REVIEW OF NOVEMBER.

Gold exports and the state of the Treasury gold reserve again became the dominant feature of the situation during November. Shipments of cotton continued restricted, the supply of commercial bills generally was small, and at the same time Europe appears to have sold some amounts of American securities in this market. Under our present currency system the natural result of these conditions was a resumption of the outflow of gold. As it happens, too, the efflux reached quite heavy proportions. The gold to meet this demand of course was obtained at the Sub-Treasury, and as a consequence the gold balance in the United States Treasury was reduced from $92,943,180, on the 1st, to $79,333,966, on the 30th. In the stock market the effect of the large gold exports was to induce considerable selling and a sharp decline in prices. In trade circles the effect was to produce a quiet feeling, the disposition being to wait and see what recommendations the President would make in his annual message and what the attitude of the new Congress was likely to be. This quiet feeling was also promoted by the fact that in a number of industries prices had reacted from the extreme figures reached during the period of special buoyancy in the summer.

The political and financial situation in Europe served to make the weak points in our currency system particularly manifest. The political troubles hinged chiefly on the state of affairs in the Turkish Empire, owing to the continued massacres of Armenians and the tardiness or inability of the Sultan to carry out the schemes of reform proposed by the great Powers. After the address of Lord Salisbury at the Mansion House, London, on Saturday evening, November 9, announcing that the Powers were acting unitedly in the interest of peace, and that there was perfect accord between them, the tension in this respect was relieved. Later some uneasiness was caused by the Sultan's course regarding the request of the Powers for permission to send additional guard ships into the Bosphorus, he showing great reluctance in the first place to grant the request and equal reluctance to issue firmans for the passage of the ships after the necessary permission had been formally given. The disturbances in the European financial situation, while of course intimately connected with the political troubles, had their origin chiefly in the liquidation and great decline in South African mining shares. This affected not only London and Paris, where some of the large operators and also some of the great banking houses came to the rescue of embarrassed holders, to avert widespread disaster, but caused panicky conditions at the leading monetary centres on the Continent—at Berlin, Vienna, Buda-Pesth and even St. Petersburg.

The monthly settlement at the Paris Bourse early in the month, which had been looked forward to with considerable apprehension, passed off better than expected—that is, comparatively few failures or serious embarrassments were disclosed, though quite a number of weak speculators were unable to pay their differences. Nevertheless on the 9th a panic quite unexpectedly broke out on the German bourses, in which not only mining shares suffered but the staunchest and best securities—among them shares of some of the leading banks. This was the day on the evening of which Lord Salisbury delivered his address, and as the panic was in part occasioned by fears concerning the political outlook, this speech was very timely and exerted a widely beneficial effect. On Monday the 11th the Bank of Berlin advanced its discount rate to 4 per cent from 3 per cent, the figure which had ruled since February 1894. The most acute stage of the crisis had now passed, but things continued more or less unsettled all through the month. At Constantinople there was a run on the Ottoman Imperial Bank, and the Government offered the Bank a moratorium of 30 days, which however the Bank declined. The disturbed condition of things in the political and financial world was reflected at London both in the money rates and in the quotations for English consols. The price of consols had receded somewhat towards the close of October, and on the 31st of that month it was 107. But from that figure there was a quick decline, and on the 9th of November—that day of general panic and great fall in prices—the price touched 104½. Thereafter recovery ensued, followed by one or two further breaks; and on the 30th the price was 106½. In money the rate for 60 to 90 day bank bills in London advanced from 11-16 to 1½ per cent, the close being at 15-16.

The course of our foreign exchange market was closely watched, as it obviously furnished the key to the gold movements. There were few special features to the market aside from its strength. Cotton bills remained very scarce, some bankers reporting the supply the smallest for this season for years, and the demand for remittance continued urgent, except when temporarily supplied by gold exports. Posted rates for sterling were 4 88½ for sixty-day bills and 4 89½ for sight at the beginning of the month by all the leading bankers; on the 6th one of the bankers advanced the sight rate to 4 90, and within the next few days all the other bankers advanced to the same figure, making the rates again uniform at 4 88½ and 4 90 for long and short respectively and thereafter there was no change throughout the month. In actual business the rates for long sterling were 4 87½@4 88, both at the beginning and end of the month, with the price occasionally one-quarter of a cent lower at 4 87½@4 87¾; for short sterling the rates were 4 88¾@4 89 at the beginning and 4 89@4 89½ at the close of the month, with business in the interval at times at 4 89¼@4 89½; for cable transfers the figures were 4 89@4 89½ at the opening and 4 89¼@4 89½ at the close, with occasional spurts to 4 89½@4 89¾. In commercial bills the opening and closing price for prime was 4 87¼@4 87½, though business was done on some days one-quarter cent lower at 4 87@4 87¼; and the rates for documentary bills fluctuated irregularly between 4 86¾@4 87 at the beginning and 4 86¼@4 86½ at the close of the month.

Only a trifling amount of gold was exported to Europe during the first week of the month, but in the second week the shipments reached $3,250,000, in the third week $7,413,000, and in that week the exports began to take the form of bars, the Treasury Department having reduced the charge for bars from 1-10 of one per cent to 1-16 of one per cent; in the fourth week the exports amounted to about $3,000,000. On Saturday the 23d the Treasury Department issued instructions notifying the Sub-Treasury officials to accept hereafter light-weight coin at its actual weight, four cents to be deducted for each grain of underweight, instead of as heretofore stamping the coins light weight and compelling the holders to sell them to bullion brokers and pay the latter a commission. The Treasury Department at the same time also agreed to receive deposits of gold in exchange for paper currency and pay the express charges on the shipments both ways.

The elections were an important event during the month. They resulted generally in overwhelming majorities for the Republican Party, and were in this respect regarded as a triumph for sound money, since the past record of that party on the money question has on the whole been better than that of the other party. In special cases moreover where the silver issue was specifically presented for the consideration of the voters, the silver party sustained a distinct defeat. This was notably true in Kentucky, where the Democratic candidate for Governor, though running on a sound-money platform, espoused the cause of free silver and made the fight on that issue. He was defeated by a large majority, and the event was the more noteworthy as the State has heretofore always been found in the Democratic column.

The new Trunk Line agreement for the maintenance of rates and the establishment of joint agencies was finally adopted on the 19th of November. The contract goes into effect the 1st of January, and the term remains at five years as originally proposed. In other respects important changes have been introduced in the agreement, as more particularly set out in the CHRONICLE for November 23 and November 30.

In the stock market the weakness noted at the close of the previous month continued and there was a further decided fall in prices. London particularly was disturbed by the gold exports, and stocks having a market abroad frequently manifested special weakness, on sales however induced not alone by the gold exports but also by the critical political and financial situation in Europe referred to above. The market evinced considerable irregularity at times, with the granger roads displaying great rallying power on the very favorable reports of earnings made by such of these properties as run through the spring-wheat sections of the Northwest. The industrial shares were conspicuously depressed, each generally from conditions inherent in itself. In the case of American Tobacco common and United States Leather preferred the break was particularly marked, the former dropping from 91½ on the 14th to 78½ on the 26th, and the latter from 72¾ on the 4th to 61½ on the 29th, with a small recovery before the close. The volume of business on the Stock Exchange was of only moderate proportions, as will appear from the following.

BONDS AND STOCKS.

In the following twenty-seven pages of tables quotations are given for all securities listed on any Stock Exchange in the United States; also for all leading unlisted and inactive securities for which we have been able to obtain reliable prices.

Quotations from all Stock Exchanges are so near as possible for the last day of November. Of course the coupon, if there be one, maturing between the date of quotation and the date of this publication, is not deducted from the price.

Bond prices marked thus (*) are flat prices—that is, the purchaser does not pay accrued interest in addition. Stock prices marked thus (†) are per share. All others are per cent except bank stock prices.

It should be borne in mind in the use of these tables that the quotations for many inactive and unlisted securities are merely nominal, but in all cases the figures are obtained from sources which are considered reliable.

The following abbreviations are often used, viz.: "M." for mortgage; "g." for gold; "g'd." for guaranteed; "end." for endorsed; "cons." for consolidated; "conv." for convertible; "s. f." for sinking fund; "l. g." for land grant.
