Dear Marriner:

I believe I told you during our conversation last month that I would send you a copy of the series of articles I was then preparing on post-war planning, and do so herewith.

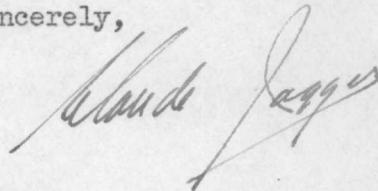

Permit me to thank you again for the many thoughtful suggestions you made, which were more helpful than I can tell you. The articles were used in Wide World News service of The Associated Press, and printed in hundreds of our member newspapers. Perhaps you saw them in the Star.

I found covering a subject of such scope in a few brief articles something of a task, and undertook to do no more than a general introduction. It will of course be a subject of intense continuing interest, and we want to develop it in its many ramifications from time to time.

Any suggestions you may have at any time will certainly be appreciated.

With all good wishes always,

Sincerely,

Mr. Claude A. Jagger,
General Financial Editor,
The Associated Press,
50 Rockefeller Plaza,
New York City.

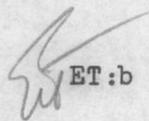

Dear Claude:

Your letter of March 26 enclosing copies of your excellent series is very much appreciated. I think this is a worthwhile thing for you to do and that your presentation is understandable and provocative of the discussion that is necessary if we are to shape our own economic destinies, to say nothing of the rest of the world, so that we may turn the enormous potentialities of this age to human betterment instead of destruction.

I am gratified that you found any of my suggestions helpful, and I need not add that I shall look forward to seeing you when you are in Washington and have time to pay us a visit.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) M. S. Eccles
