Directory of Consumers' Cooperatives

Introduction

In the following pages are given the names and addresses of the various types of consumers' cooperative associations in the United States, together with a designation of the kind of business done or activities carried on, where known. The list is not claimed to be all-inclusive, as there are undoubtedly associations of whose existence the Bureau is not aware.

The Bureau will appreciate being informed of any active associations not here given.

Coverage of Directory

The coverage of this directory can best be explained by noting, first, what it does not cover. Not included are (1) workers' productive associations, (2) self-help associations, unless they are also operating a store or commissary or otherwise performing a consumer as well as producer function, (3) farmers' marketing, processing, and/or purchasing associations, unless providing consumer goods or services for their members, (4) cooperative communities (but any consumers' cooperatives therein are covered). Certain types of consumers' cooperatives are also excluded, for reasons of space or because information is available from other Government sources; these are the electricity associations (unless providing some consumer goods or services in addition to electricity), credit unions, telephone associations, and associations underwriting insurance risks (unless they also provide some other consumer service).

All other kinds of associations handling consumer goods or providing some consumer services are included: Retail distributive organizations (stores, service stations, buying clubs, bakeries, lumber yards, fuel yards, consumers' creameries, etc.), various types of local service associations (such as housing, medical-care, boarding-house, restaurant, cold-storage, burial, water-supply, printing, recreation, etc.), and both commercial and noncommercial federations.

In case of associations having one or more branches, only the headquarters address is given. Subsidiary organizations, all of whose capital stock is owned by one parent association, are not included.

Key to Business Activities

The kinds of activities carried on by individual associations, as far as known by this Bureau, are designated by the symbols listed below. The letters "E," "F," "S," and "W," indicate that the association is a central, or federated organization whose members are local cooperatives. Associations not bearing any of these letters are local organizations whose members are individual persons. The services noted are in all cases furnished to members through facilities owned and operated by the cooperative, except as follows: The letter "A" indicates buying arrangements with private dealers by which members obtain discounts on commodities purchased by them from such dealers; "BC" indicates an informal group which pools the orders of the members, but maintains no regular full-time business premises; "jc" indicates medical services provided through the agency of a cooperative, which contracts, under a prepayment plan, with private physicians or groups of physicians; "fc" indicates funeral service, under contract arrangement with one or more private morticians (not regular employees of the cooperative); and "i" indicates an insurance agency which does not itself write insurance risks.

“M” at the beginning of the code for any association indicates that the main business of the association is marketing the products of the members; “M” at the end of the code indicates that the marketing activities are of secondary (or even less) importance to other lines of business.

Underscoring of a symbol indicates that that commodity is manufactured, processed, or produced by the association, as well as distributed by it. Thus, an association designated as “1-2-3-7” carries in its store not only groceries, meats, and clothing, but also bakery goods made in its own bakery.
