

DESCRIPTION

FEDERAL RESERVE BANKS
6 AND BRANCHES
1914 -- 1956

This file gives the executive and directing corpus of Federal Reserve Banks and their branches from 1914 to 1956. (Branch material is incomplete.) It also contains for each Bank a card giving information about library facilities and file heads. Biographical information about persons named in this file will be found in the Persons File.

A close-up photograph of a metal fastener, likely a bolt or nut, with a label that reads "ATLANTA". The fastener is made of a dark, textured metal and has a triangular shape with three circular holes. The label is a small, rectangular white sticker with the word "ATLANTA" printed in black, uppercase letters. The fastener is attached to a larger, horizontal metal component that is also textured and appears to be part of a larger assembly.

DESCRIPTION OF LIBRARY -

The library specializes in material relating to finance, industry, agriculture and trade in the South. Since agriculture predominates in the region, the collection of periodicals, pamphlets, and releases on that subject is especially strong.

The library is gradually adding more material on the industry and trade in the South. In addition, there is material on central banking, general economics, and finance.

A large number of government bulletins and periodic reports are received each day. Many of these are routed to Bank personnel by the library staff.

Newspapers of Southern cities are scanned each day for the outstanding developments in the economy of the District which are noted in the DAILY NEWSPAPER REVIEW.

The books are classified by Library of Congress classification system and the vertical files are arranged by subject. The periodicals are arranged alphabetically, with those relating to agriculture in a separate division.
