Hon. Dear Sir:-

How can you reconcile yourself to suggestion a loan to Britian when they allow men like Montgomery to issue statements so diabolical with reference to reducing Germans to starvation rations.

Be they Jews, Japs or w who we have absolutely no right to sanction the starvation of a people and to recommend a loan to recommend a loan is certainly colossal stupidity.

They have German slave labor, they will compete with us. They fear Russia-why? We will get our necks in a sling if we keep on. . .

Here is one American who stands for help for the aged, increased Social Security and just for all. Let the Banks loan Britian. Are they afraid?

Buffalo, New York.

Dear Miss Horner:

This is to acknowledge your post card of March 9. I think it is a basic humanitarian principle that in relieving starvation there should be no discrimination.

I am venturing to enclose a copy of a statement I made on the British loan. It is not a bankable loan in any sense and if it were, there would be no reason for the Government to make it.

Sincerely yours,

M. S. Eccles,
Chairman.
