Lecture, delivered to Kiel Institute of World Trade.

---

F. D. Graham suggests that, in order to preserve full employment, the Government should be prepared to buy durable goods at fixed prices during the depression. This policy would restore confidence, save firms from bankruptcy, and stabilise the general price level; hence it would eliminate the major causes for the falling-off of effective demand and investment.

ECONOMIC POLICY AND FULL EMPLOYMENT.

Review: by William Fellner, JOURNAL OF POLITICAL ECONOMY,
June, 1947, p. 254.

Five econ. policies needed for economic stability and continuing full employment: (i) a flexible program of public works; (ii) a comprehensive social security system; (iii) a variable income tax rate; (iv) a balanced price-wage structure; (v) a reasonable degree of mobility and flexibility.
