REVIEW OF JANUARY.

The month of January was marked by a number of developments, nearly all of a favorable nature. Perhaps the most noteworthy feature was the manifestation of public sentiment in favor of currency reform and the preservation of the existing monetary standard. On the 3d of the month the Monetary Commission of the Indianapolis Convention submitted its report accompanied by the outlines of a plan for the reform of our currency system. The report found general approval outside the silver ranks, and the public comments showed a really noteworthy unanimity of sentiment in favor of the principles enunciated in it. A bill embodying the recommendations of the Commission was presented in the House of Representatives on the 6th, and referred to the Committee on Banking and Currency. This committee examined ex-Senator Edmunds, ex-Secretary of the Treasury Fairchild, and several of the other members of the Commission, and was active all through the month in giving hearings and considering various plans of currency reform. The latter part of the month the Monetary Convention itself again met and unanimously approved the report of the Commission. The Convention was in session two days (January 25 and January 26), and the attendance was even more satisfactory than on the occasion of the first meeting a year ago, when such a large number of representatives of the various commercial bodies throughout the country were present.

Equal, if not greater, satisfaction was felt over the speech of President McKinley at the dinner of the National Association of Manufacturers on Thursday evening, January 27th. The President's remarks attracted unusual attention because of the palpable efforts of Senator Chandler and some others to make it appear that Secretary Gage, in his views regarding the currency, did not have the sympathy and support of Mr. McKinley. The fact, too, that the Senate had revived and was at the time considering the Stanley Matthews resolution of twenty years before, declaring that the obligations of the country might, at the option of the Government, be paid in silver, made the President's utterances welcome. Mr. McKinley very emphatically declared that the United States would "discharge all its obligations in the currency recognized as the best throughout the civilized world at the time of payment," and in equally plain and unequivocal language urged legislative action to place our currency on an unassailable basis. After this clear expression of the Administration's position, the action of the Senate the next day (the 28th) in passing the Matthews resolution by a vote of 47 to 32, possessed significance only as showing that public opinion had as yet failed to make its influence felt in that body. The House of Representatives reflected popular sentiment and popular disposition regarding the question by taking a speedy vote on the resolution, and by rejecting it on the 31st by the decisive majority of 182 to 132.

Cuban affairs still occupied a good deal of attention in the public mind, and at times exerted a temporary depressing influence. Early in the month rioting in Havana caused some uneasiness, but this soon disappeared. On the 18th an attempt was made to attach as a rider to the Diplomatic and Consular Appropriation bill a resolution recognizing the Cuban insurgents as belligerents. The attempt completely failed. Later the assemblage of United States war vessels off the coast of Florida, followed by the dispatch of the warship Maine to Cuban waters, excited apprehensions, but fears were quieted when it was announced that the step simply amounted to the resumption of a practice usual between friendly nations—that the Maine would make simply a "friendly call".

The general commercial situation on the whole continued satisfactory, all the trade reports indicating a large volume of business in progress. The cotton goods trade remained a prominent exception to the rule, the reduction in wages leading to a strike of the operatives at New Bedford and minor points in Maine and elsewhere. At Fall River and Lowell the operatives accepted the reductions. The price of print cloths dropped further, to $2\frac{1}{2}$ cents, with a recovery, however, at the close to 23-16 cents. In the iron and steel trades the production of iron was on an unprecedented scale. Railroad earnings showed large and general improvement. Weekly returns of bank clearings recorded 40 per cent or more gain over last year. The first week of the month the exchanges at New York exceeded 1,000 million dollars for the first time in the history of the Clearing House. The clearings for the whole country the same week were 1,681 million dollars, also an unprecedented figure.

The price of wheat made a further sharp advance, in face of the large holdings of Leiter, the Chicago wheat speculator, and the January option advanced from 97½ to 109¼, reacting to 105½ at the close. The advance was based on strong foreign advices, a continued good export demand, limited cash offerings, and also a small crop movement. Corn likewise advanced, though the close at 34¼ cents on the 31st was only very little higher than the close of the January option on the 31st of December, which was 33¾ cents.

The stock market reflected the continued improvement in trade and in earnings by considerable activity and advancing prices. The demand for bonds was of exceptional dimensions, and the sales on the Stock Exchange reached $92,870,210, a montly total which has been but once exceeded. In stocks the Vanderbilt properties were the features, on the proposed merger of the Lake Shore and the New York Central, and the rise in them stimulated the whole market the latter part of the month. New York Central rose from 105½ to 119¼ (closing at 118½), and Lake Shore from 170¼ to 194¼, closing at 192. Union Pacific advanced sharply on the completion of the payments to the Government, the Northern Pacific stocks on the large gains in earnings and the acquisition of the Seattle Lake Shore & Eastern, and the prospects of a large traffic during 1898 in connection with the movement to the Klondike gold fields. There were also many other developments aiding the upward movement of the general market—the successful sale of Illinois Central bonds, the offer of the Rock Island refunding bonds, the purchase of the New York Susquehanna & Western in the interest of the Erie, the declaration of a dividend on Mobile & Ohio stock, the position of the Manhattan Elevated directors with reference to rapid transit, etc.

The foreign exchange market was influenced mainly by the demand for sterling bills for investment, and this demand was in turn largely influenced by the course of money here and abroad. The early part of the month exchange rates advanced, but after the 10th prices again declined. Long bills all through the month (on account of the investment demand) were relatively much stronger than sight bills and cable transfers, as the following table will show. A feature at the close of the month was that documentary commercial bills were quoted at the same figure as prime documentary, which ordinarily sell half a cent higher. In the following table we give the rates on actual business for every day in which a change in any class of bills occurred.

Under the large return flow of currency from the interior, the money holdings and surplus reserve of the Clearing House banks again largely increased, and the money market relapsed into a condition of great ease. The Union Pacific Reorganization Committee on the 5th made the final payment of $8,538,401, the money being paid into the Treasury. On the 26th the Treasury called 10 per cent of the U. P. money still held by the depositary banks, and announced that further amounts of 10 per cent would be called each week hereafter. The Fourth National Bank on the 25th gave notice that it would reduce the rate of interest allowed on deposits of interior institution from 2 per cent to 1½ per cent.

We have reviewed the course of the stock market above, and therefore give without further comment our usual table showing the month's transactions, in comparison with the corresponding month of the three preceding years. The table also shows the sales of cotton on the Cotton Exchange and of grain on the Produce Exchange for the same period.

What attracts particular attention in the foregoing is the large total of the railroad bond sales. These amounted for January 1898 to $92,870,210. In both 1897 and 1896 the sales fell short of 39 million dollars, while in January 1896 they footed up only a little over 26 million dollars. There have been other months in Stock Exchange history when the sales were large, but as far as our records go there has been but one month when the amount exceeded that for the month just passed, namely October 1885 (over twelve years ago); the aggregate then was $104,612,900.

BOSTON STOCK EXCHANGE. MONTHLY AND YEARLY RECORD.

The following tables furnish a record of Boston Stock Exchange transactions in railroad securities for the past month and for the year 1897. Also a record of transactions in mining stocks for the past month and for the year 1897.

In comparing New York and Boston prices, it should be noted that bond prices in New York are flat prices—that is, the price includes the accrued interest, while in Boston accrued interest must be paid in addition to price.
