STATE OF NEBRASKA, DEPARTMENT OF BANKING,
LINCOLN, NEBRASKA, March 1, 1899.

To the Honorables J. F. Cornell, Auditor Public Accounts; J. B. Meserve, State Treasurer; and C. J. Smyth, Attorney General, Members of the State Banking Board of the State of Nebraska:

GENTLEMEN—I have the honor to submit herewith the seventh annual report of the Department of Banking, covering the period from December 1, 1897, to November 30, 1898.

The records of the department show that the total number of banks doing business, under state jurisdiction, at the close of the year covered by this report, as 393, with a total paid-up capital of $7,532,023.70. Of this number 314 are incorporated banks with a total paid-up capital of $6,354,285; 69 private banks with a total paid-up capital of $923,200, and 10 savings banks with a total paid-up capital of $254,538.70.

Comparison with the report of this department for the year 1897 shows an increase of three in the number of incorporated banks, with a decrease of the paid-up capital of the same of $66,380; a decrease of nine in the number of private banks, with a decrease of capital paid-up of $175,000, and an increase of one in the number of savings banks, with an increase of paid-up capital of $18,125. Total net increase in number of banks, five, and total decrease in amount of paid-up capital, $223,255.

During the year fifteen new banks were opened for business, with a total capital of $147,500; six were reorganized by changing from private to incorporated banks, and twenty banks discontinued business.

Of the latter seventeen went into voluntary liquidation, paying all creditors in full, and three were placed in the hands of receivers. The State Bank of Holstein, one of the three placed in the hands of a receiver, the department is informed made satisfactory settlement and the receiver was discharged.

The two banks, State Bank of Crawford, Crawford, Neb., and bank of C. A. Sweet & Co., Palmyra, Neb., remaining in the hands of receivers, show the following condition of affairs at the time the banks were in the hands of the State Bank Examiner, after closing:

The small amount involved in the closing of insolvent banks during the year, as shown by above statement, is most gratifying to the department. Of the seventeen banks closing by voluntary liquidation, in no instance was advantage taken of the provision of the banking act permitting time under bond, but in every instance all liabilities to depositors were paid in full without delay. A better showing has never been made in any previous year in the state since the first banking act became effective.

For detailed information regarding the matters heretofore set forth your attention is called to the abstracts, summaries, and statements further on.

The value of the assets of the banks of the state have improved to a remarkable extent since my last report, under the influence of better crops, which have materially increased the holdings of borrowers, thus strengthening the security to the banks. Prudent bankers have utilized the improved conditions to collect or further secure slow and doubtful paper, and, in addition, have used profits unsparingly to eliminate from their banks this class of paper.

I can safely make the assertion that never in the history of Nebraska were her banks in as solvent condition as today. While it is true that we still have some ill-managed banks, and probably will never be entirely free from such, yet this state has reason to be justly proud of the banks under state jurisdiction, and the rapidly increasing deposits show that the people are aware of their safety. It is, however, a lamentable fact that men, successful perhaps in some other line of business, embark in the banking business, to learn by experience that something more than capital as expressed in money is necessary to successful banking. I know of no way to prevent the recurrence of this evil, and nothing is left to do but weed these people out when discovered.

The banking business of Nebraska is passing through a process of evolution by which it is rapidly approaching its true sphere, which is receiving deposits, paying checks, loaning money, and buying and selling exchange. The speculative banker either retired under the influence of drouth and panic or received such a wholesome lesson that he has reformed. The plethora of reserves, so marked for the past year, has not, as a rule, led the banks to forget past lessons and expand loans by taking greater risks than would be approved by sound business judgment. Doubtless the closeness with which securities are scanned has had something to do with keeping the reserve so large. This condition is abnormal and even now gives some evidence of passing away.

While it is true, as stated before, that the banks of the state are unusually strong, yet the profits of the business have shrunk to a remarkable extent. There are several causes which have contributed to the decline in bank profits during the past few years, and some of which will remain permanently with us.

In past years the insurance agency business and land loan business have been important adjuncts, to the interior banks especially, and brought to them no inconsiderable revenue, at the same time requiring little or no investment of capital other than labor and energy. The mutual insurance company has almost entirely destroyed the insurance business of the banks, and the local investor, competing with the outside investor, has reduced the profits derived from the land loan business until there is but a narrow margin of profit, if any, to the agent. These two sources of profit are to some extent perhaps lost for all time.

The exchange account of banks has also met a serious competition in the Government postal note and the express money order. It is useless and probably irrational to criticise the Government postal note, but the express money order is a competition that the banks should not be compelled to meet. It is a flagrant injustice to the banks to permit a corporation organized for the purpose of transporting commodities to assume the privilege of dealing in exchange which is clearly the prerogative of a bank. While the express company is a pirate in this field it owes its success largely to the fact that the banks recognize its orders as exchange. While they do this it is useless for them to ask relief, for it is this fact more than any other that makes the express money order a convenience to the people.

The accumulation of idle funds has materially reduced the rates of interest paid on deposits by the banks, yet no inconsiderable amount of the profits of banks are dissipated in this way. While I believe the payment of interest on deposits is not a correct principle in banking, the practice has been thoroughly established in the west and will require time to eradicate it. Doubtless it has had much to do with educating the people of the new west to the uses of banks, but necessity is forcing an elimination of the practice. Payment of interest on deposits is nothing more nor less than borrowing money, and to borrow money merely for the purpose of having the responsibility and risk of caring for it would hardly seem sufficient inducement to a practical banker, and yet this is what the practice amounts to, to a large extent.

In a greater portion of the state the rates at which money is loaned has fallen perceptibly. This is due to several causes which it is unnecessary to speak of here, as the United States as a whole is meeting with the same experience. There is one factor, however, which is operative in Nebraska which is not general to the whole country, and which is of much interest to the Nebraska banker. I refer to so-called cattle paper. This has grown to be a distinctive security on the market and is eagerly sought after by investors with idle funds. At certain seasons of the year no inconsiderable amount of the funds of our banks are invested in this security, and due to the demand for it, low rates prevail. The low rates offered on this paper has certainly had its effect on other forms of investment and added to the downward tendency of rates. I do not believe that abnormally low interest rates are a benefit to the state as a whole. When rates fall below what the productive capacity of the people warrant, commercial inactivity prevails.

From the foregoing it will be seen that new conditions confront the Nebraska banker. He must adapt himself to the new order of things. To be successful, and at the same time protect the stockholder in his rights to a fair profit for his investment and risk, an adjustment of the affairs of his bank must be made. The expense account must be made a matter of close scrutiny and study. The department does not believe the capable bank officer in this state is overpaid now, and it will be poor economy to attack him. The incompetent bank official, however, must go, and with him the supernumerary help. The useless son of a prominent stockholder must seek other fields to exploit. Rigid economy along all lines and the gradual elimination of the practice of paying interest on deposits only will insure dividends to the stockholder.

These matters adjusted, and with no further special privileges granted the national banks, giving them an undue advantage over banks operating under the state system, and the banks of Nebraska have a future of promise and usefulness.

Several measures are now pending in the legislature amendatory to the present banking act. Two of these are of special importance and should be passed: one introduced by Senator C. A. Fowler, of Fillmore county, placing banks in the hands of receivers under the jurisdiction of the State Banking Board, and another by Representative I. D. Evans, of Adams county, prohibiting the officers and employes from borrowing any of the funds of the bank in which they are employed. Both of these measures should appeal to the intelligence of the legislature and be enacted into law.

In April, 1898, the bankers of Northeastern Nebraska met in the city of Wakefield and organized the Northeastern Nebraska Bankers Association. A. L. Tucker, president of the Citizens Bank of Wayne, is president of the association, and W. P. Logan, cashier of the Farmers Bank at Newcastle, secretary. The initial meeting was very successful and various topics of interest to the practical banker were ably discussed. I believe the bankers of Northeastern Nebraska have set an example that bankers in other portions of the state should follow.

An earnest endeavor has been made during the past year to make the Department of Banking more an office of record. An insufficient office force has been a serious obstacle to the accomplishment of this purpose, but I have a hope that the present legislature will be more generous with us than its predecessors. Certainly a department that has supervision of so important a part of the financial interests of the state should be made as effective as possible, and it is poor economy that would cripple its usefulness to save a comparatively insignificant salary appropriation. The difficulty has been to get our lawmakers to appreciate the responsible part this department plays in the economy of the state.

I have every reason to believe its importance is growing in the estimation of the people and can safely assert that those most ready to decry its benefits are the most ignorant of its work.

The bankers under your jurisdiction have my sincerest thanks for their courtesy and ever ready compliance with the requirements of this office, and for many valuable suggestions received which have been of material assistance in the administration of the affairs of the department.

I am pleased to report that the work of the clerk and examiners has been very satisfactory, and that I have had the hearty co-operation of all in rendering the work of the department systematic and effective.

I am, gentlemen, very respectfully,

Your obedient servant,

P. L. HALL,

Secretary State Banking Board.
