While my memory tends to fade these days, I clearly recall my first meeting with State AGs. Among others the AGs from Iowa and North Carolina were there. Eliot Spitzer was supposed to attend, but instead he held a press conference blasting the OCC. At the meeting it was clear that we had an irreconcilable difference on preemption, but we had the same objective of protecting consumers. I proposed that we enter into an information-sharing agreement under which the states would refer to the OCC for remedial action any information they had about consumer violations or abuses involving national banks, while the OCC would make similar referrals to the states involving state banks. Sometime after the meeting I circulated a draft of such an agreement, but I don't recall having any response from the states.

Subject: Follow-Up Request from April 8, 2010 Hearing

Dear Mr. Smith,

I am responding to the attached letter to me of June 9, 2010 from the Executive Director of the Commission, presenting follow-up questions related to my testimony on April 8. Because I do not have in my possession records or documents that would enable me to answer these questions I am afraid I cannot provide a useful response. However, I understand that the Office of the Comptroller of the Currency, which does have documents and records relating to the subject of these questions, is gathering the information requested and will provide a response to the Commission.
