NOTICE

In view of the demand for lists of consumers' cooperatives, the Bureau of Labor Statistics decided to reissue its former Bulletin No. 750 (the supply of which had been exhausted), adding thereto a supplementary list of such associations as have come to its attention (see Addendum, p. 95). It should be pointed out that, although some of the associations in the former report have since gone out of existence, probably 90 percent of them are still (1947) in business. In some cases in which a significant change of address has occurred, such associations are given in the supplemental list, with their new address. The Addendum also includes the names of a certain number of new associations formed by the consolidation of two or more existing cooperatives that had been included in Bulletin No. 750.

In all cases the names and addresses given in the Addendum take precedence over those in the old directory.

U. S. DEPARTMENT OF LABOR
BUREAU OF LABOR STATISTICS
WASHINGTON

DIRECTORY OF CONSUMERS' COOPERATIVES

In the following pages are given the names and addresses of the various types of consumers' cooperative associations in the United States, together with a designation of the kind of business done or activities carried on, where known. The list is not claimed to be exhaustive, as there are doubtless some associations of whose existence the Bureau has not learned.

The Bureau will appreciate being informed of active associations not given here.

COVERAGE OF DIRECTORY

The coverage of this directory can perhaps best be explained by noting, first, what it does not cover. Not included herein are (1) workers' productive associations, (2) self-help associations, unless they are also operating a store or commissary or otherwise performing a consumer as well as producer function, (3) farmers' marketing or processing associations unless providing consumer goods or services, and farmers' purchasing associations unless handling some consumer goods, (4) cooperative communities (but any consumers' cooperatives therein are covered). Certain types of consumers' cooperatives are also excluded, primarily for reasons of space; these are the electricity associations (unless providing some consumer goods or service in addition to electricity), credit unions, telephone associations, and associations underwriting insurance risks.

All other kinds of associations handling some consumer goods or providing some consumer services are included: Retail distributive organizations (stores, service stations, buying clubs, bakeries, consumers' creameries, etc.), various types of local service associations (housing, medical-care, burial, rooming-and-eating, cold-storage, water, printing, recreation associations, etc.), and both commercial and noncommercial federations.

In the case of associations having one or more branches, only the headquarters address is given. Subsidiary organizations all of whose capital stock is owned by one parent association are not included.

KEY TO BUSINESS ACTIVITIES

The kinds of activities carried on by individual associations, as far as known by the Bureau, are designated by the symbols listed below. The letters "E," "F," and "W," indicate that the association is a central or federated organization whose members are local cooperatives. In case of associations not bearing any of these letters it is understood that they are local organizations whose members are individual persons. The services noted are furnished to members through facilities owned by the cooperative, except as follows: The letter "A" indicates buying arrangements with private dealers by which members obtain discounts on commodities purchased by them from such dealers; "BC" indicates an informal group which pools the orders of the members, but maintains no regular business premises; "jc" indicates medical services provided under prepayment or contract plans with private physicians or groups of physicians; "fc" indicates funeral service on contract with one or more private morticians (not regular employees of the cooperative); and "i" indicates an insurance agency, which does not itself underwrite insurance risks.

Underscoring of a symbol indicates that that commodity is manufactured, processed or produced by the association, as well as distributed by it. Thus an association designated as "1-2-3-7" carries in its store not only groceries, meats, and clothing, but also bakery goods made in its own bakery.

ADDENDUM.—Supplemental List of Cooperatives Formed Between January 1943 and June 1947¹

[NOTE.—The following pages contain the names of such new cooperatives as have come to the attention of the Bureau. During the past few years the Bureau has been unable to circularize the associations, as it formerly did, to check their exact names and obtain lists of commodities and services provided. The present list is therefore based very largely on secondary sources. We shall appreciate being informed of any errors or of any additional new consumers' cooperatives not here listed.]
