The credit policies of reserve banks for a year have been formulated, at least in part, to assist return to gold in Europe. Bank rate has been kept low to prevent withdrawal of funds from London even at expense of domestic inflation. Abstract by W. O. Weyforth, AMERICAN ECONOMIC REVIEW, June, 1926, p. 375.

Norman, Montague C

Editorial comment on the speech by Norman in which he referred to the difficulties of the money centers in that they accepted deposits payable on demand in gold against which liabilities no reserves are set up, as being one of the difficulties of the working of the gold standard as now apparent.
