REVIEW OF OCTOBER.

The financial markets during October reflected the great mental strain under which the whole community labored as the result of the near approach of the time when the momentous issue on which the Presidential election hinged was to be decided by popular vote. All the indications pointed to an overwhelming triumph for the cause of honesty and sound money, just as has actually happened. But of course there could not be positive certainty until the vote had actually been recorded, and pending that event more or less nervousness and anxiety was felt nearly everywhere.

The tension existing was indicated in various ways. It was reflected, for instance, in an active demand for currency, in the hoarding of gold, in steady withdrawals of the metal from the Treasury, and in the payment through nearly the whole month of a small premium for the metal—probably by individuals and institutions who did not care to incur the notoriety of taking gold from the Sub-Treasury, where of course it could be obtained without the payment of any premium. The tension was also reflected in a very disturbed state of the money market, this following of course inevitably from the other conditions mentioned. Rates for call loans on the Stock Exchange advanced to unusually high figures, notwithstanding the continued large imports of gold, while commercial paper became very difficult of sale. Towards the close of the month (on the 30th), when call loan rates the previous day had advanced to over 100 per cent, a syndicate of banks furnished relief by placing between nine and ten millions of money at the disposal of the Clearing-House Committee with which to meet the most pressing needs over the election, and thus prevent a recurrence of extreme stringency.

The influx of gold from abroad was on a large scale. The state of our foreign trade and rates for foreign exchange (except towards the close) favored the inflow, and the premium on gold furnished an additional inducement. The engagements were not only for New York, but some amounts were for Boston; and at San Francisco there were importations of gold from Australia. Altogether the arrivals at the various points during the month seem to have aggregated not less than thirty million dollars. Unlike the previous month scarcely any of the gold was turned into the Treasury, and indeed much of the gold had been sold at a premium before it arrived. The Treasury gold reserve, which stood at $124,034,672 at the beginning of the month, was reduced to $117,126,524 by the close. Most of the withdrawals were in comparatively small amounts, aggregating between $200,000 and $300,000 a day, though there was one withdrawal of $1,300,000.

It would be a mistake to assume that the demand for currency and gold and the stringency in the money market were entirely the result of a hoarding propensity or furnish a measure of its extent. The amount of gold withdrawn or imported for the actual purpose of hoarding, though reaching a very considerable aggregate, was no doubt smaller than generally supposed. Much of the demand for money arose out of a desire on the part of officers of banks and financial institutions to be prepared for any emergency. This was the motive that actuated interior banks in adding largely to their usual accumulations, and the same motive induced many of the savings banks to increase the cash in their vaults. At the same time our own banks, with their resources thus taxed in such an unusual degree, and with the event so near upon which the future of the market depended, were not in position to loan with their customary freedom.

The best evidence of the confidence felt in the favorable outcome of the election was furnished by the course of the stock market, which most of the month was strong and higher, and especially strong at the close. The high money rates caused sharp reactions several times during the month, but in each instance as soon as the pressure in that particular was in a measure relieved, the upward tendency again became manifest, and frequently the market advanced even with money rates high. On Friday the 30th it was reported on the Street that there were bids in the market to pay two per cent on the morning after election, above the prices at the close on the 31st, in the event of the election of McKinley. A favorable event bearing on the future of stocks was the action of the managers of Western roads in agreeing upon the restoration of freight rates, the higher tariffs in most cases to go into effect the 2d of November. In the South, too, the outlook in this particular greatly improved. A change in the ownership of the Seaboard Air Line took place, through which a recurrence of the rate war with the Southern Railway and other roads in the South was rendered unlikely, even if the Court injunctions to that end should prove ineffective.

The price of wheat further advanced during the month. The December option, which closed at 73 1/2 cents on September 30, at one time during October (on the 19th) touched 86 1/2 cents. Stringent money and realizing sales subsequently caused a sharp reaction, and on the 27th sales were made at 75 1/2, but the close was at 80. The higher range of values did not prevent a large outflow of the staple, the export movement being considerably larger than that of a year ago.

With reference to the premium on gold, 1/2 @ 1/4 of 1 per cent was the quoted rate in the early part of the month; later the rate was 1/4 @ 3/8 of 1 per cent for spot gold, 1/2 per cent for gold to arrive and 1 1/2 per cent for contracts extending to the end of the year; this was in the week ending the 17th; the next week the rate was 1 1/2 @ 1/4 of one per cent for spot and to arrive, and 3/4 @ 1 per cent for November contracts; after that the rate again advanced, and on the 30th the price was 3/8 @ 1/2 of 1 per cent for spot and 1 3/8 per cent for November contracts. One brokerage firm publicly advertised options on gold guaranteed by a surety company.

The money market, as stated above, developed very great activity. Up to the last week of the month the highest rate for call loans on the Stock Exchange was 12 per cent, with transactions occasionally as low as 2 @ 3 per cent for small amounts. During this period stringency was several times prevented by the offering by Messrs. J. P. Morgan & Co. of round amounts at 6 per cent whenever the rate temporarily advanced above that figure. In the last week, however, the rate touched a higher extreme each day, reaching about 100 per cent (6 per cent plus a commission of 1/4 of 1 per cent) on Thursday the 29th and 127 per cent (6 per cent plus 1 per cent commission for three days, or until Monday) on Friday the 30th. The action of the syndicate of banks on the latter day in placing nine to ten million dollars at the disposal of the Clearing House Loan Committee, as stated above, arrested the stringency, and loans at the close of the day were made at plain 6 per cent. The ordinary rate at banks and trust companies during this last week was 12 per cent as the minimum. In time loans very little was doing the whole month; rates at first were nominally 6 per cent for all periods, then were quoted at 7 @ 10 per cent, and in the last week some transactions were reported at 12 per cent for 60 to 90 days on choice collateral. In commercial paper, the tendency was decidedly downward at the opening of the month, and in the week ending the 3d classified rates for paper were reported for the first time since the middle of August. The very next week, however, the situation again changed, and after that it became increasingly difficult to sell paper, the nominal quotation at the close being 7 1/2 @ 10 per cent for the best names.

Foreign exchange was very weak after the 2d of the month, and rates declined until the 20th, under a pressure of commercial bills and the growing activity of our money market. Then a sharp upward reaction occurred, the supply of commercial bills falling off, and purchases of long sterling for investment being noted, besides which the Bank of England rate was advanced from 3 to 4 per cent on the 22d. The following shows the actual rates for exchange for every day on which a change in any class of sterling bills occurred.

BOSTON STOCK EXCHANGE.

MONTHLY AND YEARLY RECORD.

The following tables furnish a record of Boston Stock Exchange transactions in railroad securities for the past month and for the year to date. Also a record of transactions in mining stocks for the past month and since January 1st. The railroad securities which are active on the New York Stock Exchange are omitted from this list. We give the securities in alphabetical order under the three general headings, Railroad Bonds, Railroad Stocks and Mining Stocks.

In comparing New York and Boston prices, it should be noted that bond prices in New York are flat prices—that is, the price includes the accrued interest, while in Boston accrued interest must be paid in addition to price. It should also be remembered that New York stock prices are per cent while those in Boston are dollars per share.
