

December 3, 1947.

Dear Mr. Othman:

The good(?) gray (reluctantly admitted) Chairman, far from being sore, was amused, as I am sure countless other readers were, by your article on his testimony. You summarize so skillfully and readably the major points of my lengthy, complex statement that I wish your article could be broadcast generally. People who would not read a long and solemn financial column on the subject would have a clear idea of what it was all about if they were to read your article. I, for one, appreciate it.

Sincerely yours,

M. S. Eccles,
Chairman.
