Mr. George H. Hodges,
Olathe, Kansas.

Dear Mr. Hodges:

I have read with pleasure and interest the editorial concerning me in the Johnson County Democrat of May 23. While it is naturally pleasing to read complimentary comments regarding my personal qualifications and economic philosophy, my chief concern is the improvement of the banking system of the country so that it may better serve the public. I believe that the Banking Bill of 1935 marks an important step in this direction and sincerely hope that the Congress will sense the true issues involved and pass the Banking Bill of 1935.

The above angle is presented in the radio address which I made last Saturday evening over the NBC network and in view of your interest in this general field, I am enclosing a copy of the address referred to.

Yours sincerely,

M. S. Eccles,
Governor.
