SWIFT AND COMPANY
UNION STOCK YARDS

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

CHICAGO, February 2, 1914.

Mr. Roy C. Vance,
Chairman Regional Reserve Bank Committee,
Fort Worth Clearing House Association,
Fort Worth, Texas.

Dear Sir:-

In establishing a live stock market in the Southwest, the interests who made the investment, i. e. for yardage facilities, packing plants, railway yards and other general equipment necessary to a live stock market, selected Fort Worth, Texas, primarily on account of the fact that it offers access to all sections of the State and to the Southwest by reason of its railway facilities.

Fort Worth has shown great progress and has grown to be a live stock center of splendid proportions; and the prospects are very encouraging; and, as the wonderful State of Texas continues to develop her remarkable possibilities, the future prospects are inspiring.

The figures below show receipts of live stock at Fort Worth for the year 1913, with approximate valuations, and indicate the importance of the live stock market to which Fort Worth has grown:-

Kind	Number Head	Approximate Valuation
Cattle	965,535	$43,448,625
Calves	219,629	2,855,177
Hogs	403,761	6,863,937
Sheep	327,527	1,310,108
Horses & Mules	56,724	8,508,600

To the Secretary of the Treasury,
The Secretary of Agriculture and Comptroller of Currency
Washington, D. C.

Gentlemen:—

Fort Worth, Texas, makes this, its formal application to have one of the Regional Banks, provided for by the Federal Reserve Act, located at this city.

Following are reasons, briefly stated why, in our judgment, said Regional Bank should be located at Fort Worth. Your careful and favorable consideration is respectfully solicited and if further information is desired, it will be furnished, if possible, upon suggestion from you.

Respectfully,

Suggested District

The States of TEXAS, OKLAHOMA and NEW MEXICO comprise a compact contiguous territory whose Trade Relations with Fort Worth are close and intimate and the facilities for the transacting of business adequate to the demand.

Area

The area of Texas is 265,780 square miles.

The area of Oklahoma is 70,057 square miles.

The area of New Mexico is 122,580 square miles.

The total area of this proposed district is 458,417 square miles.

These States are larger by 15,287 square miles than the States of Maine, New Hampshire, Vermont, Massachusetts, Connecticut, Rhode Island, New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Maryland, Ohio, Virginia, Delaware, Indiana, Illinois and Michigan combined.

Larger by 30,043 square miles than all the States bordering on the Atlantic and Gulf of Mexico from Maryland to and including Louisiana.

Larger by 5,712 square miles than all the States between the Hudson and Mississippi Rivers north of the Ohio River with Virginia, Maryland and Kentucky, south of the Ohio, included.

While AREA is not the only factor to be considered in the location of a Regional Reserve Bank, it will be admitted that so large a territory, so favorably situated, with such a volume of business is entitled to the highest consideration, and if found consistent with the plan of organization adopted, should have the benefit of the facilities afforded by the location of one of these Banks.

Population

The population in the suggested district is approximately 6,000,000. In no part of the country is the population increasing as rapidly as in this section. In a few years it will equal, if it does not surpass, that of any other "Region" that may be formed by your Committee.

The population of Texas as shown by the thirteenth census was 3,896,542.

FORTY-TWO and EIGHT-TENTHS PER CENT of the population of Texas is within a radius of one hundred and ten miles of Fort Worth, and an examination of the map appended hereto will demonstrate the fact that this section is better served with railway facilities than any other section in the Southwest.

Railway and Mail Facilities

Railway Facilities

Geographical convenience must be admitted and the map submitted herewith will demonstrate the fact that transportation facilities and rapid and easy communication with all parts of the District is ample and satisfactory.

Thirteen TRUNK LINES of Railway converge at Fort Worth and radiate in seventeen directions across the State and adjoining States to the Commercial Marts of the Country.

No city in the South or West, if indeed, in the entire country is better provided with facilities for rapid and easy communication than Fort Worth.

There are three lines to Denver: The Fort Worth & Denver, the Santa Fe and the Rock Island.

There are four lines to Kansas City: The Santa Fe, Rock Island, M. K. & T. and the "Frisco."

There are five lines to St. Louis: The M. K. & T., "Cotton Belt," Texas & Pacific with its connection with the Iron Mountain and the two lines of the "Frisco," on east by the way of Dallas, Paris and Fort Smith, Arkansas, and one north by way of Denison, Tulsa, Okla., and Springfield, Mo.

There are five lines south to Houston and Galveston: The M. K. & T., Santa Fe, H. & T. C., I. & G. N. and T. & B. V.

There are two lines to the Mexican border on the Southwest, through San Antonio and one to El Paso.

New Mexico is served by three lines: The Santa Fe with a tri-daily service; the Fort Worth & Denver with its connections at Amarillo; the Texas & Pacific with its connections at Pecos City with the Pecos Valley & Northern and at El Paso with the Santa Fe. These several roads reach all the principal points in New Mexico.

It will be observed that the North and South lines from Fort Worth with their connections cover the entire State of Oklahoma, leaving nothing to be desired in the way of "rapid and easy communication."

Mail Service

One of the most important factors in the "rapid and easy" transaction of business is the prompt and reliable transmission of the mails.

Fort Worth was selected by the Post Office Department for the Headquarters of the Eleventh Division of the Railway Mail Service by reason of its unexcelled railway facilities. There are one hundred and ten mail trains in and out of Fort Worth every twenty-four hours. These facilities are unequalled in the Southwest and it would be difficult to estimate the advantage to business of these conditions.

Freight Movement

There is no more reliable indication of the volume of business done at a given point than in the movement of Freight Cars. Your attention is directed to the movement of Freight Cars through the several yards of the Railroads which converge at this point, for the year 1913, which includes loaded cars only and amounts to 955,905 cars. It is confidently asserted that no other city in the Southwest, irrespective of population, can make a showing equal to this.

Industrial and Commercial Development

Live Stock

"The Industrial and Commercial Development and Needs of this Section" is best shown by the volume of business transacted, the amount of capital required and the quantity and kind of commodities included in the daily transactions.

The products of Oklahoma, New Mexico and Texas are chiefly Agricultural and Cattle. Cotton and Grain are the principal agricultural products of this district and require vast sums of money to handle.

FORT WORTH is the second cattle market in the United States. The Packing Houses and Stock Yards are the most modern in design and equipment in the country. By reason of its accessibility Fort Worth has been made the Headquarters of the Cattle Raisers Association, which embraces in its membership the Stock Raisers of Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, the Republic of Mexico and large numbers of the State of Kansas, and is the largest organization of its kind in the world.

During the year 1913 there were received at Fort Worth:

Kind.	Number.	Value.
Cattle	965,525	$43,447,525.00
Calves	219,629	4,392,450.00
Hogs	403,761	6,056,415.00
Sheep	327,527	1,637,635.00
Horses and Mules	57,724	8,508,600.00

ONE MILLION, NINE HUNDRED AND SEVENTY-THREE THOUSAND ONE HUNDRED AND SIXTY-SIX head of live stock of the value of SIXTY-FOUR MILLION, FORTY-TWO THOUSAND SEVEN HUNDRED AND FORTY-FIVE DOLLARS.

There were sixteen thousand five hundred Cars of Refrigerated Meats shipped from Fort Worth during the year of the value of Fifty Million Dollars.

Thus we have an aggregate of over $114,000,000 required for this single industry.

The "Proviso" in Section 13 of the "Federal Reserve Act," which authorizes Reserve Banks to discount Notes, Drafts and Bills drawn for Agricultural purposes or based on Live Stock, and having a maturity of six months, is an indication that the framers of the Act had in mind the encouragement of these two industries. At no point in the country can this service be more acceptably rendered than at Fort Worth, in so far as it applies to "Live Stock." This being the second largest industry in Texas and Fort Worth being the acknowledged center for the transaction of every line of business connected with the raising and marketing of "Live Stock" makes it the logical place for the location of a Reserve Bank.

Cotton

Approximately one-third of the Cotton of the country is grown in this district.

The official statistics of the year 1913 are not available at this time, but the yield in Texas will be nearly, if not quite, 4,000,000 bales.

The yield for the year 1912 was 4,880,200 bales, of which about 51%, or 2,482,215 bales, was raised within a radius of one hundred and ten miles of Fort Worth and in counties that lie west of this city.

Practically all of the Cotton raised in Oklahoma comes to this market where it is purchased by the cotton firms, of which there are fifteen, that do business here. Fully one million bales will be bought and paid for by the Fort Worth Cotton Dealers this year. One firm has loaded and sent out from the port of Galveston two full cargoes for the Orient, during the month of December, 1913.

This business requires fully FIFTY MILLION DOLLARS per annum to transact.

There are fifteen Cotton Mills in Texas with a capital of $2,229,000. They operate 112,404 spindles. Eleven of these mills, with 89,304 spindles, are within a radius of one hundred and ten miles of Fort Worth.

There was crushed in the United States in the year 1912 6,104,000 tons of Cotton Seed of the value of $128,390,000. Of this Texas supplied 2,171,000 tons, or more than one-third of the whole of the value of $39,690,000.

Grain

Fort Worth is the acknowledged Grain Center of the Southwest. It is the Headquarters of the Texas Grain Dealers Association, which has in its membership many of the leading dealers of Oklahoma.

There are eighteen Grain Elevators in the city with a capacity of 2,555,000 bushels.

During the year 1913 there were 29,108 cars of grain received in Fort Worth, of which 7,525 were purchased by the Fort Worth dealers.

As each car of grain represents a value of about one thousand dollars it will be seen that it requires about THIRTY MILLION DOLLARS to transact this business.

Petroleum

The Oil from the fields in Northwest Texas and Central Oklahoma is brought to Fort Worth by Pipe Lines, where it is converted by the Refineries here into the merchantable article and shipped throughout the Southwest and to the Gulf States east of the Mississippi.

It is contended by those in the business that this industry is practically in its infancy and that the output will be very largely increased as the territory is developed.

Eleven Thousand Barrels of Crude Oil is received at this place daily. As the average value is one dollar per barrel, this industry uses $3,300,000 per annum for the purchase of the crude oil alone. About four dollars per barrel is added to the value by refining, making a total of $16,500,000 per annum for this industry.

Banks and Trust Companies

There are 519 National Banks in Texas with an aggregate capital and surplus of $86,089,990.00.

The deposits in these Banks amount to $259,635,000.00.

There are 924 State Banks and Trust Companies with an aggregate capital of $52,564,325.00, and deposits amounting to $110,555,000.00.

There are 40 National Banks in New Mexico with an aggregate capital and surplus of $3,509,000.00, and deposits amounting to $17,543,000.00.

There are 48 State Banks and Trust Companies with an aggregate capital and surplus of $2,023,000.00, and deposits of $5,569,000.00.

There are 415 National Banks in Oklahoma with an aggregate capital and surplus of $15,430,500.00. The deposits amount to $77,565,875.00.

There are 518 State Banks and Trust Companies with an aggregate capital and surplus of $10,261,300.00. Their deposits amount to $46,138,125.00.

"The established custom and trend of business as shown by the present system of Bank Reserves and Checking Accounts," as far as can be ascertained by careful inquiry, is for the interior Banks in small towns in the territory to the North, Northwest and West of Fort Worth to keep their reserves in Fort Worth, and to keep only small deposits for checking accounts in the "Central Reserve" cities. This has proven more convenient and expeditious for the transaction of ordinary daily business of these Banks. If found necessary to draw for larger sums than they have on deposit in the "Central Reserve" cities their correspondents in Fort Worth are asked to remit to cover.

Bank Clearings

Indubitable evidence of the volume of business transacted at a given point is found in the "Bank Clearings." For the year 1913 the Bank Clearings of the Fort Worth Banks amounted to the sum of $418,619,827.91. This is an increase of 65% over the year of 1908, showing the rapid increase of business in this city.

An examination of the reports of Bank Clearings, as published weekly in the Financial Journals of the country, will disclose the fact that the "clearings" in Fort Worth exceeds that of many cities having two and three times the population of this city. Different cities have different methods of "clearings." Fort Worth includes in its Bank Clearings only the bills that are actually exchanged between the banks over the Clearing House Counter each day.

Industrial Development

The Industrial Development of Fort Worth has not been rapid, but it has been steady and substantial. All of the industries located in this city have been prosperous and progressive.

The Commissionor of Labor for the State of Texas says:

> "Fort Worth has a larger pay-roll, a larger average wage, a larger number of laboring men and less trouble with labor than any other city of the State."

The two Packing Houses and Stock Yards is the largest single industry in the city. They employ about Five Thousand people.

Fort Worth is the largest manufacturer of Furniture in the South.

Fort Worth has the only Steel Rolling Mill in the Southwest.

Fort Worth has:

Two Oil Refineries.
Three Cotton Seed Oil Mills.
Two Harness and Saddle Factories.
Three Overall and Jumper Factories.
Two Bank, Office and Store Fixture Factories.
Eleven Silo Factories.
One Wagon Factory (largest in the South).
One Wire Fence Factory.
Two Flouring Mills (capacity 2500 bbls. daily).
Two Candy Factories.
One Cracker Factory.
Five Cigar Factories.
Two Trunk Factories.
One Brewery (largest in the South).
Two Structural Iron Factories.
Three Iron and Brass Works.
Three Broom Factories.
Five Metal Tank and Cistern Factories.
One Pottery and Earthenware Factory.
Six Ice Factories.
Two Macaroni Factories.
Two Well Boring Machine Factories.
Two Flavoring Extract Factories.
Two Chemical and Disinfectant Factories.

There are a large number of small concerns that employ only a few men each but which in the aggregate add materially to the industrial output of the city.

Commercial

The Commercial activity of Fort Worth is clearly indicated by the volume of Bank Clearings and the movement of Freight Cars. It will not be necessary to epitomize the sources from which this business is derived. But it may not be amiss to direct the attention of the Committee to one or two salient points which are the most potent factors in the business of the city.

Fort Worth is the largest distributor of Groceries in the Southwest. One of the Wholesale Grocery Houses in this city is the second largest in the United States. A Chicago house is the only one that leads in the volume of business transacted in this line.

There are two Wholesale Drug Houses, two Hardware Houses, one Wholesale Dry Goods House, five Wholesale Liquor Dealers, one of which is the largest in the Southwest. Machinery and Agricultural Implement Houses are well represented.

The volume of business transacted in this city which require large sums of money to conduct is such as to justify the location of a Federal Reserve Bank here.

At no point in the Southwest will a larger number of people or a larger volume of business be served than at Fort Worth.

Your attention is directed to the rapid growth of the city. The census of the year 1900 gave Fort Worth a poulation of 26,668. The census of 1910 a population of 73,312, an increase of 174.7 per cent. The city is growing with as much rapidity as during the last decade.

In regard to a Reserve Bank for the State of Texas we wish to recommend to your kind consideration the city of FtWorth for the location. We have a great deal of cattle interests here and on all southern shipments, consignements are made to FtWorth exclusively and they are called upon to handle a great amount of this class of paper.

Yours very truly,

Hearing at Austin
on behalf of Ft Worth

BEFORE THE FEDERAL RESERVE BANK LOCATING BOARD.

Supplemental Petition of the Fort Worth Chamber of Commerce.

At the hearing before this Honorable body at Austin, Texas, on Monday, February 9, 1914, the advisability of locating a reserve bank in Texas prompted several questions on the part of the locating board which were not answered at the time by the representatives of the City of Fort Worth, and, after careful consideration, the following is offered as a reply to such questions to supply the information requested.

Moreover, certain questions were asked regarding the City of Fort Worth which could not be answered at the time and this Honorable body then requested that such facts - - also certain documents - - be furnished to go into the records, that all might be considered before the decision of the Board was made and the location of the several federal reserve banks decided.

The Location of a Federal Reserve Bank in Texas.

We believe it is safe to assume that a district comprising Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico and probably some little adjacent territory as outlined by the Texas committee of bankers has every claim for the location of a Federal Reserve Bank unless it be a fact that such a bank would not be self-sustaining under normal conditions. It is unquestionably the intention of the law that each district shall be as nearly self-sustaining as possible, and this feature properly appears to be the primary consideration of the organization committee.

Naturally then the question of first importance is, "Will a bank located in the district contemplated above be able, under normal conditions to handle the needs and demand of the member banks in its territory?" Without the least hesitation we answer that it will. It has been shown that such a district will afford not only the required capitalization but would have as well a comfortable excess; its deposits created by the actual legal reserves of National Bank members alone will exceed by several million dollars the total rediscounts or borrowed money of those same National Banks considered at the period of their highest borrowing during the Fall of last year,- a season of nation-wide unusual conditions. Such a bank could not, of course, at any time provide for all of the commercial needs of this section, neither for that matter could a bank located in St. Louis or Kansas City comprising at the same time all of the territory proposed in connection with them.

Furthermore, as we understand it, it is not contemplated that the establishment of these reserve banks will in any great measure cause a discontinuance of present established connections, but on the contrary it is reasonable to presume that business interests generally will continue to sell their paper to lenders throughout the entire country: banks and financial institutions in other sections will not have lost their willingness to buy our cattle, land and every other kind of paper.

It is not to be denied that this is a borrowing section, in fact, every growing developing district invariably is, but it must not be overlooked that the financial growth of this section has more than kept pace with the general commercial industrial and agricultural progress. It is an indisputable fact, to which the bankers of Texas will practically unanimously agree, that they find less difficulty each succeeding year in financing their customers and connections.

No better evidence of this statement can be found than in the fact that the financing of our great cotton crop annually has ceased to be the nightmare it formerly was to Texas bankers. We have learned to do business on good paper and the amount of actual money used in our transactions diminishes daily. During the year of 1912 the immense cotton crop which sold at unusually high prices was handled with greater ease than ever before in our history, and it is a fact worthy of consideration in this connection that during what is generally our most stringent season, namely, the early fall when the actual movement of cotton is greatest and the strain most severe, a large number of Texas banks began buying commercial paper. We venture the assertion that during that season Texas banks bought more commercial, or outside paper than ever before, showing in an unmistakable manner that our own local finances and connections were such that we could handle our vast products and industries under normal conditions. During the fall of 1913 money was tight throughout the entire country and naturally we were effected materially by adverse general conditions; however, the magnitude of our burdens consisted almost entirely in the holding of cotton for months after it had been gathered, baled and ready for shipment. Had our cotton crop been marketed as it was ready for market, or sold in the manner it is generally disposed of, Texas would have had few troubles financially.

It must be borne also in mind that through a bank centrally, or in other words, conveniently located for this section of great production, it is not only possible, but reasonably probable that a system will be worked out under which we can handle to greater advantage and with more despatch the exchange and funds arising from the marketing of our various products, thus reducing the enormous amount of funds required in the transit financing of the great volume of business transactions. We wish, also, to call attention to the fact that should it become necessary at any time to issue currency against the needs of this region that our actual products of the soil will furnish the best assets possible in this entire country for the proper and actual securing of the same.

TRANSIT FINANCING OF CROPS AND FOOD PRODUCTS.

Of the products of the soil of the Southwest, a goodly portion move through or is handled in the City of Fort Worth; the live stock, the grain and the cotton being representative of a large part of the production.

In the original FortWorth brief, statistics and figures are submitted showing the volume of this traffic. Practically all the grain and cotton is handled by the method of draft on the consignees attached to the railroad company's original bill of lading. This draft is passed by the bank of original point to its nearest correspondent and, in numerous cases, passes through from three to five banks before it finally arrives at its destination. This requires several days at best, and in effect, takes out of circulation for commercial purposes, a large amount of funds at a time when badly needed, and, further, burdens the commerce with an unnecessary interest account which is a strong factor in the cost of moving the crops and the commerce of the country.

In numerous cases, the commodities themselves moving by freight service, arrive at destination far in advance of the bill of lading and draft referred to above. Under present business conditions it requires from six to ten days for the banks to get returns on the draft given for money advances for the purchase and payment of cotton and grain, and from three to six days to get returns on the drafts given for the purchase and payment of live stock.

If there were a reserve bank at Fort Worth, this money could be turned every twenty-four to thirty-six hours, thus requiring a much smaller volume of money to conduct the business of these three great ready money products of the farms and ranches of Texas and the Southwest.

THE QUESTION OF LOANS.

It has been shown heretofore that Fort Worth distributes and finances the greater part of the livestock products of the Southwest, including imports from Mexico, the greater part of the grain products, including a considerable volume of Argentine imports of corn; the largest part of the fruits and vegetables from other States, and approximately, as much cotton as any city of Texas.

Therefore, Fort Worth is preeminent among the cities of the Southwest in vital relation to its primary wealth, and it must be remembered that rural products constitute at least 75% of the resources of this region.

These facts are the more important and impressive in view of the commanding duty and avowed purpose of the Government to facilitate the marketing and financing of rural products.

The provisions of the new banking act offer the only accommodation to producers that may be expected for a considerable period since proposed legislation to establish rural banking cannot be realized in the near future, and, at best, will be only a hopeful experiment.

The Department of Agriculture wisely contemplates in its tentative plans for the better marketing of farm products, a system of smaller, rather than larger units, and the service to be rendered to agriculture by the new banking system should conform in some degree to this contemplation. In other words, the bank regions should be constructed and the reserve banks located with some regard to marketing needs. This accommodation should be offered to producers, even though it might require the arrangement of regions not completely self-sustaining, and, after all, the several reserve banks are to be so correlated under the general Board that loans by one reserve bank to another will be easily provided, and in fact, will be freely offered for the same reasons of self-interest that now induce banks in non-producing sections to make seasonable loans to banks in producing sections.

The South and West under any conceivable circumstances, in the near future must continue to borrow more or less from the East during the short period of crop movement, and must likewise lend to the East during the longer period of crop consumption. The new banking system will not affect this business relation except by providing the means of protection for the South and West from concentrated power in private banks and from arbitrary rates in times of general distress.

ENDORSEMENTS.

During the Hearing of this Board at Austin, when certain endorsements were submitted for the consideration of this Board, a request was made by Mr. Secretary McAdoo that copies of the requests for such endorsements be filed into the record, and likewise the original endorsements themselves be filed wherever possible.

The letter, as per Exhibit I, attached hereto, was sent to several thousand feeders and breeders of livestock in the States of Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arizona, Louisiana and Texas, together with the return postal card marked Exhibit II, with the result that 2,501 endorsements were received.

Following this, a wire was sent to the members of the executive committee of the Cattle Raisers Association of Texas, copy of which is attached hereto, marked Exhibit III. Replies from a majority of this body strongly endorse the City of Fort Worth for a federal reserve bank.

Mr. Marion Sansom, before this Board on Monday, February 9th, at Austin read and filed into the records telegrams to this effect from the following members of the executive committee of the Cattle Raisers Association of Texas:

For the endorsements of such banks, see Exhibit V attached hereto with letter from Mr. Fuqua being the endorsement of thirty-nine banks in Texas, New Mexico and Oklahoma.

Likewise, when it was generally learned from press reports that this Honorable Board was interested in the question of endorsements and that same would have consideration in the selection of the location of this bank, telegrams were voluntarily sent by the following interests endorsing the City of Fort Worth:

Hearing [illegible] on behalf of Ft Worth

In picking the district named with Fort Worth as the central point, the idea has been kept in mind that each district must, in itself, be self-sustaining, that is, the commerce of each district must be well balanced and an equal amount of returns made to the moneys paid out, each district independent of the others.

With the immense live stock, cattle and grain business of the Southwest, this is nearer accomplished in the City of Fort Worth than any point in the proposed district.

For details of the live stock and cattle business, see Exhibit 1.

Coincident with the live stock, may be mentioned the question of feed. This consisting of cotton seed products, such as cake, meal and hulls in the first case, and grain in the second. The moneys for the purchase of this feed come from the cattle loans and a large part of the transaction of the purchase of such food stuffs is at the city of Fort Worth by reason of selling agencies on the cotton seed products,and elevators and warehouses on the grain.

Fort Worth is the primary grain market of the Southwest, created by reason of its superior transportation facilities. In the year 1913, 29,108 cars of grain were received at this market, the value of which was approximately $30,000,000.00 Most of this grain goes into the elevators for storage or treatment and is later shipped to the consumers. Thus a working capital of millions of dollars is required to handle this one commodity, and later, the returns on this grain are made direct to this city, thus maintaining the working balance. Most important at this time to the Southwest is the new line of industry created by the recent cancellation of the import traffic on grain. Already several cargoes of grain have moved to the consumers of the Southwest through the Texas Gulf ports. This has been of immense benefit to the consumers and a potent factor in reducing the price of feed the present winter. Under present conditions, all this import grain traffic is handled and financed through New York, thus permitting of a middleman's profit and much unnecessary inconvenience and delay, all of which tends to increase the cost of delivering this commodity to the consumer. With the free movement of the grain crops thus created, should be provided the further facilities of giving to the people the full benefits this and other acts of the administration intend.

In the conservation and distribution of food stuffs, experience dictates that certain commodities, such as fruit and vegetables, must be kept in cold storage at a central point to thus prevent deterioration, and, at the same time be available to the markets.

Be reason of the great number of railroads entering Fort Worth, and the further fact that Fort Worth is the point of interchange (or junction point) on a majority of the traffic to and from the Southwest, here is located the storage and transfer point for practically all of this traffic.

Federal Reserve Bank of St. Louis

The capacity of the cold storage plants at Fort Worth is now 482 carloads of produce. This business is one that is continuous even in the winter season. The climate is such that cold storage is necessary and therefore requires capital the year around, with the returns always coming back to this point.

Coincident with the claims of Fort Worth for the proposed federal reserve district, we would call attention to the fact that Fort Worth is headquarters for the Eleventh Division of the Railway Mail Service of the United States, and the Eleventh Division comprises the states of Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico, which is almost identical to the suggested reserve district. This, in itself, is a strong argument of the accessibility of Fort Worth to the territory named.

Of the immense traffic to and from the State of Texas through the Southwest, Fort Worth is the point of enterchange of not less than 70% of the total, as attested by the fact that 955,905 loaded cars moved through the railroad terminals in the year 1913.

The package, or less than carload shipments of freight for the proposed district is concentrated at Fort Worth for distribution in much the same manner as the United States mail, and this concentrated freight requires 165 package cars daily from Fort Worth to the various cities in the Southwest.

In further support of the importance of this city as a railroad center and point of interchange, it might be pointed out that the California Fruit Co., in the year 1913, inspected 15,000 carloads of fruit at the city of Fort Worth, one-half of which was re-iced at this point on its way to destination.

With a steady demand for working capital, Fort Worth has 266 jobbing and manufacturing concerns, besides the packing house, live stock and grain industries.

Poll tax receipts show total number for last four years - - 1910 - - - -14,915
1911 - - - -15,170
1912 - - - -13,713
1913 - - - -21,289

From this it is shown that the Poll Tax payments of 1913 compared with 1912, show an increase of 54.88 %

EXHIBIT #1.

LIVE STOCK INDUSTRY.

At the present time the State of Texas and the Republic of Mexico are the principal breeding grounds of cattle of America.

Large quantities of young cattle are sold and shipped each year from Texas to stock pastures and feeding gronds of the North and Northwest. This movement of cattle, alone, creates an enormous demand for money in this territory.

The tariff bill of the present Administration removing the duty on live stock gives this section the benefit to a peculiarly large extent of the immense breeding grounds and ranches in Mexico, thousands upon thousands head of cattle have already moved from Mexico into the pastures and markets of Texas, as well as large numbers of sheep. These cattle and sheep are used by the ranchman of Texas to breed-up to thoroughbred bulls and re-stock their ranches. This in itself requires an enormous amount of money in this territory.

Owing to its wonderful advantageous location from a transportation and geographical standpoint as affecting the live stock industry, Fort Worth is necessarily the center of the live stock industry of the entire Southwest. From a small total of 265,000 head of cattle and calves handled in this market in 1903, it has jumped to third place in the handling of cattle in the United States, with a total of 1,185, 154 head of cattle and calves for the year 1913; Fort Worth showing the greatest increase in cattle and calves for the year 1913 of any United States market. The total amount of money required to handle the cattle, calves, hogs and sheep on the Fort Worth market alone for the year 1913 amounted in round figures to $55,500,000, every dollar of which is paid out on the day on which the live stock is sold, necessitating a very large amount of money in this territory to properly handle the business. This movement of cattle included a total of 90,000 head of imported Mexican cattle, valued at $2,811,000.00.

The year 1914 already promises to put Fort Worth in second place as a cattle market. For the month of January there is an increase in cattle and calves over previous January, of over 25,000 head, or 34 per cent., as against a heavy decrease at Missouri River markets for the same period, and as a further indication of the possibilities of the movement of live stock from Mexico to this center, would call attention to the fact that during this last January we have received a total of 18,000 head of Mexican cattle, or one-fifth as many as received for the entire year of 1913, and while, of course, Mexico is not a party to our Reserve Bank Law, every dollar of the money paid for these Mexican cattle is handled through some Texas bank. It is a peculiar transportation condition that provides that all cattle coming from Mexicothrough the ports of Galveston, Texas City, Laredo, Brownsville and Eagle Pass going to any northern market, the route would naturally be through Fort Worth, and on El Paso the route through Fort Worth is just as natural from a transportation standpoint as via any other junction, the result being that 90 per cent. of the cattle moving from Mexico direct to market comes to or through Fort Worth. This, we consider of extreme significance in the location of a reserve bank in the Southwest, as the centering of the live stock industry from Mexico on Fort Worth and the very fact that every Mexican interested in any way in live stock will have his mind fixed on Fort Worth as the point from which he draws his profit and revenue on his business and the fact that the majority of these shippers sooner or later visit this market, it is only reasonable to suppose that Fort Worth will in time become the trade center with Mexico, especially the entire northern tier of Mexican states.

LIVE STOCK INDUSTRY.

Another live stock industry centering on Fort Worth and which should be considered in any question of finance in the Southwest, is that of horses and mules. This market has jumped to third place in the entire United States, with a total of 56,724 head of horses and mules handled at this market during the year 1913, with a value of $9,000,000. It in reality requires at least $20,000,000 to handle this business, as these horses and mules come to this market from west Texas, New Mexico, Oklahoma, Kansas, are paid for through the banks here and are later sold to planters in east Texas, Louisiana, Mississippi, Alabama, Georgia; in fact, the entire Southeast.

Another great argument in favor of the location of this reserve bank at Fort Worth, is the enormous amount of business centering on this point from the State of Oklahoma. A glance at the map will show that practically every railroad in Oklahoma on which live stock is produced is a natural route to this market. The proof of this is the fact that in addition to the large number of cattle and calves received at this market from Oklahoma, we handled a total of over 200,000 head of hogs from that State during 1913, for which $3,900,000 was paid, drafts being made from Fort Worth to practically every bank in Oklahoma.

It is peculiarly significant that the proposed territory for the Southwest reserve bank is almost, if not entierely, identical with the territory supplying the Fort Worth market with live stock; that is, Texas, Oklahoma, western and southern Louisiana, western Arkansas, Old Mexico and New Mexico.

In the preparation of cattle for market, and when bought by men who prepare them with feed and pasture to ship, it usually requires from three to six months to get them in proper condition for marketing.

It has been and is the custom of those who are engaged in this line of business to buy these cattle from the producers in various parts of the country, and after buying them they usually secure loans from 50% of their value up to, in some cases, their entire value, the feeder or handler of these cattle furnishing his own money for grass and feed.

It requires a large amount of money to take care of this kind of business. The greater part of this money is usually furnished by commission merchants who take loans secured by mortgage on such cattle; in turn they endorse this paper and sell it in such parts of the country as they can secure the best market, it having been demonstrated that this is a very desirable class of paper and is really about the only large line of commercial paper that is handled in this country.

In the handling of this line of business the commission merchants of Fort Worth, Texas, finance annually about twenty-five million dollars in addition to what the banks of Fort Worth handle direct. It will show that Fort Worth really finances more loans than any other city in Texas. Of the paper sold, usually about 20% is handled by Texas banks, about 10% by Kansas City and 10% by St. Louis, the balance in Chicago, New York and other eastern cities.

This class of paper is regarded as very desirable for banks for the reason, first, it is short time paper, and, second, these cattle when prepared for market always bring the money, it being a class of paper that can be depended upon to be paid at maturity.

The live stock interests of Texas, a large part of Oklahoma and a part of New Mexico, including some of Arkansas and Louisiana, nearly all look to the Fort Worth commission people to finance their dealings, and it is done through them. This is one of the strong [illegible] reserve bank should be located at Fort Worth, which is practically now the live stock market of the Southwest, and where all these deals are financed, and would be of great assistance to those financing the deals to have a bank located here, thus furnishing it a large line of commercial paper that is desirable and paid promptly at maturity.

In the past it has been impossible for commission dealers located at Fort Worth to supply the legitimate demands made upon them. For this reason a large amount of this paper has been taken by Kansas City and St. Louis banks and endorsed over by them without recourse to Loan Companies controlled by the same banks and sold by said loan companies to investing bankers in the East. By so doing they do not show liability of rediscounts or loans in their statements. The amount handled in this way runs into many millions of dollars, which should be handled in the country where produced and sold.

In considering the live stock industry in the Southwest or in the United States, perhaps the most significant fact of all as relating to Fort Worth is the establishment of permanent headquarters at this point of the Association most vitally interested in the production and marketing of live stock; namely, the Cattle Raisers Association of Texas, the largest organization of its kind in the world, including in its membership almost every raiser of live stock in Texas, Mexico, Oklahoma, New Mexico and a large number of members in Louisiana and Arkansas. The Farmers Union, which is encouraging in every way possible the increased production of live stock. The headquarters of the Southwestern Boys and Girls Hog Clubs, embracing all the proposed territory for this Regional Bank. Headquarters for the Baby Beef Clubs of the Southwest.

The most significant fact of all as it affects the establishment of this bank in Texas, and especially in Fort Worth, is that where the live stock industry of other sections of the United States is waning, as shown by the reports of practically all other markets, the Fort Worth market is showing a continued increase in receipts of all kinds of live stock, and a careful study of live stock conditions in the United States will convince any thinking man that the great production of live stock must come from the region above outlined for ensuing years and that the grazing and feeding of cattle in the Northwest is rapidly declining, with the result that each year there will gradually be a narrowing of live stock trading in large quantities to this section, with a consequent increase in the importance of the present acknowledged center of the live stock industry of the Southwest, Fort Worth.

In an effort to get the opinion of the live stock raisers and feeders of the Southwest, they were asked for an opinion which brought forthe the following resolution:

> "As one engaged in the live stock and cattle industry, I strongly urge upon your honorable Commission the importance and necessity of placing one of these Regional Reserve Banks in the State of Texas and earnestly recommend the City of Fort Worth as the point at which this bank will best serve the cattle and live stock industry of the Southwest."

signed by 2501 Feeders and Breeders of Cattle in the States of Arkansas, Cal, Idaho, Kansas, Louisiana, Mississippi, New Mexico, Oklahoma and Texas

LIVE STOCK INDUSTRY.

Also, the same resolution was adopted by the Executive Committee of the Cattle Raisers Association of Texas. The votes to this effect are on file and can be submitted if desired.

In conclusion, attention is called to the fact that of the entire receipts at the Fort Worth market, 53% of the cattle are sold to others than the Fort Worth packers, most of them going back to the country as feeders on short loans, and again go to market when fat. Fort Worth is recognized as the greatest feeder market in the west and will eventually be the only large one.

Fort Worth's position and advantages have been urged in the foregoing volume of statistics and this appendix is intended to cover some facts in emphasis therein:-

A statement of Bank Clearings as shown by the records of the Fort Worth Clearing House Association for ten (10) years past is attached; the increase each year is steady and sure (with but one exception) from $84,000,000.00 in 1903 to $418,000,000.00 in 1913. These figures strongly attest the financial importance of Fort Worth, as it is conceded that the volume of Bank Clearings in any city is an index to the volume of business and activity of its markets. In arriving at the total clearings the same plan is followed by the Fort Worth Clearing House Association as approved by financial journals and represents the actual items only that are exchanged between banks, and in no case are the totals "loaded" by foreign items in an endeavor to swell the volume.

Attached will be found a statement of the combined resources and liabilities of the nine (9) National Banks and four (4) State Banks and Trust Companies of Fort Worth. An analysis of the figures will give Fort Worth high standing amoung financial centers in the Southwest; also we have shown aside from the loans of commercial banks, those loans carried by land mortgage banks and investment companies; also will be found the aggregate cattle loans of the various live stock commission companies doing business in the Fort Worth Live Stock Exchange. The combined figures of the commercial and cattle loans together with the land loans show an aggregate of $35,712,115.98, and these figures indicate, in no uncertain degree, how well Fort Worth is justified in asking for the location of the Federal Reserve Bank there. We attach copies of letters, (originals of which will be produced upon request) written by Messrs. J. Ogden Armour and Louis F. Swift, setting forth their reasons for selecting Fort Worth as the location for a live stock market in the Southwest. We believe that these letters furnish a strong and sincere appeal on behalf of Fort Worth and prove conclusively that large interests in making investments which involve several millions of dollars, look first for a central and accessible location, about which and through which, the trade and commerce of that section can move easily.

The total number of bank accounts maintained by interior banks on the books of Fort Worth Banks is nine hundred and seventy two (972) as follows:

Texas----------	910	Colorado-------	2
Oklahoma----------	64	New Mexico-----	8
Louisiana---------	7	Kansas---------	1

The above does not include a large number of accounts coming from Eastern, Northern and Western bankers to whom Fort Worth banks render service in the collection of business on this section and the transfer of funds to other centers.

In establishing a live stock market in the Southwest, the interests who made the investment; i.e., for yardage facilities, packing plants, railway yards and other general equipment necessary to a live stock market selected Fort Worth, Texas, primarily on account of the fact that it offers the easiest access to all sections of the state and to the Southwest by reason of its superior railway facilities.

The financial requirements of the live stock business in Texas are second only to cotton; Fort Worth is the clearing house of the live stock business of the Southwest and a concentration of financial power to assist in caring for this business would undoubtedly be of the greatest value to the State of Texas and adjacent territory if located in Fort Worth.

The central location and accessibility of Fort Worth affords it the opportunity to be of genuine service in the commercial and industrial development of contiguous territory and gives it a decided advantage over other cities as a point of concentration for the energies of trade and finance of the great Southwest.

Fort Worth has shown great progress and has grown to be a live stock center of splendid proportions; and the prospects are very encouraging; and, as the wonderful State of Texas continues to develop her remarkable possibilities, the future prospects are inspiring.

The figures below show receipts of live stock at Fort Worth for the year 1913, with approximate valuations, and indicate the importance of the live stock market to which Fort Worth has grown:-

There are fifteen divisions of the Railway Mail Service in the United States. Division headquarters are located as follows:

First Division	Boston, Mass.
Second Division	New York, N. Y.
Third Division	Washington, D.C.
Fourth Division	Atlanta, Ga.
Fifth Division	Cincinnati, Ohio.
Sixth Division	Chicago, Ill.
Seventh Division	St. Louis, Mo.

Tenth Division	St. Paul, Minn.
Eleventh Division	Fort Worth, Texas
Twelfth Division	New Orleans, La.
Thirteenth Division	Seattle, Wash.
Fourteenth Division	Omaha, Neb.
Fifteenth Division	Pittsburg, Pa.

The territory comprising the Eleventh Division is Texas, Arkansas, Oklahoma and New Mexico. The Eleventh Division was established November 15, 1888. At that time very few railway postal clerks were living at Fort Worth. There are now about two hundred and fifty employees of the Railway Mail Service living at Fort Worth, including Railway Postal Clerks, clerks in the Superintendent's and Chief Clerks' offices and clerks in the Fort W orth, Texas, Terminal RPO. There are two Chief Clerks located at Fort Worth, who have charge of service on a number of lines in Northern and Central Texas and Oklahoma. The Terminal R.P.O. is located at the Texas & Pacific depot, where general distribution of parcel post, as well as ordinary mail, is made, parcel post from all sections of the country for the territory tributary to Fort Worth being brought to the Terminal here for distribution. The total amount of salaries paid employees of the service living at Fort Worth approximates twenty-four thousand five hundred dol-

Febuary 14 1914.

Mr. R.D.Gage, Vice President,

First National Bank,

Ft.Worth,Texas.

Dear Mr. Gage:

Along the line of my remarks at Austin, possibly you will recall that Secretary McAddo asked for a list of the financial institutions out this way in which I am interested,and I,to-day,wrote Secretary McAdoo an extract of which you will find below.

" Supplementing my remarks at the hearing given the Texas bankers, at Austin, a few days ago, and in compliance with your expression for a list of the banks in which I am interested, I beg to send you such a list, herewith.

Our first choise is for Texas, and being more tributary to that point than any other, we would like very much to see one of the Regional Reserve banks located at Fort Worth.

If it is not possible for Texas to have one of the banks, it is our wish to be included in a district of which Kansas City would be the center. In making these statements I am sure I voice the sentiment of the banks in which I am interested, and of most of the bankers of this North-west Texas country, Eastern and Northern New Mexico, and Oklahoma."

It is of course both early and difficult to forecast the result of the hearing at Austin and I am anxious for you to understand my willingness to do anything possible to help out my good Fort Worth friends.

I am sure you will not hesitate to command me if I can be of further service.

Inasmuch as a bank located in Fort Worth would be directed by men who are already familiar with the character of paper handled by such banks aw mine and therefore enabled to serve to serve us better. We would like very much indeed to see Fort Worth win in this very important undertaking.

EXHIBIT NO 2
Hearing: Austin
on behalf of Ft Worth

Austin
Ft W

February 18th, 1914

Sir:

Your communication enclosing list of the banks in which you are interested and signifying with what district you prefer to be connected should a Federal Reserve Bank be located in the place suggested by you, has been received and filed and will be considered by the Committee at the proper time.

Respectfully,

Secretary,
Reserve Bank Organization Committee.

Mr. W. H. Fuqua, President,
The First National Bank,

February 14th 1914.

Hon Wm. G. McAdoo,

Secretary of the Treasury,

Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:

Supplementing my remarks at the hearing given the Texas bankers, at Austin, a few days ago, and in compliance with your expression for a list of the banks in which I am interested, I beg to send you such list herewith.

Our first choice is for Texas, and being more tributary to that point than any other, we would like very much to see one of the Regional Reserve banks located in Fort Worth.

ANSWERED

If it is not possible for Texas to have one of the banks, it is our wish to be included in a district of which Kansas City would be the center. In making these statements I am sure I voice the sentiment of the banks in which I am interested, and of most of the bankers of this North-west Texas country, Eastern and Northern New Mexico, and Oklahoma, except that I believe the two latter distrcits primarily favor Kansas City.

Thanking you for the courtesies extended me while in Austin, and trusting your trip was as pleasant as beneficial, I am,

Yours very truly,

W H Fuqua
President.

Jan. 22, 1914.

Dear Sir:-

The passage of the new currency bill marks a step forward in the development of the country. When the provisions of this bill are put in action it is expected that the improved banking facilities and the free movement of the currency will be a direct benefit to the producer of farm products of the Southwest.

In Section 13 of this bill, special mention is made of the live stock and cattle industry, and it is only fair to assume that the makers of this law had your interests in mind when it was so worded and passed.

It therefore follows that if the immense cattle and live stock industry of this country is to feel the direct benefit intended, that this law should bestow, the working of this law should be so arranged as to permit of the most convenient and free uses of the provisions of the same.

The great State of Texas is preeminently the live stock State of the Union and should have one of the Reserve Regional Banks in the State located at a point convenient to the live stock interests.

We, the bankers of the City of Fort Worth are making an organized effort to have one of these Regional Reserve Banks located at this point, and we feel that in view of the great market at this point, and the fact that our City is really the headquarters of the cattle industry, you will be willing to sign a petition to the Commission having the location of these banks in charge, asking them to select Fort Worth as the location for the bank in this District.

We enclose you a postal which only requires your signature and which we think will have much influence with the Commission, requesting this Commission to select, first the State of Texas for one of these banks, and second, the City of Fort Worth as being the City which would best serve the interests of the live stock industry.

FORT WORTH, TEXAS

January 20th 1914

Sealed with duplicate key

My Dear McAdoo:

I am sending you a little brochure which you may find time to look over on the long stretches of your journey to the golden sands of th Pacific.

When you leave ElPaso for Austin you should travel via the Texas and Pacific through Fort Worth. The route over the Southern Pacific may be more alluring from a scenic standpoint, but if you come this way you will see the wealth producing section of Texas. From Fort Worth to Austin is equal to the valley of the Nile. But I hav'nt seen the Nile and may be mistaken.

Here's hoping you may have a pleasant trip. I am anticipating much pleasure from meeting you in Texas.

Sincerely Yours,

(COPY) Exhibit # 6 Greenville, Texas Feb 18th, 1914-

Mr. R. D. Gage,

V.P. 1 st National Exchange Bank, FtWorth, Texas.

FtWorth is the greatest distributing market in the southwest, for food products, and we believe that to be a primal and controlling reason why FtWorth should be a federal reserve city. As it is contemplated that a reserve bank should be located at points where the borrowing and loaning capacity for money is persistant, we feel that Texas should have a federal reserve bank, because of the fact that the money borrowed by Texas is for the purpose of handling the product of the soil, which in themselves represent money. FtWorth is the railway center of Texas and headquarters of the eleventh district mail service of the United States, which insures the prompt handling of all mails in and out of the entire district, embraced in the federal reserve system, and this makes it the most logical point for a federal reserve bank.

Greenville, Texas, Feb 18th, 1914-

R. D. Gage,

V. P. 1 st national Bank, FtWorth, Texas.

Whatever else may be said about commodities that make the commercial activity of a community it is admitted everywhere that food products are the most important, and as FtWorth distributes and finances more food products than any other city in the southwest, it is a logical point for a location of a federal reserve bank. FtWorth is a railway center of Texas and the headquarters of the eleventh district mail service of the United States, which im sures the prompt handling of all mails in and out of the entire district, embraced im the federal reserve system. Which makes it the most logical point for a federal reserve bank.

Greenville, Texas Feb 18th, 1914-

Mr. R. D. Cage,

V.P. 1 St, National Bank, FtWorth, Texas.

Regardless of claims of other cities and the amount of business done by their mercantile interest, we think the fact that FtWorth is the distributing point for more food stuff than any other city in the south it should be selected as the located for a federal bank. Being so closely affiliated with this line of commercial work we are strongly in favor of same. FtWorth is the railway center of Texas and headquarters of the eleventh district mail service of the United States, which insures the prompt handling of all mails in and out of the entire district embraced in the federal reserve system. Which makes it the most logical point for a federal reserve bank.

Greenville, Texas Feb 18th, 1914-

R.D. Gage, (COPY) Exhibit 6

V.P. 1 st National Bank, FtWorth, Texas.

FtWorth is the headquarters of the eleventh district mail service in the United states, which insures the prompt handling of all mails in and out of the entire district, embracing a federal reserve system. This, together with the railway facilities and wonderful accessibility in and out, to our mind makes it one of the logical points for the establishment of a federal reserve bank for the territory named. While we made Dallas our first choice in report to the reserve board, FtWorth would suit us equally as well, and we would approve the establishment of bank there.

Secretary McAdoo,
Washington, D.C.

Dear Sir:-

On account of the superior rairroad and mail facitities, FtWorth seems to be the logical location for the reserve bank.

We feel that Texas is entitled to this bank in as much as she is a small empire within its self and produces more cotton that anv other state in the union, approximately 1/3 the cotton of the U.S. therefore need more ready money at its command, and as one thing that keeps the farmers of Texas poor is that they have not the money at their command to carry their cotton until the price is commensurate with the cost of production. Interest rates are higher here on account of money, and the industries that are being started and those that are in future for Texas, need more money to be successfully financed. Give Texas this favor and watch property values increase and taxes increase and thereby repay the national goverment for any favor show us. There are more advantages for the average farmer in Texas and this western country that any other state in the Union, so help us to develope her vast territory.

Thanking you for your time and attention, I am,

Yours very truly

Regional Reserve Organization Committee,

DearsSirs:

We wired you a few days since requesting that a Regional Reserve Bank be located at Dallas, Texas. We feel the need of one of the Regional Banks in Texas very much, and believe we are entitled to one, both on the business done and the banks represented. We requested Dallas as first choice when the report was current from New York that Secretary McAdoo had favored Dallas, but since we learn this report was false, we want to place ourselves on record as being just as we were on the card you requested us to fill out and send to you. Ft. Worth was out first choice and Dallas second, and that is still our preference.

The Southwest can be better served with a Regional Reserve Bank at Ft. Worth or Dallas than any other point, and we hoping our expectations shall be fullfilled.

Yours very truly,

Rresident.

United States Treasury,
Washington, D. C.

The importance of the enormus territory West of the Mississippi and the East slope of the Rocky Mountains where is produced more than half of the wheat, corn, cattle and hogs of the United States, makes Kansas City, Missouri, the logical point for the location of a Regional Reserve Bank. Kansas City is the gateway through which passes the grain, wheat and meat of this region and Kansas City for twenty years has furnished the money to produce this wheat, corn, cattle and hogs.

The money requirements of this region are increasing rapidly.
