FEDERAL RESERVE press release

For immediate release

December 6, 1979

The Federal Reserve Board today approved a new supervisory policy with respect to the purchase and sale of government guaranteed loans by State member banks.

The policy adopted by the Board -- which had been recommended to Federal agencies regulating financial institutions by the Federal Financial Institutions Examination Council -- concerns participation in government guaranteed loan programs that:

1. Provide lenders a partial guarantee of principal and interest, and
2. Allow for separate sale of guaranteed portions of loans to third parties.

Participating institutions may be originators, sellers, servicers or purchasers of such guaranteed loans.

Adoption of the supervisory policy by all the Federal financial institutions regulators is intended to help achieve uniform and effective supervision of participating financial institutions.

The policy addresses three major areas of supervisory concern: portfolio management, accounting for fee income and asset liquidity.

The statement of supervisory policy adopted by the Board is attached.

Supervisory Policy

Originating and selling institutions

- Examiners should review the extent and nature of activities in connection with the sale of government guaranteed loans. Lax or improper management of the selling institution's servicing responsibilities should be criticized. Out-of-trade area lending for the purpose of resale of any portion of U. S. government guaranteed loans should be carefully reviewed to insure that the practice is conducted in a safe and sound manner.
- All income, including servicing fees and premiums charged in lieu of servicing fees, associated with the sale of U. S. government guaranteed loans, should be recognized only as earned and amortized to appropriate income accounts over the life of the loan.

Purchasing Institutions

- Recognizing that investments in the guaranteed portions of U. S. government guaranteed loans currently have no formal secondary market which establishes a uniform pricing structure and that, therefore, these investments are somewhat less marketable than investments that do have such a market, the agencies take the following positions to assure against institution over reliance on such investments to maintain adequate levels of liquidity:

A. Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, and Office of the Comptroller of the Currency

Guaranteed portions of U. S. government guaranteed loans should not be recorded or carried as U. S. Government or Federal agency securities and should not be substituted for U. S. Government or Federal agency securities in regulatory formulas or procedures designed to monitor liquidity.

B. Federal Home Loan Bank Board

Pursuant to Federal Home Loan Bank System Regulations, Section 523.10, the guaranteed portions of U. S. government guaranteed loans do not qualify as liquid assets.

C. National Credit Union Administration

Pursuant to Part 742 of the NCUA Rules and Regulations and Section 107(7) of the Federal Credit Union Act, the guaranteed portions of U. S. government guaranteed loans do not qualify as liquid assets except to the extent that any such investments have a remaining maturity of only one year or less.
