Washington, D.C.

Dear Mr. Eccles:

Permit me to say how much I have enjoyed your speeches and particularly that entitled "Unemployment, What Shall We Do about It?"

Your argument is cogently and succinctly put. It goes to the heart of the problem and I trust that it may have some effect not only in the United States but in this country as well.

I am taking steps to draw your views to the attention of the authorities here.

Yours very truly,

Lewis Duncan
