REVIEW OF NOVEMBER.

The decisive defeat of W. J. Bryan at the Presidential Election Nov. 3 led to an active speculation for higher prices on the Stock Exchange and brought a noteworthy revival of activity in general business. The trade situation had been slowly improving during the previous month on the firm belief that Mr. Taft's election was assured, and with the confirmation of that belief the recovery made added progress. The general disposition was to believe that with the Presidential contest out of the way, no further obstacle stood in the way of the complete resumption of prosperity. As it happened, too, stocks of goods in nearly all lines of industry had been reduced to a low basis through enforced abstention from buying. Accordingly, mills, factories and furnaces in large numbers started up after longer or shorter periods of idleness.

A short speech made by Mr. Taft before the Commercial Club at Cincinnati two days after the election served in no small measure to promote the rapidly growing feeling of confidence. In this the President-elect gave assurance that every enterprise which is "within the statutes" might proceed without fear of interference from the Administration, and stated that men who conduct legitimate business might understand that the Government was back of them and that they would not be prevented from enjoying fair profits. This appeared to be all that was asked by business interests, and apparently merchants and manufacturers at once went ahead on the assurance thus given. Other developments of a favorable nature helped along the recovery. In the case of the great lock-out of cotton operatives at Lancashire, a basis of settlement was reached on Nov. 6. The employers receded from their determination to put the 5% reduction in wages in effect in January and agreed to the request of the hands that the reduction be deferred until the first pay-day in March. Later in the month there came another favorable piece of news. The Fall River Cotton Manufacturers' Association at a meeting held Thursday, Nov. 19, decided to continue through the next six-months' period the existing schedule of wages, instead of making a further reduction, as they would have been entitled to do under the sliding scale, by which wages are based on the average margin between cotton and cloth prevailing during the preceding six months. In taking this step the manufacturers imposed no condition save the stipulation that the action on this occasion must not be taken as a precedent.

In the dry goods trade, as in other lines of industry, there was a large influx of buying orders, the cotton goods division being particularly noteworthy in this respect, and numerous advances in prices were announced. Print cloths at Fall River were first marked up from $3\frac{1}{8}$ cents to $3\frac{1}{4}$ cents and then to $3\frac{3}{8}$ cents. In the raw material, cotton, there was no very great change. Middling uplands in this market during the month ranged between 9.25 cents and 9.55 cents, but closed Nov. 30 at the same figure as on Oct. 31, namely 9.35 cents.

In the metal trades the copper market became somewhat excited and a sharp rise occurred, followed, however, by some reaction under a slackening of the demand. Lake copper, after having advanced from $13\frac{1}{2}$ cents in October to $14\frac{5}{8}$ cents on Nov. 10, subsequently declined to $14\frac{1}{4}$ cents, with a recovery to $14\frac{1}{2}$ cents at the close, and the tone remained good.

Another favorable event was the success attending New York City's offering of \$12,500,000 4% bonds. The total bids received aggregated \$148,266,360. The 50-year bonds sold on an interest basis of 3.89% and the 10-year bonds on an interest basis of 3.82%. This was the first public offering of 4s since the failure the previous year to sell any more bonds bearing that rate, necessitating a resort then to $4\frac{1}{2}$ s. The last preceding public sale in 1908 was in February, when the city placed its long-term $4\frac{1}{2}$ s on an interest basis of 4.29%.

In Europe there were a number of disturbing incidents which had no very great influence here. Early in the month there was some revival of friction between France and Germany in connection with Casablanca affairs; this matter was soon smoothed over, it involving merely the question how far the German Government had the right to extend its protection over Germans who had enlisted in the foreign legion of the French army and had deserted from the corps. A more seriously unsettling situation arose out of the publication in the London "Daily Telegraph" at the close of the previous month of a remarkable interview alleged to have occurred between Emperor William of Germany and a retired British statesman, supposed to be Lord Rosebery. This interview was full of indiscreet references and utterances. In it the Kaiser declared he entertained the most friendly feeling for England and said that in this he was in a minority in his own country, as the prevailing sentiment of large sections of the middle and lower classes in Germany was antagonistic to England. As proof of his friendship, he stated that at the time of the South African War the German Government had been invited by France and Russia to join in a movement to compel England to end the war, but that he had refused to countenance such a course. He furthermore stated that he had worked out a plan of campaign for ending the Boer War and had dispatched it to Queen Victoria.

Whatever the purpose of this interview, its effect was to create trouble for the Emperor, both at home and abroad. In Great Britain it was looked upon as an attempt to disturb the accord which had developed in the foreign policy of Russia, France and England, by recalling incidents that had happened many years ago when these countries were still working at cross purposes. In Germany the results were equally unfortunate for the Emperor. Criticism of him became more severe and more unrestrained apparently than at any time since the Kaiser's accession to the throne. When the Reichstag met, a perfect storm of protests against the Emperor's course arose. Determination that he must cease his meddling became so pronounced that eventually Chancellor von Buelow was forced to seek an audience with the Emperor, and, after explaining to him the state of public feeling, ask him to endorse a statement to the effect that hereafter his aim would be "to insure the stability of the policies of the German Empire under the guardianship of constitutional responsibilities." This the Emperor did, yielding evidently in a graceful fashion. His action had the effect of allaying excitement in Germany, while pacifying public sentiment abroad.

Another important event in foreign affairs was the simultaneous announcement on Sunday, November 15, of the death of the Dowager Empress of China, Tsi-An, and of the death the day before of the young Chinese Emperor, Kwang-Hsu. An edict was issued placing upon the throne Prince Pu-Yi, the three-year-old son of Prince Chun, and the latter became Regent of the Empire.

The month was also marked by a number of important legal decisions. Chief among these was the decision on Saturday, November 7, by the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the Southern District of New York in the suit of the U. S. Government holding the American Tobacco Co. an illegal combination in restraint of trade under the Sherman-Anti-Trust Law of 1890. This decision went further than any previous court ruling in the application of the Anti-Trust Law, the majority opinion, written by Judge Lacombe, declaring that under the Anti-Trust Law it would be illegal for two individuals engaged in inter-State trade to enter into a partnership because they thereby restrained competition which might otherwise exist between them. Another important ruling was that of the U. S. Circuit Court of Appeals for the Seventh Circuit, sitting at Chicago, denying the application of Attorney-General Bonaparte for a rehearing of the case against the Standard Oil Company of Indiana in which the Circuit Court of Appeals had set aside the fine of $29,240,000 imposed by Judge Landis. The Government later in the month applied to the U. S. Supreme Court for a writ of certiorari to bring up the action of the Appellate Court for review.

The Treasury Department at Washington gave notice to the national banks holding the $14,000,000 3% Treasury certificates of indebtedness issued during the panic of 1907 that these certificates would mature and cease to bear interest November 20. Some reduction of national bank circulation occurred as a result of the retirement of these certificates. On November 18 Secretary Cortelyou issued a circular inviting proposals until December 5 for $30,000,000 2% Panama Canal bonds. On November 25 he also issued a call for the surrender on November 30 by the 800 national bank depositories throughout the country of $5,000 each of their deposits of public funds, involving in the aggregate $4,000,000.

In the money market, the revival of Stock Exchange speculation increased somewhat the demand for funds and call-loan rates on one day got as high as 3%. There was also an advance in the rates for time money. The latter part of the month rates for time loans were again marked down.

The foreign exchange market was lower the early part of the month and strong and higher the latter part. The advance brought sight exchange to near the gold-export point, but coincidentally an advance occurred in the rate for exchange at Paris on London, and no engagements of gold for shipment were made.

STATE AND MUNICIPAL BONDS.

It is not the custom in quoting municipal bonds to include accrued interest in the price given. Hence this accrued interest must in all cases be added on. There are a very few instances which form exceptions to the rule—that is, where the prices given are flat prices, the accrued interest having been taken into account in making them. These are indicated by a special mark thus (*).

The figures in the column "to net" indicate the basis on which the securities sell or the interest rate which the securities, if held to maturity, will net to the purchaser at the present market price.
