

March 17, 1944.

Honorable Fred L. Crawford,
House of Representatives,
Washington 25, D. C.

Dear Mr. Crawford:

It occurred to me that you might be interested in seeing the enclosed clipping from the Wall Street Journal and also the bulletin sent out by Dr. Spahr, inasmuch as both discuss the gold reserve ratio which I mentioned to you in our telephone conversation the other day.

With kindest personal regards,

Sincerely yours,

M. S. Eccles,
Chairman.

Chairman Eccles:

Apropos of your conversation of the other day with Congressman Fred Crawford, there is a letter in today's issue of the Wall Street Journal (March 8, 1944), at page 6, under "Letters to the Editor", entitled "No Gold to Spare!", written by a Mr. Sam Green. It is so in line with one of the points you made to him that I thought perhaps you might wish to see it or have it called to his attention.

J.P.D.
