FEDERAL RESERVE BOARD

STATEMENT FOR THE PRESS.

For publication in Morning Papers, Friday, January 6, 1933.

The Open Market Policy Conference of the Federal Reserve System, with representatives from all of the twelve Federal reserve banks in attendance, concluded its meetings with the Federal Reserve Board today. The sessions of the Conference were devoted to a review of economic, business, financial and banking conditions in each of the twelve Federal reserve districts and to the economic and financial situation in the country as a whole. Particular reference was made in the discussions to the workings and effects of the open market policy thus far pursued by the Federal Reserve System during the course of the economic depression. Consideration was also given to the attitude of the System in adjusting its operations to conditions and needs as they may change and develop.

The first and immediate objective of the open market policy was to contribute factors of safety and stability in meeting the forces of deflation. The larger objectives of the System's open market policy, to assist and accelerate the forces of economic recovery, are now assuming importance.

With this purpose in mind, the Conference has decided that there should be no change in the System's policy intended to maintain a substantial amount of excess member bank reserves, the continuance of which is deemed desirable in present conditions. Adjustments in the System's holdings in the open market account will be in accordance with this policy.
