LINCOLN, NEBRASKA, February 1, 1900.

*To the Honorables J. F. Cornell, Auditor of Public Accounts;
J. B. Meserve, State Treasurer; and C. J. Smyth, Attorney General, Members of the State Banking Board of the State of Nebraska:*

GENTLEMEN:—I have the honor to submit herewith the Eighth Annual Report of the Department of Banking, embracing the period beginning with December 1, 1898, and ending with December 2, 1899.

During the period covered by this report, twenty-three new banks have been authorized and chartered, of which twenty were incorporated with a total paid up capital of $206,250.00, and three private with a total paid up capital of $16,000.00. Five banks have been changed from private to incorporated, and one changed from incorporated to private. Four incorporated banks have been reincorporated and reorganized. Ten banks went into voluntary liquidation, paying all creditors in full. Only one bank was closed and placed in the hands of a receiver—the Farmers and Merchants Bank of Butte, Boyd County.

The following statement shows the condition of this bank as near as could be determined pending the appointment of a receiver:

Full and detailed information relative to the banks under supervision of this Department is set forth in succeeding pages, a study of which cannot but be a source of gratification to your Honorable Board.

HISTORY OF BANKING LAWS.

The first act applying to banks took effect June 1, 1877, and provided that such institutions should annually report to Auditor of Public Accounts in December of each year, showing condition, resources and liabilities and providing a penalty for making false reports.

This act also provided for the recovery of public funds deposited in, or loaned to banks, and legalized actions then pending for the recovery of such funds.

The act of 1877 remained the law without change until the year 1889, when Sections 1, 2, 3, of the act of 1877 were repealed and amendments were added providing for supervision of affairs of banks by the Auditor of Public Accounts, State Treasurer and Attorney General. This act also provided for not less than three reports during each year to be made, under oath, to the above named officers and to be published in a newspaper. It also empowered said officers to call for special reports and to appoint a clerk and examiners, prescribing the duties and compensation of such officers. Also penalty for failure to report and making false report; for a reserve fund; fixed the maximum liabilities; fixed a penalty for receiving deposits when insolvent, and provided for appointment of receivers in case of insolvency. Savings banks were also recognized, and distinguished from commercial banks.

The act of 1889 remained unchanged until April 5, 1895. The Legislature of that year amended the act of 1889 in several important particulars and no change has been made since.

The Banking Act of 1895 for the first time established a State Banking Board, designating it as such, and constituting the Auditor of Public Accounts, State Treasurer and Attorney General as such Board. It also provided for a Secretary of the Board and a seal. Many other minor but important changes were made, and for the first time in its history, the State of Nebraska had a law that gave an organized department supervision over its banks and clearly defined the duties and powers of both department and banks. For the first time the machinery of supervision was thoroughly provided and set in motion, which was to give the people of the State promise of protection against a repetition of such frequent disasters as marked previous years.

I am of the opinion that had the restrictions of the law of 1895 been provided and enforced prior to the year 1893, many of the failures that occurred during the period of panic, a depression beginning with that year would have been avoided. Many institutions that went down under the strain of that time, would have survived had they been placed under proper restraint during the boom period preceding.

While bank supervision by state authority is often criticized, sometimes justly, sometimes unjustly, yet the fact remains that it has come to be recognized as a necessity under the present expanded credit system and will, with wider experience, become more and more a protection to all interests. It will always be, that while failures of supervision will be known of all men, the good resulting therefrom must from necessity remain to a large extent, untold.

The present Banking Act, while productive of much benefit to the banks and the people, experience shows needs amending in several particulars.

DEFINITION OF BANK.

There is a special need of an amendment which will provide a statutory definition of a bank. In the course of business, the Department is frequently embarrassed by the absence of a clear concise statutory definition of the term. This fact has been made evident in various instances by persons or corporations assuming the privilege to do some of the things which should be clearly prerogatives of banks exclusively. In a recent matter referred to this Department by one of the banks under its jurisdiction, an opinion was requested from the Attorney General as to what constituted a banking business. In response to the request of the Department, the following opinion was received from that officer, which clearly demonstrates the defect above referred to:

STATE OF NEBRASKA, }
OFFICE OF ATTORNEY GENERAL. }

LINCOLN, NEB., January 12, 1900.

Hon. P. L. Hall, Secretary State Banking Board:

DEAR SIR:—Your favor of recent date asking for an opinion from this office on the question of “What constitutes a banking business as contemplated by the statutes of the State of Nebraska, and especially whether or not in your opinion the buying and selling of exchange is exclusively the privilege of a bank?” has been duly received.

In reply thereto, would say that Section 2 of Chapter 8, of the Compiled Statutes of Nebraska, which provides that “Every corporation, partnership, firm or individual transacting a banking business, under the laws, and within the State, shall be subject to the provisions of this Act and regulated by the State Banking Board,” does not pretend to define what the banking business is, within the meaning of this Chapter, but leaves that question to be determined by the general application of the term “banking business,” as defined by the courts and law writers of the country.

Nor does Section 182, 3b, of Article 1, Chapter 77 of the Statutes, give a definition of “banking” which is intended to define the business for the purpose of determining the control of your board over the banking business. This Section, if you will notice, is for the purpose of directing the method of assessing certain classes of property for taxation. Its sub-head includes, bank, banking, broker, and stock jobber, and does not pretend to divide the lines of duties of each of those branches of business and separate the functions of one from the functions of another. Consequently, we are left without the aid of a legislative definition of “banking,” and are compelled to look to the text writers, commentators and courts for a definition applicable to the question which you have propounded to us.

Looking first to our standard lexicographer, Webster, for a definition, we find the following: "Bank.—A collection or stock of money deposited by a number of persons for a particular use, that is an aggregate of particulars, or a fund; as to establish a bank, that is a joint fund." "Banker.—One who keeps a bank; one who traffics in money, receives and remits money; negotiates bills of exchange, etc." "Banking.—The business or employment of a banker; the business of establishing a common fund for lending money, discounting notes, issuing bills, receiving deposits, collecting money on notes deposited, negotiating bills of exchange, etc."

Turning from Webster's Dictionary to Bouvier's Law Dictionary, we find the following definition of a bank: "An institution authorized to receive deposits of money, to lend money and to issue promissory notes." This is a definition which has been commented on favorably in the case of the First National Bank vs. Ocean National Bank, 60 N. Y., 278, and has also been commented on with approval in a leading case by the Supreme Court of Minnesota—the case of Farmers and Merchants Bank vs. Baldwin, 23 Minn., 198.

In the case of Oulton vs. Savings Institution, 17 Wallace, 109, Judge Clifford of the United States Supreme Court says, "Banks in the commercial sense are of three kinds—of deposit, of discount, and of circulation. Originally the banking business consisted in receiving deposits, such as bullion, plate and the like, for safe keeping until the depositor should see fit to withdraw. Later banks began to loan by discounting bills and notes, or on mortgage, bond or other security; and at a still later period, to issue notes of their own, intended to circulate as money instead of gold and silver." "Modern banks frequently exercise any two or even three of those functions, but it is still true that an institution prohibited from exercising any more than one of them, is a bank in the strictest sense."

This decision has been criticized by some of the law writers as too broad, and as giving the term "banking" a too wide significance, as the only question before the Court determined by this decision was, as to whether an institution engaged in the business of receiving deposits from the public in general, was a bank, and his holding was in the affirmative.

There are numerous other cases which have been determined by the various courts, in which the question was involved for the purpose of the construction of a revenue statute, but these would be of little assistance to us in the solution of the question that you have propounded. Guided by the light of the authorities above commented on, I am of the opinion that a banking business is one which is primarily kept at a place where deposits are received; and where the money of various depositors is comingled into a common fund for the purpose of loans or discounts or the purchase of negotiable instruments, and that simply the buying and selling of exchange, unless it was conducted at a place kept for the deposit of money, would not alone constitute the banking business; but if deposits were received, and drafts or checks issued against the deposits so received, then, in my opinion, such a business would be a banking business, as contemplated by Chapter 8 of the Statutes of the State of Nebraska, and would be subject to the control of your Board.

Very truly yours,

C. J. SMYTH,

Attorney General.

By W. D. OLDHAM,

Deputy.

OFFICERS AND EMPLOYEES.

An amendment prohibiting the officers and employes of a bank from borrowing or in any way converting to their personal use any of the funds thereof, would be a protection both to the stockholders and depositors. Such an amendment was introduced in the House by Representative Evans, of Adams County, in the last Legislature, but failed to become a law. Such an amendment is almost a necessity.

RECEIVERS.

In former reports I have called attention to the unsatisfactory results obtained by the present methods of winding up the affairs of banks when placed in the hands of receivers. While there are many instances where receivers have discharged their duties with care and fidelity, yet all too often the appointment to the position of a receivership has been considered by the appointee as a personal snap and the assets of the bank legitimate prey. The history of receiverships of both state and national banks in the State, has been a fruitful source of complaint, and with reason.

An attempt was made to remedy the evils arising under the present system applying to banks under State supervision, at the last session of the Legislature. A bill was introduced by Senator Fowler, of Fillmore County, Senate File No. 61; which would have done much in that direction, but it also failed to become a law. This matter should be called to the attention of the next Legislature.

PROTECTION OF DEPOSITORS.

Efforts were made at the last two sessions of the Legislature to amend the Banking-Act by providing for a reserve fund, to be collected from the banks for the protection of depositors. While protection to the depositors of a failed bank is a matter of the greatest importance, and protection along the lines attempted, as above indicated, meets the approval of many experienced bankers whose opinions I highly prize, yet I have never been able to bring myself to see that such a plan would be equitable. There is, however, opportunity for difference of opinion and, to use a common expression, two good sides to the question. As some of the members of your Board have taken a deep interest in the matter, I give herewith a statement of total deposits shown in incorporated, private and savings banks reported placed in the hands of receivers in the respective years given, also total deposits in all banks under State supervision, as shown by annual reports of such years:

YEAR	Total deposits in banks placed in hands of receivers	Total deposits in all banks
1892	$ 71,997 18	$24,891,113 29
1893	652,175 79	17,208,476 14
1894	197,283 25	18,074,832 43
1895	584,655 80	14,200,775 62
1896	1,156,888 81	10,227,537 93
1897	144,507 34	13,902,940 36
1898	35,730 06	18,225,180 14
1899	13,829 96	21,666,111 12

The amount given for the years 1892 and 1893 are only approximately correct, as they have been from necessity made up from the last quarterly report to the department previous to the closing of the banks, and not from the report at the time of closing, as was done in the years that followed. The records of this office for the first two years given, contain little or no data of the deposits held at the time of closing. Under the present system of receiverships, it is impossible to form an estimate as to the probable per cent of loss of the total deposits given. It should not be forgotten that the years 1893 to 1896, inclusive, were years of extraordinary hardship for the banks. Disastrous crop failures added to a period of panic and general depression, swelled the totals involved enormously; perhaps beyond what might ever occur again. And then, too, it is well to remember that the period referred to was marked by a weeding out process under such influences and by State supervision. The State was for the first time in its history, as to its banks, cleaning house.

EXAMINERS.

The present fee system by which State bank examiners receive compensation should be changed, so that a fixed salary and necessary expenses would be paid them.

The fee system in any public position is objectionable for many reasons. Provision should be made for banks to pay an examination fee direct to the State Treasurer, by him to be disbursed through warrants regularly drawn by the Auditor of Public Accounts. Such a provision would be a benefit to the service and more agreeable to the examiner. Care should be taken in fixing the compensation that it be not so low as to prevent competent men from desiring the position. There should also be provision for at least two examinations each year.

IMPORTANT DECISIONS OF THE SUPREME COURT OF THE STATE OF NEBRASKA AFFECTING BANKS, 1899.

Longfellow vs. Barnard.—(Supreme Court of Nebraska, May 17, 1899.) Northwestern Reporter 79, page 255.

Paragraphs 1 and 2 of the syllabus clearly set forth that part of the decision which is of material interest to private banks owned by an individual as well as to your honorable Board. Paragraphs referred to are as follows:

1. An unincorporated bank, exclusively owned by a private individual, is not a legal entity, even though its business be conducted by a President and Cashier.

2. In such case the assets of the bank represent merely the portion of the owner's capital invested in banking, and he may lawfully dispose of them to pay or secure the just claims of any of his creditors.

This was a case primarily brought to test the validity of a mortgage, but which involved questions of grave importance and far reaching consequences to the class of banks described.

The decision denies to an individual engaged in the banking business as a private banker, the right to set aside any portion of his capital, as bank capital upon which depositors or other creditors of his bank would be entitled to a prior lien, and makes the capital of his bank subject to all of his debts, bank and otherwise, and makes all of his property, bank capital and other, liable for any of his debts. Thus absolutely placing a private bank, owned by an individual, as a part of any other business in which he may be engaged. If this decision is to stand as the law of this State, then should private banks owned by individuals be prohibited by law?

August Schmelling vs. State of Nebraska, et al.—Nebraska Reports Vol. 57, page 562.

Paragraph 4 of Syllabus is as follows:

4. Banks: Insolvency: Preferred claims. The owner of a sum of money on a general deposit in a bank at the time of its failure is not entitled to a preferred claim against the assets in the hands of its receiver.

Error from the District Court of Nuckolls County.

Tried below before Hastings, Judge. Affirmed.

This was a case wherein plaintiff claimed to have placed a sum of money in bank, not generally, but to be held to await the arrival of a time for the performance of a specific contract for the sale or purchase of some real estate in which he was named as purchaser, and which the bank was to pay on said contract.

Before the arrival of the time for the payment of the money on the contract, the bank failed and was placed in the hands of a receiver. It appeared that the money was by the bank placed on general deposit, and effort was made by plaintiff to have the amount determined a preferred claim. This was denied by the District Court and the case was appealed to the Supreme Court, where decision of lower court was sustained.

The point of interest in this case is the effect upon a deposit intended as a special deposit, if treated on the books of a bank as a general deposit.

In conclusion permit me to say that the State banking system of Nebraska, is second to that of no other State in efficiency and safety. Already over thirty-one million dollars of assets are held by the banks under your supervision, and there is every promise that these institutions will keep pace with the growth of the State.
