A review of the financial policies followed by US in former wars points to advantage of relying to a considerable degree on taxation. The income and excess profits taxes, but not the inheritance, should be increased, rates on spirits, beer, and tobacco should be raised and tea and coffee taxed.

The continuance of high prices is attributed chiefly to a price-maintenance policy of our business interests. Recovery of production in agriculture, increased efficiency in other lines, the entrance of foreign goods into our markets, a serious industrial depression, these are circumstances that might break the resistance to price recessions. WHITNEY, N. R.

THE SALE OF WAR BONDS IN IOWA. Chronicles of the World War, edited by B. F. Shambaugh. Iowa City, Iowa: State Historical Society, 1923. Pp. xiii, 236.

This volume, the seventh in the series, constitutes a most careful contribution to the financial history of the United States, as a whole, for the methods used in one state are typical of campaigns throughout the country. Professor Whitney tells the story with a vivid style, and readers in states other than Iowa will find the narrative attractive and stimulating. Of particular interest is the chapter on "Reluctant bond buyers." The volume is carefully documented with bibliographical references. Abstract, AMERICAN ECONOMIC REVIEW, June 1924, p. 361.
