

May 11, 1936.

Dear Henry:

On my return from a trip through the West, I was distressed to hear from our mutual friend, Alan Goldborough, that you had been suffering from a siege of surgery, but I was greatly relieved to find that you were well on the road to recovery after your perilous adventure. I trust that you are mending rapidly so that you will soon be back on this scene of perpetual action.

Let me also add my congratulations upon your reelection, or, technically speaking, your re-nomination.

When your recuperation is complete—I hope you are not rushing it—it will be good to have you back on the job, where you have always been such a bulwark to me that I can never adequately express my appreciation.

With every wish for your rapid restoration,
I am

Sincerely yours,

Honorable Henry B. Steagall,
Ozark, Alabama.

Dear Mr. Eccles:

Please accept my thanks for your interest and

I am glad to say that I have recovered from my facing the Administration, and I look forward with pleasant
