

How to Close the Skills Gap

Robert Kaplan

April 12, 2017

I think one of the big challenges of workforce development and the skills gap is while it's a national issue, the solutions need to be local. This is one of those initiatives that if you're waiting for the government to solve and address this problem, either the federal government, the state government or local government, you can stop waiting. It's not going to happen. You have to take the initiative and work with leaders to try to address these issues.