

February 17, 1950.

Dear Senator Fulbright:

I am enclosing herewith a list of economists which I discussed with you on the telephone today.

From my discussion with Mr. Young, Messrs. Kaplan and Hoover or Mr. Bach appear to be the best choices from the list. I know Mr. Bach personally and think he would be fine if you could get him. He did the biggest part of the task force job covering the bank supervisory and lending agencies for the Hoover Commission.

I hope you will be able to get one of these men or someone else who will be entirely satisfactory to you.

Don't hesitate to call upon me if there is anything further I can do.

Sincerely yours,

Honorable W. J. Fulbright,
United States Senate,
Washington, D. C.

Economists

Name	Institution with which Associated
* A. D. H. Kaplan	Brookings Institute
* Edgar Hoover	Council of Economic Advisers
Burton Klein	Council of Economic Advisers
Irwin Friend	Department of Commerce
Fred Dirks	National Defense
* Douglas Fuller	Northern Trust Company
Joseph Reeve	Bureau of the Budget
James Eckert	Bureau of the Budget
* William Cooper	Carnegie Institute of Technology
* George L. Bach	Carnegie Institute of Technology
Alfred Oxenfeldt	Hofstra College
? L. H. Seltzer	Wayne University
? H. L. Weissman	City College of New York
? Eli Shapiro	University of Chicago
Clay Anderson	Federal Reserve Bank of Philadelphia
Robert V. Rosa	Federal Reserve Bank of New York
Paul McCracken	University of Michigan
* Myles Mace	Harvard University
John Lintner	Harvard University
Morris Adelman	Mass. Institute of Technology
* V. Lewis Bassie	University of Illinois

* Best choices