HOPE, G. A.

"Interest on reserve balances," JOURNAL OF THE
AMERICAN BANKERS ASSOCIATION,
September, 1923.

The free services rendered by the federal reserve system are believed by many to bring greater returns to member banks than the 2 per cent previously paid on balances. Writer thinks that interest payments by federal reserve banks would tend to bring them into competition with commercial banks. Abstract by W.O. Weyforth, AMERICAN ECONOMIC REVIEW, XIII, Dec. 1923, p. 768.
