Letter of Transmittal

UNITED STATES DEPARTMENT OF LABOR,
BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS,
Washington, D. C., June 1, 1941.

THE SECRETARY OF LABOR:

I have the honor to transmit herewith a directory of labor offices in the United States and in Canada.

A. F. HINRICHS, Acting Commissioner.

HON. FRANCES PERKINS,
Secretary of Labor.

Changes in State Offices Since May 15, 1941

The list of State offices and officials shown in this bulletin was prepared as of May 15, 1941. Since that time the Bureau has received information regarding certain changes in a few of the State labor offices as a result of laws passed by the 1941 sessions of the State legislatures. Many of these changes are in the name of the office. In Arizona, Colorado, Iowa, New Mexico, Oklahoma, and Washington the name of the department (or commission) of unemployment compensation and employment service was changed to department (or commission) of employment security (social security in Washington). In Nevada a new department of employment security was created, the unemployment compensation division and employment service no longer being under the department of labor. In Indiana the name of the department of commerce and industry was changed to department of public works and commerce.

A board of appeals was added to the department of industrial relations of Alabama and a board of coal-mine inspectors was created. In Maryland the administration of the State accident fund was placed in a newly created board of five commissioners, and the bureau of mines was removed from the department of labor to a newly created department of mines and water resources. The membership of the unemployment compensation commission of North Carolina was increased to seven. In California the division of immigration and housing was removed from the department of industrial relations.

Bulletin No. 681 of the

United States Bureau of Labor Statistics

Labor Offices in the United States and in Canada

Introduction

The rapid expansion of labor legislation in recent years has enhanced the importance of Federal and State labor agencies and widened the scope of their activities. Moreover, the concept of "labor" has become increasingly broader, and as a result the designation of "labor" offices has become increasingly difficult. Although the Federal Security Agency, for example, has functions of a labor character, it has others pertaining to education, health, and assistance to the needy aged, dependent children, and the needy blind. Again, the Federal Prisons Industries, Inc., is mainly concerned with the problem of prison industries, but this includes the essential problem of prison labor.

The present list includes Federal offices and agencies which deal with labor problems, even though that may not be their major activity, and such State agencies as departments and bureaus of labor, employment offices, unemployment and accident compensation commissions, minimum-wage boards, factory-inspection services, and arbitration and conciliation boards. Data for the principal Canadian offices are also included.

The material regarding each agency was submitted to the appropriate authority prior to publication, and in practically all cases satisfactory replies were received. The Bureau, however, will be very glad to be informed of any errors, and also of any changes or additions, for incorporation in later editions of this bulletin.
