MEMORANDUM TO DR. WARBURTON

We have recently completed some tables based upon the 1941 examinations of insured commercial banks not members of the Federal Reserve System, comparing the capital position and the appraised value of assets of the banks in the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Districts. We believe you will find this comparison of interest. We are also enclosing a short memorandum commenting upon some of the outstanding differences between the various Districts.

Table A provides figures covering the banks examined by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, by size of bank, for 1941 comparable with those presented in the historical tables - 135 to 137 - in the Annual Report for 1940. Tables B and C provide distributions, by Districts, of the same banks arranged according to the fixed and substandard assets ratios and the net sound capital ratios, respectively. Tables 118-NM and 122-NM provide the same data for banks examined by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation as are shown in the comparably numbered tables in the 1941 Annual Report for all insured banks.

We are enclosing one set of the tables for your confidential use and can furnish additional copies if you desire.

MEMORANDUM REGARDING: DISTRICT TABLES OF CAPITAL AND ASSET RATIOS, 1941

There are attached herewith tables similar to those prepared last year, showing ratios computed from the examination reports of insured commercial banks examined by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation during 1941.1/ These figures present average asset and capital ratios, and permit comparisons between Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation Districts and States, and between banks of different size. In addition, the figures in Table A may be used to bring up-to-date the historical tables - 135 to 137 - presented in the Annual Report of the Corporation for 1940.

I

The historical figures reveal the continuous improvement in the quality of assets of insured commercial banks examined by the Corporation. The appraised value of assets not criticized per $100 of book value was higher in 1941 than in any previous year, being $92.69 for the banks as a whole. This improvement has occurred among banks irrespective of size.

In contrast to the continued improvement in quality of assets, the capital cushion has declined in recent years. Net sound capital per $100 of appraised value of assets was $11.43 for banks examined by the Corporation in 1941 - the lowest level shown by examinations made by the Corporation subsequent to those for admission to insurance in late 1933 and early 1934. This decline in the proportion of net sound capital results from the failure of the amount of capital to increase as rapidly as deposits and total assets.

Although the decline in the capital ratio has affected banks of all sizes, the proportion of capital continues to be higher, in general, among the smaller than among the larger banks. This condition is in contrast to the lack of any consistent relationship between size of bank and quality of assets.

1/ These tables cover all insured commercial banks examined by the Corporation for which 1941 reports of examination were available for tabulation. For a statement of the coverage, see the Explanatory Note to Part Five of the Annual Report of the Corporation for 1941, page 94.

Net sound capital amounted to $9.12 per $100 of appraised value of assets for all insured commercial banks in 1941. That this was lower than for banks examined by the Corporation may be attributed to the preponderance of smaller banks with higher capital ratios among banks examined by the Corporation, which causes the average to be higher. The larger banks, with lower capital ratios, weight the average for all insured banks.

II

The proportion of uncriticized assets increased in each Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation District between the time of examinations made by the Corporation in 1940 and those made in 1941. This proportion was highest in Districts 8, 9, and 10. The improvement was most marked in Districts 1, 2, and 3, the Northeastern section of the United States, where examiners' deductions and substandard assets represented a larger proportion of total assets than in the other sections of the country. The improvement was more marked in these districts than in the remaining nine districts with respect to each of the three classes of assets - loans, securities, and fixed and miscellaneous assets. Figures for 1941 are shown in Table 122-NM. (Comparable figures for all insured commercial banks are shown in Table 122 of the Annual Report of the Corporation for 1941.).

Among individual banks there were wide variations in the ratio of fixed and substandard assets to the appraised value of assets, as is shown in Table B. Less than 50 percent of the banks examined by the Corporation in Districts 1, 2, and 3 had fixed and substandard asset ratios of less than 10 percent of the appraised value of assets, whereas more than 80 percent showed such ratios in Districts 8, 9, 10, and 12.

III

Net sound capital was a smaller percentage of total capital accounts for banks examined by the Corporation in Districts 1, 2, and 3 than in the other districts. This was a reflection of the larger examiners' deductions in those districts. However, in relationship to appraised value of assets, net sound capital was the highest of any district in District 3, about average for the country as a whole in District 1, and somewhat below the average in District 2. Net sound capital averaged below 10 percent of the appraised value of assets in Districts 8 and 12 and in five States in other districts - Arizona, Colorado, Missouri, New Jersey, and New Mexico. Capital ratios are shown in Table 118-NM. (Comparable figures for all insured commercial banks are shown in Table 118 of the Annual Report of the Corporation for 1941.).

The distribution of the banks in Table C according to the net sound capital ratio in 1941 shows wide variation among individual banks. About one-fifth of the banks had a net sound capital of less than 10 percent of the appraised value of assets, and about one-tenth had a net sound capital of 20 percent or more of the appraised value of assets. The proportion of banks examined by the Corporation with net sound capital ratios of less than 10 percent of the appraised value of assets was high - and the proportion with ratios of 20 percent or more was low - in Districts 2, 7, 8, and 9 as compared with the average for the country as a whole; while the reverse was true in Districts 3, 4, 5, 10, and 11.

The ratio of net sound private capital to the appraised value of assets is a more appropriate criterion for the soundness of the banks as privately owned businesses. The ratio of net sound private capital to the appraised value of assets reflects (1) changes in the quality of assets, and (2) changes in the amount of assets and deposits; it is not affected by changes in the investment of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation in the banks. Between the time of examinations in 1940 and 1941 made by the Corporation, net sound private capital decreased for the country as a whole from $10.26 to $9.91 per $100 of appraised value of assets. The decrease was most marked in Districts 4 and 5; the ratio increased slightly in Districts 7 and 9. The net sound private capital ratio was below 10 percent in Districts 1, 2, 7, 8, 9, and 12; and above 10 percent in Districts 3, 10, and 11. In nearly one-half of the States it was less than 10 percent.

ASSETS AND LIABILITIES OF STATE AND PRIVATE BANKS, June 30, 1941, by States

Figures entered in ordinary pencil are those tabulated from data for individual banks. If derived from Rand McNally Bankers Directory they are marked RM; if derived from reports received from State supervisory authorities, they are marked S. In the case of the latter groups a number or corrections are indicated: the figures marked out being those rounded from the recaps prepared by the Statistical Service Unit (such recaps were prepared in dollars and cents), while those inserted are totals from the figures punched (tabulated from figures for each bank rounded to thousands of dollars and forced to balance).

Figures in green pencil are rounded from the figures given in consolidated statements received from State supervisory authorities in States in which such authorities did not send us individual statements.

Figures in red pencil refer to institutions now excluded from noninsured bank tabulations, but to be included in the proposed all bank and trust company figures to be published uniformly by the three Federal banking agencies. The list of such institutions has been agreed upon in principle by J. E. Horbett, Assistant Chief, Division of Bank Operations, Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, and Clark Warburton, Principal Economist in charge of Financial Structure Unit, Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation. However, the list is tentative with respect to several specific institutions.
