INTRODUCTORY LETTER.

SAN FRANCISCO, October 30, 1917.

His Excellency WILLIAM D. STEPHENS,
Governor of the State of California,
Sacramento, California.

DEAR SIR: I herewith submit the eighth annual report of the Superintendent of Banks of the state of California, pursuant to section 140 of the Bank Act, enacted by the twenty-eighth session of the legislature and effective July 1, 1909.

The cardinal feature of the fiscal year for the banks of California is the behavior of these institutions under conditions of financial and industrial abnormalism provoked by the war. There has been a measurable redistribution of credits but no disturbance of healthy relationships in finance and industry. There has been an enormous increase in banking assets but there has been conservatism and discretion exercised in their use. Industrial and manufacturing communities have made new and exceptional demands upon banking capital to meet national emergencies but these have found a response equal to their needs. It is a matter of congratulation to record the excellent part the banks of California have played in contributing an effective service to the state and to the nation under exacting and unexpected circumstances.

It appears in this state that the banks have acted mainly as distributors and only moderately as investors of the first Liberty Loan, a condition sound in finance and in strict harmony with the recommendation of the national government. Some districts in California have shown withdrawals of savings deposits to pay for Liberty Bonds. Another familiar condition has been the purchase of Liberty Bonds on the instalment plan, the liquidation being now in progress and representing the conversion of current savings and not past accumulations into the national loan. This process did not result either in shock or disturbance of the banking situation and there will be at most only a redistribution of credits.

The year has been one of expanding opportunities, of increasing production and of augmented industrial, agricultural and manufacturing output. General business has been good; the crops generally have been heavy; industries have been active; construction, particularly in engineering and building, has been stimulated; bank clearings have increased; foreign trade is improving; money rates have shown no perceptible advance; labor is fully employed; agencies of transportation are abundantly occupied; the outlook is one for great activity. The period has been one of expansion but not of inflation. While there was a considerable liquidation of investments to pay for the first national loan, the resources of the banks are still available for the needs of the state and for future requirements of the national government.

State Banking Assets Approach Billion Dollar Level.

The banking power of the banks of California is increasing amazingly. The combined assets of state banks as disclosed in the report of June 20, 1917, were $929,224,088.73, an increase over the previous year of an astonishing aggregate of $111,429,739.03. Some conception of the phenomenal growth of these institutions may be gained from the fact that in the fiscal year 1914-15 there was a gain of approximately fourteen and one-half millions in assets; in the fiscal year 1915-16 the gain in assets was eighty-nine millions; and in the fiscal year 1916-17 the increase over the previous year was more than one hundred and eleven million dollars. The most conservative statement must record this financial fact as startling.

These rapid accretions offer many temptations to extend unwise banking credit and to invite inflation and all the potentialities of disaster. But the banks of California have conserved wisely their enormous resources. Legitimate credit organization has been accomplished, savings have been guarded and profit has been the corollary rather than the inspiration of investment. The manner in which the banks have dealt with their immense resources and the policy which has governed their stewardship of the liquid and thrift wealth of the state are eloquent of our understanding of banking necessities and a justification of the laws under whose administration Californian bankers operate.

The aggregate of loans and discounts at the close of the fiscal year was $555,399,379.53, a surprising increase over the aggregate of the preceding year of $60,832,100.69. No better reflection of the remarkable expansion of the industrial life of the state may be given than in these extraordinary figures. In the fiscal year 1914-15 there was an increase in loans and discounts over the previous year of nearly five and one-half millions; in the fiscal year 1915-16 the increase over the preceding year was twenty-four millions; and in the fiscal year 1916-17 the increase over the prior year was the attractive total of more than sixty million dollars. Yet the banks also increased their holdings in bonds in the sum of $46,293,511.44, an incident which is indicative of their purpose of conservative and safe banking and of their resistance to any credit extension not based in legitimate needs.

During the year the aggregate of individual deposits in state banks increased over the total of the preceding year in the astounding total of $89,065,148.79, the entire sum of individual deposits being $768,371,340.45. In the fiscal year 1914-15 the increase in individual deposits over the preceding fiscal year was something less than six million dollars; in the fiscal year 1915-16 the increase over the preceding year was almost ninety-eight million dollars, and in the period under discussion the increase was more than eighty-nine million dollars. The record is epochal. Of the great total of individual deposits $596,325,059.04 are savings deposits and $172,046,281.41 are commercial deposits. There are in the state banks 1,584,940 depositors, an increase of 109,526 individual depositors for the year.

Integrity of Reserves Steadfastly Maintained.

Three of the most significant accomplishments of the state banks during the year were the very substantial decrease in the item of borrowed money, the elimination of all rediscounted notes and the maintenance of reserves on hand and reserves on deposit at a standard demanded by safety and sound banking practice. The first achievement reflects a disposition by our banks to provide adequately for the seasonal financial needs of their communities and to resist importunities for inflated banking credit, an evil as seriously dangerous as an inflated currency; the second marks a gratifying liquidation in a period of prosperity; and the third is pregnant with the purpose of Californian banks to preserve that gold reserve which must be in present emergencies and even to a larger degree in future exigencies the very foundation of the integrity of domestic as well as foreign exchanges.

The state banking department has insisted upon an uncompromising observance of the law which insures primarily in the possession of the banks a fund of gold sufficient to sustain their activities and to obstruct tendencies to credit inflation. The relation of the state banking department to the banks in the state system is very critical in the present crisis. The purpose of the department is to check inclinations toward unsound banking, to restrain even suggestions of hysteria in financial operations and to stabilize banking functions.

As the resources of the banks have expanded the duties of supervision have multiplied. As the obligations of these institutions to meet new and broadening credit organization have pressed upon them for satisfaction, the responsibilities of the department in watchfulness for untoward or unhealthy manifestations have increased. As agricultural, industrial and financial conditions in the state have verged on the abnormal the state banking department has of necessity been more vigilant and more alert in demanding practices of prudence by the banks and in counseling circumspection, providence and care in the administration of banking assets.

As a measure of precaution and preparedness I urged upon the legislature the adoption of certain amendments to the Bank Act and I am gratified to report that the legislature at its latest session accepted these recommendations. Notable among the amendments to the banking law of California is that which makes practicable and reasonable the supervision of foreign banking corporations that by licensing acquire legal residence in the state and capacity to exercise functions of domestic and foreign exchange as well as to accomplish necessary fiduciary duties.

Foreign Banks Now Regulated to Promote Trade.

By authority of a prohibition now enacted into law no foreign corporation, banking or otherwise, can solicit or accept deposits in this state. The inhibition excludes from its application only those foreign banks that were taking deposits when the amended statute became operative. Through the medium of this plan foreign banks may safely be admitted to the state for the widest exercise of their legitimate function of financing foreign and interstate exchange. The barrier to a healthy growth of our exchanges and to an expansion of our foreign trade, raised by a solicitude to enforce reasonable supervision over institutions whose assets are far removed from state scrutiny, has been overcome. An impetus and an encouragement to the foreign trade of the state, not otherwise to be obtained, have been given by the new policy of our law. Institutions which could not previously be supervised and which, perforce, had to be accepted on faith not wisely extended, may now come to California with an assurance of cooperation in the service they are able to render to industry and to commerce.

Foreign banks can not be kept within the supervising limits of our law in those essential respects which will insure the safety of the money of depositors. There is no occasion for such banks to enter California to seek deposits either for the promotion or conduct of foreign trade. No actual protection existed in our law to depositors whose money, thus utilized, found lodgment in a foreign country. The acceptance of deposits by foreign banks raised a conflict therefore between the demands for supervision and the needs of foreign facilities of exchange. Deprivation of the privilege to take deposits has solved the problem by extending to foreign banks the highest exercise of justified activity and protecting depositors from the uncalled for hazards of banks not properly under state observation.

Through the agency of another amendment our relation to foreign trust companies has been liberalized. Such corporations may now act in many important transactions involving interstate finance. Heretofore restrictions of no practical value were placed upon the proper functioning of these instrumentalities particularly with reference to their handling of interstate affairs of magnitude. Foreign banking corporations are permitted also to enter the state to loan money and one of the new amendments grants to such corporations, not otherwise exercising banking activities, the right to enter the state to buy and sell bonds. Permission is granted also to individuals, who are representatives of foreign banks, to have an office in this state but not for the conduct of a banking business; such office to be the office of the individual and to be indicative of his representative capacity. These changes express admirably the policy of the law to bring ourselves in touch with agencies that contribute to our industrial growth and financial expansion. Coincidentally we have guaranteed to all that place their money in banks under state jurisdiction that safety which the law makes imperative.

Safe Investment of Unemployed Savings Deposits.

As coordinate in value as a measure of banking regulation I wish to report the adoption of an amendment to the Bank Act by virtue of which savings banks have liberty to invest in commercial paper. This indulgence is restricted to 5 per cent of the assets of each savings bank and the business paper bought must be of a parity with that accepted by the national government as the equivalent for which federal reserve notes are issued. The purpose of the amendment is to provide for savings banks a veritable secondary reserve and to open an absolutely safe avenue for the investment of their unemployed funds. Savings deposits in the banks of California have increased with bewildering rapidity. In the fiscal year 1914-15 savings deposits increased in the sum of $9,466,788.12; in the fiscal year 1915-16 savings deposits surpassed those of the previous year in the enormous aggregate of $70,201,819.54; and in the fiscal year 1916-17 savings deposits showed a growth over the total of the preceding year of $67,414,811.81.

Three giant forces are at work in the conduct of our savings banks. The first finds expression in the uncompromising safety with which savings deposits are invested; the second is reflected in the success with which these banks are able to utilize these funds with profit; and the third is evidenced by the ability of these institutions to repay their depositors on demand even though there must be exacted for the protection of the general banking situation a right of notice of the withdrawal of these deposits. As an incident to the phenomenal growth of savings deposits in California it was found necessary to seek a vehicle for the utilization of some of these funds without the violation of a single principle of savings bank organization. That instrumentality has been found in short-time commercial paper which will stand every test of established solidity. Federal finance has based the soundness of its paper currency and materially its reserves in such paper and California has accepted the wisdom of this decision in a field which is of the deepest concern to the state.

By sanction of another amendment to the Bank Act bonds of any district organized under any law of this state are legal investments for savings banks after they have been submitted to investigation, certification and approval by the superintendent of banks. This is a broad extension of the principle underlying the purchase of this class of securities. The legislature, in providing for many classes of bond issues, establishes complete conditions of integrity. In many other instances this can not be done as it has been disclosed in experience that without inquiry and scientific grouping of some issues it is impossible to select those that are good and to reject those that are bad. A manifest injustice to the public enterprises of state communities or to the confidence of an investing public either in ill-advised acceptance of unsound public instruments or the refusal to endorse stable governmental undertakings, has been inflicted. The newly-adopted law restores an equilibrium between proper regulation and the optimism of localities. An added duty has likewise been placed upon the energies of the state banking department.

The bond investigations conducted by this department are designed essentially to establish a standard for savings bank investment and not to create a market for credit. The latter does follow as a gratifying consequence of such scrutiny and review but it is neither the motive nor the consideration for the analysis so searchingly made. This fact is not as thoroughly understood by underwriters as it should be. Of analogous interest is the amendment to the Bank Act which prohibits the advertisement of any security as being legal for investment by savings banks unless it has been approved by the superintendent of banks. This restriction is a sharp corrective to a practice that was becoming general enough to be dangerous. The application of the evil has not been only to the savings banks but to the buying public, which has been educated to view our savings bank law as an authoritative standard of safety for investment.

Important Changes Enacted in the State Law.

While these are outstanding features in the amendment of the Bank Act they are not the full measure of accomplishment in that direction. Several salient changes, improvements and betterments in the law were made effectual by the legislature. Some of these are designed to correct untoward tendencies, others to promote liberty of banking functions consistent with safety, and still others to reform and refine conditions under which the money of the public is handled by the banks.

A more detailed and equitable regulation of the existence of branch offices of banks has been provided, the activities of these offices in the cities in which the principal business of the bank is conducted being distinguished from the concerns of those licensed in localities other than the place where the main business of the bank is situated. An increased capital, equal to that required for the opening of a new bank, is demanded whenever a branch office is authorized in any territory other than where the applicant bank has its principal business. Of equal importance is the provision that no branch office may be discontinued without the previous written approval of the superintendent of banks.

Exemption from supervision and license in limited spheres of banking has been granted to certain transportation and express companies. Unauthorized banking has been more clearly defined. Permission is granted to any bank to preserve part of its reserves on hand in any safety deposit box in any other bank in this state, such box to be under the exclusive control of the depositing bank. The purpose of the amendment is to protect institutions in small and isolated communities from the danger of robbery. Certain difficulties in the proper incorporation and licensing of merged or consolidated banks are removed by consummating the incorporation in the office of the superintendent of banks. Another change is designed to place the burden of responsibility regarding the purchase of any note or bond or of any contract arising from the sale of real estate upon the bank and not upon the director, employee, officer or controlling stockholder who is financially interested, either directly or indirectly, in such note or bond or contract.

By timely amendment of the law the superintendent of banks is now required to designate nonreserve depositaries as well as reserve depositaries and to revoke such designation. That section of the Bank Act which establishes the incapacity of a bank to include in the calculation of its profits, previous to a dividend, any interest unpaid although due or accrued now also precludes any bank from carrying any of its assets at a valuation in excess of its actual cost to the bank without the previous consent of the superintendent of banks. To facilitate the elimination of real estate acquired by banks in the course of business a privilege of exchange is extended but so limited as to prevent speculation and to discourage prolonged holding. A maximum requirement of deposit with the state treasurer by trust companies is now set at $600,000, of which $500,000 shall be security for the faithful performance of court trusts and $100,000 for the protection of private trusts. Intimate knowledge of the affairs of these corporations convinces that such a control is sufficient in magnitude for all purposes of security and equipment. Under the new law the board of directors of a bank may require the superintendent of banks to make or cause to be made that yearly examination of the bank's affairs which the directors themselves were compelled to make. This scrutiny is of course in addition to and independent of that made by the state banking department in its own behalf.

Expansion of State Banking Facilities.

Notwithstanding the highly organized and widely spread character of the state banking system new banking facilities were provided during the fiscal year to meet the demands of communities newly organized or to keep pace with the credit requirements of commercially expanding localities. At the close of the fiscal year 1916-17, there were in the state system 447 banks with 126 branch offices. During the year thirteen new banks and twenty-four new branch offices were licensed. Of the new banks authorized two confine their activities exclusively to a trust company business, four have only savings bank functions, two are strictly commercial banks and five have the departmental feature of savings and commercial banking. In the aggregate of 447 state banks there are ninety-seven commercial banks, one hundred and twenty-two savings banks, seven trust companies, one hundred and ninety-six commercial and savings departmental banks, nineteen commercial, savings and trust companies, one commercial and trust company and five savings and trust companies.

Twenty-one new licenses were granted to collect savings from school children. Organic changes, reflecting increased activity in departmental energy, were as follows: Four banks added each a commercial department; eleven institutions established each a savings department; two banks added each a trust department; twenty-two banks increased their capital stock paid in. Among the miscellaneous changes in corporate functions and life in the state system were the following: Fifteen banks sold their assets and transferred their deposit liability to others, the process being incident to community demands for greater credit organization and finding new expression in the establishment of branch offices in the localities where the selling institutions had been; four banks became extinct by consolidation, the result being new banks of greater capacity; four state banks nationalized; two national banks sold their assets and transferred their deposit liabilities to state banks; five banks voluntarily closed their doors and one bank closed its branch office and two branch offices were closed by consolidation; two banks each closed its commercial department and one its savings department; eight banks each changed its corporate name; and two banks each decreased its paid in capital stock.

During the year calls for reports from the banks were issued for August 31, 1916, January 4, 1917, March 5, 1917, and June 20, 1917. A summary of the reports of the banks as of date June 20, 1917, is in many respects one of the most significant in the history of banking in California. Compared with the reports of date June 30, 1916, the banks under state authority disclose the following:

It will be noted from this summary that the banks increased their aggregate of paid in capital in the sum of $2,245,733.34 and their surplus in the sum of $1,128,722.95. The increase in surplus is notable because of the fact that there has been no suspension of the policy of this department to require that the item of surplus shall be written in terms of market value.

School Savings System Widely Extended.

The school savings system is growing rapidly. It is performing a commendable service in the inculcation of notions of thrift in young people and the deposits are increasing far beyond expectations. Banks are recognizing the manifest virtues of the system and several institutions added their efforts during the year to those already contributing. It is hoped that savings banks will see the advantage to their contributory districts in this important incident in their affairs by seeking permission to exercise the privilege and thus distribute the benefits of the plan throughout the state.

In the matter of unclaimed and dormant deposits, those in the ten-year period, which must be published but which are not yet subject to the process of escheat, now aggregate $620,353.68, an increase over the preceding year of $282,785.18. In the twenty-year classification, which includes those now subject to escheat, the total is $126,509.08.

Liquidation of closed banks is progressing satisfactorily. Notwithstanding current conditions in the real estate market several pieces of property owned by these institutions were sold to advantage and their other assets are being disposed of as rapidly as the interests of the creditors will permit. No banks in the state system were added to the list of failures. A positive and liberal banking law and an insistent and impartial administration of that law have prevailed for several years to prevent disaster to the going banks of California.

Appended hereto and made a part of this report are the following :

1. Summary of condition of every state bank.
2. List of new banks and branch offices.
3. Name and compensation of each person employed and the whole amount of receipts and disbursements of the department during the fiscal year.

8. Banks authorized to make collection of savings from school children.

W. R. WILLIAMS,
