December 27, 1938

The Rt. Honorable Merriner S. Eccles
The Shoreham Hotel
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Eccles:

Having read through your reply to Senator Byrd,
I cannot refrain from sending you a note of congratulation.

It was the best piece of economics which has appeared in any country I know of for ages. Quite unanswerable (but he won't understand it!)

If your secretary has a copy of Byrd's attack,
I wonder if she could spare me one.

Yours cordially,

L. L. B. Angas

N.B. This letter of course needs no answer.

January 4, 1939.

Major L. L. B. Angas,
301 Park Avenue,
New York City.

Dear Major Angas:

Chairman Eccles requested me to thank you for your thoughtful and encouraging note of December 27 commenting upon his recent reply to Senator Byrd.

I am enclosing a copy of the full text of the reply to Senator Byrd as well as a copy of the Chairman's speech in New York which was the subject of the Senator's criticism. Unfortunately, I do not have any copies of the Senator's address, which, however, I imagine you could obtain directly from his office.

Sincerely yours,

Elliott Thurston,
Special Assistant to the Chairman.
