

The Obama Administration's Efforts To Stabilize The Housing Market and Help American Homeowners

October 2010

U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development | U.S. Department of the Treasury

The Administration's goal is to promote stability for both the housing market and homeowners. To meet these objectives in the context of a very challenging market, the Administration developed a broad approach implementing state and local housing agency initiatives, tax credits for homebuyers, neighborhood stabilization and community development programs, mortgage modifications and refinancing, continued Federal Housing Administration (FHA) engagement, and support for Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac. In addition, Federal Reserve and Treasury MBS purchase programs have helped to keep mortgage interest rates at record lows over the past year. More detail on the Administration's efforts can be found in the Appendix.

October 2010 Scorecard on Administration's Comprehensive Housing Initiative

The President's housing market recovery efforts began immediately after taking office in February 2009. The October 2010 housing scorecard includes the following key indicators of market health and results of the Administration's comprehensive response, as outlined above:

- Families continued to benefit from the lowest rates in history on 30-year fixed mortgages. Since April of 2009, record low rates have helped more than 7.1 million homeowners to refinance, resulting in more stable home prices and $12.7 billion in total borrower savings.
- As expected with the expiration of the Homebuyer Tax Credit, new and existing home sales remained below levels seen in the first half of 2010. At the same time, home prices remained level in the past year after 33 straight months of decline and homeowners added $95 billion in home equity in the second quarter.
- More than 3.52 million modification arrangements were started between April 2009 and the end of August 2010—nearly triple the number of foreclosure completions during that time. These included more than 1.3 million trial

Home Affordable Modification Program (HAMP) modification starts, more than 510,000 Federal Housing Administration (FHA) loss mitigation and early delinquency interventions, and more than 1.6 million proprietary modifications under HOPE Now. While some homeowners may have received help from more than one program, the number of agreements offered nearly tripled foreclosure completions for the same period (1.3 million).

- At nine months, almost 90 percent of homeowners remain in their permanent HAMP modification, with 11 percent defaulted. Early data indicate that HAMP permanent modifications are performing well over time, with lower delinquency rates than those reported by the industry at large. At nine months, less than 16 percent of permanent modifications are 60+ days delinquent. To view the September HAMP Servicer Performance Report, visit: <http://www.financialstability.gov/docs/Sept%20MHA%20Public%202010.pdf>

Data in the scorecard also show that the recovery in the housing market continues to remain fragile, for example, foreclosure completions continue to move upward and a large supply of homes are being held off the market. While the recovery will take place over time, the Administration remains committed to its efforts to prevent avoidable foreclosures and stabilize the housing market.

The impact of recent new and expanded resources is expected to contribute to progress captured in future Housing Scorecards. For example, in July the Federal Housing Administration (FHA) announced a short refinance option targeted to help people who owe more on their mortgage than their home is worth because their local markets saw large declines in home values. The option will allow certain underwater non-FHA borrowers – those current on their existing mortgage and whose lenders agree to write off at least 10 percent of the unpaid principal balance of the first mortgage – the opportunity to qualify for a new FHA-insured mortgage.

Appendix

The Administration has taken a broad set of actions to stabilize the housing market and help American homeowners. A year ago, stress in the financial system had severely reduced the supply of mortgage credit, limiting the ability of Americans to buy homes or refinance mortgages. Millions of responsible families who had made their monthly payments and had fulfilled their obligations saw their property values fall. They also found themselves unable to refinance at lower mortgage rates.

In February 2009, less than one month after taking office, President Obama announced the Homeowner Affordability and Stability Plan. As part of this plan and through other housing initiatives, the Administration has taken the following actions to strengthen the housing market:

- Supported Fannie Mae and Freddie Mac to ensure continued access to affordable mortgage credit;
- The Federal Reserve and the U.S. Treasury purchased more than $1.4 trillion in agency mortgage backed securities through independent MBS purchase programs, helping to keep mortgage rates at historic lows;
- Launched a modification initiative to help homeowners reduce mortgage payments to affordable levels and to prevent avoidable foreclosures;
- Launched a $23.5 billion Housing Finance Agencies Initiative to increase sustainable homeownership and rental resources;
- Supported the First Time Homebuyer Tax Credit, which has helped 2.5 million American families purchase homes;
- Provided more than $5 billion in support for affordable rental housing through low income housing tax credit programs and $6.92 billion in support for the Neighborhood Stabilization Program to restore neighborhoods hardest hit by the concentrated foreclosures;
- Created the $4.1 billion HFA Hardest Hit Fund for innovative foreclosure prevention programs in the nation's hardest hit housing markets.
- Supported home purchase and refinance activity through the FHA to provide access to affordable mortgage capital and help homeowners prevent foreclosures.
