FEDERAL RESERVE SYSTEM

12 CFR Part 226

[Regulation Z; Docket No. R-0687]

TRUTH IN LENDING

Home Equity Disclosure and Substantive Rule

AGENCY: Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System.

ACTION: Proposed rule.

SUMMARY: The Board is requesting comment on whether to delete or revise a provision in Regulation Z (Truth in Lending) that permits creditors to freeze the credit line when the rate cap on a home equity line is reached. The Board also is soliciting comment on the timing rule for providing disclosures about any repayment phase provided for in an agreement. The rules in question relate to the Home Equity Loan Consumer Protection Act of 1988, which requires creditors to provide consumers with information for open-end credit plans secured by the consumer's dwelling, and imposes substantive limitations on these plans. Although the final regulations implementing the law were adopted in June 1989, questions about the rate cap provision and the timing of disclosures for the repayment phase have been raised in recent litigation.

DATE: Comments must be received on or before April 20, 1990.

ADDRESS: Comments should refer to Docket No. R-0687 and be mailed to Mr. William W. Wiles, Secretary, Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, Washington, D.C. 20551. They may be delivered to Room B-2222 of the Eccles Building between 8:45 a.m. and 5:15 p.m. weekdays or to the guard station in the Eccles

Building Courtyard on 20th Street, N.W. (between Constitution Avenue and C Street, N.W.) any time. Comments will be available for inspection in the Freedom of Information Office, Room B-1122 of the Eccles Building, between 9:00 a.m. and 5:00 p.m. weekdays. FOR FURTHER INFORMATION CONTACT: Leonard Chanin, Senior Attorney, or Sharon Bowman, Staff Attorney, Division of Consumer and Community Affairs, at (202) 452-3667 or 452-2412; for the hearing impaired only, contact Earnestine Hill or Dorothea Thompson, Telecommunications Device for the Deaf, at (202) 452-3544, Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, Washington, D.C. 20551.

SUPPLEMENTARY INFORMATION: (1) BACKGROUND. The Home Equity Loan Consumer Protection Act was enacted in November 1988. On January 23, 1989, the Board published for comment a proposed rule to implement the statute (54 Fed. Reg. 3063) and on June 9, 1989, adopted a final rule (54 Fed. Reg. 24670). Compliance with the regulation was mandatory as of November 7, 1989.

On November 1, 1989, Consumers Union filed suit against the Board challenging certain aspects of the regulation. Consumers Union v. Federal Reserve Board, No. 89-3008 (U.S. District Court for the District of Columbia). Among other issues, Consumers Union challenges the provision in the regulation permitting creditors to suspend advances of credit during any period the rate cap is reached. Consumers Union also challenges the part of the regulation permitting creditors to give disclosures about any "repayment" period (that is, when advances are no longer made and the consumer is paying off the amount borrowed) at the time the repayment period begins, rather than at the time of application. This notice relates to these two issues.

(2) PROPOSED AMENDMENTS TO REGULATION Z. (i) RATE CAP PROVISION.

Under Section 137(c)(1) of the act, creditors are generally prohibited from unilaterally changing the terms of the plan after the account has been opened. Section 137(c)(2) of the act sets forth certain circumstances in which the creditor may prohibit additional extensions of credit or reduce the credit limit for a plan. Under Section 105 of the Truth in Lending Act, the Board is authorized to provide for adjustments and exceptions for transactions that the Board believes are necessary or proper to effectuate the act, prevent circumvention or evasion, or facilitate compliance.

Pursuant to the statute, the final regulation issued by the Board in June 1989 contained substantive limitations on the way home equity plans may be structured. The regulation incorporates the exceptions in section 137(c)(2) of the act limiting the ability of a creditor to change the terms of a plan after the account has been opened. The regulation adds an exception under which a creditor could freeze a line of credit if the rate cap is reached. Section 226.5b(f)(3)(vi)(G) permits a creditor to suspend additional advances or reduce the credit limit during any period in which the index value plus margin (the APR corresponding to the periodic rate) reaches the maximum APR (lifetime "cap") provided for in the agreement.<sup>1</sup> If the index and margin drop below the cap, credit privileges must be reinstated.

The regulation does not expressly require that the contract (as opposed to the disclosures) state that a creditor has the right to freeze a line of credit if the rate cap is reached. Creditors are specifically required to disclose if they have retained the ability to freeze a line when the rate cap is reached, and this disclosure duty may be met by including it in the agreement. As a practical matter, the Board believes that most creditors who wish to preserve this right include the provision in their contracts.

In the supplemental information accompanying the proposed regulation, the Board noted that the legislative history of the act supports the idea that a creditor could include in the agreement a provision permitting the suspension of advances of credit if the rate cap is reached. Very few commenters addressed this part of the proposed regulation. As a result, the administrative record does not contain much detail concerning this exception.

In the course of the litigation, questions have been raised about the inclusion of this provision in the regulation. In light of these questions, the Board is seeking comment on the advantages and disadvantages to consumers and creditors if the provision is deleted. Comment also is requested on alternatives, such as allowing creditors to freeze the line if the rate cap is reached, but requiring them to expressly provide for this circumstance in their contracts.

(ii) DELAYED TIMING PROVISION. Some home equity plans provide in the initial agreement for two distinct phases: a "draw" period during which advances may be taken and a "repayment" period during which the balance is paid off and no new funds are advanced. Under the regulation, creditors are required to provide complete disclosures about both the draw and the repayment phases of the plan.

Several commenters requested guidance on the applicability of the home equity rule to the repayment phase of a plan. However, there was little discussion in the record on the question of whether consumers or creditors would be better served if the more detailed repayment disclosures were provided with the application or at the time of conversion to the repayment period.

In the supplemental information accompanying the final rule (54 Fed. Reg. 24672), the Board stated that while full disclosure about any repayment phase must be provided, creditors have a choice with regard to when those disclosures must be given. Creditors can either provide the information at the time the other disclosures are given (that is, with the application), or defer the bulk of the disclosures until the repayment phase begins. A sample form, G-14C, was provided in the appendix to the regulation for creditors using the second alternative. (The Board also stated that, even if a creditor chooses to give the bulk of the repayment disclosures at conversion, the basic information about the repayment phase -- such as its length and how the minimum payment will be figured -- must be provided with the other application disclosures.) The rule concerning delayed disclosure is also reflected in comment 5b-3 of the proposed Official Staff Commentary to the regulation, published for comment on November 22, 1989.

This rule has been challenged in the suit filed by Consumers Union referenced above. In addition there is a concern about whether the rulemaking record contains adequate information to support the Board's action. The Board is soliciting comment on the advantages and disadvantages of the delayed timing rule.

(3) COMMENTS REQUESTED. Interested parties are invited to submit comments on the proposal. Depending on the resolution of the rate cap and delayed timing issues, the Board may make conforming changes to the regulation, the model forms and clauses in Appendix G, and the Official Staff Commentary. With the final rule the Board also will provide guidance on the effective date of any changes, as well as whether and how any changes should be reflected in creditors' contracts and disclosures. Because prompt resolution of this matter is in the public interest, the comment period is 30 days. The comment period ends on April 20, 1990.

(4) ECONOMIC IMPACT STATEMENT. The Board's Division of Research and Statistics has prepared an economic impact statement on the proposed revisions to Regulation Z. A copy of the analysis may be obtained from Publications Services, Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System, Washington, DC 20551, at (202) 452-3245.
