Dear Marriner:

Please be good enough to send me copy of your recent testimony before the Senate Banking Committee. I am much interested in your views.

With kind regards, I am

Faithfully yours,

Dear Lyle:

When I was before the Senate Banking and Currency Committee the other day on the question of changing the gold reserve requirements for Federal Reserve notes and deposits, I was unexpectedly questioned as to what could be done to prevent inflation of capital values. I had no prepared statement, and I believe that the Committee has not yet printed the hearings in a form available to the public. Accordingly, I am unable to comply with the request in your letter of February 24.

With best regards,

Sincerely yours,

Mr. Lyle T. Alverson,
