These memoranda-interviews are confidential and to be used with great caution, if at all. In substance a series of aide-memoirs, dictated and transcribed from notes, with no attempt to edit or to check facts, they are chiefly useful as suggesting points for further study.

The series includes interviews with personalities of the Federal Reserve System, accounts of visits to Federal Reserve Banks, conferences with publishers, etc. They were grouped chronologically as compiled; a card index to persons and subjects is provided.
