Dear Sir:

May we trouble you to let us have in advance, for release of course after delivery, either a copy or an abstract of the remarks you purpose to make at the 54th annual banquet of the New York Credit Men's Association at the Hotel Astor on February 17th.

While the writer will attend the dinner, an early deadline makes it necessary to have some material in advance if an account of the proceedings is to be published on the following morning.

Any material you may be able to send us in advance will be greatly appreciated.

Very truly yours,

S. S. May

Dear Mr. May:

I just received your letter of February 10, requesting a copy or an abstract of the address which I expect to deliver before the New York Credit Men's Association on February 17.

I do not expect to have any time or opportunity to prepare a statement or an abstract of a statement. It was distinctly understood when I agreed to make the address that it would be an extemporaneous one and strictly off the record. Therefore, I am sorry that I will be unable to comply with your request. I do, however, appreciate your interest.

Sincerely yours,

M. S. Eccles.
