

May 13, 1935.

Mr. Robert H. Hinckley,
State Capitol,
Salt Lake City, Utah.

Dear Mr. Hinckley:

Mr. Eccles and I both enjoyed reading the editorial appearing in the San Francisco Chronicle on April 17th which you were so thoughtful in sending to us on April 29th. In accordance with your request, we are returning to you herewith your "Eccles File". Mr. Eccles asked me to express his sincere appreciation of your valuable assistance in this connection.

Naturally, after having a suggestion from you that you might be coming on to Washington, we have been wondering if your coming has just been postponed or definitely cancelled. I am sure that there is no part of the country at the present time which is more beautiful than Washington. The various shades of the spring greens on the trees, shrubbery, lawns, etc., with dogwood, red bud, and other blossoms mingling in the foliage makes a sight which would be inspirational—and possibly romantic—even to you.

Mr. Eccles appeared before the Senate Banking and Currency Subcommittee Friday morning from 10:30 to about 1:15 and this morning from about 10:30 to 11:00. I do not know whether Glass has dismissed him definitely or expects to call him back later. Those who have been expecting a good show have been disappointed up to date. Possibly if you were here you could stir something up so we could get a little excitement out of it.

With kindest regards,

Sincerely yours,

VE:ab