OPEN-HEARTH FURNACES.<sup>1</sup>

SUMMARY.

In 1915 the average rate of wages or earnings per hour in the open-hearth furnace department was from 2 to 16 per cent higher than in any of the five years preceding, and as the average full-time hours per week had decreased only a little during the period full-time weekly earnings in the several years followed the same course as rates of wages.

The most significant facts concerning the open-hearth furnace occupations which are covered in this section of the report are summarized in Table 19. Data are presented for each year from 1910 to 1915, inclusive, figures for identical plants being grouped together. The data for 1915 represents 3,358 open-hearth employees in the 15 specified occupations and 2,065 in unclassified productive and nonproductive occupations reported for 1914 and 1915 only, making a total of 5,423, and were obtained from 22 plants, having 229 furnaces, capable of producing 35 per cent of the total tonnage of open-hearth steel ingots made in the United States.

In this table occupations are grouped according to the wages paid, beginning with the lowest-paid group, and the occupations in each group are presented in alphabetical order. Classified full-time hours per week and rates of wages per hour are shown by percentages which were computed from the actual data given in Table E.

<sup>1</sup> Including less than one-half of 1 per cent whose full-time hours per week were 98.<sup>2</sup> Less than one-half of 1 per cent.<sup>3</sup> Including less than one-half of 1 per cent whose full-time hours per week were 91.

Referring to the first occupation presented in Table 19, above, door operators, direct comparison can be made of data for 15 identical plants for 1910 to 1912, inclusive, for another group of 15 plants for 1912, 1913, and 1914, and for 19 plants for 1914 and 1915. The first line of the table is analyzed as follows: In 1910 the 15 open-hearth furnaces for which reports were obtained employed 165 door operators, whose average full-time hours of work were 75.9 per week. For 12 per cent of the 165 door operators the full-time hours per week were over 60 and under 72; for 38 per cent, 72; for 22 per cent, over 72 and under 84; and for 28 per cent, 84. The average rate of wages or earnings per hour of door operators in the year considered (1910) was 10.1 cents; of the total number 51 per cent received under 10 cents per hour; 32 per cent 10 and under 12 cents; 9 per cent, 12 and under 14 cents; and 9 per cent 14 cents and over per hour.

Referring to the last column of the table, it is seen that in 15 plants the average full-time weekly earnings of the door operators were $7.72 in both 1910 and 1912, decreasing to $7.53 in 1911, while in the second group of 15 plants the average was $7.68 in 1912, $8.68 in 1913, and a decrease to $8.30 in 1914. In the group of 19 plants there was an increase from $8.35 in 1914 to $8.43 for 1915. Comparing the average full-time weekly earnings for 1915 of the several occupations, it is seen that with the exception of door operators, who are usually boys, the lowest average was that of laborers, which was $13.19, and the highest that of melters' first helpers, which was $32.80.

INDEX NUMBERS.

To aid in making a comparison of the actual data for the six years which will give an accurate measure of the changes throughout the period, relative or index numbers have been computed from the averages shown in Table 19 for full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings for each occupation from 1910 to 1915, inclusive. Such figures appear in Table 20, which follows. These relative or index numbers are simply percentages for which the data for 1915 are taken as the base, or 100 per cent. The relative for each year is the per cent which the average for that year is of the average for 1915. For example, the relative full-time weekly earnings of stockers in 1910 were 89 as compared with 100 in 1915; that is, the full-time weekly earnings of stockers in 1910 were 89 per cent of the full-time weekly earnings in this occupation in 1915. The method of computing relative numbers is explained on pages 65 to 67.

Table 20 also shows for each occupation the per cent of increase or decrease in full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings in 1915 as compared with each specified year preceding. Thus, the full-time weekly earnings of stockers in 1915 were 12 per cent higher than in 1910, 20 per cent higher than in 1911, 14 per cent higher than in 1912, the same as in 1913, and 2 per cent lower than in 1914.

In other columns of the table is shown the per cent of change in each year as compared with the year immediately preceding. Thus the full-time weekly earnings of stockers in 1911 were 7 per cent lower than in 1910; in 1912 6 per cent higher than in 1911; in 1913 14 per cent higher than in 1912; in 1914 2 per cent higher than in 1913; and in 1915 2 per cent lower than in 1914. The other occupations and items of the table can be studied in like manner. The per cent of increase and decrease is computed from the relative numbers.

The relative full-time weekly earnings for all occupations combined, in 1910, were 89 as compared with 100 in 1915. In other words, the full-time weekly earnings in 1910 were 89 per cent of such earnings in 1915. The relative dropped to 86 in 1911, advanced to 91 in 1912, to 101 in 1913, dropped to 97 in 1914, and advanced to 100 in 1915, the base year. These relative numbers for each year previous to 1914 are based on the principal productive occupations only, but those for 1914 and 1915 include also the unclassified group tabulated for 1914 and 1915 for the first time.

The next column shows that full-time weekly earnings in 1915 were 12 per cent higher than in 1910, 16 per cent higher than in 1911, 10 per cent higher than in 1912, 1 per cent lower than in 1913, and 3 per cent higher than in 1914.

The third column under "Weekly earnings" shows the per cent of increase or decrease in full-time weekly earnings in each year as compared with the year immediately preceding. Thus, the full-time weekly earnings in 1911 were 3 per cent lower than in 1910, in 1912 6 per cent higher than in 1911, in 1913 11 per cent higher than in 1912, in 1914 4 per cent lower than in 1913, and in 1915 3 per cent higher than in 1914. The relative numbers and percentages for full-time hours per week and rates of wages per hour can be read in like manner.

FULL-TIME WORKING DAYS PER WEEK.

The number and per cent of employees in the principal productive occupations in open-hearth plants whose customary working time per week was 5 days or turns, or 6 days, or 7 days, or variations thereof, are shown in Table 21.

The heading "5 days and 6 days alternately," for example, indicates that the plants were running 6 days and 5 nights each week, being shut down for one day and a half each week, and that the employees reported under this heading work 6 turns 1 week and 5 turns the next.

The figures are presented for each district and for the four districts combined, two sets of figures being given for the plants reported for 1914 and 1915, the first covering only the principal productive occupations, as shown for each of the preceding groups and therefore strictly comparable with them, and the second including the unclassified occupations (see pp. 55 and 56) tabulated for 1914 and 1915 for the first time.

TABLE 21.—NUMBER AND PER CENT OF EMPLOYEES IN EACH DISTRICT WORKING EACH SPECIFIED NUMBER OF DAYS PER WEEK, BY YEARS, 1910 TO 1915—OPEN-HEARTH FURNACES.

[The figures for each group of years are for identical plants.]

Two general tables are presented for the open-hearth department, as follows:

Table E.—Full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings, in the United States, by years, 1910 to 1915.

Table F.—Full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings, in each district, by years, 1913 to 1915.

The data from Table E are summarized in Table 19, percentages being used instead of the actual figures for classified hours and rates of wages per hour.

The order in which the occupations are given in Tables E and F, and in the table of relative numbers, follows that of the processes of manufacture. "Identical plants," as used in the tables of this report, are identical units of identical establishments reporting the same occupations in each of the two or more consecutive years. For a more extended explanation see page 58.

Figures for each geographical division for each preceding year, back to 1910, corresponding to those given for 1913, 1914, and 1915 in Table F, were given in Bulletins 151 and 168 of this bureau. Descriptions of occupations which appear in the tables of this chapter and of others included in the two unclassified groups may be found in the Glossary of Occupations, on pages 481 to 484.

SUMMARY.

Wages and hours of labor in the puddling-mill department are presented for the first time in this series of reports. Figures are given for 1914 and 1915.

The puddling mill produces wrought iron by oxidizing and removing most of the silicon, carbon, manganese, and phosphorus contained in pig iron, the operation being conducted on the hearth of a reverberatory furnace.

Puddlers work in different combinations in the various plants: First, puddler and helper, the puddler receiving a larger tonnage rate than the helper; second, two puddlers, dividing the earnings equally—"level-handed"; third, two puddlers ("level-handed") with a helper; fourth, three puddlers, dividing the earnings into three equal shares—"three-handed."

The busheling process is practically the same as the puddling, except that scrap iron is charged instead of pig iron and that each heat requires a shorter time.

The depression which affected other departments of the industry in 1914 and 1915 was felt to even a greater degree in puddling mills and in addition labor troubles caused the closing of some mills for several months.

Considering the department as a whole, full-time weekly earnings of all employees combined were 5 per cent lower in 1915 than in 1914, rates of wages per hour being 4 per cent lower and full-time hours per week 2 per cent lower. Comparing the various separate occupation groups there were reductions of from 1 to 12 per cent in the full-time weekly earnings of employees in 16 groups in 1915 as compared with 1914, increases of from 1 to 12 per cent in 9 groups, and weekly earnings in one group were unchanged. These facts are shown in the table of relative numbers on pages 185 and 186.

The most significant facts appearing in this chapter concerning the several occupations of the puddling-mill department are summarized in averages and percentages in the table following. Data are presented from identical plants for the years 1914 and 1915. The figures for 1914 represent 4,606 employees, and for 1915, 4,472 employees, in 26 specified occupations, covering all occupations of a puddling mill, including muck rolling and shearing. The information on which the figures are based was obtained from 29 plants having 754 furnaces, capable of producing 49 per cent of the total tonnage of all puddle furnaces in the United States. In this report a double furnace is counted as 2 single furnaces.

<sup>1</sup> Summary figures relating to this department are given with figures for other departments of the iron and steel industry on pages 7 to 26; an account of the volume of employment in this and other departments from July, 1913, to June, 1915, is given on pages 26 to 55; and an explanation of the scope of the investigation and of the methods employed is given on pages 55 to 59.

In Table 22, which follows, occupations are grouped according to the wages paid, beginning with the lowest-paid group, and the occupations in each group are presented in alphabetical order. Classified full-time hours per week and rates of wages per hour are shown by percentages, which were computed from the actual figures given in Table G.

Twenty-four plants employed 322 laborers (the first occupation presented in the table above) in 1914 and 303 in 1915. The average full-time hours per week were reduced two hours, from 59.5 in 1914 to 57.5 in 1915; in 1915 35 per cent of the 303 employees worked over 48 and under 56 hours per week, 14 per cent 56 and under 60, and 51 per cent 60 and under 72 hours. The average rate of wages per hour decreased from 17.3 cents in 1914 to 16.7 cents in 1915; 3 per cent of the 303 employees in 1915 earned 12 and under 14 cents per hour, 36 per cent 14 and under 16 cents, 38 per cent 16 and under 18 cents, 6 per cent 18 and under 20 cents, and 17 per cent 20 and under 25 cents. The average full-time weekly earnings decreased from $10.35 in 1914 to $9.66 in 1915. The full-time weekly earnings in 1915 of 1 occupation were $9.66, of 14 occupations from $10.62 to $16.14, of 9 other occupations from $17.01 to $26.92, and those of rollers $29.89, and of heaters $36.37.

INDEX NUMBERS.

To aid in making a comparison of the earnings and hours in the two years, relative or index numbers have been computed from the averages given in Table 22 and these are printed in Table 23. The figures for 1915 are taken as the base, or 100 per cent, and the relative for 1914 is the per cent that the average for 1914 is of the average for 1915. For example, the relative full-time weekly earnings of stockers in 1914 were 99 as compared with 100 in 1915—that is, the full-time weekly earnings in 1914 were 99 per cent of the full-time weekly earnings in 1915.

Table 23 also shows for each occupation and for all occupations combined the per cent of increase or decrease in hours, rates of wages, and weekly earnings in 1915 as compared with 1914, computed from the relative numbers. For example, weekly earnings of puddlers decreased 10 per cent in 1915 as compared with 1914. The actual difference between the relative numbers is 11, which divided by 111, the relative for 1914, gives 10 (9.9), the per cent of the decrease.

FULL-TIME WORKING DAYS PER WEEK.

The number and per cent of employees in puddling mills whose customary working time per week was 5 days or turns, or 6 days, or 7 days, or variations thereof, are shown in Table 24.

In 1915 24 per cent worked 5 turns per week; 50 per cent worked 6 days one week and 5 nights the next; 11 per cent were employed in three shifts in 24 hours, two working 5 days each only (Monday to Friday) while the third worked a turn on Saturday, making 6 for the week; 13 per cent worked 6 days per week; 1 per cent 6 and 7 turns alternately; and 1 per cent 7 days per week.

Two general tables also are presented for this department:

Table G.—Full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings, in the United States, by years, 1914 and 1915.

Table H.—Full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings, in each district, by years, 1914 and 1915.

The facts from Table G are summarized in Table 22, percentages being used instead of the actual figures for classified hours and rates of wages.

The order in which the occupations are given in Tables G and H and the table of relative numbers follows that of the processes of manufacture. "Identical plants," as used in the tables of this report, are identical units of identical establishments reporting the same occupations in each of two or more consecutive years. For a more extended explanation see page 58.

Descriptions of the occupations which appear in the tables of this chapter and of other occupations of the puddling department included in the two groups designated as "Unclassified—productive," and "Unclassified—nonproductive," are to be found in the Glossary of Occupations, pages 484 to 486.

SUMMARY.

In 1915, the average rate of wages or earnings per hour in the blooming-mill department was from 5 per cent lower to 14 per cent higher than in any one of the five years preceding. There was a marked increase in the full-time weekly earnings from 1910 to 1913, inclusive, but in 1914 and 1915 the average full-time weekly earnings were 5 per cent less than in 1913.

The most significant facts concerning wages and hours of labor of blooming-mill employees for the years 1910 to 1915 are summarized by means of averages and percentages in Table 25. The data for 1915 represents 2,659 employees; of these 1,066 are in the 12 specified occupations, and the remaining 1,593 in the unclassified groups tabulated in 1914 and 1915 for the first time. They were obtained from 23 plants and for 28 separate mills, capable of producing 37 per cent of the total tonnage of blooming mills in the United States.

In this table occupations are grouped according to the wages paid, beginning with the lowest-paid group, and the occupations in each group are presented in alphabetical order. Classified full-time hours per week and rates of wages per hour are shown by percentages which were computed from the actual figures of Table I.

Referring to the first occupation presented, laborers, direct comparison can be made of data for 19 identical plants for 1910 to 1912, inclusive, for a second group of 19 plants in 1912 and 1913, for a third group of 19 plants in 1913 and 1914, and for a group of 22 plants in 1915. The first line of Table 25 is read as follows: In 1910 the 19 blooming mills from which reports were obtained employed 449 laborers whose average full-time hours of work were 74.1 per week. For 16 per cent of the 449 laborers the full-time hours per week were over 48 and under 72; for 54 per cent, 72; for 6 per cent, over 72 and under 84; and for 24 per cent, 84 hours per week. The average rate of wages or earnings per hour of laborers in the year considered (1910) was 16.2 cents. Of the total number, 10 per cent received 12 and under 14 cents per hour; 13 per cent, 14 and under 16 cents; and 77 per cent, 16 and under 18 cents per hour. The average full-time weekly earnings were $11.97. The other lines of the table may be read in the same manner.

Referring to the last column of the table, it is seen that in 19 plants the average full-time weekly earnings of laborers were $11.97 in 1910. In 1911 there was a slight advance to $12.02, and in 1912 a further small advance to $12.13. In the second group of 19 plants the full-time weekly earnings were $12.08 in 1912, with an advance of $1.45 per week for the following year, making $13.53 for 1913. In the third group of 19 plants there is little change for 1913, as shown by the figures $13.51, while there was a slight drop to $13.44 in 1914. In the group of 22 plants for 1914 and 1915 the full-time weekly earnings were $13.39 for 1914 and $13.49 for 1915. Comparing the average full-time weekly earnings for 1915 of the several occupations, it is seen that the lowest average was that of laborers, which was $13.49, and the highest that of rollers, which was $43.26.

INDEX NUMBERS.

To aid in making a comparison of the actual data for the six years, which will give an accurate measure of the changes throughout the period, relative or index numbers have been computed from the averages of Table 25 for full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings, for each occupation from 1910 to 1915, inclusive. Such figures appear in Table 26.

These relative or index numbers are simply percentages for which the data for 1915 are taken as the base, or 100 per cent. The relative for each year is the per cent which the average for that year is of the average for 1915. For example, the relative full-time weekly earnings of pit cranemen in 1910 were 86, as compared with 100 in 1915; that is, the full-time weekly earnings in 1910 were 86 per cent of the full-time weekly earnings in this occupation in 1915. The method of computing relative numbers is explained on pages 65 to 67.

Table 26 also shows for each occupation the per cent of increase or decrease in full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings in 1915, as compared with each specified year preceding. Thus the full-time weekly earnings of pit cranemen in 1915 were 16 per cent higher than in 1910, 18 per cent higher than in 1911, 11 per cent higher than in 1912, 5 per cent lower than in 1913, and 5 per cent higher than in 1914.

In other columns of the table is shown the per cent of change in each year as compared with the year immediately preceding. Thus the full-time weekly earnings of pit cranemen in 1911 were 1 per cent lower than in 1910, 6 per cent higher in 1912 than in 1911, 17 per cent higher in 1913 than in 1912, 10 per cent lower in 1914 than in 1913, and 5 per cent higher in 1915 than in 1914. The other occupations and items of the table can be studied in like manner. The percentages of increase and decrease are computed from the relative numbers.

1 No change.

The relative full-time weekly earnings of all occupations combined in 1910 were 89 as compared with 100 in 1915. In other words, the full-time weekly earnings in 1910 were 89 per cent of such earnings in 1915. The relative increased to 90 in 1911, to 95 in 1912, to 105 in 1913, and decreased to 100 in 1914, and was unchanged in 1915, the base year. These relative numbers for all years previous to 1914 are based on the principal productive occupations only, but those for 1914 and 1915 include the unclassified groups tabulated for 1914 and 1915 for the first time.

The next column shows that full-time weekly earnings in 1915 were 12 per cent higher than in 1910, 11 per cent higher than in 1911, 5 per cent higher than in 1912, 5 per cent lower than in 1913, and the same as in 1914.

The third column under "Weekly earnings" shows the per cent of increase or decrease in full-time weekly earnings each year as compared with the year immediately preceding. Thus the full-time weekly earnings in 1911 were 1 per cent higher than in 1910, in 1912 6 per cent higher than in 1911, in 1913 11 per cent higher than in 1912, in 1914 5 per cent lower than in 1913, and in 1915 there was no change as compared with 1914. The relative numbers and percentages for full-time hours per week and rates of wages per hour can be read in like manner.

FULL-TIME WORKING DAYS PER WEEK.

The number and per cent of employees in the principal productive occupations in blooming-mill plants whose customary working time per week was 5 days or turns, or 6 days, or 7 days, or variations thereof, are shown in Table 27. The heading "5 days and 6 days alternately" indicates that the plants were running 6 days and 5 nights each week, being shut down for one day and a half each week, and that the employees reported under this heading worked 6 days one week and 5 nights the next. The heading "6 days and 7 days alternately" indicates that the plants were not in operation half a day in each week, the employees reported working 6 turns one week and 7 turns the next week.

The figures are presented for each district and for the four districts combined.

Two sets of figures are given for the plants reporting for 1914 and 1915, the first covering only the principal productive occupations as shown for all preceding groups of years, and, therefore, strictly comparable with them, and the second including also the unclassified occupations (see pp. 55 and 56) tabulated for 1914 and 1915 for the first time.

For descriptions of occupations which appear in the tables of this chapter and of others included in the two unclassified groups see the Glossary of Occupations on pages 489 to 493.

Two general tables are presented for the blooming-mill department, as follows:

Table I.—Full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings, in the United States, by years 1910 to 1915.

Table J.—Full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings in each district, by years, 1913 to 1915.

The data from Table I are summarized in Table 25.

The order in which the occupations are given in Tables I and J, and in the table of relative numbers, follows that of the processes of manufacture. "Identical plants," as used in the tables of this report, are identical units of identical establishments, reporting the same occupations in each of two or more consecutive years. For a more extended explanation see page 58.

Figures for each geographical division for each preceding year, back to 1910, corresponding to those given for 1913, 1914, and 1915 in Table J, were given in Bulletins No. 151 and No. 168.

PLATE MILLS.<sup>1</sup>

SUMMARY.

The average rate of wages or earnings per hour in 1915 in the plate-mill department was from 1 to 18 per cent higher than in any one of the five years preceding, and as the average full-time hours per week were practically stationary during the period, the full-time weekly earnings followed the course of hourly earnings. These facts are shown in the table of relative numbers for "All occupations," Table 29.

The most significant facts appearing in this chapter concerning wages and hours of labor of plate-mill employees for the years 1910 to 1915 are summarized by means of averages and percentages in Table 28. The information for 1915 represents the 2,245 employees of 20 plate mills in 13 plants. These 20 mills are capable of producing 37 per cent of the total tonnage of all plate mills in the United States. Fifteen of these mills, which range in size from 72 to 152 inches, are sheared-plate mills, where the edges are not rolled and must be sheared off, while the remaining 5 are 48-inch universal mills where the edges are rolled, hence only the ends need be cut. Of the 2,245 employees 1,172 are in the 16 principal productive occupations reported for the years 1910 to 1913 and the remaining 1,073 are in the unclassified productive and nonproductive groups reported for the years 1914 and 1915 only.

In this summary table occupations are grouped according to the wages paid, beginning with the lowest-paid group, and the occupations in each group are presented in alphabetical order. Classified full-time hours per week and rates of wages per hour are shown by percentages which were computed from the actual figures given in Table K.

<sup>1</sup> Summary figures relating to this department are given with figures for other departments of the iron and steel industry on pages 7 to 26; an account of the volume of employment in this and other departments from July, 1913, to June, 1915, is given on pages 26 to 55; and an explanation of the scope of the investigation and of the methods employed is given on pages 55 to 59.

Referring to the first occupation shown in Table 28, laborers, direct, comparison can be made of data for 11 identical plants for 1910 to 1912, inclusive, for a second group of 11 plants for 1912 and 1913, for 10 plants in 1913 and 1914, and for 12 plants in 1914 and 1915.

The first line of the table is read as follows: In 1910 the 11 plate mills for which reports were obtained employed 355 laborers whose average full-time hours of work were 66.8 per week. For 25 per cent of the 355 laborers the full-time hours per week were 60 and under; for 58 per cent, over 60 and under 72; for 10 per cent, 72; for 1 per cent, over 72 and under 84; and for 7 per cent the working hours were 84 per week. The average rate of wages or earnings per hour of laborers in the year considered (1910) was 15.9 cents. Of the total number, 18 per cent received 12 and under 14 cents per hour; 10 per cent, 14 and under 16 cents; 71 per cent, 16 and under 18 cents; and 1 per cent, 18 and under 20 cents per hour. The average full-time weekly earnings were $10.68. The other lines of the table may be read in the same manner.

The lowest full-time weekly earnings in this department in 1915 were those of laborers, which were $11.66, and the highest those of rollers in sheared-plate mills, which were $49.89.

INDEX NUMBERS.

To aid in making a comparison of the actual data for the four years, which will give an accurate measure of the changes throughout the period, relative or index numbers have been computed from the averages given in Table 28 for full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings, for each occupation from 1910 to 1915, inclusive. Such figures appear in Table 29. These relative or index numbers are simply percentages for which the data for 1915 are taken as the base, or 100 per cent. The relative for each year is the per cent which the average for that year is of the average for 1915. For example, the relative full-time weekly earnings of charging-crane and charging-machine operators in 1910 were 94 as compared with 100 in 1915, that is, full-time weekly earnings of charging-crane and charging-machine operators in 1910 were 94 per cent of the full-time weekly earnings in this occupation in 1915. The method of computing relative numbers is explained on pages 65 to 67. Table 29 also shows for each occupation the per cent of increase or decrease in full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings in 1915, as compared with each specified year preceding. Thus, the full-time weekly earnings of charging-crane and charging-machine operators in 1915 were 6 per cent higher than in either 1910 or 1912, 18 per cent higher than in 1911, 4 per cent lower than in 1913, and 8 per cent higher than in 1914.

In other columns of the table is shown the per cent of change in each year as compared with the year immediately preceding. Thus, the full-time weekly earnings of charging-crane and charging-machine operators in 1911 were 10 per cent lower than in 1910; in 1912 11 per cent higher than in 1911, in 1913 11 per cent higher than in 1912; in 1914 11 per cent lower than in 1913, and in 1915 8 per cent higher than in 1914. The other occupations and items of the table can be studied in like manner. The percentages of increase and decrease are computed from the relative numbers.

The relative full-time weekly earnings for the department as a whole ("All occupations") in 1910 was 88 per cent of such earnings in 1915 and in 1913, when the relative was 100. The relative was 85 in 1911, 91 in 1912, and 95 in 1914. These relative numbers for all years previous to 1914 are based on the principal productive occupations only, while those for 1914 and 1915 include the unclassified groups (see pp. 55 and 56) tabulated for 1914 and 1915 for the first time.

FULL-TIME WORKING DAYS PER WEEK.

The number and per cent of employees in the principal productive occupations in plate-mill plants whose customary working time per week was 5 days or turns, or 6 days, or 7 days, or variations thereof, are shown in Table 30.

The heading "5 days and 6 days alternately" indicates that the plants were running 6 days and 5 nights each week, being shut down for 1½ days each week, and that the employees reported under this heading worked 6 days one week and 5 nights the next. The heading "6 days and 7 days alternately" indicates that the plants were not in operation half a day in each week, the employees reported working 6 turns one week and 7 the next week. The figures are presented for each of the three districts for which reports from plate mills were obtained and for the three districts combined.

Two sets of figures are shown for the plants reported for 1914 and 1915, the first covering only the principal productive occupations as shown for all the preceding groups, and therefore strictly comparable with them, and the second including the unclassified occupations (see pp. 55 to 56) tabulated for 1914 and 1915 for the first time.

Two general tables are presented for this department, as follows:

Table K.—Full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings, in the United States, by years, 1910 to 1915.

Table L.—Full-time hours per week, rates of wages per hour, and full-time weekly earnings, in each district, by years, 1913 to 1915.

The data from Table K are summarized in Table 28, percentages being used instead of the actual figures for classified hours and rates of wages.

The order in which the occupations are given in Tables K and L and the table of relative numbers follows that of the processes of manufacture. "Identical plants," as used in the tables of this report, are identical units of identical establishments reporting the same occupations in each of two or more consecutive years. For a more extended explanation see page 58.

Figures for each geographical division for each preceding year, back to 1910, corresponding to those given in Table L for 1913, 1914, and 1915, were given in Bulletins 151 and 168 of this bureau.

Descriptions of the specified occupations which appear in the tables of this chapter and of other occupations of the plate-mill department included in the two groups designated as "Unclassified—productive," and "Unclassified—nonproductive," are to be found in the Glossary of Occupations, pages 494 to 497.
