Letter to Mr. Schaller, President of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago, reading as follows:

"Receipt is acknowledged of your letters of June 24 and June 27, 1938, with reference to obtaining the services of Dean C. A. Phillips of the University of Iowa as economic adviser to the Board of Directors of your bank for a trial period of six months. It is noted that your Board has decided to ask Dean Phillips to meet regularly once a month with them, his compensation to be adjusted at the end of the period, with an advancement of possibly $100 per meeting covering his expenses and to apply toward final payment for his services. It is also noted that there are no further commitments on the part of the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago beyond the six months' period.

"The Board approves the employment of Dean Phillips by your bank on the terms and conditions set forth in your letter, with the understanding that should the bank desire to compensate Dr. Phillips at a rate in excess of $100 per meeting, including expenses, it will obtain the Board's approval in advance for the additional compensation.

"We shall be glad to have Dean Phillips visit us in Washington. However, it will probably be best to arrange his visit sometime after the middle of September inasmuch as several of the governors and Mr. Goldenweiser will be away during the summer."

Approved unanimously.

Letter to Mr. Young, President of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston, reading as follows:

"Receipt is acknowledged of Mr. McRae's letter of June 11, 1938, regarding the applicability of the Clayton Act to Mr. Ridgley Larkin who is a director of The Union and New Haven Trust Company, a director of the Morris Plan Bank of New Haven, a director of the New Haven Building and Loan Association, and a trustee of the Connecticut Savings Bank (a mutual savings bank), all of New Haven, Connecticut.

"Since Mr. Larkin was lawfully serving in these capacities on the date of the enactment of the Banking Act of 1935, you have advised him that, under the Clayton Act, he may continue to serve until February 1, 1939, in any event. However, as you point out, the question whether he may continue to serve after that date depends upon whether or not the New Haven Building and Loan Association is a 'bank' within the meaning of the Clayton Act.

"This question is discussed in the comprehensive memorandum of Mr. Kennel and the note appended thereto by Mr. Carrick, your general counsel. As pointed out by Mr. Kennel the Board has held that building and loan associations are not 'banks' within the meaning of section 19 of the Federal Reserve Act (Federal Reserve Bulletin for 1928, page 426). Although there is no published ruling of the Board holding that building and loan associations are not banks within the meaning of the Clayton Act, it has been the practice of the Board to follow the reasoning of the above ruling and to regard building and loan associations of the usual type as not banks within the meaning of the Clayton Act. However, when the present revision of Regulation L was in course of preparation, the Board was advised that cooperative banks in Massachusetts were similar to the usual type of building and loan association but that in view of certain statutory provisions and court decisions in Massachusetts Mr. Carrick was of the opinion that they should be classified as 'banks'. Accordingly, in order to place cooperative banks in Massachusetts on a basis of equality
"with the usual type of building and loan association in other States, the Board made an exception as to such co-operative banks in section 3(a) of the regulation. In the circumstances it is apparent that the making of this exception was not intended to imply that building and loan associations of the usual type should also be regarded as banks within the meaning of the Clayton Act.

"The above discussion relates to building and loan associations of the usual type, which receive payments on shares but which do not receive deposits. It is possible that there are building and loan associations which have expanded their activities so as to include the receiving of deposits, and even the maintaining of what are in effect checking accounts. In such a case it is possible that the Board would rule that the institution in question was a bank within the meaning of the Clayton Act. However, such a ruling would be based upon the facts of the particular case.

"Therefore, if the New Haven Building and Loan Association is a building and loan association of the usual type, it is suggested that you advise Mr. Larkin that it is not a 'bank' within the meaning of the Clayton Act. However, if its activities include receiving what are in effect merely deposits, it is suggested that you refer the matter again to your counsel and, if you wish, to the Board."

Approved unanimously.

Thereupon the meeting adjourned.
