

June 30, 1942.

Mr. H. B. Elliston, Editor,
The Washington Post,
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Elliston:

Evidently the editor of the Wall Street Journal also was dared to print Congressman White's letter. I asked our economic staff to take it apart, but in the meantime I came across the enclosed letters appearing in the Wall Street Journal this morning in their Letters to the Editor Column.

The first one by Delmer Hubbell is such a devastating and effective reply that I would not undertake to improve on it. You could not do better than to reprint it. I presume Mr. Hubbell would not object and that Henry Grimes wouldn't either.

Sincerely yours,

(Signed) M. S. Eccles

M. S. Eccles,
Chairman.

Enclosure

 ET:b