund (discussed elsewhere in this document) must be exhausted before a claim is made on the U.S. guarantee of FAC obligations.

Legislation amending the 1987 Act was included in the 1989 Rural Development, Agriculture and Related Agencies Appropriations Act. The provision required a partial rebate of principal amounts in the Trust Fund on October 1, 1989, based on the percentage of total authorized FAC debt outstanding at that time. This provision was found to alter the private FAC ownership requirement envisioned in the 1987 Act sufficient to categorize the FAC as a federal entity. Subsequently, the 1989 Reconciliation Act delayed the effective date of the Trust Fund principal rebate to 1993, and provides for interim payments of interest earnings to FCS institutions on a portion of Trust Fund balances. Therefore, the FAC is classified as a federal entity beginning in 1993, and appropriate schedules can be found in the Other Independent Agencies section of the Budget.

The 12 Federal Home Loan Banks were chartered by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board under the authority of the Federal Home Loan Bank Act of 1932. Subsequent to the passage of the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act (FIRREA) of 1989, the FHLBanks are under the supervision of the Federal Housing Finance Board. The mission of the FHLBank System is to serve the public purpose of enhancing the availability of residential mortgage credit by providing a readily available, low-cost source of funds to its member institutions. All regulated financial depositories and insurance companies engaged in residential housing finance are eligible for membership. Each FHLBank operates in a geographic district designated by the Board and together the FHLBanks cover all of the United States as well as Puerto Rico, the Virgin Islands, and Guam. Advances outstanding on September 30, 1992, totaled $81 billion.

The principal source of funds for the lending operation is the sale of consolidated obligations to the public. On September 30, 1992, $111 billion of these obligations were outstanding. The consolidated obligations are not guaranteed by the U.S. Government as to principal or interest. Other sources of lendable funds include a portion of members' deposits as determined by Board policy. Deposits totaled $36 billion and total capital amounted to $10.7 billion as of September 30, 1992. Funds not immediately used for advances to members are invested until such times as needed.

The capital stock of the Federal Home Loan Banks is owned entirely by the members. Initially the U.S. Government purchased stock of the banks in the amount of $125 million. The banks had repurchased the Government's investment in full by mid-1951.

The entire operating expenses of the FHLBanks are paid from their own income and are not included in the budget of the United States. Included in these expenses is the assessment by the Federal Housing Finance Board to cover the Board's administrative and other costs.

FIRREA contains provisions for the establishment of an Affordable Housing Program (AHP) by each FHLBank. Each FHLBank has developed its AHP to enhance the availability of housing for very low-, low- and moderate-income families by providing direct subsidies or subsidized advances for members who use the funds for qualifying housing projects. The FHLBank system set aside for its AHPs a total of approximately $50 million in 1992.

Financing Corporation

The Financing Corporation (FICO) is a mixed-ownership government corporation, chartered by the Federal Home Loan Bank Board pursuant to the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation Recapitalization Act of 1987, as amended (The "Act"). FICO's sole purpose was to function as a financing vehicle for the FSLIC Resolution Fund, formerly the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation (FSLIC). FICO operates under the supervision and control of the Federal Housing Finance Board (the "Board"). Pursuant to the Act, FICO was authorized to issue debentures, bonds and other obligations ("Obligations") subject to limitations contained in the Act, the net proceeds of which were to be used solely to purchase capital certificates issued by the FSLIC Resolution Fund, or to refund any previously issued obligations. The Resolution Trust Corporation Refinancing, Restructuring, and Improvement Act of 1991 terminated the FICO's borrowing authority.

The Act provided formulas pursuant to which the Federal Home Loan Banks made capital contributions to FICO at the direction of the Board for the purchase of FICO capital stock. FICO used the proceeds received from the sales of such capital stock to purchase noninterest bearing securities for deposit in a segregated account as required by the Act. The noninterest bearing securities held in the segregated account will be the primary source of repayment of the principal of the obligations. Securities in the segregated account are kept separate from other FICO accounts and funds but are not specifically pledged as collateral for the payment of obligations. The primary source of payment of interest on the obligations will be the receipt of assessments imposed on and collected from institutions' accounts which are insured by the Savings Association Insurance Fund (the "SAIF").

Resolution Funding Corporation

The Resolution Funding Corporation (the "REFCORP") is a mixed-ownership government corporation established by Title V of the Financial Institutions Reform, Recovery, and Enforcement Act of 1989 (FIRREA). The sole purpose of REFCORP was to provide financing for the Resolution Trust Corporation (the "RTC"). Pursuant to FIRREA, REFCORP was authorized to issue debentures, bonds, and other obligations, subject to limitations contained in the Act and regulations established by the Thrift Depositor Protection Oversight Board. The proceeds of the debt (less any discount, plus any premium, net of issuance cost) were used solely to purchase nonredeemable capital certificates of the RTC or to refund any previously issued obligations.

The Resolution Funding Corporation is subject to the general oversight and direction of the Thrift Depositor Protection Oversight Board. The day-to-day operations of REFCORP are under the management of a three-member Directorate comprised of the Director of the Office of Finance of the Federal Home Loan Banks and two members selected by the Oversight Board from among the presidents of the twelve Federal Home Loan Banks ("the FHLBanks"). Members of the Directorate serve without compensation, and REFCORP is not permitted to have any paid employees. The Resolution Funding Corporation and its Directorate are subject to regulations, orders and directions of the Thrift Depositor Protection Oversight Board.

FIRREA and the regulations adopted by the Thrift Depositor Protection Oversight Board provide formulas pursuant to which the Federal Home Loan Banks made capital contributions to REFCORP's Principal Fund and continue to make interest payments on outstanding REFCORP Obligations. FIRREA also provides that the U.S. Treasury cover any interest shortfall. Funds designated for the Principal Funds were used to purchase Zero-coupon Bonds. The Zero-coupon Bonds will be held in the Principal Fund and are the primary source of repayment of the principal of the Obligations at maturity.

[1] The figures presented may differ from other Board financial material because they are prepared in accordance with OMB guidelines which vary from the Board's budget and accounting procedures.

The Federal Reserve System operates under the provisions of the Federal Reserve Act of 1913, as amended, and other acts of Congress.

Program.—To carry out its responsibilities under the Act, the Board determines general monetary, credit, and operating policies for the System as a whole and formulates the rules and regulations necessary to carry out the purposes of the Federal Reserve Act. The Board's principal duties consist of exerting an influence over credit conditions and supervising the Federal Reserve banks and member banks.

Financing.—Under the provisions of section 10 of the Federal Reserve Act, the Board of Governors levies upon the Federal Reserve banks, in proportion to their capital and surplus, an assessment sufficient to pay its estimated expenses. The Board, under the Act, determines and prescribes the manner in which its obligations are incurred and its expenses paid. Funds derived from assessments are deposited in the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond, and the Act provides that such funds "shall not be construed to be Government funds or appropriated moneys." No Government appropriation is required to support operations of the Board.

The information presented pertains to Board operations only. Expenditures made on behalf of the Federal Reserve banks for production, issuance, retirement, and shipment of Federal Reserve notes are not included, since they are reimbursed in full by the Federal Reserve banks.

GLOSSARY OF BUDGET TERMS [1]

BALANCES OF BUDGET AUTHORITY—These are amounts of budget authority provided in previous years that have not been outlayed. Obligated balances are amounts that have been obligated but not yet outlayed. Unobligated balances are amounts that have not been obligated and that remain available for obligation under law.

BREACH—A breach is the amount by which new budget authority or outlays within a category of discretionary appropriations for a fiscal year is above the cap on new budget authority or outlays for that category for that year.

BUDGET—The Budget of the United States Government (this document) sets forth the President's comprehensive financial plan and indicates the President's priorities for the Federal Government.

BUDGET AUTHORITY (BA)—Budget authority is the authority provided by Federal law to incur financial obligations that will result in outlays. Specific forms of budget authority include:

- provisions of law that make funds available for obligation and expenditure (other than borrowing authority), including the authority to obligate and expend offsetting receipts and collections;
- borrowing authority, which is authority granted to a Federal entity to borrow (e.g., through the issuance of promissory notes or monetary credits) and to obligate and expend the borrowed funds;
- contract authority, which is the making of funds available for obligation but not for expenditure; and
- offsetting receipts and collections as negative budget authority.

BUDGETARY RESOURCES—Budgetary resources comprise new budget authority, unobligated balances of budget authority, direct spending authority, and obligation limitations.

BUDGET TOTALS—The budget includes totals for budget authority, outlays, and receipts. Some presentations in the budget distinguish on-budget totals from off-budget totals. On-budget totals reflect the transactions of all Federal Government entities except those excluded from the budget totals by law. Off-budget totals reflect the transactions of Government entities that are excluded from the on-budget totals by law. Currently excluded are the social security trust funds (Federal Old-Age and Survivors Insurance and Federal Disability Insurance Trust Funds) and the Postal Service. The on- and off-budget totals are combined to derive a total for Federal activity.

CAP—This is the term commonly used to refer to legal limits on the budget authority and outlays for each fiscal year for each of the discretionary appropriations categories. A sequester is required if an appropriation for a category causes a breach in the cap.

[1] These basic terms and other budget terms, concepts, and procedures are described more fully in The Budget System and Concepts of the United States Government, a pamphlet available from the Government Printing Office. References to requirements in law generally refer to the Balanced Budget and Emergency Deficit Control Act of 1985 (also known as the Gramm-Rudman-Hollings Act), as amended. The Act was most recently amended by the Budget Enforcement Act of 1990 (Title XIII of Public Law 101–508). These requirements are discussed in various parts of the Budget.

CATEGORIES OF DISCRETIONARY APPROPRIATIONS—Through 1993, discretionary appropriations are categorized as defense, international, or domestic. Separate spending limits (caps) are applied to each category. The appropriations in each of the categories are determined by lists of existing appropriations in a 1990 congressional report[2] or, in the case of new appropriations, in consultation among the Office of Management and Budget and the congressional Committees on Appropriations and the Budget. For 1994 and 1995, all discretionary appropriations constitute a single category.

COST—The term cost, when used in connection with Federal credit programs, means the estimated long-term cost to the Government of a direct loan or loan guarantee, calculated on a net present value basis. The term excludes administrative costs and any incidental effects on governmental receipts or outlays. Present value is a standard financial concept that allows for the time value of money, that is, for the fact that a given sum of money is worth more at present than in the future because interest can be earned on it. The cost of direct loans and loan guarantees is a net present value because collections are offset against disbursements.

CREDIT PROGRAM ACCOUNT—A credit program account receives an appropriation for the cost of a direct loan or loan guarantee program, from which such cost is disbursed to a financing account for the program.

DEFICIT—A deficit is the amount by which outlays exceed Governmental receipts.

DIRECT LOAN—A direct loan is a disbursement of funds by the Government to a non-Federal borrower under a contract that requires the repayment of such funds with or without interest. The term includes the purchase of, or participation in, a loan made by another lender. The term does not include the acquisition of a federally guaranteed loan in satisfaction of default claims or the price support loans of the Commodity Credit Corporation. (Cf. LOAN GUARANTEE.)

DIRECT SPENDING—Direct spending, which sometimes is called mandatory spending, is a category of outlays from budget authority provided in law other than appropriations acts, entitlement authority, and the budget authority for the food stamp program. (Cf. DISCRETIONARY APPROPRIATIONS.)

DISCRETIONARY APPROPRIATIONS—Discretionary appropriations is a category of budget authority that comprises budgetary resources (except those provided to fund direct-spending programs) provided in appropriations acts. (Cf. DIRECT SPENDING.)

EMERGENCY APPROPRIATION—An emergency appropriation is an appropriation in a discretionary category that the President and the Congress have designated as an emergency requirement. Such appropriations result in an adjustment to the cap for the category.

FEDERAL FUNDS—Federal funds are the moneys collected and spent by the Government other than those designated as trust funds. Federal funds include general, special, public enterprise, and intragovernmental funds. (Cf. TRUST FUNDS.)

FINANCING ACCOUNT—A financing account receives the cost payments from a credit program account and includes other cash flows to and from the Government resulting from direct loan obligations or loan guarantee commitments made on or after October 1, 1991. At least one financing account is associated with each credit program account. For programs with direct and guaranteed loans, there are separate financing accounts for direct loans and guaranteed loans. The transactions of the financing accounts are not included in the budget totals. (Cf. LIQUIDATING ACCOUNT)

FISCAL YEAR—The fiscal year is the Government's accounting period. It begins on October 1st and ends on September 30th, and is designated by the calendar year in which it ends.

GENERAL FUND—The general fund consists of accounts for receipts not earmarked by law for a specific purpose, the proceeds of general borrowing, and the expenditure of these moneys.

LIQUIDATING ACCOUNT—A liquidating account includes all cash flows to and from the Government resulting from direct loan obligations and loan guarantee commitments prior to October 1, 1991. (Cf. FINANCING ACCOUNT.)

LOAN GUARANTEE—A loan guarantee is any guarantee, insurance, or other pledge with respect to the payment of all or a part of the principal or interest on any debt obligation of a non-Federal borrower to a non-Federal lender. The term does not include the insurance of deposits, shares, or other withdrawable accounts in financial institutions. (Cf. DIRECT LOAN.)

MANDATORY SPENDING—See DIRECT SPENDING.

MAXIMUM DEFICIT AMOUNTS—These are amounts specified in and subject to certain adjustments under law. If the deficit for the year in question is estimated to exceed the adjusted maximum deficit amount for that year by more than a specified margin, a sequester of the excess deficit is required.

INTRAGOVERNMENTAL FUNDS—Intragovernmental funds are accounts for business-type or market-oriented activities conducted primarily within and between Government agencies and financed by offsetting collections that are credited directly to the fund.

OBLIGATIONS—Obligations are binding agreements that will result in outlays, immediately or in the future. Budgetary resources must be available before obligations can be incurred legally.

OFF-BUDGET—See BUDGET TOTALS.

OFFSETTING COLLECTIONS—Offsetting collections are collections from the public that result from business-type or market-oriented activities and collections from other Government accounts. These collections are deducted from gross disbursements in calculating outlays, rather than counted in Governmental receipt totals. Some are credited directly to appropriation or fund accounts; others, called offsetting receipts, are credited to receipt accounts. The authority to spend offsetting collections is a form of budget authority. (Cf. RECEIPTS, GOVERNMENTAL.)

ON-BUDGET—See BUDGET TOTALS.

OUTLAYS—Outlays are the measure of Government spending. They are payments to liquidate obligations (other than the repayment of debt), net of refunds and offsetting collections. Outlays generally are recorded on a cash basis, but also include many cash-equivalent transactions, the subsidy cost of direct loans and loan guarantees, and interest accrued on public issues of the public debt.

PAY-AS-YOU-GO—This term refers to requirements in law that result in a sequester if the estimated combined result of legislation affecting direct spending or receipts is an increase in the deficit for a fiscal year.

PUBLIC ENTERPRISE FUNDS—Public enterprise funds are accounts for business or market-oriented activities conducted primarily with the public and financed by offsetting collections that are credited directly to the fund.

RECEIPTS, GOVERNMENTAL—Governmental receipts are collections that result primarily from the Government's exercise of its sovereign power to tax or otherwise compel payment. They are compared to outlays in calculating a surplus or deficit. (Cf. OFFSETTING COLLECTIONS.)

SEQUESTER—A sequester is the cancellation of budgetary resources provided by discretionary appropriations or direct spending legislation, following various procedures prescribed in law. A sequester may occur in response to a discretionary appropriation that causes a breach, in response to increases in the deficit resulting from the combined result of legislation affecting direct spending or receipts (referred to as a "pay-as-you-go" sequester), or in response to a deficit estimated to be in excess of the maximum deficit amounts.

SPECIAL FUNDS—Special funds are Federal fund accounts for receipts earmarked for specific purposes and the associated expenditure of those receipts. (Cf. TRUST FUNDS.)

SUBSIDY—This term means the same as cost when it is used in connection with Federal credit programs.

SURPLUS—A surplus is the amount by which receipts exceed outlays.

SUPPLEMENTAL APPROPRIATION—A supplemental appropriation is one enacted subsequent to a regular annual appropriations act when the need for funds is too urgent to be postponed until the next regular annual appropriations act.

TRUST FUNDS—Trust funds are accounts, designated by law as trust funds, for receipts earmarked for specific purposes and the associated expenditure of those receipts. (Cf. SPECIAL FUNDS.)
