STANDARD RAIL MILLS.<sup>1</sup>

SUMMARY.

In 1915 the average rate of wages or earnings per hour of employees in standard rail mills was 9 per cent higher than in the years 1910 and 1911, 8 per cent higher than in 1912, 3 per cent lower than in 1913, and 2 per cent lower than in 1914. The average full-time hours per week in 1915 were 4 per cent lower than in 1910, 1 per cent higher than in 1911 and 1914, and the same as in 1912 and 1913. The average full-time weekly earnings in 1915 were 6 per cent higher than in 1910, 10 per cent higher than in 1911, 9 per cent higher than in 1912, 3 per cent lower than in 1913, and 2 per cent lower than in 1914. These facts are drawn from the table of relative numbers, for all occupations combined (Table 32).

The most significant details concerning the several standard-rail-mill occupations which are covered in this section of the report are summarized by means of averages and percentages in the table following. Data are presented for the years 1910 to 1915 inclusive, figures for identical plants being grouped together. The data for 1915 represents 1,945 employees of whom 1,194 are employed in the 21 specified occupations covered and 751 in the unclassified productive and nonproductive occupations tabulated in this report for 1914 and 1915 for the first time. The information for 1914 and 1915 was obtained from 7 plants whose tonnage capacity is 50 per cent of the total capacity of all standard rail mills in the United States.

In this table occupations are grouped according to the wages paid, beginning with the lowest-paid group, and the occupations in each group are presented in alphabetical order. Classified full-time hours per week and rates of wages per hour are shown by means of percentages computed from the actual figures of Table M.

Referring to the first occupation of Table 31, cold-saw men's helpers, direct comparison can be made for three identical plants in 1910 and 1911, for four identical plants in 1911 and 1912, for seven identical plants in 1912 and 1913, for six identical plants in 1913 and 1914, and for seven identical plants in 1914 and 1915. The first line of the table is read as follows: In 1910 the three standard rail mills from which reports were obtained employed 30 cold-saw men's helpers, whose average full-time hours of work were 76 per week. For 67 per cent of these cold-saw men's helpers the full-time hours per week were 72 and for the remaining one-third the working hours were 84 per week. The average rate of wages or earnings per hour of cold-saw men's helpers in the year considered (1910) was 17.1 cents. All of the 30 employees received 16 and under 18 cents per hour. The average full-time weekly earnings were $12.98. The other lines of the table may be read in the same manner.

Referring to the last column of the table, it is seen that in three plants the average full-time weekly earnings of cold-saw men's helpers were $12.98 in 1910, and in 1911 in the same three plants the average dropped to $12.40; in four plants in 1911 the average was $12.38, while in 1912 there was a slight increase to $12.45; in seven plants the full-time weekly earnings were $13.56 in 1912 and $15.10 in 1913; in six plants in 1913 and 1914 these earnings were $14.70 and $13.14, respectively, while in the group of seven plants in 1914 and 1915 they were $13.09 in 1914 and $13.82 in 1915. The highest point reached was for 1913 when it was $15.10 in the group for seven plants and $14.70 in the group for six plants. The figures for the two years show an appreciable difference which is readily accounted for by reference to the details. Comparing the average full-time weekly earnings for 1915 in the several occupations, it is seen that the lowest average was that of hotbed men, which was $12.54. Several occupations received but little more. The highest earnings in any occupation of this department are found in the occupation of rollers, the average full-time weekly earnings in this occupation in 1915 being $43.09.

INDEX NUMBERS.

Owing to changes in the number of plants reported from year to year, and the consequent differences in the averages for the overlapping year in two groups of plants, it is difficult to make a comparison of the actual data for the various years which will give an accurate measure of the changes throughout the period. To aid in making such a comparison relative or index numbers have been computed from the averages of Table 31 for full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings, for each occupation from 1910 to 1915 inclusive. Such figures appear in Table 32. These relative or index numbers are simply percentages for which the data for 1915 are taken as the base, or 100 per cent. The relative for each year is the per cent which the average for that year is of the average for 1915. For example, relative full-time weekly earnings of charging-machine operators in 1910 were 96 per cent of the full-time weekly earnings in this occupation in 1915. The method of computing relative numbers is explained on pages 65 to 67.

Table 32 also shows for each occupation the per cent of increase or decrease in full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings in 1915 as compared with each specified year preceding. Thus the full-time weekly earnings of charging-machine operators in 1915 were 4 per cent higher than in 1910, 5 per cent higher than in 1911, no change in 1912, 12 per cent lower than in 1913, and 19 per cent lower than in 1914.

In other columns of this table is shown the per cent of change in each year as compared with the year immediately preceding. Thus the full-time weekly earnings of charging-machine operators in 1911 were 1 per cent lower than in 1910, 5 per cent higher in 1912 than in 1911, 13 per cent higher in 1913 than in 1912, 10 per cent higher in 1914 than in 1913, and 19 per cent lower in 1915 than in 1914. The other occupations and items of the table may be studied in like manner. The percentages of increase and decrease are computed from the relative numbers.

1 No change.

The relative full-time weekly earnings of the department as a whole ("all occupations") in 1910 were 94 as compared with 100 in 1915. In other words, the full-time weekly earnings in 1910 were 94 per cent of such earnings in 1915. The relative decreased to 91 in 1911, advanced to 92 in 1912, to 103 in 1913, decreased to 102 in 1914 and in 1915 the base year, the relative was 100. These relative numbers for each year previous to 1914 are based on a combination of the principal productive occupations only, but for 1914 and 1915 they are computed on data for all employees in the department including the unclassified groups (see pages 55 and 56) tabulated for 1914 and 1915 for the first time.

FULL-TIME WORKING DAYS PER WEEK.

The number and per cent of employees in the principal productive occupations in standard rail mills, whose customary working time per week was 6 days or turns, or 7 days, or variations thereof, are shown in Table 33. The heading "6 days and 7 days alternately" indicates that the plants were not in operation half a day each week; the employees reported working 6 turns one week and 7 turns the next week. The figures are presented for each of the two districts for which standard-rail-mill data were obtained, and for the two districts combined.

Two sets of figures are shown for the 7 plants reported for 1914 and 1915, the first covering only the principal productive occupations as shown for all the preceding groups of years and therefore strictly comparable with them, and the second including the unclassified occupations (see pp. 55 and 56) tabulated for 1914 and 1915 for the first time.

TABLE 33.—NUMBER AND PER CENT OF EMPLOYEES IN EACH DISTRICT WORKING EACH SPECIFIED NUMBER OF DAYS PER WEEK, BY YEARS, 1910 TO 1915—STANDARD RAIL MILLS.

Two general tables are presented for the standard-rail-mill department, as follows:

TABLE M.—Full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings, in the United States, by years, 1910 to 1915.

TABLE N.—Full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings, in each district, by years, 1913 to 1915.

The data from Table M are summarized in Table 31, percentages being used instead of the actual figures for classified hours and rates of wages.

The order in which the occupations are given in Tables M and N and in the table of relative numbers follows that of the processes of manufacture. "Identical plants," as used in the tables of this report, are identical units of identical establishments, reporting the same occupations in each of two or more consecutive years. For a more extended explanation see page 58.

Figures for each geographical division for each preceding year back to 1910, corresponding to those given for 1913, 1914, and 1915, in Table N, were given in Bulletins 151 and 168 of this bureau.

Descriptions of the occupations which are specified in the tables of this chapter and of other occupations of this department in the unclassified groups appear in the Glossary of Occupations, pages 498 to 501.

SUMMARY.

The average rate of wages or earnings per hour in the bar-mill department in 1915 was from 1 to 16 per cent higher than in any one of the 8 years preceding, except 1913, which was a year of such large production that a general increase in time and piece rates was made by practically all companies. There was no decrease in rates of pay in 1915, as compared with 1913, but the lower production reduced the average hourly earnings 4 per cent as compared with 1913. Beginning with 1907, a prosperous year in this industry, bar-mill employees, as shown by their average earnings per hour, have had one good year followed by two poor years in each 3-year period. The years 1907, 1910, and 1913 were prosperous years, as shown by the figures of this report, while in 1908, 1909, 1911, 1912, 1914, and 1915, lower production considerably reduced average hourly rates of wages, and consequently the average full-time weekly earnings in proportion. To complete the analogy, the statements published on pages 10 to 14 indicate that 1916 figures when computed will show a very substantial increase in earnings per hour and per week.

The most significant facts appearing in this chapter concerning wages and hours of labor of bar-mill employees, for the years 1907 to 1915, are summarized by means of averages and percentages in Table 34. The information for 1915 represents 8,732 men, and was obtained from 57 plants having 128 separate bar mills, of various sizes from 8 to 18 inches, inclusive, being 23 per cent of the bar mills in the United States. Of the 8,732 employees 7,220 are in the 18 principal productive occupations reported for the years 1907 to 1913, and the remaining 1,512 are in the unclassified productive and non-productive groups reported for the years 1914 and 1915 only.

The bar mills considered in this report are, with a few exceptions, hand-operated mills—the exceptions being certain mills using a combination of continuous rolls and rolls in which the material is handled by men, and include both mills rolling bar iron and those rolling bar steel.

In this summary table occupations are grouped according to the wages paid, beginning with the lowest-paid group, and the occupations in each group are presented in alphabetical order. Classified full-time hours per week and rates of wages per hour are shown by percentages which were computed from the actual figures given in Table O.

<sup>1</sup> Summary figures relating to this department are given with figures for other departments of the iron and steel industry on pages 7 to 26; an account of the volume of employment in this and other departments from July, 1913, to June, 1915, is given on pages 26 to 55; and an explanation of the scope of the investigation and of the methods employed is given on pages 55 to 59.

Referring to the first occupation of the table, laborers, direct comparison can be made of data for 10 identical plants from 1907 to 1910, 15 for 1910 and 1911, 17 for 1911 and 1912, 21 for 1912 and 1913, 42 for 1913 and 1914, and 54 for 1914 and 1915. In 1915 the 54 plants reporting employed 1,029 laborers whose average full time per week was 62.9 hours, a slight reduction as compared with 1914. One per cent of the 1,029 men worked 48 hours and under per week, 48 per cent over 48 and including 60 hours, 41 per cent over 60 and under 72 hours, 8 per cent 72 hours, and 1 per cent over 72 hours per week. The average rate of wages per hour was 17.3 cents, exactly the same as in 1914. Ten per cent of the 1,029 laborers earned under 14 cents per hour, 17 per cent 14 and under 16 cents, 31 per cent 16 and under 18 cents, 22 per cent 18 and under 20 cents, and 20 per cent 20 and under 25 cents per hour. The average weekly earnings of the 1,029 laborers was $10.91, or nine cents less than in 1914.

The full-time earnings in 1915 in 15 occupation groups were from $10.91 to $18.99 per week, in 3 other groups from $20.95 to $25.76 per week, and the full-time earnings of heaters were $33.50 and of rollers $56.75 per week.

• EARNINGS OF ROLLING CREWS.

In order to compare the earnings of the various members of the rolling crews in the mills of different sizes, Table 35, showing simply the average earnings per hour in 1915, has been prepared.

Although the exertion increases with the size of the mill, skill and experience are such large factors that the increase in wages in any one of the occupations is by no means proportionate to the increase in the size of the mill and the weight of the product. In the case of rollers, it will be noticed that there is no connection between the size of the mill and the average earnings per hour. Whatever difference does exist is due entirely to the skill and experience of the particular roller and to the custom of the individual establishment in which he is employed.

INDEX NUMBERS.

Owing to changes in the number of plants reported from year to year, and the consequent differences in the averages for the overlapping year in two groups of plants, it is difficult to make a comparison of the actual data over a period of several years which will give an accurate measure of the changes throughout the period. To aid in making such a comparison relative or index numbers have been computed from the averages of Table 35 for full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings, for each occupation group from 1907 to 1915, inclusive, and are presented in Table 36.

These relative or index numbers are simply percentages for which the data for 1915 are taken as the base, or 100 per cent. The relative for each year is the per cent that the average for that year is of the average for 1915. For example, the relative full-time weekly earnings of stockers in 1907 were 90 as compared with 100 in 1915; that is, the full-time weekly earnings of stockers in 1907 were 90 per cent of the full-time weekly earnings in this occupation in 1915. The method of computing relative numbers is explained on pages 65 to 67.

Table 36 also shows for each occupation the per cent of increase or decrease in full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings in 1915 as compared with each specified year preceding. Thus, the full-time weekly earnings of stockers in 1915 were 11 per cent higher than in 1907, 18 per cent higher than in 1908 and in 1909, 4 per cent higher than in 1910, 10 per cent higher than in 1911, 3 per cent higher than in 1912, 5 per cent lower than in 1913, and 1 per cent lower than in 1914.

In other columns of the table is shown the per cent of change in each year as compared with the year immediately preceding. Thus, the full-time weekly earnings of stockers were 6 per cent lower in 1908 than in 1907, the same in 1909 as in 1908, 13 per cent higher in 1910 than in 1909, 5 per cent lower in 1911 than in 1910, 7 per cent higher in 1912 than in 1911, and 8 per cent higher in 1913 than in 1912, 4 per cent lower in 1914 than in 1913, and 1 per cent lower in 1915 than in 1914. The other occupations and items of the table can be studied in like manner. The percentages of increase and decrease are computed from the relative numbers.

The relative full-time weekly earnings for all occupations combined in 1907 was 96 as compared with 100 in 1915. In other words, the full-time weekly earnings in 1907 were 96 per cent of the full-time weekly earnings in 1915. The relative was considerably lower in 1908 and in 1909, increased in 1910 to 97, was lower in 1911 and in 1912, increased to 104 in 1913, and again was lower in 1914 and in 1915. These repeated three-year periods already have been referred to on page 302. They are further shown by the two columns of per cents of increase or decrease in weekly earnings. Referring to the last column it is seen that the relative for 1908 was 10 per cent less than that for 1907, while for 1910 it was 10 per cent higher than for 1909. Again, the relative for 1911 was 4 per cent less than that for 1910, while for 1913 it was 11 per cent higher than for 1912, and for 1914 5 per cent less than for 1913. These relative numbers for all occupations combined for each year previous to 1914 are based on the principal productive occupations only, but for 1914 and 1915 include also the unclassified groups tabulated for 1914 and 1915 for the first time.

FULL-TIME WORKING DAYS PER WEEK.

The number and per cent of employees in the principal productive occupations in bar-mill plants whose customary working time per week was 5 days or turns, or 6 days, or 7 days, or variations thereof, are shown in Table. 37. The figures are presented for each of the three districts for which bar mills are reported, and for the three combined. The employees given under the heading "5 days, 5 days, and 6 days in rotation" and "5 days, 6 days, and 6 days in rotation" are engaged in occupations for which the plant employs three shifts instead of the customary two to complete the 24 hours of the day. All three of the crews in such cases work from Monday to Friday inclusive, while only one crew or two crews, as the case may be, work a Saturday turn.

Two sets of figures are shown for the plants reported for 1914 and 1915, the first covering only the principal productive occupations as shown for all the preceding groups of years and therefore strictly comparable with them, and the second including the unclassified occupations (see pp. 55 and 56) tabulated for 1914 and 1915 for the first time.

Two general tables are presented for this department, as follows:

Table O.—Full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings, in the United States, by years, 1907 to 1915.

Table P.—Full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings, in each district, by years, 1913 to 1915.

The data from Table O are summarized in Table 34, percentages being used instead of the actual figures for classified hours and rates of wages.

The order in which the occupations are given in Tables O and P and the table of relative numbers follows that of the processes of manufacture. "Identical plants" as used in the tables of this report are identical units of identical establishments reporting the same occupations in each of two or more consecutive years. For a more extended explanation see page 58.

Figures for each geographical division for each preceding year back to 1907 corresponding to those given for 1913, 1914, and 1915 in Table P were given in Bulletins 151 and 168 of this bureau.

Descriptions of the specified occupations which appear in the tables of this chapter and of other occupations of the bar-mill department included in the two groups designated as: "Unclassified—productive," and "Unclassified—nonproductive," are to be found in the Glossary of Occupations, pages 501 to 506.
