Bulletin 2058

Preface

To fulfill legislative requirements, the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) publishes monthly estimates of the labor force, employment, and unemployment for over 6,000 areas. BLS prescribes the methods by which each State employment security agency prepares these estimates for areas within its jurisdiction. Because data of uniform quality are not available for all jurisdictions, estimating methods vary. This bulletin outlines the basic methods for obtaining estimates and provides a table showing the general method of estimation for each county and city.

This bulletin was prepared in the Office of Employment

Structure and Trends, Division of Local Area Unemployment Statistics, by Richard Rosen, under the supervision of Sylvia Small. George Abrahams and Karen Hasmer performed the programming for table I. Martin Ziegler, Division Chief, provided overall direction and guidance.

Material in this publication is in the public domain and may be reproduced without the permission of the Federal Government. Please credit the Bureau of Labor Statistics and cite Estimating State and Local Area Unemployment: A Guide for Data Users, Bulletin 2058.

Section I. Introduction

Each month the Bureau of Labor Statistics (BLS) publishes estimates of the labor force, employment, and unemployment for the 50 States, about 200 large labor market areas (LMA's), several hundred smaller LMA's, 3,000 counties, and over 1,000 cities with 25,000 or more inhabitants.¹ Under a Federal-State cooperative program, BLS defines the concepts, methods, and technical procedures, and State employment security agencies produce the estimates.

The estimates for States and large areas are suitable for economic analysis. For most of the less populous areas, however, the data are produced only because they are required under Federal legislation as part of the basis for allocation of Federal funds.²

Table I identifies the methods used to obtain monthly estimates for each county and city. The table also indicates the time period for which each method was used, so that users may be aware that many estimates do not constitute consistent series. The following paragraphs briefly summarize the different methods; the appendixes provide additional detail.

Official estimates for the LMA's of each State are produced independently by a building block method which uses a survey of payroll employment and administrative data from the unemployment insurance (UI) system of the State to estimate employment and unemployment—referred to as the UI-based estimating method. (See appendix A.)

Estimates of employment and unemployment in the LMA's, when added together, must equal the estimates for the State as a whole. For the 10 largest States,³ statewide estimates are obtained directly from the Current Population Survey (CPS)—a monthly survey of households conducted nationwide. For the remaining States, statewide estimates are derived by the UI-based estimating method adjusted to the CPS using a 6-month moving average.

For LMA's which encompass more than one county, the next step in the estimating process is to split off the component counties from the LMA. For most of these LMA's, the "claims/population disaggregation method" is used. This method allocates employment to subareas based on the most recent population data published by the Bureau of the Census. It allocates unemployment to subareas based on (1) the distribution of UI recipients among component areas, and (2) the distribution of the population by age among areas in the most recent decennial census. In a few States where current UI claims data by county of residence are not available, employment and unemployment relationships from the decennial census are used—referred to as the "census share procedure."

After county estimates are obtained, estimates for component cities are developed. In 10 states,⁴ the allocation for many cities is based on the claims/population disaggregation method. However, in the rest of the States the allocation for all cities within the State is based on the census share procedure.

The estimates obtained by the methods outlined above and described in more detail in the appendixes are the official BLS estimates produced to fulfill the requirements of the Public Works and Economic Development Act of 1965 as amended and the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act of 1973 as amended (CETA).

However, under the 1978 Amendments to CETA, BLS is also required to provide an additional estimate for each of the 30 large metropolitan areas for which BLS had, before 1978, made independent estimates based upon the CPS annual average for the area—and for all subareas within these metropolitan areas.⁵ Affected areas are footnoted in table I. The estimating method, except for the use of the CPS estimate in the production of the LMA annual average, is exactly the same. These alternative estimates, which are required for certain fund allocation programs, supplement the official estimates developed as part of the Federal-State cooperative program.

All estimates are published each month through the National Technical Information Service of the U.S. Department of Commerce in State, County, and Selected City Employment and Unemployment, and CETA Area Employment and Unemployment. The supplementary estimates for CETA are included as an appendix in the CETA volume.

⁴Alabama, Connecticut, Delaware, Kentucky, Maine, Maryland, Minnesota, Mississippi, New Hampshire, and Pennsylvania.

⁵The supplemental estimates are used to administer certain "harmless" funding provisions pertaining to CETA areas located within the 30 largest metropolitan areas for which separate annual average employment and unemployment levels had been used prior to 1978.

¹Estimates for States and large metropolitan areas are published monthly in a news release and in table E-1 of Employment and Earnings. Estimates for all 6,000 areas are published monthly through the National Technical Information Service of the U.S. Department of Commerce.

Section II. Counties and Cities Listed by Estimating Method

Estimating methods for each county and city listed in table 1 are those used to develop the employment and unemployment estimates for the period shown. Five categories are identified in the column headings. A date in any column indicates that the procedure was in effect for the specified time period. The table reflects procedures in effect for the 1975-79 period.

The procedures used in 1979 will remain in effect during 1980, except as noted in Table 1. The first column indicates whether the UI-based estimating method is used to obtain employment and unemployment estimates. The next two columns indicate whether the estimates are based on claims/population disaggregation. Counties in multicounty LMA's are identified using the second column. Cities for which claims/population disaggregation is used are indicated in the third column. The last two columns indicate whether the estimate is based on census shares from an LMA (fourth column) or county within a multicounty LMA (fifth column).

All cities for which estimates are developed by the census share procedure are placed in the last column (census share from county). By referring to the county in which the city is located, users can determine whether the county estimate was developed through census share, claims/population disaggregation, or UI-based estimation.

States are arranged alphabetically, as are counties within each State. Cities are then listed within the county of which they are a part. In the few instances where a city crosses county borders (e.g., Oklahoma City, Oklahoma), it is listed in the county where the majority of the population is located. Census divisions in Alaska are listed as counties.

Some States have "independent" cities which are not part of any county (e.g., Philadelphia City, Baltimore City, and many cities in Virginia). These are listed alphabetically after the counties. Data for counties in the five states within the New England Region are actually sums of city estimates, which have been developed using either the census-share or claims/population disaggregation method. The table shows these county data as having been estimated by the same method used to produce the city estimates.

A detailed description of the estimating methods may be found in Manual for Developing Local Area Unemployment Statistics (Bureau of Labor Statistics, 1979), available upon request from the Assistant Commissioner, Office of Employment Structure and Trends, Bureau of Labor Statistics, Washington, D.C. 20212.

² Monthly estimates for this State or area are based directly on the Current Population Survey.

³ Supplemental estimates are prepared for the county and all cities within the county for the administration of the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act (except in Massachusetts, where supplemental city estimates are prepared only for cities identified by footnote 3.) See p. 1 for additional explanation.

⁴ Counties within multi-county LMA's in the State will utilize the claims/population disaggregation procedure beginning with 1980 estimates.

Appendix A. Developing Labor Force, Employment, and Unemployment Estimates for States and Labor Market Areas

Federal-State cooperative program

Labor force, employment, and unemployment estimates for States, labor market areas (LMA's), and other areas covered under Federal assistance programs are developed by State employment security agencies under a Federal-State cooperative program. The local unemployment estimates which are derived from standardized procedures developed by BLS are the basis for determining eligibility of an area for benefits under Federal programs such as the Comprehensive Employment and Training Act, and the Public Works and Economic Development Act.

A detailed description of the estimating methods may be found in Manual for Developing Local Area Unemployment Statistics (Bureau of Labor Statistics, 1979), available upon request.

Estimating methods

Monthly labor force, employment, and unemployment estimates for 10 large States (New York, California, Illinois, Ohio, New Jersey, Pennsylvania, Michigan, Texas, Massachusetts, and Florida) and two areas (Los Angeles-Long Beach metropolitan area and New York City) are sufficiently reliable to be used directly from the Current Population Survey (CPS). For CPS concepts, see "Explanatory Notes, Household Data," in Employment and Earnings.

Monthly employment and unemployment estimates in the remaining 40 States, the District of Columbia, and labor market areas are prepared in several stages:

1. Preliminary estimate—employment. The total employment estimate is based primarily on data from the survey of establishments which produces an estimate of payroll employment. This place-of-work estimate must be adjusted to refer to place of residence as used in the CPS. Factors for adjusting from place of work to place of residence have been developed for the major categories of employment by class of worker and industry on the basis of employment relationships which existed at the time of the 1970 Decennial Census. These factors are applied to the payroll employment estimates for the current period to obtain adjusted employment estimates.

2. Preliminary estimate—unemployment. In the current month, the estimate of unemployment is an aggregate of the estimates for each of three building block categories: (1) Persons who were previously employed in industries covered by State unemployment insurance (UI) laws; (2) those previously employed in industries not covered by these laws; and (3) those who were either entering the labor force for the first time or reentering after a period of separation. This is referred to below, as the UI-based estimate.

An estimate for those previously employed in covered industries is derived from a count of current UI claimants, plus estimates of claimants whose benefits have been exhausted, those persons disqualified from receiving benefits for nonmonetary reasons (because they quit, were discharged for cause, etc., but would otherwise have been eligible), and persons who either filed claims late, or did not file.

The estimate of those previously employed in industries not covered by UI is derived by applying to the employment estimate for each noncovered industry or class of worker subgroup in the State, the ratio of covered unemployment to covered employment, weighted by factors reflecting national historical relationships.

For the third category, new entrants and reentrants into the labor force, a composite estimate is developed from equations that relate the total entrants into the labor force to the experienced unemployed and the experienced labor force. For each month, the estimate of entrants into the labor force is a function of: (a) the month of the year; (b) the level of the experienced unemployed; (c) the level of the experienced labor force; and (d) proportion of the working age population that is considered "youth." The composite estimate of total entrants is defined as:

$$U = A(X + E) + BX, \text{ Where}$$

U = total entrant unemployment

E = total employment

X = total experienced unemployment

A, B = synthetic factors incorporating seasonal variation and an assumed relationship between the proportion of youths in the working population and the historical relationship of entrants to the experienced unemployed (B factor) or the experienced labor force (A factor).

3. Correction factors. Correction factors for employment and unemployment are then applied at the State level to the UI-based estimates obtained above for each of the 40 States and the District of Columbia. These correction factors are based on the ratio of the CPS to the UI-based estimates for the 6-month period ending in the current month (e.g., a 6-month moving average).

4. Substate adjustment for additivity. Independent estimates of employment and unemployment are prepared both for the State (obtained directly from the CPS in the 10 large States or by the UI-based method in the remaining States), and labor market areas (LMA's) within the State. The total labor force included in the LMA's exhausts the geographic boundaries of the State. A proportional adjustment is applied to all substate LMA estimates to ensure that the substate estimates of employment and unemployment add to the independent State totals. In California and New York, which also have substate areas taken directly from the CPS, the additivity adjustment for the remaining areas is applied to the State total minus the direct CPS area.

5. Benchmark correction procedures. Once each year monthly estimates prepared by State employment security agencies using UI-based estimating procedures are adjusted, or benchmarked, by BLS to the annual average CPS estimates for the 40 States for which monthly CPS estimates are not available. This adjustment is necessary because the State-prepared estimates are not as reliable as the CPS annual averages due to differences in State UI laws, the structural limitations of the UI-based estimating method, and errors in the UI data.

The benchmarked estimates are produced in three stages. First, the monthly UI-based estimates are adjusted by the ratio of the CPS to the UI-based annual averages. Second, the difference between the ratio of annual averages for two consecutive years is wedged into the monthly estimates in order to minimize the disturbance to the original series. Finally, the second-stage estimates are forced into agreement with CPS annual averages. In the 10 States which use CPS estimates monthly, no benchmark correction is required, as the average of the 12 monthly State CPS estimates will equal the CPS annual averages.

Appendix B. Developing Estimates for Counties and Cities Within Labor Market Areas

Once estimates for States and labor market areas (LMA's) have been developed, estimates are made for counties and cities within LMA's. Two methods may be used.

1. Claims/population disaggregation—used for most counties located in multicounty LMA's;
2. The census share procedure—used for most cities.

Both procedures allocate a portion of the overall employment and unemployment within the LMA to each local area. A detailed description of the estimating methods may be found in Manual for Developing Local Area Unemployment Statistics (Bureau of Labor Statistics, 1979), available upon request.

Claims/population disaggregation

Employment. Under the claims/population disaggregation method, employment within the LMA is distributed based on the most recent annual population data published by the Bureau of the Census for each county and city. As a result, employment estimates for the county reflect changes in total employment in the LMA and changes in the relative distribution of the population within the counties which make up the LMA.

Table B-1 illustrates how employment estimates for subareas are developed from recent population data. It shows the population data for a hypothetical LMA and its two component counties for 1975 and 1976 (columns 1 and 2). The figures in parentheses are the proportion each area was of the LMA during the base period. The 1975 proportions are used to distribute 1977 employment among the counties; the 1976 proportions are used to distribute 1978 employment.

Unemployment. Separate procedures are used to distribute the three main categories of unemployment to subareas within an LMA. For the first category—the experienced unemployed—the percent of the total of UI recipients in the LMA who reside in the subarea is used. For the second category—entrant unemployment related to the size of the labor force—the proportion of youth in the population of the subarea within the LMA during the most recent decennial census is used. For the third category—entrant unemployment related to the number of experienced unemployed—the distribution of the adult population within the LMA during the most recent census is used.

Table B-2 illustrates these procedures for a hypothetical LMA consisting of two counties. Columns 1, 2, and 3 provide the necessary UI-claims and population data. The UI-claims data are for the current month and population estimates are from the most recent decennial census. The figures in parentheses are the proportion each area was of the total LMA during the base period. These proportions are applied to the appropriate unemployment component to obtain the number of unemployed shown in columns 4, 5, and 6. The three categories of unemployment for each subarea are combined to obtain the total unemployment estimate (column 7).

The Census share procedure

The census share procedure allocates current employment and unemployment from the LMA or county to the local jurisdiction in the same proportion as in the 1970 Census. For example, if, within a two-county LMA, one county had 55 percent of total LMA employment and 40 percent of unemployment at the time of the 1970 Census, these "shares" are applied to the current LMA totals for employment and unemployment to derive current estimates for the county.

Thus, in the hypothetical LMA in table B-3, the current estimate of employment in City B1 (28,750 in column 3) was obtained by applying the 1970 census proportion (.250 from column (1)) to the current LMA employment level (115,000 from column (3)). Unemployment for city B1 for the current period (3,200 in column (4)) is similarly derived by applying the 1970 census proportion (.400 from column 2) to the current LMA unemployment level (8,000 in column 4).

Subjects include:

The labor force—expected changes in size and composition as a result of the continuing impact of the post-World War II baby boom, the increased participation of women, and the drop in the birth rate during the 1960's.

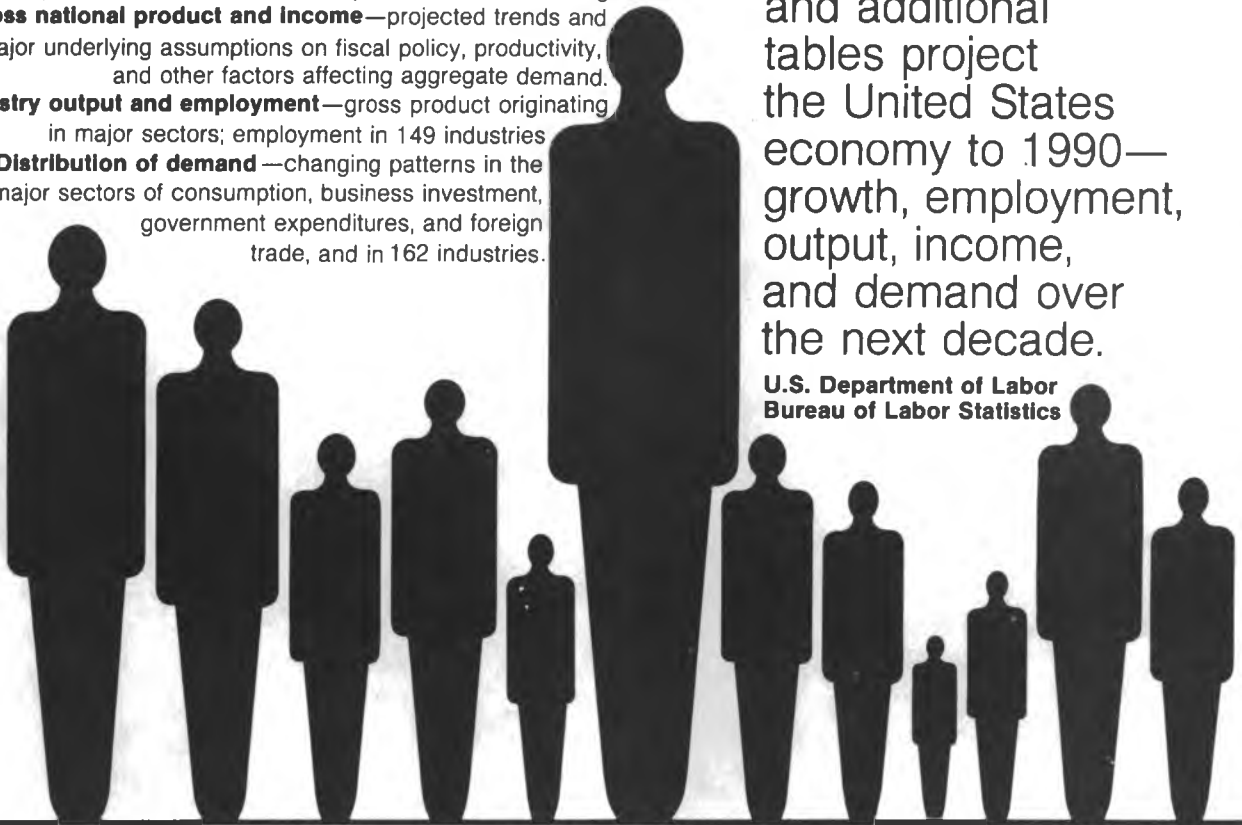

Gross national product and income—projected trends and major underlying assumptions on fiscal policy, productivity, and other factors affecting aggregate demand.

Industry output and employment—gross product originating in major sectors; employment in 149 industries

Distribution of demand—changing patterns in the major sectors of consumption, business investment, government expenditures, and foreign trade, and in 162 industries.

Four articles from the Monthly Labor Review and additional tables project the United States economy to 1990—growth, employment, output, income, and demand over the next decade.
