My dear Mr. Luhnnow:

Referring to your letter of July 27 acknowledging my letter of July 20 with a copy of my address before the Institute of Public Affairs on the Federal Reserve System, I wish to suggest that if you have not already decided to use the article that you return it at your early convenience.

Sincerely yours,

Dear Dr. Ebersole:

I wish to thank you for your letter of July 20th enclosing a copy of your address before the Institute of Public Affairs on the Federal Reserve System, which we shall be glad to look over at our first opportunity.

Owing to the recent passing away of Mr. C. A. Luhnnow, I am sure you will make allowance for the circumstances. At our first opportunity we shall advise you more fully regarding publication of the address.

Very sincerely yours,

Dear Sirs:

It would be desirable to make a slight correction in the manuscript which I enclosed in my letter of July 20 regarding the Federal reserve system: to wit, on page three, paragraph three, line three, change the numeral 12,000 to 14,000; line four, change the numeral 18,000 to 16,000; and line seven, change the numeral 18,000 to 16,000.

These corrections indicate the perishable nature of the material. I am desirous of knowing what your plans are about publication.

Sincerely yours,

J. F. Ebersole

Dear Mr. Luhnnow:

As requested in your letter of July 14, I am enclosing a copy of my address for the Institute of Public Affairs on the Federal Reserve System.

Should you find the material such as you are glad to print, I am willing to have you do so. However, should you decide to publish, I should like to have the right to reprint in whole or in part sometime in the future giving your publication mention. If you make any changes, I expect you to send me the galley proof so that I may help you all I can.

If you do not care to publish this material in an early issue, I recommend the return of the manuscript as the material may prove perishable. When and if you publish, I should be glad to have a couple of copies of the issue in which it appears.

Doubtless you will wish to instruct the printer to overlook the underlinings in this copy as they were put in for the speaker's use. To italicize as much in publication would be absurd.

Sincerely yours,

J. F. Ebersole

Dear Dr. Ebersole:

Will you kindly favor TRUST COMPANIES Magazine with a copy of your address before the meeting of the Institute of Public Affairs at the University of Virginia, on the Federal Reserve System?

Your kind cooperation will be very much appreciated.

You may not wish to state so liberally - as was necessary for a speaker's mass.

Conditionally:
1. Right to reprint in whole or part
2. To be published in full as is, unless quality of paper is poor - editor's trip will charge up freight & time.
3. Two copies of issue containing the article.

Early issue, in return to me if possible reprint.
