

THE WHITE HOUSE
WASHINGTON

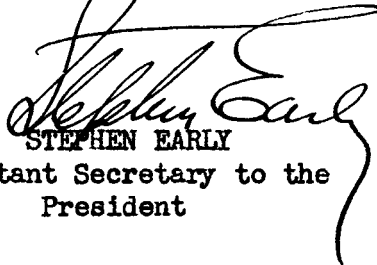

December 6, 1935.

My dear Governor Eccles:

Many thanks for letting me see the copies of the two magazine articles enclosed with your letter of December fourth. I shall show them to the President immediately upon his return to Washington as I know he, too, will be most interested in reading them.

With kindest regards, I am

Very sincerely yours,

STEPHEN EARLY

Assistant Secretary to the President

Governor M. S. Eccles,
Chairman, Federal Reserve Board,
Washington, D. C.

Chairman
XXXXXXX

December 4, 1935.

My dear Steve:

I am so greatly impressed with two recent magazine articles that I am taking the liberty of sending you copies of each in case you may have overlooked them. I think they would both be well worth the President's attention, not merely because they ought to be of real satisfaction and encouragement, but because they present such devastating and effective answers to a great deal of nonsense that is aired these days in the press and from the platform.

One article, entitled "Ode to the Liberty League" by Stuart Chase, appearing in "The Nation" of November 27th, is to my mind one of the best things I have read in years. I think it constitutes just about the complete answer to the Liberty League type of mind.

The other article is John Flynn's "Who But Hoover?" in "The New Republic" of December 4th. I think he has done a masterly job in exploding the alibi that recovery was underway when interrupted by the last Presidential election.

I have had a few copies of both these articles made for distribution among my close friends, and I thought I would send the enclosed ones along to you hoping that the President might find time to read them, if he has not already done so.

Sincerely yours,

M. S. Eccles,
Chairman.

Honorable Stephen Early,
Assistant Secretary to the President,
The White House,
Washington.
